MAY FORGET REPORTS ON BALLINGER

House Committee Is Likely Not to Take Action on Them.

Democrats Lay Plans to Force Them Upon the Floor.

Washington, Dec. 8.—The Ballinger-Pinchot reports will not be acted upon by the house committee on agriculture, to which they have been referred, until after the Christmas holidays at least, and perhaps not at all.

In fact, the members of this committee cannot see why the reports were referred to them except for the conservation question involved. They protest that the reports, having been made by a special joint committee of congress, should have been left on the speaker's table instead of being referred to any standing committee.

Working on Appropriations.

Just now the committee on agriculture, which is headed by Representative Scott of Kansas, one of the members who was not re-elected to the next congress, is considering the agricultural appropriation bill, and while the committee has not yet had an opportunity to consider the Ballinger-Pinchot controversy, the appropriation measure will be made a temporary vehicle for holding up such considerations.

Democrats Lay Plans.

Meantime the Democrats of the house, particularly the minority members of the Ballinger-Pinchot investigation committee, along with Mr. Madison of Kansas, the insurgent Republican member, are figuring on what action to take after the required seven days elapses when a rule from the committee on rules might be in order. The Democrats will seek recourse to a rule, and, failing early action, plan to bring up the question in speeches on the floor of the house.

DIDN'T BOTHER TO HOLD AN ELECTION

Arkansas County Makes That Return to the State Secretary.

Little Rock, Ark., Dec. 8.—An election without competition is considered too tame in Crittenden county, Arkansas. To make the record complete, the return from Crittenden for the recent congressional election was all that was needed, and Secretary of State Ludwig sent an urgent letter to the commissioners of that county insisting that the figures be hurried. In return the county clerk made an announcement that no election was held, that the Democratic nominee had no opposition, and in effect that an election under such circumstances was an unnecessary formality.

MOB CHEATED OF ALLEGED MURDERER.

St. Joseph, Mo., Dec. 8.—Hez Rasco, accused of murdering four members of the Hubbell family near Barnard, Mo., Nov. 20, was taken to Marysville, Mo., last night and arraigned before a magistrate before daylight this morning.

He waived preliminary hearing and was immediately returned to the St. Joseph jail for safe keeping. These precautions were taken in order to avoid possibility of lynching.

HIGH COST OF LIVING

Secretary Wilson Finds No Well Grounded Complaint Against Farmer.

Latter Receives Small Part of Prices Paid By Consumers.

Washington, Dec. 8.—High prices receive considerable attention in the annual report of the secretary of agriculture for 1910, published today. In the farmer's aspect of the matter he receives various percentages of the consumer's prices for farm products. In the case of milk, in seventy-eight cities distributed throughout the United States where the subject was investigated by the department, the farmer receives a scant 50 per cent, or one-half of the price paid by the consumer. The railroads get about 7 per cent, so that the remaining 43 per cent of the consumer's price is received mostly by the retailer.

"The milk wagon of the retailer has a long route. It stops at a house or two in one city block, perhaps passes several blocks without stopping, and so proceeds to serve customers thinly distributed along a route of miles. At the same time the milk wagons of

HOLD RITES FOR LEADER

Christian Scientists Conduct Services at Mrs. Eddy's Home.

Burial in Mount Auburn Is Opposed By Her Son.

Cambridge, Mass., Dec. 8.—After services attended by her family, relatives, the members of her household, officials of the Christian Science church and publishing society, and her personal students residing in Greater Boston, the body of Mary Baker G. Eddy was placed today in the receiving vault at Mount Auburn cemetery. The funeral services at the Chestnut Hill home were simple. There were about 120 persons present.

At 11 o'clock all were in the residence ready for the first words from Judge Cliford P. Smith, first reader of the mother church, who conducted the services.

Son Was Present.

Among those in attendance were Mrs. Eddy's son, George Washington Glover of Lead, S D., his daughter, Mary Baker Glover, and his son, George Washington Glover, Jr.; Dr. E. J. Foster of Waterbury, Vt., Mrs. Eddy's adopted son, and other relatives, including Gen. Henry M. Baker of Bow, N. H., Mrs. Eddy's cousin; John B. Baker of New York, another cousin of Mrs. Eddy, and his son, Rufus; Calvin A. Frye, Mrs. Laura Sargent, Adam H. Dickey, Rev. I. C. Tomlinson, Mr. and Mrs. William R. Rathven and Mrs. Martha W. Wilcox, member of Mrs. Eddy's household.

Read From Her Book.

Judge Smith began the services by the reading of a lesson sermon composed of selections from the Bible and correlative passages from "Science and Health, With Key to the Scriptures."

The casket was then carried to the hearse and the journey to Mount Auburn cemetery was begun.

The honorary pallbearers were Hon. John L. Bates of Boston, Edward P. Bates of Syracuse, N. Y., Arthur Brisbane of New York, Judge Charles R. Corning of Concord. N. H.; Frederick Dixon of London, Hon. Samuel J. Elder of Boston, Mayor Charles Hatfield of Newton, Mass., William B. Johnson of Boston, Albert Metcalf of Boston and

ARRESTS MAY SOLVE TRAGEDY

New York Police Are Said to Connect Prisoners With Murder.

New York, Dec. 8.—Secrecy is maintained at police headquarters regarding the identity of the three men made prisoners late yesterday, but there seems to be good reason to believe that the men are in custody in connection with the murder of John C. Warner, the young engineer of Highwood, Conn., who was stabbed to death on Seventh avenue more than a month ago.

While the detectives were not ready to admit as much, it was learned they feel certain they have solved the Warner mystery and that he met his death through being taken for an express strike breaker.

HORSEWHIPS MAN IN SELMA STREET

Washington Woman Says He Lied About Her Husband.

Selma, Ala., Dec. 8.—Mrs. Bowen of Washington, D. C., late yesterday afternoon horsewhipped N. A. Williams on the main street of this city. Mrs. Bowen was arrested and in her statement to the police she charged that Williams, who also comes from Washington, had told her a lie. Mrs. Bowen and her husband separated and Williams, she alleges, hid Bowen from her in this city. Williams was badly beaten over the head.

CLASH OVER WATERWAYS

Eastern Men Complain of Treatment at Big Meeting.

Clifford Sifton Tells How Canadian Canal Would Help Lake Ports.

Washington, Dec. 8.—Though the National Rivers and Harbors congress has been in session only one day, signs of friction already have developed among the representatives advocating big projects. Some of the representatives of the Atlantic Deeper Waterways association claim they are not receiving adequate recognition.

Interest centers today in the address of Governor Harmon of Ohio. Brig. Gen. Bixby, chief of the United States engineer corps, and Representative Champ Clark of Missouri, are also expected to deliver addresses. The appearance of Gen. Bixby will mark the first time that the head of the engineering corps of the army has appeared before a public gathering to explain his work and policy.

Important, Says Delano.

"There is no more important subject today than that of waterways," said Frederick A. Delano, president of the Wabash railroad, addressing the congress. Insisting that every true and loyal citizen of the country is interested in seeing the question of waterways settled and "settled right," President Delano said the railroad men should not look at the subject solely from the viewpoint of a railroad man, nor the shipper consider it alone from a shipper's standpoint.

In discussing the Mississippi project he assumed that no one would advocate making not only the Mississippi, but all of its navigable tributaries, fourteen or twenty feet deep. To develop the system otherwise, he said, would be like building the main line

RENTS THE PEST HOUSE AS HOME

Illinois Man Pays City Twelve Dollars Monthly For It.

Granite City, Ill., Dec. 8.—Under agreement to vacate on a day's notice, James Smith, a mill worker, moved his family into the Granite City pesthouse today. SAY VICE IS UNCHECKED

Civic League Calls Upon Mayor Cullum to Enforce the Laws.

Charges That "Red Light" District Is Running Wide Open.

Declaring that the liquor laws are being openly violated; that the red light district is running wide open, making a market for white slaves and teaching that lawlessness is openly tolerated by the police, the mayor and the public; that gambling is prevalent, and that as a result of this laxity Duluth is full of disreputable women and bad men, the Civic league last night passed a resolution demanding that the mayor redeem his pledge to enforce the law and carry out his solemn oath to enforce the laws of the city and state.

The meeting was held at the Y. M. C. A. upon call of President Bert N. Wheeler and Secretary C. C. Bartholomew. Following a discussion of the alleged lawlessness and the universal vice with which the city is said to be overrun, the meeting passed the resolution embodying the above statements.

Mayor M. B. Cullum was reached on the telephone this noon and the resolution read to him. He said that he had nothing to say upon the subject, for the present, at least.

Letter From Social Worker.

The Herald was also furnished a letter written by William P. F. Ferguson over his own signature, telling of a visit which he made to the alleged dis-

FLOODWOOD HAS A $3,000 FIRE

Dwelling and Barn Owned By S. Nickelson Destroyed Early Thursday.

Floodwood, Minn., Dec. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fire caused by an overheated stove completely destroyed the dwelling and barn owned by S. Mickelson, about 7:30 this morning. The buildings were valued at $3,000, which is well covered by insurance.

The surrounding buildings were in danger of igniting from the flying embers, but fires started this way were quickly under control.

FINDS MILK BELOW GRADE

City Inspector Reports on His Tour of Local Restaurants.

Fifteen samples of milk, out of twenty-five taken in the city from restaurants by Milk Inspector Grant E. Owens, tested below the standard of 3.5 per cent butter fat required by the state law.

Several were close to the requirements, running from 3 per cent up to the standard. The inspector says that milk of that grade is all right, although it is not the best. One sample from the Royal lunch at 511 West Superior street, dropped down to 1.8 per cent.

The health department has been keeping close track of the milk sold in restaurants. A general campaign was started last summer, and was productive of excellent results. The last month other duties have compelled the department to devote less attention to this feature, and some of the restaurant men got careless.

In some places the inspector found two different vats from which milk was served to the trade. One was well over the test and the other below. The better grade was intended for the people who looked as though they might object to poor milk, or who had been known to enter protests in the past. The other was tapped for the ordinary customers, according to the milk inspector. He said that in one place the owner was very anxious that he should only take one sample,

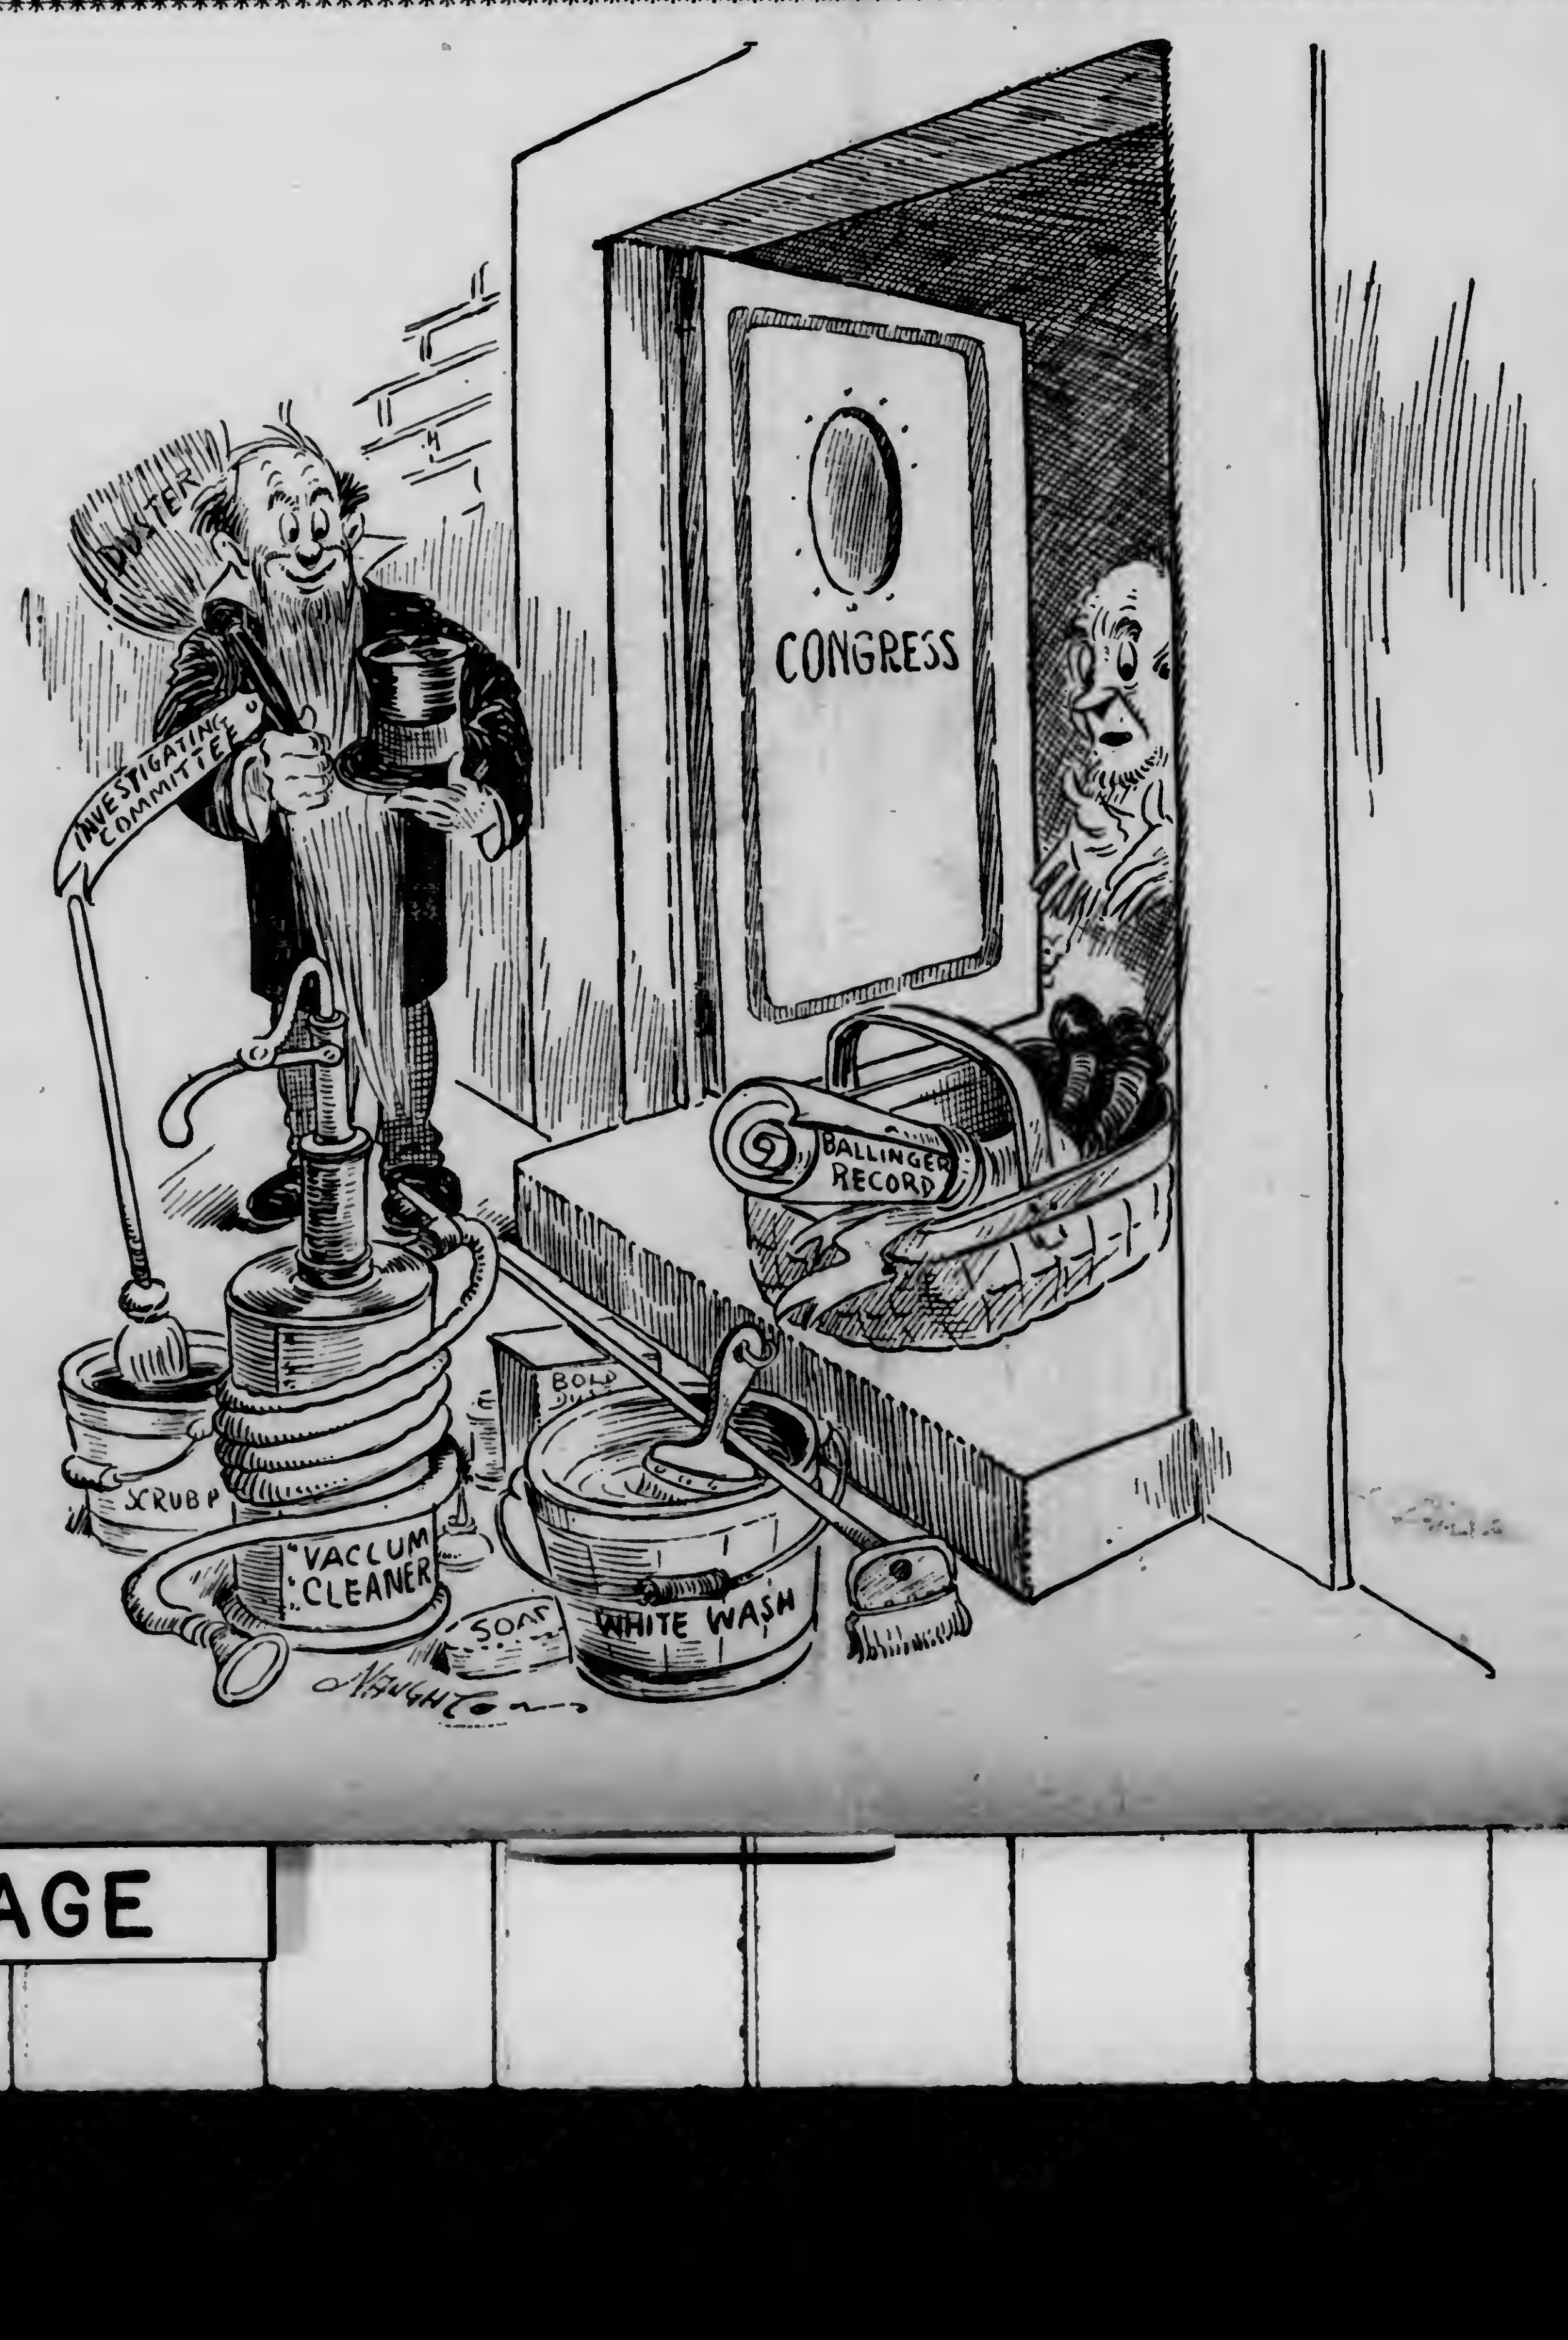
New York, Dec. 8.—No change, either for the better or worse, was reported today from the bedside of E. V. W. Rossiter, vice president of the New York Central railroad, who is critically ill at his home in Flushing. The patient's weak condition has caused fears that he could not long survive and the members of his family are in constant attendance.

BACK FROM THE CLEANERS.



IS SUGGESTED FOR SPEAKER OF HOUSE

ROBERT LEE HENRY Of Texas.

Washington, Dec. 8.—R. L. Henry of Texas has been much discussed as a candidate for speaker in the next congress. Mr. Henry says he is not a candidate. He has been a conspicuous member of the house for fourteen years, and in the Fifty-ninth congress was unanimously elected chairman of the Democratic caucus. Mr. Henry is a leading member of the judiciary committee and he may be made chairman of that committee.

UNIONISTS LACK SCORE

Government Has Lead of Twenty Thus Far in Election.

Results of Some of the Wednesday Polling for Parliament Announced.

London, Dec. 8.—The election returns so far as completed this evening give the coalition parties 209 seats in the next parliament against 189 secured by the Unionists.

Unionists Held Ground.

The counties of England which voted yesterday remained staunch to the Unionist movement cause, and the gap between the coalition forces and the Unionists remained about the same.

The Unionists scored a gain in the Eskdale division of Cumberland, where Claude Lowther, a relative of Speaker Lowther, turned out Geoffrey Howard, but the Liberals evened up matters in Radnarshire, Sir F. Edwards turning the tables on C. Venables Llewellyn, who had defeated him in the January elections.

Some Results Announced.

"The following results in constituencies polled for members of the new parliament yesterday were announced this morning:

FRED BAARS MISSING ON VERMILION

Friends Fear That He Has Perished in the Woods.

Has Not Been Heard From Since Saturday Morning, Nov. 12.

Started From Moe Bros.' Camp to Catch Train for Ely.

Duluth friends of J. Frederick Baars, Jr., fear that he has perished in the woods on the Vermilion iron range.

Mr. Baars left Duluth for Tower Noc. 3 That evening he started out to reach the drill camp on the Marquette & Vermilion Iron company's property in the southwest quarter of Section 19, 62-14. He failed to find the right trail down to the camp and left the county road a little too far west of where he should, bringing up in a small cedar swamp a short distance west of the camp.

After dark, while preparing supper, Thomas Moe and his drill men heard a number of rifle shots. Going outside, Mr. Moe sought to communicate with the firer of the shots. They heard one another's voices but could not understand distinctly. Mr. Moe thought the shots and shouts came from some poachers out "shining" deer and understood some one to tell him to "shut up." Thereupon he went back to the cabin and closed the door.

Slept in the Open.

The shots and shouts came from Mr. Baars, however. Although but a dozen rods away, he feared he would break

ALL QUIET IN TORONTO AGAIN

Pay-as-You-Enter Cars Are Run Without Repetition of Riots.

Toronto, Ont., Dec. 8.—Operation of the newly installed pay-as-you-enter cars of the Toronto Street Railway company was continued today without further inconvenience on the part of those who are said to object to the type of cars used.

Eight persons were arraigned today for alleged participation in last night's disturbance, charged with disorderly conduct.

No estimate of the damage done has been made. The riot was remarkable for its spontaneity and for its fierceness while it lasted. It resulted in the injury of eighteen men, the complete wrecking of eleven street cars and the shattering of the windows in over 100 more. For two hours a mob of several thousand persons surged back and forth on the principal business thoroughfares, demolishing every street car that came within reach and completely tying up traffic.

Riot After Mass Meeting.

The disorderly scenes followed a mass meeting held at Massey hall on the call of Mayor Geary and the board of control. The meeting resolved itself into a series of fiery denunciations of the street car company and shortly before 11 o'clock the audience became a mob. The mob showed consideration for the passengers, allowing them in almost every instance to leave a car before attacking it.

MUST REPAY LAKE CHARGE

Commerce Commission Finds That Insurance Did Not Insure.

Declares Advanced Lake and Rail Freight Rates Unreasonable.

Washington, Dec. 8.—Insurance that did not insure was remedied today by the interstate commerce commission in a decision of the case of Wyman Partridge & Co. and other shippers against the Boston & Maine railroad and other carriers of shipments from Eastern points to Chicago, Duluth, St. Paul and other Western destinations.

The case was unique. In 1907 the lake and rail freight rates, first-class, were advanced 3 cents per 100 pounds on shipments from Atlantic seaboard territory to Western points. An effort was made by the shippers to obtain a restoration of the former lower rates. The carriers agreed to furnish marine insurance for the shipments in view of the advance in rates, and the matter was permitted to drift.

Reparation For Shippers.

It finally was disclosed that the insurance furnished did not afford adequate protection to the shippers, and Wyman Partridge & Co. took out their own insurance. By the decision rendered today the commission awards reparation to the complainants "because of unreasonable rate advances to cover marine insurance protection which was never given."

NEWS AND VIEWS OF LEGISLATORS AND POLITICIANS

"Jim" Arneson of Chisholm Appointed Secretary to the Lieut. Governor—Dunn Now Declared to Have Cinched Speakership of the House—Sam Gordon Holding Court in St. Paul—Editorial Ire Aroused Over Sam Langum.

"Jim" Arneson Lieut. Gov. Gordon's Secretray.

James S. Arneson, editor of the Chisholm Tribune-Herald, has been appointed secretary to the lieutenant governor, Sam Y. Gordon, who will take office at the first of the year. Mr. Arneson has taken an active part in the politics of the state for years and is one of the familiars of the great and near great. He has been a county auditor, a banker and, mostly, a newspaperman. He has been a resident of St. Louis county for a comparatively brief period, but in the short time he has been here he has made himself a force to be reckoned with, when politics is a'doing.

This position calls for official activity on the part of the appointee only during sessions of the legislature and the duties are not burdensome, but the place is one of honor and carries with it a lot of invisible responsibility, if properly understood.

Mr. Arneson is an old friend of the lieutenant governor-elect, who is himself a newspaperman, and has been close to him politically ever since the bee began to buzz about the massive Gordon head. Indeed, it is said that Mr. Arneson's counsel had a great deal to do with the shaping of Gordon's course when he steered for the nomination.

Arneson's friends in Duluth, where he has many of them, and all through the state will certainly be pleased to learn that he has been given the honor of this appointment, and with a pair like Gordon and Arneson boxing the senate compass legislative progress should be interesting.

Dunn Declared to Have Won Prize.

It was declared in St. Paul this morning that the election of H. H. Dunn of Albert Lea as speaker of the house is a foregone conclusion. The Fourth district was to caucus today and the expectation was that the delegation would go over to Dunn practically in a body, deserting J. A. A. Burnquist at the critical moment. Political observers said today that they had no doubt Dunn possessed, unqualifiedly, 46 votes, with the chance that he would pick up more. If the Fourth does as it is expected to do, it will be a Dunn landslide.

It develops that Dunn failed to get the undivided support of the First district caucus, held at Rochester, and which gave him six votes and Burnquist three. Two members did not vote. The division was on county option lines, those not voting explaining that because they are new members and not familiar with conditions, they preferred to stay out of the fight at this time. Both Dunn and Burnquist claim these two votes.

Three of the five Republicans in the Second district are county optionists and they probably will declare for Burnquist, the other two going to Dunn.

I. C. Spooner of Morris, whose candidacy split the Burnquist support, is definitely out of the race and is at St. Paul working for Burnquist, as is J. N. Johnson of Canby, who was a candidate early in the game but failed to attract much strength. Dunn's managers claimed yesterday he had fifty votes in his vest pocket, but this was contradicted by the claims of P. J. Youngdahl, who is leading the county optionists' fight for Burnquist. Forty-five votes will control the caucus, and Youngdahl said the county optionists are sure of 51. This is the way he said they are distributed: First, 5; Second, 3; Third, 1; Fourth, 4; Sixth, 5; Seventh, 10; Eighth, 2; Ninth, 11. Hennepin has declared as a unit for Dunn, but Youngdahl has made desperate efforts to break the unit rule, claiming two of that delegation and probably others will be for Burnquist. Today, however, it was declared certain that Hennepin "Dunn stay put."

Dunn is credited with forty-six votes that won't waver or slip, and his own claims to more than enough to nominate are made with an assurance that is disquieting to the optionists, who are not satisfied with the Albert Lea man's pledge to name a committee that will report out a county option bill. They want a man who will mix into the fight on the floor as much as he can from the chair. Today the optionists did not specify where their votes were to come from, but persisted in saying Burnquist was not beaten.

What the Sixth district will do is in doubt. That delegation, if it goes over to Dunn, will destroy some of the strategic advantage possessed by the Eighth district. If the Sixth declares for Burnquist, or splits on the proposition and gives Burnquist a shade the better of the split, the Eighth in all probability would name the speaker, if the Fourth stuck to Burnquist, which is not a probability.

From the point of view of the contestants, the fight has entered upon an exciting stage. Its progress is being watched closely by the members of the Eighth district delegation, who are supposed to lean toward Dunn, on account of his definite and advanced stand in favor of reapportionment.

Gordon Holding Confabs in St. Paul.

Today and tomorrow Sam Y. Gordon, lieutenant governor elect, will be the center of attraction in the state capital. The Browns Valley man is presiding over an unofficial session of the new senate, a session in which the Democratic members are conspicuous by their absence. And it's a piecemeal session at that, for the senators are urging their individual claims to committee assignments. They have, at his request, set forth their desires by letter, but it remains for Gordon to reconcile clashing ambitions and get his subjects into harmonious relations.

The committee personnel which is awaited with greatest interest by the county optionists is, of the course, the temperance committee, usually best known for its distribution of the materials of intemperance. An effort may be made to have a special committee handle the county-option bill, rather than risk a breaking of tradition in this department of senatorial activity.

There are other committees far more desirable from the senators' point of view, but whatever appointments are made, they will not become known at this time.

Another "Good Thing" For Langum of Preston

Down in the First district rumor has stirred about that Sam Langum, editor of the Preston Times and postmaster of the national house of representatives, is going to "get something good." As a result howls of wrath are disturbing the air, the purport of such howls being that Sam has had about all he's entitled to, and then some. What he needs now is the hook, in the deliberate opinion of the source of the howls.

The "something good" that Langum sees in prospect is the job of secretary of the state tax commission, "at a good fat salary." Rukard Hurd of St. Paul, is the present secretary, and it seems to be the expectation that he will be displaced. Down in the First district there have been no audible rumblings against the removal of Mr. Hurd, but that he should be displaced by Mr. Langum is not a pleasant thought to many patriotic men there who assisted in the translation of James A. Tawney from congressional to private life.

It is intimated that if Langum is named for the job, a real insurrection against the Ramsey county bunch will be stirred up among the First district editors, it being taken for granted that the St. Paul organization has the say.

The Owatonna Journal-Chronicle describes Langum as the most thoroughly discredited political leader in the state and speaks slightingly of "Sam's time-worn claims for 'recognition.'"

Commission Form of Government.

Rochester Post and Record: Back of the whole plan of the commission form of government is the basic idea that a municipal government is a business corporation. Tax payers who invest money in municipal government are entitled to returns as surely as stockholders in a railroad or a banking corporation. Tax payers are entitled to have their money well invested; to have public officials who are faithful to their trust and, above all, who are scrupulously careful in the expenditures of the public money.

Good government is an asset to any community.

Bad government will retard a city's growth despite every natural advantage it may possess.

An aroused public sentiment, which will place capable men of proven capacity in municipal office and give them authority to exercise their talents and to shoulder the responsibilities of their positions, will bring about a transformation.

Back of the three or five commissioners stand the people.

In the hands of able commissioners gratifying success has been encountered in every city that has adopted it.

The wider latitude allowed under a commission form of government to the municipal heads will attract men who have ideas and the ability to put them into effect if given free rein.

In any event, the commission plan has passed far beyond experimental stage. In the hands of good men it approaches as near the ideal as any scheme devised by moderate civics.

TEXAS IS THE FIFTH STATE

Has Passed Missouri in Population in the Last Ten Years.

Washington, Dec. 8.—Texas, the largest state in the Union in point of area, made greater progress in its increase in population during the last ten years than any of the states which exceed it in the number of inhabitants, and now takes rank as fifth in population, passing Missouri.

Census statistics show that only New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois and Ohio surpass Texas in population, while Missouri drops back to seventh place, having been passed by Massachusetts during the last ten years.

Texas' population increase would give her four new representatives if the present ratio of apportionment is retained when congress enacts the new apportionment law.

The population of Texas is 3,896,542, according to the thirteenth census. This is an increase of 847,832, or 27.8 per cent, over 3,048,710 in 1900. The increase from 1890 to 1900 was 814,187, or 28.4 per cent.

No city population statistics for Texas were issued.

SMALLPOX ON LONG TRIP

Children With Disease Journey From State of Virginia.

May Have Left a Trail of Germs Along the Route.

Their faces spotted with smallpox eruptions, Edith Gildhaus, 12 years old, and Jessie Gildhaus, 9 years old, arrived in Duluth yesterday afternoon after having traveled all the way from the state of Virginia to meet their father in this city, where is is employed in one of the local hotels.

When they met their father he immediately noticed the eruptions and notified the health department. Dr. Ignatius J. Murphy of the department diagnosed their ailment as smallpox and they were removed to the city detention hospital before evening.

When they left their former home, Dr. Murphy says, he was informed that the children had the marks on their faces, but that the physician called in said they were afflicted with chicken pox. They have been traveling on different trains and it is possible that they have left the germs behind them. If they used sleeping car berths the bedding is also likely to contain the germs of the disease, which may be communicated to others unless thoroughly disinfected. Dr. Murphy stated that the children were not very sick and he expects an early recovery. They were accompanied on their journey by their mother.

RAILROADS

CROOKSTON MAY SECURE THE SOO

Surveyors' Activity and Options on Right-of-Way Start Rumors.

Crookston, Minn., Dec. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—A party of Soo surveyors, which started from Plummer last week and surveyed southwest, crossing the Northern Pacific near Perrault station, thence passing through Red Lake Falls, and are now near Gentilly has caused another revival of the talk of Soo connections here. The party will run a line to this city and from here to Fargo and thence west between the Northern Pacific and Great Northern connecting with the Soo at some point in that state or perhaps in South Dakota.

This line has been talked of because of the exceptionally rich territory it would tap the entire distance. A coterie of Crookston business men are deeply interested in getting the Soo here, but in the past the Great Northern contingent here has been successful in smothering any organized effort along that line. There has been some persistent but quiet work done in the past few months, however, and it is claimed that the Soo will make a definite announcement of the plans and exact route of the branch in the next six months.

Duluth Concern Quite Active.

It developed that within the past two months options on a large amount of land has been secured along the proposed route between here and Plummer, but it has been secured by several different concerns and no one appears to know just what influence is behind it. However, this gives color to the surveying now in progress. A representative of a Duluth land company has been very active and secured options on section tracts in several instances and a Minneapolis concern with connections here and at Fargo has secured some heavy options. It is also understood that a 40-acre tract including a considerable portion of Jerome's addition has been promised the Soo at a merely nominal figure for yards if the deal goes through. Further developments are promised within a few days.

RAILROAD MAN ENDS REMARKABLE CAREER.

One of the most remarkable careers in the history of American railroading was brought to a close yesterday when Don Juan Whittemore retired from office as chief engineer of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway company, a position he had held continuously for forty-seven years, at the age of 80 and after sixty-three years of active railroad service.

In recognition of such unparalleled long and faithful service, Mr. Whittemore was given the honorary title of consulting engineer. He will be succeeded by C. F. Loweth, engineer of bridges and buildings, who has worked under Mr. Whittemore in his last great achievement, the general supervision of the construction of the Chicago, Milwaukee & Puget Sound railway. This task of building a new line for 1,500 miles from the Missouri river to the Pacific coast was undertaken while Mr. Whittemore was 77 years of age.

He has virtually occupied the position of consulting engineer for several years and while residing in Milwaukee has maintained his office in Chicago, making the trip back and forth several times a week.

Service Is International.

Since the age of 17, Mr. Whittemore has been building railroads all over the United States and parts of Canada and Cuba, and his active service has been practically coincident with the history of the St. Paul railway system, as he was assistant chief engineer of the La Crosse & Milwaukee road in 1853, ten years before it was merged with the St. Paul, and he was made chief engineer of the system.

"I've had a lot of pleasure in my work," the veteran engineer said as he left his office. "I've suffered hardships and endured privations, but I'm not going to talk about them now. That is all over. I look back over a long life and smile with content. Now I'm out of it all. For a time, I suppose, I'll be like a severed tail with a dog to wag it, but I've a little studying to do and here's my chance."

Mr. Whittemore's resignation, he said, was actually handed in over two years ago, but only recently President Earling saw fit to accept it, as the knowledge and experience gained in such a long career has proved of gerat value to the road. Mr. Whittemore's first railroad experience came in 1847 in the engineering corps of the Vermont & Canada railroad. He is a member of the American Society of Civil Engineers, and has been awarded the honorary degree of LL. D. by the University of Wisconsin and of civil engineer by the University of Vermont. He is a native of Milton, Vt., where he was born.

CHILDREN INTERESTED IN SALES OF RED CROSS CHRISTMAS SEALS

In a few things have the children of the public schools been so interested as in the sale of the Red Cross Christmas seals. Prizes for the best essays on "The Uses of the Red Cross Christmas Seal" have been offered by the local committee and a large number of the children are busy finding out the uses, in preparation for the writing of their essays.

A prize of $10 has also been offered the school in which the most seals are sold. If there is anyone in Duluth who misses an opportunity of knowing about and buying their holiday seals it will not be the fault of the children. "We're going to give our $10 to Mrs. Lee to help in her work," said one small girl who was diligently doing her best to sell seals. And that is the very finest spirit that the seal is endeavoring to develop—the feeling that if each one does his share America may in a few years be rid of the plague of tuberculosis.

1910

In the Duluth city schools, 71,000 Red Cross seals have been distributed. At the booth in the corridor of the postoffice, which was in place Monday, there have been sold more than 2,000. The public appreciates the value of each one doing his share and many people mailing a single letter buy the Red Cross seal as conscientiously as they do the regular postage stamp. The demand at the sub postoffice station at Panton & White's has been large and throughout the city the demand shows that the Duluth public realize as never before the value of this endeavor.

The object of the whole plan has been explained as follows:

"Every consumptive uncared for is a public danger. Yet only one-tenth of the cases are in the hospitals and sanatariums of the country. That means that nine-tenths of the victims are fighting the dread enemy in their homes, either intelligently or otherwise. But in both classes there is tremendous need for help.

"The plan of the Christmas seal inaugurated in this country by the Red Cross means a great recruiting for the army already enlisted to battle with the plague. It is good fighting, for it shoots straight at the mark. It means a certain cure for many who would have gone uncured, because the pennies and the dollars spent this season for seals will be transformed speedily into life-saving milk and eggs.

"Above all, the plan is admirable because it is educational—because it will help to teach both old and young that it is the duty of one and all to help lift the burden of tuberculosis which weights upon the whole community.

"Those are the practical material merits of the Red Cross stamps. But there is another side. Those little 'Merry Christmas' squares are gifts that not only will do good, but will do the giver good. Each of us will be enriched by what is given."

WILL USE CRUDE OIL FOR FUEL.

After a thorough investigation by an expert for more than a year the Great Northern railway has decided to utilize oil for fuel on practically all of its locomotives west of Leavenworth, Wash., in the Cascade mountains.

The crude petroleum will be shipped by boats from California to Everett, Wash. It is estimated that the use of oil will result in an economy and it is commended as being practically smokeless, while the absence of cinders makes for greater freedom from forest fires.

other retailers are covering various portions of the same route, and so there is a great waste of effort and of expense in the distribution."

Farmer Gets Only Half.

The farmer receives hardly more than half of the consumer's price in the case of poultry; 69 per cent in the case of eggs; cabbage 48 per cent when bought by the head and 65 per cent when bought by the pound; celery, 60 per cent when bought by the bunch.

The apple grower receives 56 per cent of the consumer's price when the purchase is by the bushel and 66 per cent when by the barrel; the strawberry grower gets 49 per cent of the consumer's price in purchases by the quart and 76 per cent when by the crate. When the consumer buys a peck of onions at a time, the farmer receives 28 per cent of the retail price; when he buys a barrel the farmer receives 58 per cent. So, in the case of oranges, when the purchase is by the dozen the grower receives 20 per cent of the consumer's price, whereas, when the purchase is by the box the grower gets 59 per cent. The rule seems to be, the smaller the retail quantity the smaller the farmer's share of the consumer's price.

Among the many other products represented in the list are oats, with 74 per cent of the consumer's price going to the farmer when bought by the bushel; melons, 50 per cent when bought by the pound; parsnips, 60 per cent when bought by the bunch; potatoes, 59 per cent when bought by the bushel; string beans, 80 per cent when bought by the barrel; sweet potatoes, 61 per cent when bought by the barrel; turnips, 69 per cent in purchases by the bunch; watermelons, 34 per cent when bought singly.

Coffee and Tea.

Four-fifths of the coffee imported into the United States in the fiscal year 1910 came from Brazil; 17 per cent from other countries in South and Central America and from Mexico, so that 97.2 per cent of the imports were from Mexico and Central and South America. About 0.1 of 1 per cent of the coffee imports are from Aden and are the nominal Mocha coffee and 1.3 per cent of the imports are from the East Indies and are the Java coffee.

In 1910 the coffee imported from American countries had an import value of 7.8 cents per pound. The freight from Rio de Janeiro is 0.28 of 1 cent, or about one-fourth of a cent per pound. For nearly all of this American coffee the consumers paid prices ranging from 20 to 35 cents per pound. In other words, the import value, plus the ocean freight charge, is from 23 to 40 per cent of the principal range of prices paid for the coffee at retail.

The case is similar with regard to tea. The imports of 1910 had an import value of 16 cents per pound, and if it may be assumed that most of the tea consumed in this country is bought at retail prices ranging from 50 to 70 cents per pound, the import value of tea is from 23 to 32 per cent of what the consumer pays.

Farmer Not to be Blamed.

After presenting many details with regard to the increase of prices on farm products between farmer and consumer, the secretary of agriculture declares that "the conclusion is inevitable that the consumer has no well-grounded complaint against the farmer for the prices that he pays. The farmer supplies the capital for production and takes the risk of his losses; his crops are at the mercy of drought, and flood, and heat, and frost, to say nothing of noxious insects and blighting diseases. He supplies hard, exacting, unremitting labor. A degree and range of information and intelligence are demanded by agriculture which are hardly equaled in any other occupation. Then there is the risk of overproduction and disastrously low prices. From beginning to end the farmer must steer dextrously to escape perils to his profits, and indeed to his capital, on every hand. At last the products are started on their way to the consumer. The railroad, generally speaking, adds a percentage of increase to the farmer's prices that is not large. After delivery by the railroad the products are stored a short time, are measured into the various retail quantities, more or less small, and the dealers are rid of them as soon as possible. The dealers have risks that are practically small, except credit sales, and such risks as grow out of their trying to do an amount of business which is small as compared with their number."

Why Not Buy Directly?

In continuation of this subject, the secretary of agriculture suggests that the problem of high prices is one for treatment by the consumer. "Why do not consumers buy directly from the farmers?" he asks. "A distribution of farm products in this simple way has already begun in England where co-operative organizations of farmers are selling by direct consignment to co-operative organizations of consumers in cities. Farmers' co-operative selling associations are numerous in this country, but co-operative buying associations among the people of cities and towns are few. Aside from buying associations maintained by farmers, hardly any exist in this country. It is apparent, therefore, that the consumer has much to do to work out his own salvation with regard to the price that he pays. Potatoes were selling last spring in some places where there had been overproduction for 20 cents and in some places for even 9 cents per bushel at the farm, while at the same time city consumers in the East were paying 50 to 75 cents per bushel, although there was nothing to prevent them from combining to buy a carload or more of potatoes directly from the grower and for delivery directly to themselves."

Value and Quantity of Crops.

Nothing short of omniscience can grasp the value of the farm products of this year, is the statement of the secretary of agriculture. At no time in the world's history has a country produced farm products within one year with a value reaching $8,926,000,000, which is the value of the agricultural products of this country for 1910. The value of farm products from 1899 to the present year has been progressive without interruption. If the value of the products of 1899 is placed at 100, the value for this year is 189, or almost double the value for the census year eleven years ago. "During this period of unexampled agricultural production, a period of twelve years, during which the farmers of this country have steadily advanced in prosperity and wealth and in economic independence, in intelligence, and a knowledge of agriculture, the total value of farm products is $79,000,000,000."

Splendid, too, for whooping cough, chest pains, bronchitis and other throat troubles. It stimulates the appetite and is slightly laxative, which helps end a cough.

This recipe makes more and better cough syrup than you could buy ready made for $2.50. It keeps perfectly and tastes pleasantly.

Pinex is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, and is rich in guaiacol and all the natural pine elements which are so healing to the membranes. Other preparations will not work in this formula.

This plan of making cough syrup with Pinex and Sugar Syrup (or strained honey) has proven so popular throughout the United States and Canada that it is often imitated. But the old, successful formula has never been equaled.

A guaranty of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this recipe. Your druggist has Pinex or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

A Simple Safeguard For Mothers.

Mrs. D. Gilkeson, 326 Ingles avenue, Youngstown, Ohio, gained wisdom by experience. "My little girl had a severe cold and coughed almost continuously. My sister recommended Foley's Honey and Tar. The first dose I gave her relieved the inflammation in her throat and after using only one bottle her throat and lungs were entirely free from inflammation. Since then I always keep a bottle of Foley's Honey and Tar in the house. Accept no substitutes. Sold by all druggists.

of a railway with a broad gauge and the branches with a narrow gauge. Pointing out that the expense of such work would be prohibitive, he continued:

"It would seem, therefore, all that reasonably could be asked, so far as our navigable rivers are concerned, is that the government shall dredge them to depths sufficient to accommodate tow boats and barges such as can now be operated on the greater part of the Mississippi river drainage system.

Some Idle Dreams.

"Some of the people of Chicago have visions of ocean vessels loading in their harbor, steaming down through the drainage canal, the Illinois river and the Mississippi river, and thence to Europe; also through the Panama canal to the Orient; or by the Great Lakes and St. Lawrence canals to Europe. Such thoughts are idle dreams, and the trend of economic conditions in ocean transportation makes all such suggestions increasingly impossible.

"Although I have never seen the statement made, I believe it is a fact—and one worth determining by careful test—that it takes less power to move 5,000 tons, or 10,000 tons, of freight loaded on cars, on a railroad, the grades of which do not exceed three-fourths of 1 per cent, than to move the same tonnage on a canal or canalized river. Train resistance on a smooth and level track is less than the resistance of moving a boat through water.

Futility of Plans.

"To dig a waterway fourteen feet deep, would be to provide one that would not be any more useful than the Mississippi river already is for most of its length, and than numerous other streams are. For over 90 per cent of the vessel tonnage on the Great Lakes draws over fourteen feet of water and over 80 per cent of this draws over eighteen feet. It is evident, therefore, that lake vessels could not be used on a fourteen-foot waterway, and of course, ocean steamships could not be used where lake steamships could not go. Even if the Lakes-to-the-Gulf waterway were made sufficiently deep for lake vessels, and it were economical for them to use it, all water transportation on tributary streams would have to be carried in shallower draft vessels, requiring transfer. Would it not be better to serve the entire Mississippi river basin with tow boats and barges which, like the much-abused freight car, could go anywhere within the sphere of navigability, say 5,000 to 8,000 miles?

Is not the real problem to find an economical vehicle of transportation adaptable in a large river system like the Mississippi river and its tributaries; a vehicle which shall do for that river system what the freight car does on our system of railways?

On the Great Lakes.

Of traffic on the Great Lakes he said:

"The most rapid growth in our waterborne commerce during the last twenty years has been on the Great Lakes. This has been largely due to the wise policy of the government in developing harbors and in deepening the Sault Ste. Marie canal. It has also been largely owing to the course of large industrial corporations and of the railways in acquiring control of or putting on the Great Lakes large steamship lines. These things have contributed to its increase for precisely the same reasons that they have helped to stimulate our coastwise traffic."

That Canada owes its existence to its waterways is the belief of Hon. Clifford Sifton, chairman of the Canadian conservation commission, who spoke before the congress today.

Tells of Canada's Work.

"Transportation by water began with the bark canoe of the Indian, followed by the bateau of the voyageurs," said Mr. Sifton. "Today it has reached the stage of the great carriers of the upper lakes."

During the course of his address Mr. Sifton sketched the beginning of the present system of canal and river improvement in existence in Canada, begun in 1700, and indicated the general results that have been attained with special reference to the great waterway which commences at the strait of Belle Isle and terminates at the head of Lake Superior.

Ocean Boats to Duluth.

Mr. Sifton discussed the proposed construction of the Montreal, Ottawa and Georgian Bay canal, which he said when constructed would admit the largest carriers afloat on the upper lakes with full cargoes to tide water, and if found economical and advisable, would admit ocean vessels up to twenty-two feet in draught to go through to Chicago, Duluth and Fort William.

He said it was a matter of great gratification that under a recent treaty provision had been made for an international waterways commission, which shall have jurisdiction to advise on questions regarding waters of an international character, as between Canada and the United States.

Unionists: A. O'Neill, for Mid-Antrim, Viscount Dalrymple for Wigtownshire and B. M. Eyres-Monsell for Worcestershire (Evesham).

O'Brien—Nationalist: Moretown Frewen for Northeast Cork.

The majorities in the counties generally were smaller in the cases of both the Liberals and the Unionists, but this is accounted for by the reduced total vote cast.

Interesting personalities among those whose election was announced today are Moreton Frewer, who comes to the house of commons from Cork county to support William O'Brien, the Independent Nationalist leader; H. Spender Clay for the Tonbridge division, Kent, and Lord Willoughby de Eresby for the Horncastle division of Lincolnshire. All three married American women.

CHILDREN'S FACES AWFUL WITH RASH

Ran Over Bodies, Too. Dry and Very Crusty—Used Cuticura and Did No More Scratching. Eczema Disappeared in 6 Weeks.

Now More Than Two Years Ago and No Sign of Trouble Has Returned.

"My two children suffered from an affection of the face and hands. It started first with little red spots which afterwards got bigger until they were the size of five cent pieces. The outside became dry and very crusty. The rash on their faces was awful and afterwards it ran over the body, too.

"I had a doctor for them but he could not help. Then I read of the Cuticura Remedies. As I am a chemist, having served my apprenticeship in Germany, I did not have much confidence in them. Yet I was soon taught something better, for after I used Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Resolvent the first time the children felt very well and did no more scratching. Then the eczema became dry and entirely disappeared after about six weeks' treatment. This is now more than two years ago and no sign of the trouble has returned, therefore I can recommend the Cuticura Remedies without reserve to all people who are suffering with eczema. William Grelek, 74 Douglas St., Brooklyn, N. Y., Mar. 10, 1910."

Gen. Frank S. Streeter of Concord, N. H.

There was no service at the receiving vault other than the reading of the Twenty-third Psalm and the last verse in Jude by Judge Smith.

The casket was then taken within by the pallbearers, the vault was sealed and there a guard will be maintained until a mausoleum has been built on the plot chosen for the final resting place of the body.

Estate of $2,000,000.

Boston, Mass., Dec. 8.—That Mrs. Mary Baker Glover Eddy, head of the Christian Science church, left none of her estate, estimated at nearly $2,000,000, to relatives is gathered from a remark made by Judge Clifford P. Smith, first reader of the Mother church, who said:

"Mrs. Eddy's will is not to be read at once, as it contains absolutely nothing which would be of interest to any of the members of her family."

He made no statement as to that portion of the estate which may go to the church.

Oppose Place of Burial.

George W. Glover of Lead, S. D., did not approve of the plan to bury his mother in Mount Auburn cemetery. He said:

"My first thought upon learning of her death was that the most appropriate place for her last rest would be among her kindred at Tilton, N. H. If she is not to be buried there, I should favor next in order Concord, N. H., where she spent so many years of her life and where her legal residence was, despite the fact that for nearly three years she had made her domicile at Chestnut Hill."

Dr. E. J. Foster-Eddy, Mrs. Eddy's adopted son, it is understood, is in accord with him in opposition to placing Mrs. Eddy's body permanently in Mount Auburn cemetery.

a leg in some hole and therefore refrained from going further in the dark in search of the cabin. He had a light pack with several suits of clothing, night shirt, small ax, rifle, big knife but no blankets. When he failed to find the camp, he pulled on several suits of clothing, pillowed his head on the pack sack and went to sleep. When he awoke in the morning, he was covered with the snow that fell in the night.

Mr. Baars spent all that day in camp resting up. During the day, he wrote a communication to The Herald, advocating a system of wardens with police powers to patrol timber lands and game preserves of Northern Minnesota. He slept in Moe Bros.' camp that night and on the morning of Saturday, Nov. 5, started across country to examine iron properties on the northerly side of 62-14.

On Friday, Nov. 11, Mr. Baars showed up again at Moe Bros.' camp on Section 19, 62—14. He was accompanied by a couple of trappers, who have a camp in Section 6, 62—14. They reported that they had found Mr. Baars in a swamp about a mile west of T. J. Walsh's camp in Section 5, 62—14 and that they bargained to take him back to Moe Bros.' camp for $10.

Having but $2 in cash, Mr. Baars asked Martin Moe to cash a certificate of deposit on a Duluth bank for $25, paying the trappers $10 and taking Mr. Moe's check for $15. It was noted that he had at least one other certificate of deposit on the same bank for $25, therefore, was in ample funds for his trip.

Staying in camp the night of Friday, Nov. 11, Mr. Baars picked up his pack, to which he had added about fifty pounds of ore samples and on Saturday forenoon, Nov. 12, said that he was going to walk over to Murray station, something over a mile southward, to catch the forenoon train to Ely. He had his clothing, rifle, knife and ore samples, but no food whatever, and had lost a small ax and broken one lens of his eye glasses. He was, therefore, in very poor condition to recover a lost trail or to stand exposure in the woods.

Not Seen Since.

So far as Duluth friends can learn, Mr. Baars has not been seen since he left Moe Bros.' camp. No one has been found yet who can prove that he ever reached Ely. Several camp bosses from different parts of the range have been interviewed, and none of them have seen him at their camps. No letters have been received from the missing man, and that is very significant for he was a ready and prolific letter writer. It is known that he intended to inspect the entire Vermilion range from Tower to Ely and beyond. But, if he is not quartered in some remote camp, the probabilities are that the man is lying dead and frozen, away from any beaten or travelled trail.

The Important Problem

confronting anyone in need of a laxative is not a question of a single action only, but of permanently beneficial effects, which will follow proper efforts to live in a healthful way, with the assistance of Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna, whenever it is required, as it cleanses the system gently yet promptly, without irritation and will therefore always have the preference of all who wish the best of family laxatives.

The combination has the approval of physicians because it is known to be truly beneficial, and because it has given satisfaction to the millions of well-informed families who have used it for many years past.

BOY SENDS FAKE "S O S" SIGNAL

Wireless Company Looking for Meddlesome Amateur Operator in Duluth.

The United Wireless Telegraph company is on the trail of an amateur operator with a perverted sense of humor. All last night, the local station of the wireless company was able to pick up the call " S O S," the distress call, and it was signed with the call of the Booth steamer Easton. The steamer Easton is in port, but any vessel not familiar with the fact, picking up the signal, might spread a report that would cause some anxiety.

The wireless company encourages the use of receiving instruments by amateurs, and harmless sending is objected to only because it hampers the use of the commercial instruments. Fake messages of distress are serious, however, and if the amateur responsible for the signal sent last night is apprehended he will be prosecuted.

WILSON DENIES THAT HE GAVE ANY BRIBES.

Washington, Dec. 8. — Robert L. Wilson, state representative of Illinois, denied specifically yesterday that he had given money or anything of value to any member of the general assembly of that state, either to influence or to pay for a vote for William Lorimer for United States senator. Under cross-examination by A. S. Austrian, attorney for the Chicago Tribune, Wilson said he could not remember what had been said in the bath room at the St. Louis hotel.

COMFORTING WORDS.

Many a Duluth Household Will Find Them So.

To have the pains and aches of a bad back removed; to be entirely free from annoying, dangerous urinary disorders is enough to make any kidney sufferer grateful. To tell how this great change can be brought about will prove comforting words to hundreds of Duluth readers.

J. P. Schneider, 210 W. Fourteenth St., Duluth, Minn., says: "The public statement I have given in praise of Doan's Kidney Pills still holds good. In 1898 I said that for a considerable length of time, I had suffered from pains in my back. My condition finally grew so bad that I could not stoop or lift without beeing tortured. It seemed as if a sharp knife were piercing me. I could not lie in one position long without becoming stiff and sore. The kidney secretions passed irregularly and contained sediment. I found no relief until I began using Doan's Kidney Pills. They drove away my trouble and during the twelve years that have since passed, I have never had any serious recurrence."

CONTINUED COLD

It took real courage to be a fresh air fiend last night and some awoke about one hour before the cold gray dawn this morning with air that registered 10 deg. below zero being wafted through the open window by a breeze traveling at about twenty miles an hour, the sheets feeling like a couple of ice packs and the floor a glacier to the touch, regretted their adherence to the teachings of the fresh air cult. Winter will not release his clammy grip to any appreciable extent for the next thirty-six hours at least, the weather man says, and Duluth is in for a few more below-zero shivers tonight.

Cloudy and rather mild weather was Duluth's portion a year ago today.

The sun rose this morning at 7:41 and it will set at 4:19, giving eight hours and thirty-eight minutes of sunlight.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"Temperatures varying from zero to 20 deg. below prevailed this morning in Northern Minnesota, Eastern North Dakota, Saskatchewan, Manitoba and Western Ontario, while freezing weather prevailed southward to and including the thirty-fifth parallel, except to the westward of the Rocky mountains. Barometric depressions central over the St. Lawrence valley and British Columbia, respectively, caused snow over the lake region and St. Lawrence valley and rain in Oregon and Washington during the last twenty-four hours. Temperatures are moderating over the Dakotas, Montana, Saskatchewan and Alberta. The barometer is highest over lower Mississippi valley and east Gulf states. An increase in pressures has been attended by colder weather over the upper Mississippi and lower Ohio valleys and western lake region. Indications favor generally fair and moderately cold weather at the Head of the Lakes tonight, followed by moderating temperature Friday."

General Forecasts.

Chicago, Dec. 8.—Forecasts for twenty-four hours ending at 7 p. m. Friday:

Upper Michigan—Fair except snow flurries in north central portion tonight or Friday; continued cold tonight; slowly rising temperature Friday.

Montana—Fair weather, except rain or snow in extreme west portion tonight or Friday; warmer tonight.

Iowa, Minnesota, North and South Dakota and Wisconsin—Fair tonight and probably Friday; slowly rising temperature.

Shippers forecast—Zero temperatures tonight in St. Louis and Douglas counties; thirty-six hour shipments to other sections in Wisconsin and Minnesota and Eastern North Dakota should be protected against temperatures varying from slightly below zero to about 10 deg. above.

NOT PERFECTION BUT ONLY A STEP IN RIGHT DIRECTION

Mayor Evans of Riverside Discusses Commission Plan Impartially.

Says Every City Has Its Own Problem to Work Out.

Riverside, one of the pleasant cities of California, is under a commission government which is described as a modification of all the other commission forms, adapted primarily to fit local conditions. Success has been achieved in the municipal government of Riverside since the adoption of the new system.

The impelling force that led to the trying out of the commission form was the fact that California cities of the sixth class lacked sufficient power and the right kind of power to insure the best results. It was desired to make a few men responsible for the administration of the city's affairs, with the machinery provided for getting rid of them if they failed.

In Riverside it is considered that the elimination of party nominations has been one of the most important reforms accomplished under the commission form, and there have been many others, so that there is no public sentiment in favor of a return to the old system.

What Mayor Thinks.

Mayor S. C. Evans of Riverside, in a very frank and interesting communication to The Herald, says:

"Replying to your favor, will say that I herewith enclose copy of a letter that I have written to several cities concerning the commission form of government. I can only add that I am not yet satisfied in my own mind that the commission form of government is the best form, or better than a number of other forms—I still believe that the form of government for a city depends very largely upon local conditions, and that the same form will not be of equal success in all cities, and some forms will sometimes be a failure in any city.

"In regard to the recall, will say that Riverside has the initiative, referendum and recall. At the time our charter was adopted in 1907 it would probably have been impossible to have carried the vote without these provisions. At that time I advocated all three of these provisions, not that I did not see some danger in them, provided they were taken advantage of, but I believed, and still believe, that that form of government is best that comes nearest interesting the whole people all of the time. I thought that if these provisions proved that they could be manipulated wrongly, they would be changed as time progressed.

The Recall.

"Our charter provides that a recall petition must have at least 25 per cent of the entire vote for all candidates for the office, the incumbent of which is sought to be removed, cast at the last preceding general election; provided that the petition is to contain a general statement of the grounds for which the removal is sought. I still believe that the theory of the recall is correct, but I am not so sure but that it should be more guarded, and only be resorted to for very grave reasons, and so adjusted that it cannot be taken advantage of for trivial reasons such as it has been taken advantage of in some places.

"There is the danger that some man would not want to assume office, if there was a liability of their being recalled, because their ideas, for instance, did not suit certain classes of people. I believe that a man who gains the confidence of the public enough to be elected, should not be subject to recall for acts of judgment that are not plainly wrong and that are just as liable to be as correct as the judgment of other men in the community. I do not pretend to say how the public opinion is now, in comparison with 1907, only I have heard a few men say that they are not now in favor of the recall unless it were better guarded. I will add that the recall was certainly good in the case of Los Angeles.

"The initiative by our charter requires 10 per cent of the entire vote cast for all candidates for mayor at the last preceeding general municipal election, or submit same at the next general municipal election. But, if such petition is signed by 15 per cent of said voters and contains such request, then such ordinance must be submitted to a special election unless the council will pass it without alteration. I rather feel that this is a wise provision, but it has never been tried with us and I cannot speak from experience.

The Referendum.

"The referendum with us must have 10 per cent of the entire vote cast for all candidates for mayor at the last preceeding general municipal election at which the mayor was elected. This is mainly to prevent ordinances going into effect within thirty days of their adoption and they must be voted on if such petition is provided, unless the council repeals the ordinance. This seems to be all right, but has been made somewhat ridiculous in Los Angeles. I think some wise qualifying provision can be found, but in a general way, the proposition is all right.

"You do not need to consider any of this letter confidential and you can use it as you see fit. There is a wide difference of opinion as to the percentage that should be required for these different provisions. Many are arguing that our percentages are too low, and if we were to have much contention as in Los Angeles, I rather think that they are too low, but, at the same time, there is danger of getting them too high for the reason that quite a few people hesitate or refuse to sign such a petition on account of their position, or their fear of losing either position or trade, although they are in sympathy with the movement."

Charter Is Described.

The letter to which Mayor Evans refers is in part as follows:

"Our city charter is classed as a commission charter and yet it is quite different from others. The benefits claimed by the commission form of government as I understand it are about as follows:

"First. That any citizen has the opportunity to be a candidate for any office and does not have to depend upon the caucus or nomination of any political party—in this connection is a variation, in that in some places they have practically two elections, one called the primary and the other the general or real election—whereas in other places, as in our city, all nominations are made by petition only, and names must appear on the ballot without party designation and in alphabetical order, but we have no primary or preliminary election, the necessity of which is not apparent to me in a city administration the size of ours.

"Second. Alphabetical order on the ballot so that politicians cannot advance their candidate to the head of the ballot for political reasons.

"Third. It is generally given as a benefit of this form of government that ward lines are eliminated, but you will find that some of the cities classed as commision cities have ward representatives and do not elect councilmen at large. Theoretically, the election at large is probably the best plan, but practically, it is often impossible to adopt a good charter on either the commission or any other plan without the election of councilmen by wards.—There are arguments for and against and the question is not yet settled.—Local conditions largely affect this question and it is not a foregone conclusion that you have bad government wherever you have bad government.

"Fourth. Concentration of authority and responsibility. This sounds very well, but you don't know what it means until you have a particular charter before you, for discussion, and it is evident how the different departments of the city are related to each other. The commission men say that authority is lodged in the mayor and four, five or six councilmen, each having one particular department to look after. Under our charter almost all the authority and responsibility is lodged in the mayor and he has the appointive power without confirmation by the council—in some places this would not be well. Personally, I would prefer it than to divide the responsibility among the mayor and five or six councilmen, as I do not see that there is any particular concentration of power when it is divided among five or six, where you probably have at least the majority and minority of opinion of many questions and the majority can easily form a combination and make the minority ineffective or compel them to vote for certain measures in order to have any power at all.

"Fifth. The initiative, referendum and recall.

"Many people object to these provisions and call them un-American, etc. The Los Angeles Times is a very good example of a paper that continually knocks these provisions and they sound their version of the matter in very strong language.

Get Down to Facts.

"Personally, I believe these provisions to be good, provided they are correctly apportioned as a part of the charter, but to say that they are good in the abstract without any reference as to how they are considered in the scheme of government, I would alter my opinion. Some of the claims made for the saving of money under the commission form of government are, to my mind, ridiculous, even as are the claims under the other forms of government, for no form can make the difference in expenditures that some advocates claim. On both sides it is, after all, a question of men, and any new form of government or any new movement of any kind is apt to start off with a rush and accomplish certain things for a while, but this force and energy does not necessarily keep up just on account of the form.

"I would not want a concentration of power as we have without the provision of the recall, for instance.

"Cities that have a large foreign population, or overhead and underground street railways, harbors and wharves, large manufacturing plants; then cities that are mainly agricultural or residental in character, certainly vary in the necessity of government and this may absolutely make necessary a difference in form, so that after all it resolves itself very largely to local conditions and the personality of the men elected to office.

"Also, when comparisons are made in written articles with such cities for instance as Omaha, it is absolutely necessary to understand the state laws of Nebraska and their relation to city government and to know that (a few years ago at least) the governor appointed the chief of police, so that for political purposes the whole police department of the city was practically a part of the state political machine.

"The consensus of opinion among the men whom I have met at the last two meetings of the American League of Municipalities at Omaha and Montreal is very much against interference by the state in city government and while there are certain laws that the state must pass, applicable to all cities, yet the least interference that the state has with the city government will, in my judgment, give the best city administration.

"There are many other reasons that affect the success or non-success of the commission form of government and I might add that the success of some of the cities of the West has been achieved largely through the absence of open saloons and the saloon element and the prohibition from the city of disorderly houses, gambling places, etc. The large cities that have all these things to contend with need laws that we have no need of.

"The solution of many of the problems of the American city is not yet certain, but as long as local conditions do not change, I think that some of the cities are now on the right track."

JAMESTOWN THEATER FIRE.

Vaudeville House Catches When Full But All Escape.

Jamestown, N. D., Dec. 8.—A fire of unknown origin under the stage in the Orpheum theater Monday evening threatened to destroy the heart of the business district, on account of the fact that the hydrants were frozen and for some time it was impossible to play a stream on the flames.

The fire broke out during the first performance of the evening, when the place was filled with women and children, and the flames lapped through the floor of the stage where an acrobat was doing his turn, and rapidly spread through the scenery and wings. Owing to the diplomacy of the manager, Mr. Brown, who coolly directed the movements of the crowd, the building was quickly emptied and no one was injured.

Madame Marzell's trained birds, which are under contract to tour Australia for $750 per week, were in the burning building, and it was with difficulty that they were saved. The birds are the property of Mr. and Mrs. Max Rose, who were the former owners of the Orpheum, but who disposed of their interests this week to W. W. Brown of Bemidji. Mr. and Mrs. Rose leave shortly for Australia with the trained birds.

About $10,000 damage resulted from the fire.

Divorces Seem to Be Popular in This Family

Mrs. James McVickar is a stepdaughter of Isaac Emerson the wealthy drug man of Baltimore. Like her sister, Mrs. Smith Hollins McKim, she is a divorcee. She was first married to Mitchell Horner of Atlanta and got a divorce from him. She later married James McVickar of New York.

SUGGESTS CANES.

Mme. Kopetzky Has New Idea for Duluth Women.

"I have an idea," said Mme. Antoinette Kopetzky, as she massaged a "toothache in her knee," this morning in her room at the Spalding. "It would be for women to carry walking sticks. Now I should think here in Duluth that you would all have them. When it gets cold and icy, a walking stick like I have in Switzerland with a curling handle and a spike in the end—think how easy it would be for you to go up and down hill."

Mme. Kopetzky is a Bohemian, but a very cosmopolitan one. Her home is in England, she spends much of her time in Mexico and she sojourns in France and now she is touring America. She slipped on some ice three weeks ago and seriously hurt her knee but no one who has been delighted with her acting and singing in "The Chocolate Soldier" this week, had discovered that she was laboring under such pain. The young singer is from the land that has recently sent to America Kocian, Kubelik, Emmy Destin, and others of the artistic musical folks.

"If," said the inventor of the walking stick idea for Duluth, "some one would only start it, why it would be a great success."

Miss Kopetsky doesn't mind the cold but she doesn't want to fall again. She has lived in the open far in excess of what many fresh air enthusiasts have done. In Mexico where she spent a few years in mining camps with her husband, who is interested in mining matters, she slept in a tent with two feet of snow round about. The Mexicans kept huge bonfires going at either side to protect them from draughts. "And when I say bonfires I mean great trees this big around. The mesquit is very oily and the branches and trunk and all are put on the fire and they blaze for a long time."

Pinchot's name was mentioned as maybe some one who would object to such bonfires. "Oh, but this is in Mexico," said the young prima donna. "And the mesquit anyhow is not a really tree, it's a snarly, gnarly bush, but it is large around the base. It makes a fine fire." Miss Kopetzky's real home is in England, except when she's in Paris or Mexico or California, and she has the usual aversion of folks from the tight little isle to steam-heated apartments. The tent in Mexico is her idea of a fine way to sleep.

But she would like to be remembered especially for her contribution of the suggestion to Duluth to try walking sticks for icy pavements. She thinks it's a fine one.

The Girl Who Smiles

By RUTH WARNER.

Leave for tomorrow care and sorrow,
  Smile and be happy today;
Hold fast to the best of what you're possessed,
  And throw all the balance away.

For there's much that's worse in the universe,
  Than ever will fall to your lot,
So don't count the bad that you never had,
  But reckon the good that you've got.

Contentment's a pearl that every girl
  Should value all she can;
She who can cheer's worth a thousand a year
  To every woman and man.

The girl who smiles is a legion of miles
  Ahead of the surly one—
For the smiler finds cheer for every day in the the year.
  And her work will be better done.

THE EVENING STORY

HAND OF IRON

By Angus Lynne.

"There he goes, old Hand of Iron. Duty before everything that's his motto, and yet a finer, kinder man you could not find in all Australia."

I looked intently at the fine figure of the sergeant of police as he mounted his horse on the other side of the hot, dusty street. He was tall, heavily built, a man of about 50 years of age, if one could judge by the stern, tanned face surrounded by iron gray hair, but his figure, in well-cut, blue tunic and white cord breeches, semed all muscle and sinew, and he sat the large gray charger with the grace and ease of a boy.

"Why do you call him that?" I asked, turnig to my companion, and for the first time during our desultory conversation noting his appearance.

He was a small gray man of uncertain age. Large melancholy eyes of the same neutral tint looked from a small-featured pinched face. His figure as bent and shrunken and clad obviously in cast-offs, of a much bigger man and only his large and distorted hands showed any signs of occupation or employment. These, as he spoke, were never still but nervously moving, pulling at buttons or fumbling with his pipe.

The sun was hot and the day was oppressive in the little West Australian township, yet, a shiver shook him before he spoke, and he clasped his right wrist with his left hand.

"Why do I call him that?" he repeated. Then with a curious smile: "You're a stranger in these parts surely?"

"Yes," I answered, amused at his cross question; "I am only waiting here for the coach to Southern Cross."

"Ah," he replied; "there ain't many about here—old-timers, I mean—who don't know how he got his name, but even they don't know it all."

He stopped and looked down the hot, dusty road. The sergeant had disappeared from our view, and the dust of his passage hung on the still air.

I pushed my pouch along the bench towards him and motioned him to fill up. The coach was not expected for over an hour, and, by all accounts, would be late; so I settled myself to hear the regular "bush" yarn.

My acquaintance slowly filled his pipe, pushed back the pouch with a "thanks" and lit up.

"Five and twenty years ago," he commenced; "ah, we were young men then, young and strong, full of hot blood and hot passions. He was a trooper then as big—ay, bigger—than he is now, and no two men in the colony could put him on his back. I was—but what's the good of telling you?—I was a 'waster' then that's all, a waster."

He paused and took a few draws at his pipe. "There was a rough gang—a bad gang—in the district. Big Rourke, a black Irishman; Ned Steevens and Dicky Baird—Dick Bird, they called him—were the worst.

"It was cattle stealing one week, holding up coaches the next, and they were never caught. You see they stuck together, so there never was any evidence against them, though all knew who were the guilty parties.

"Then came the holding up of the Bulla-Bulling coach. There were women in that—it was a bad affair; very bad.

"Dicky Baird was one of them that time, and his mask got knocked off so that one of the women saw his face and called out, "That's Dicky Baird!" Oh, it was a black business!

"Well, it was soon known all over the place and warrants for Dicky's arrest were made out, but there it stood; for, you see, though it was pretty generally known that he was lying hidden at Black Rourke's place on the Dinding river, about seven miles from the township, yet this was also the headquarters of the gang, and such was its name that the few police in the district thought it best to wait until Dicky left cover before they took him. Meanwhile things went on much as before.

"About this time Trooper Mayhew, the man you saw just now, was sent up, and things began to look different. He seemed to put some of his spirit into the others, for two of the gang were caught stealing sheep and whipped off Perth Gaol amid general rejoicing.

"Then — how it happened I don't know—Mayhew was reported to have said plainly that he would take Dicky Baird single-handed or leave the force altogether.

"I remember how the news was received by the gang. Twenty of us were making a night of it at Rourke's, and this formed the chief topic of conversation and point of all the jokes. Twenty of us, I said. Oh, yes, I was one of them—and a waster; a waster."

He paused again, and I seemed to see the noisy scene in the log hut by the river twenty-five years ago—the scene that this quiet gray man saw in the dust of the sunlit street.

"Two nights after that we all met again, drinking, gambling and making new plans for raids.

"He'll never come," said Black Rourke, speaking of Mayhew; "he'll never show his dirty face within two miles o' my sheebeen. If he did'—and he spat into the fire—'he knows he'd go back to the station in his shirt tails with the marks of Black Rourke's hands and feet to keep him warm."

"Oh, he was a big black devil of a man, was Rourke—black and bad.

"Well, about eleven a knock came at the door, and 'Open in the Queen's Name' to follow.

"We were all struck dumb, and Dicky Baird made for the window open toward the river, but 'sit ye still,' roared Bourke, and strode to the door. 'Come on and be damned to you and yer Queen's name," said he.

"Open flew the door right back to the wall with a bang, and into the glare of the fire stepped the Trooper Mayhew, alone without a weapon in his hand, and slam went the door behind him.

"For fully half a minute there was silence. In our bad lawless hearts we admired and respected the man's splendid courage, for he never winced nor wavered, never blanched nor trembled, though twenty pairs of wicked eyes watched him and twenty cruel hands clutched weapons near him. Then, 'Richard Baird, in the queen's name I arrest you on a charge of robbery with violence. I warn you that anything you say—"

"'Ye want Dick Bird, do ye, ye great omadhaun!' he cried. 'Then, take him, for, by G—, ye need a man with wits to take care of yer great silly carcase,' and with that and another great laugh he pushed Baird against him, the constable, and turned to finish the drink.

"What followed happened so quickly that no one could follow events. We all heard a clik and saw the handcuffs flash; then it seemed as if the space in the middle of the room was filled with struggling men. There were blows, oaths and yells; then we saw Rourke step back with a bleeding face and pick up a heavy stool.

"As he did so the trooper threw off the men trying to hold him, and raising himself to his full height, threw a small bright object through the open window with a sweep of his right arm.

"'It's both or none now, ye cowards,' he cried; then Rourke struck, and down he fell dragging Baird with him.

"All drew back but Rourke, who wanted to strike again, being mad with the pain of a broken face, for Mayhew had punished him terribly in the short struggle. Some of the boldest dragged him back and took the stool from him.

"Baird tried to rise, but the weight of the big trooper held him down and his right wrist was still in the grip of the fallen man. Yes; he was still held and more than that, he was handcuffed to the stunned and senseless constable.

"Everybody crowded around offering suggestions. 'Soap yer hand, Dicky; it'll come off then,' said one. 'File the chain,' said another. 'Find the key,' said a third, until Rourke, pale and deadly fierce, hushed them and took command.

"'Stevens, search the dog for the key. Cook and Bell, down the path and see if any of the other troopers are there. Put the fire out, some of ye, and then clear out the lot of ye,' was his orders.

"The trooper's body was searched but no key was found. Bell came back to say the path was clear. Mayhew's horse was tied to a tree, but he had come alone.

"As the men filed out, one by one, Baird started whimpering: 'Don't leave me, boy; don't leave me!' He was always chicken-hearted, was Dicky.

"Rourke, in a cold rage, was looking for a file. 'Curse him,' he muttered, 'he won't beat me!'

"Then he came back to Dicky Baird with his teeth showing and his gums bare. 'There's nothing for it but this.' and he drew his sheathed knife.

He stooped and stared across the road. Between the houses opposite the bush could be seen stretching for miles barren and bleak.

The noise of an approaching horse broke the stillness, and the sergeant of police cantered by and pulled up at the police station across the way. As he dismounted I noticed, with a cold feeling down my back, that he held the reins in an iron hook instead of a left hand.

"Yes," went on the gray man as he nodded and smiled, in response to the sergeant's salutation. "There ain't many men who look after a 'waster'—feed him and clothe him for seven or eight years as he done to me, with no more claim than—well, old acquaintance. God bless him, I say. God bless him." His voice fell into a murmur—an almost infantile croon.

"How about the others? Didn't I tell you?" he went on in response to my question. "Well, there ain't much to tell. After it was done, Rourke went mad again and wanted to finish his dirty work, but those of the gang that had stayed fought him off and took away his knife.

"Then they took him off, and Baird was the last man to leave the hut, and he was crying like a child. You see, sir, it was a bit of a trial, and he was too young; then he had that severed hand still on his right wrist.

"Mayhew got back to the station early next morning, nearly done up, but said nothing until about noon, when Dicky Baird came along and gave himself up; you see, he couldn't stand it, sir, being young, and Mayhew's hand alone arrested him after all.

"Rourke was shot soon after, and the gang broke up. What did Baird get? Twenty years—hard, though they knocked off one or two for good conduct. Trooper Mayhew spoke for him from the witness box and proved that Dicky hadn't resisted, and also that he had bandaged his arm before he left the hut, but they wouldn't change the sentence. Twenty hard!

"You see," went on the gray man, as he got up from the bench, "I know more than most people, because," he smiled curiously, "I'm Dicky Baird."

REVOLUTION HALTS WORK.

Negaunee Man Writes That Mexico Is Rather Unsettled.

Negaunee, Mich., Dec. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Ralph Mackenzie, who has had charge of diamond drilling operations in Mexico, writes that he expects to spend Christmas here, as he believes that exploratory work will be discontinued temporarily because of the revolutionary trouble. Mr. Mackenzie writes that the troops have control of the situation. On the night of Nov. 26, about 200 of the revolutionists tried to take possession of El Oro, near where the Negaunee men are working, but the regulars soon drove them back to the hills. El Oro is about 10,000 feet above sea level. Mr. Mackenzie expects that the drilling will be brought to a close about the middle of December, especially if the trouble continues.

IS AFTER REFORMS

MacVeagh Attacks Currency System in Report to Congress.

Customs Service and Red Tape and National Debt Assailed.

Washington, Dec. 8.—Currency reform; extension of the scope of the national banking laws, in the event of no immediate general changes in the monetary system; civil service retirements; a customs service free from "practical" politics; business-like methods in the daily transactions of the government, and a general abolition of red tape wherever it clogs the wheels of the government's business, are among the recommendations contained in the annual report of Franklin MacVeagh, secretary of the treasury, presented to congress today.

The expenses of government in the fiscal year 1912 for which this session of congress is asked to appropriate, are estimated at $630,494,013.12. The estimated expenditures of the Panama canal are given as $56,920,847.69, making a total of $687,414,860.81.

Would Save $18,000,000.

The estimates, if carried out, represent net savings of about $18,000,000 in the executive departments as compared with the appropriations for the current fiscal year.

While the secretary's report estimates the total expenses of government at $687,414,860, the estimates which have been transmitted to congress ask for $748,414,861, a difference of $61,000,000. Congress is asked to appropriate this extra $61,000,000 to make the sinking fund law effective. It would be an appropriation to permit the treasury to begin applying 1 per cent a year to the discharge of the national debt. The law authorizing such a procedure has been a dead letter for some time, as congress has never appropriated any money.

Receipts for 1912, Secretary MacVeagh estimates, will be $680,000,000, which would leave an ordinary surplus of a round $50,000,000. If the treasury should continue to pay for the Panama canal out of the cash drawer, as at present, such a surplus would be turned to a deficit of $7,414,860.81.

"Panic Breeding System."

Secretary MacVeagh expresses the hope that the monetary question will come into congress detached from sectional or political considerations.

"Our system can fairly be called a panic-breeding system," he said, "whereas every other great national banking and currency system is panic-preventing. Panics are no longer necessary and no longer respectable. It is for the government to say whether we shall have panics in the future or not. It is a mere matter of choice. Our system, instead of building up a reserve, destroys it as fast as it inclines to accumulate."

In connection with his criticism of the money system, one of the secretary's most important recommendations concerns future issues of Panama bonds, of which $290,000,000 were authorized by the tariff act. The secretary renews the recommendations he made last year for legislation to tax the new bonds at 1½ per cent if used by national banks for circulation, and intimates that it might be preferable to issue the new securities for investment purposes only, at a rate of 3 per cent.

Foreign Banking Facilities.

If there is no prospect of immediate change in the monetary system the secretary thinks the American national banking system should be developed to perform an international function. There is a clear need of banking facilities in foreign countries where there is American commerce, he says.

"We shall never be a full-fledged commercial nation," he says, "unless we have merchant ships of our own and foreign banks of our own. We should have banks at all ports that are important to our commerce.

The treasury's relations with the business communities are unbusinesslike, artificial and burdensome, the secretary declares and he recommends legislation to permit the payment of revenue to the government by certified check, guarding the government against loss.

The recommendation that the treasury be authorized to issue gold certificates against gold bullion and foreign gold coin is renewed.

Reviewing the discovery of frauds and the subsequent reorganization of the customs service, Secretary MacVeagh urges appropriations for rewards to those who aid the government.

Government on $300,000,000.

As the economies of administration which have been effected in the treasury department are reviewed, the secretary pauses to take notice of a statement made by a United States senator, that the business of the government could be conducted with a saving of $300,000,000 a year. Secretary MacVeagh says:

"The popular impression as to the extent of possible economies in the administration of the executive departments is singularly exaggerated, and this misconception is very harmful.

"When it is the fact that the entire ordinary expenditures of the government last year were less than $660,000,000, and when a great part of those expenditures is not reducible at all, as, for example, the interest on the debt, and the pensions, one can readily see that there probably is not very much more than $300,000,000 gross left on which to save $300,000,000."

Too Many Customs Houses.

Superfluous customs houses, mints and assay offices should be abolished, the report says. There is an oversupply of the latter, and the mints in San Francisco, Denver and Philadelphia are not fully employed. The secretary also promises to send to congress a list of customs houses which he says "are no use under the sun."

The company, when organized, will have its main office in Minneapolis, with a branch at Duluth. The plan has been under consideration for a number of years.

Transcontinental Railways of the World.

Of all the world, Africa and Australia are the only continents not yet crossed by a through railroad, but such a system is soon to be commenced in Australia. The first transcontinental railroad in the world was the Union Pacific, completed a little more than forty years ago. Since that time six lines have been built across the Rocky Mountains in this country. When in need of a malt tonic for use in the home we look for the purest and one of strictest cleanliness. This is to be found in the highest form in Golden Grain Belt beer. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by the Duluth branch Minneapolis Brewing company.

Mr. WM. H. HAINES, 81 Years of Age.

From a helpless invalid, owing to a weakened, rundown condition of the system, to a vigorous man of 81 years of age, is the experience that Mr. Wm. H. Haines, a Grand Army Veteran, has passed through during the last few years, owing to the use of Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey as his only medicine.

In writing to a friend he said: "Today I am strong and vigorous for a man of my age, 81 years, my present physical condition being vastly different from what it was a few years ago, thanks to Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey. I was almost a helpless invalid before using this medicine, had kidney trouble and frequent dizzy spells, no appetite and my legs were so weak that I walked with great difficulty. I had always led a very active outdoor life and felt my weakened condition keenly. I started using Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey as directed and after a short time my improvement was so marked that I have continued its use and am a well man again. I have gained in weight, have an excellent appetite and know that I owe my present condition to Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey. I do not know what I should do without it." Wm. H. Haines, 34 Paris St., Everett, Mass.

When you feel weak and run down and all out of sorts, you need a pure tonic-stimulant that will build you up, enrich your blood, quicken your heart action and restore your strength in a gradual, healthy manner.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey

as a renewer of youth and tonic stimulant is one of the greatest strength-givers known to science. When taken at mealtime it stimulates the mucous surfaces and little glands of the stomach to a healthy action, thereby improving the digestion and assimilation of the food and giving to the system its full proportion of nourishment. Its gentle and invigorating properties influence for good every important organ in the body. It makes the old feel young and keeps the young strong and vigorous. Prescribed by physicians, used in hospitals and as a family medicine everywhere.

If in need of advice, write Medical Department, The Duffy Malt Whiskey Company, Rochester, New York, stating your case fully. Our doctors will send you advice free, together with a valuable illustrated medical booklet. Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey is sold in SEALED BOTTLES ONLY by druggists, grocers and dealers everywhere, or shipped direct if your dealer will not supply you. $1.00 per large bottle.

DAMAGES FOR INJURIES

Mathew J. Reid Awarded $1,560 From Northwestern Fuel Company.

Verdict Against D. & I. R. Railroad for Damage Caused By Fire.

Mathew J. Reid, who sued the Northwestern Fuel company for $15,000 for injuries alleged to have been sustained while working at Superior, was given $1,560 by a jury in district court this morning.

Reid while working for the company as a carpenter, attempted to climb on a scaffold. One of the planks gave way and Reid fell to the ground. As a result he sustained a broken leg and other minor injuries.

He claimed that the company was negligent in that the scaffold was not safely constructed.

A jury returned a verdict of $976.75 in favor of John Andrews and against the Duluth & Iron Range Railroad company.

Andrews asked $1,750 for damage to his house by fire, which he claimed began in the combustible materials that were allowed to accumulate along the company's track.

FINGERS WORTH A LARGE AMOUNT

Child's Thumb and Index Finger Basis of Personal Injury Action.

August Davis asks $35,000 from the Duluth Crushed Stone company in an action brought in district court for his son, Stanley Davis, 10 years old, who, it is alleged, lost several fingers when a dynamite cap which he was holding went off unexpectedly.

Davis in his complaint states that the company was negligent in that it allowed dangerous material to lay around in plain sight and easy reach of children under the age of discretion.

The lad, it seems, was playing about the plant of the company at Fifty-seventh avenue west. The men employed by the company were engaged in blasting rock. The child found some of the caps and poked a sharp instrument into one of them. It exploded tearing away a thumb and index finger of the left hand.

The case is being heard before Judge J. D. Ensign and a jury in district court.

The bankrupt stock of clothing of S. Van Wagner will go on sale at the Oak Hall, Saturday morning. Suits and overcoats, hats, caps and neckwear for men and boys, all to be sold very cheap.

APPOINTMENTS ARE ANNOUNCED

Arthur E. Templeton Will be Chief Clerk in Probate Court.

Probate Judge-elect S. W. Gilpin announced this morning that Arthur E. Templeton, a local newspaper reporter, will be chief clerk in the probate office after the first of the new year.

Miss Della Chevrette will be deputy and Thomas Feaks will be recording clerk. Miss Chevrette has been in the probate court for some time.

Mr. Gilpin will be out of the city on a business trip for some little time but will be in Duluth in time to take charge of the probate judgeship on the first day of January.

At the present time Mr. Gilpin is winding up the affairs preparatory to turning the office of county superintendent of schools over to N. A. Young, who was elected to the position at the recent election.

But little is known of the appointments in the sheriff's office although it is generally understood that Victor Dash will be chief clerk. Sheriff-elect Meining visited the courthouse this morning and made arrangements for taking over the office.

NEW FIRE CASE IN DISTRICT COURT

August Lindy Asks $3,099 From Duluth & Iron Range Railway.

Before Judge Dibell and a jury in the district court, August Lindy is trying to recover $3,099 from the Duluth & Iron Range Railroad company as damages alleged to have been sustained when fire destroyed his boarding house.

The plaintiff claims that the company was negligent in that it allowed live coals to be dropped near the Adriatic mine. He claims that the fire which eventually destroyed his building started from the coals which set fire to the dry material which is alleged to have been strewn about the track.

The house which Lindy claims was a total loss together with its furnishings, was at the Knox location.

DRUGGISTS CAN GET NO ALCOHOL

Brainerd Is Dry as Dry Can Be—Ray of Hope Is Seen.

Brainerd, Minn., Dec. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Everything is quiet at Brainerd today except that the dryness is causing murmurs of complaint. Saloon keepers are shipping their stocks back to wholesalers and some are leaving for the Twin Cities, to check their goods on arrival there.

The reported closing of saloons and malt shops on the Cuyuna iron range in the towns of Crosby, Deerwood, Cuyuna and Ironton, did not take place yesterday, although every one expects it hourly.

Drug stores of Brainerd are unable to ship alcohol from the Twin Cities to this dry district.

The Brainerd Brewing company is still operating.

The proposed cut in the federal appropriation to the Indian bureau promises some relief, because it will reduce the activity of this agency, is the concensus of opinion of local liquor men.

Count Boni Not a Suicide.

Paris, Dec. 8.—There was no truth in the rumor current last night that a well-known Frenchman had committed suicide. Some versions of the story associated the name of Count Boni de Castellaine with the matter.

SAVE THIS

Best Known Recipe for Kidney and Bladder Troubles.

Go to any good druggist and get the following: Half ounce fluid extract Buchu; half ounce Murax compound; six ounces of good pure gin; shake well each time and use in doses of one to two teaspoonfuls after each meal and at bed time.

This should be used promptly at the first sign of backache, rheumatic pains, scanty and frequent urination or pains in groin. Prompt attention to these symptoms is necessary to prevent more serious trouble, such as Bright's disease or diabetes.

Worse than an alarm of fire at night is the metallic cough of croup, bringing dread to the household. Careful mothers keep Foley's Honey and Tar in the house and give it at the first sign of danger. It contains no opiates. Sold by all druggists.

RETURNS FROM A TRIP TO EUROPE

Jack Luoma Promises to Care for His Family in Future.

Jack Luoma has taken his wife off the county's hands and with his children will once more take up his residence at Virginia, Minn.

Luoma, who claims to have just returned from a visit to the old country, was charged with desertion and had a hearing this morning in court. Upon a promise to care for his wife and children he was given a chance to make good.

Mrs. Luoma's mind gave way some time ago after she thought herself deserted, and she was found under the house by neighbors after she had been missing for several days.

She has been at the county poor farm for some time past and is now said to have fully recovered. The children have been cared for by the county at the children's home.

Luoma says that he thought the family had enough to live on while he was away and did not deem it necessary to tell his wife where he was going.

Minneapolis, Minn., Dec. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—A small portable safe, containing $15,000 and some valuable merchandise, was stolen from the office of the Adams Express company, 256 Hennepin avenue, some time last night. The safe was delivered at the office by one of the company's drivers. Shortly afterward it was missed.

Washington, Dec. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Bills to repeal duties on various commodities are now being introduced in the house daily and referred to the committee on ways and means, where they will be promptly pigeonholed.

Representative Smith of Texas today introduced a bill to repeal the duty on lumber. Representative Clark of Florida has put in a bill which provides for the admission of all food or food products free of any import duty whatsoever.

THE MILITANT MUSTACHE.

Youth's Companion: The practice of clean shaving has made such strides among English army officers that a general order has been issued reminding them that the regulations still require them to wear a mustache. Times have changed since Rawdon Crawley so vigorously protested against poor Joseph Sedley's mustache. Civilians in those days were supposed to wear a bare upper lip. Nowadays they wear what they like, it is only the sons of Mars who are not allowed the luxury of a clean shave nor yet that of a full beard.

CONFESSION OF AN OLD ERROR.

Washington Herald: An unsigned letter unique in the history of the postoffice department was received yesterday at the postmaster general's office, telling of a violation of the postal laws committed twenty-five years ago.

The writer says that "more than twenty-five years ago, when employed as a clerk in the postoffice, I one day made out a money order, and after the letter was sealed and ready to be mailed I remembered that I had not filled out the blank quite right, and I opened the letter and made the proper correction. I sealed the letter at once and forwarded it by the first mail. Although no harm was done I really broke the law, and wish to confess my error."

Danderine

GROWS HAIR and we can PROVE IT!

A lady from Minnesota writes:
"As a result of using Danderine, my hair is close to five feet in length."

Beautiful Hair at Small Cost

HAIR troubles, like many other diseases, have been wrongly diagnosed and altogether misunderstood. The hair itself is not the thing to be treated, for the reason that it is simply a product of the scalp and wholly dependent upon its action. The scalp is the very soil in which the hair is produced, nurtured and grown, and it alone should receive the attention if results are to be expected. It would do no earthly good to treat the stem of a plant with a view of making it grow and become more beautiful—the soil in which the plant grows must be attended to. Therefore, the scalp in which the hair grows must receive the attention if you are to expect it to grow and become more beautiful.

Loss of hair is caused by the scalp drying up, or losing its supply of moisture or nutriment; when baldness occurs the scalp has simply lost all its nourishment, leaving nothing for the hair to feed upon (a plant or even a tree would die under similar conditions.)

The natural thing to do in either case, is to feed and replenish the soil or scalp as the case may be, and your crop will grow and multiply as nature intended it should.

Knowlton's Danderine has a most wonderful effect upon the hair glands and tissues of the scalp. It is the only remedy for the hair ever discovered that is similar to the natural hair foods or liquids of the scalp.

It penetrates the pores quickly and the hair soon shows the effects of its wonderfully exhilarating and life-producing qualities.

One 25-cent bottle is enough to convince you of its great worth as a hair growing and hair beautifying remedy—try it and see for yourself.

NOW at all druggists in three sizes, 25c, 50c and $1.00 per bottle.

Cut This Out

FREE To show how quickly Danderine acts, we will send a large sample free by return mail to anyone who sends this free coupon to the KNOWLTON DANDERINE CO., CHICAGO, ILL., with their name and address and 10c in silver or stamps to pay postage.

This Week's Sunday School Lesson

WRITTEN FOR THE HERALD BY REV. J. S. KIRTLEY, D. D.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON: Dec. 11. Matt. xxvii, 15-50: The Crucifixion.

THE CONNECTION.

Pilate hated the Jews, knew that Jesus was innocent and saw their vile purpose. He had power to prevent the murder and made up his mind to do so at any cost, save one thing. He would not sacrifice his office and he knew that the Jews had it in their power to accuse him at Rome of harboring an enemy of Caesar's, to remove him from office, if he could not get their consent to let Jesus go free. So he did every thing in his power to gain their consent. He reasoned with them, showed them His innocence, scourged Him, thinking that would satisfy their thirst for His blood, offered to release Him according to an honored custom of releasing one prisoner on a feast day, as the governors of some of our states always discharge some one prisoner on Thanksgiving day. Their madness made them deaf and he sadly gave Him over to their will. Now they are at the place of death.

THE LESSON.

I

Jesus Nailed to the Cross, 33-38.

"And when they were come unto a place called Golgotha, that is to say, The place of a skull, they gave Him wine to drink mingled with gall; and when He had tasted it He would not drink. And when they had crucified Him, they parted his garments among them, casting lots; and they sat and watched Him there. And they set up over his head his accusation written, THIS IS JESUS THE KING OF THE JEWS. Then are there crucified with Him two robbers, one on the right hand and one on the left."

1. SYMPATHY.—The place was northwest of the city, where the limestone escarpment has the appearance of a huge skull and the Hebrew word, Golgotha, and the Latin, Calvarium, mean skull. The tender hearted women of Jerusalem were in the habit of giving a drink to such sufferers, in which was a stupefying drug that acted somewhat as an anesthetic and they offered it to Him. Though exhausted and burning with thirst, He would not taste of it, for He would keep His mind clear for His tragic experience and His taste for death pure.

2. APATHY.—The Jews and Pilate were responsible and the soldiers did the actual work. Their ghastly work was not disagreeable to them; they loved to crucify Jews. They must have got some merriment out of it, for they made a horse play of it, in Pilate's judgment hall, and now, the most interesting thing to them is the division of their perquisites, His clothing.

3. REVENGE.—Pilate has his tardy revenge on the Jews for compelling him to do their will. He advertised Jesus as their king, in the most striking way, and nothing could have been more galling to them, for, as they usually announced the crime of a criminal by writing it on the instrument of his execution, so he wrote it in this case, and put it in the three great languages, so every body could read it and tell about it to all the world. And when they came to him and pleaded with him to change it to say that He claimed to be the king of the Jews, he was firm. But his firmness makes him all the more contemptible. They had their way about the tragedy; he has his petty spiteful way about this single item. We blush for both him and them. His revenge went still further. As the Romans crucified only criminals and slaves, he put their king down on a level with them and actually has two criminals by His side; and if their king is thus worthy of dishonor, what of the people themselves?

II.

Jesus Taunted on the Cross, 39-44.

"And they that passed by railed on Him, wagging their heads, and saying, Thou that destroyest the temple, and buildest it in three days, save thyself; if thou art the Son of God, come down from the cross. In like manner also the chief priests mocking him, with the scribes and elders, said, He saved others; himself he cannot save. He is the king of Israel; let him now come down from the cross, and we will believe on him. He trusteth on God; let him deliver him now, if he desireth Him; for he said, I am the Son of God. And the robbers also that were crucified with Him cast upon Him the same reproach."

1. FALSEHOOD.—It seems to have been the crowds, the mob, passing to and from the city, who repeated the lie that they had condemned Him on. His physical sufferings were as great as possible, the nails driven into His flesh, where the nerves are most sensitive and yet farthest from the seat of life, so that the agony would be prolonged. But the sorrow of His soul knew no measure, as His words were perverted and all the universe seemed against Him.

2. HELPLESS.—It was the dignified priests who flung this taunt at Him. And it was true, He could not save Himself and the people too. So He chose to save those who were putting Him to death and lay the foundation for the salvation of the whole world, rather than come down from the cross, as He could have done.

3. REPENTANCE.—The two robbers joined in the insults till, as we learn from Luke, one of them was smitten with contrition, and asked the favor of Jesus. This was an experience that came to His relief, to know that His work for man was beginning to tell so soon. It must have heartened Him as He went on into the deeper gloom.

III.

Jesus Dying on the Cross 45-50.

"Now from the sixth hour there was darkness over all the land until the ninth hour. And about the ninth hour Jesus cried with a loud voice, saying, E'li E'li, la'ma sabachtha'ni? that is My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me? And some of them that stood there, when they heard it, said, This man calleth Elijah. And straightway one of them ran, and took a sponge, and filled it with vinegar, and put it on a reed, and gave him to drink. And the rest said, Let be; let us see whether Eli'jah cometh to save him. And Jesus cried again with a loud voice, and yielded up his spirit."

1. FORSAKEN—We have seven sayings from Him on the Cross—but Matthew gives only two. Jesus was forsaken. The nation, the officials, His ardent followers, save a few, the angels who had been with Him from His birth, the Holy Spirit, who had given Him a body and had trained His mind, the Father—all had left Him. He was there for sin, not His own, and the Father must look away from sin. This was about the noon hour and He had spoken three times before, praying for His murderers, comforting the robber and instructing John and His mother.

2. SURRENDERING—He had before said that He had power to lay down His life and take it up again. He allowed Himself to obey the law of death. His loud voice showed that he surrendered Himself. He went to sleep, with the taunts of the officials in His ear; in His desolation, He still kept His mind free from resentment towards them and still clung to His Father.

WHAT THE MASTERS SAY.

How possible it is to look at Christ's sufferings and see nothing. The rude legionaries gazed for hours on what has touched the world ever since and saw nothing but a dying Jew. They thought about the worth of the clothes, or about how long they would have to stay there, and, in the presence of the most stupendous fact in the world's history, were all unmoved. We, too, may gaze on the cross and see nothing. We, too, may look at it without emotion, because without faith, or any consciousness of what it may mean to us. Only those who see there the sacrifice for their sins and the world see what is there.—Maclaran.

This spot to which we have come is the center of all things. Here two eternities meet. The streams of ancient history converge here and here the river of modern history takes its rise. The eyes of patriarchs and prophets strained forward to Calvary and now the eyes of all generations and of all races look back to it. This is the end of all roads. The seeker after truth who has explored all realms of knowledge comes to Calvary and finds at last that he has reached the center. The weary heart of man that has wandered the world over in search of perfect sympathy and love at last arrives here and finds rest. * * * At Calvary poets have sung their sweetest strains and artists seen their sublimest visions and thinkers excogitated their noblest ideas.—Stalker.

PERTINENT QUESTIONS.

1. Why does doing right get us into less trouble than doing wrong?
2. Why is personal revenge always an indication of great littleness?
3. Could Jesus have come down from the cross?
4. Why could He not have saved others, if He had come down from the cross?
5. Why has Christianity always lost its power, when the atoning work of Christ, on the cross, has been denied?
6. What is the crowning proof that Jesus gave up His life voluntarily?
7. What is your attitude toward Him?

VISITOR AT POLICE STATION LAUGHS AT LOCKS AND ROPES

Paul Kruger, inventor of a new signal system which he states will double the efficiency of any police force, entertained the detail at headquarters yesterday afternoon with some handcuff tricks which made them sit up and take notice.

The policemen were unable to produce a set of irons which would hold him. Without the use of a key of any kind he slipped out of them as easily as though they were ordinary bracelets. How he accomplished the feat was a mystery, as was also his ability to open any handcuff without a key. He also showed them how to substitute a knife for a key in opening a handcuff, and then told them how the cuffs could be locked so that a knife could not be used to manipulate them.

To set aside all doubt the officers handcuffed him to a cell, both hands spread far apart. In two minutes he was free. He had the officers tie his legs and hands together. Detectives Toewe and Terry tied the knots, pulling them together with all their strength. In about a second he was out of the rope. Before he left Kruger gave the policemen some new ideas as to the use of handcuffs and told them how to put the cuffs on a prisoner so that he could hardly make an escape, having almost no use of his hands.

Kruger is traveling about the country talking his new signal system. He states that if it is installed the policemen on the beat will be able to get in touch with headquarters in two or three seconds. He says that the stations can be installed within a few yards of each other, so that if a policeman happened to see a burglar and wanted assistance he would be able to get it without losing sight of the criminals. Kruger declares that he is willing to forfeit a bond of $10,000 if his system is not as represented after it is installed.

Kruger has been on the stage considerably, working under the name of Hayco. He makes a specialty of stunts with handcuffs, ropes, locks and feats of strength. In the East he has acquired somewhat of a reputation in the squared ring as a prize fighter.

LOVE FOR UNSEEN BABY DRAWS HIM

Defaulting Bank Cashier Returns and Surrenders.

New York, Dec. 8. — A longing to hold in his arms his baby, which he never had seen, that brought Walter A. Hall, a defaulting bank teller, back to New York and prison. He surrendered himself yesterday, confessed a theft of $44,600 from the Herald Square branch of the Greenwich bank, and was remanded for sentence.

Hall, who is 24 years old, fled from New York last July and wandered about Canada, he said, betting on horse races. When he heard that the baby had arrived his longing to see the child made his exile miserable. He sent $500 to his wife, which she turned over to the bank. Later, he said, he sent her $1,000, but she told the police that she never received the money. When he could resist no longer the impulse to return to see his baby, he came back to New York. Hall surrendered $15,200, which he said was all he had left of the money he had taken.

HEALTH DEPARTMENT WANTS COUNCIL TO ACT.

Officials of the health department state that they have not yet seen any action from the council upon its request for an appropriation sufficient to erect a trestle adjacent to the railroad tracks from which teamsters can load with manure. One car has been filled, but as it was a box car, only one team could unload at a time, which consumed considerable time. Dr. Webster states that he has received several requests for cars of fertilizer from farmers, but says that without a trestle it will be practically impossible to comply with the requests.

CARPENTER MAKING GOOD.

He Acts as His Own Lawyer While on Trial for Murder.

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 8. — Austin Greaves, a carpenter, confessedly unskilled in the law, but who is conducting his own defense against the charge of first degree murder, examined his own wife on the witness stand in the circuit court here yesterday afternoon. She declared that Alfred Hunter, the slain man, had made threats against the life of her husband, in response to his leading question.

The defendant smiled complacently at his ability as counsel for himself to catch the prosecution napping, as the latter interposed his objection too late.

Greaves announced at adjournment that he would place his 14-year-old daughter on the stand to give further evidence that his life had been threatened by the deceased.

FORGOT HIS SPONGE.

Illinois Surgeon Is Defeated By Woman on Third Trial.

Bloomington, Ill., Dec. 8.—After three bitterly contested trials, Mrs. Carrie A. Smith of this city has been awarded a verdict of $1,500 against Dr. Ernest Mammen, for alleged malpractice. The plaintiff asserted that Dr. Mammen, who performed an operation upon her, left a surgical sponge in the abdominal cavity when the wound was closed after the operation. The presence of the sponge was not discovered until some weeks after the operation was performed. As a result of the alleged oversight, the woman declared she never fully recovered from the operation and that the injurious effects are permanent. The first jury gave the plaintiff $1,500, the second brought a verdict of $2,400. The case was then taken by the defendant to the apellate court and was reversed and remanded. The third trial brought a verdict for $1,500. An appeal was taken.

BANK TAX LIKE DOG TAX.

Argument Made in Oklahoma Case at Washington.

Washington, Dec. 8.—From the analogy of the tax on dogs to reimburse farmers for sheep killed by canines, the tax on banks to reimburse depositors in other banks was held constitutional in arguments before the supreme court of the United States.

The constitutionality of a tax to create a fund to guarantee deposits in banks arose in the attack on the Oklahoma bank guaranty law passed in December, 1907. This case was reached in its regular place on the docket of the supreme court.

C. B. Ames of Oklahoma first called the attention of the court to the dog cases. He said the attorney-general of Oklahoma referred to them in his brief as supporting the power sought to be exercised by the state. Mr. Ames said the only dog case that he knew about, which passed on the use to which the money was put, was a New York case. In that, he said, it had been held that the use of the dog tax money by the humane society was for a private use and therefore improper.

Banking Not Franchise.

Mr. Ames also argued that banking, not including the issue of notes as legal tender, was not a franchise, and hence the banks, which did not issue legal tender, could not be subjected to a franchise tax, as the bank guaranty tax might be called.

Attorney-General West, in defense of the law, argued that the case presented a mooted question because the original suit was to enjoin the state banking board from levying the tax, and since the suit had been begun, the legislature had changed the law so as to take the power to levy the tax away from the board. He said the power was now in the legislature alone.

RECALL WINS EASILY.

Measure Is Not Dropped From Arizona Constitution.

Phoenix, Ariz., Dec. 8.—The "conservatives" made a supreme effort to eliminate the recall from the Arizona constitution yesterday, but failed. The early session was marked by an attack on United States Seantor Bailey. Delegate Webb of Graham county had received a telegram from Senator Bailey saying, in reply to a question concerning the initiative and referendum and recall, that it would be inadvisable to write anything "debatable" into the constitution, as it might "provoke the opposition of the president and invite the disapproval of congress."

Delegate Parsons of Cochise county then asserted that if the country had been raked there could not have been found a more appropriate person from whom to obtain the desired information. Senator Bailey, he declared, was not in reality a Democrat.

The recall was adopted on a vote 38 to 9, one Democrat against it.

DRIVERS SAY THEY WON THEIR STRIKE.

Chicago, Dec. 8.—The strike of drivers in the big retail stores, which threatened to prevent Christmas deliveries, is ended. A compromise has been reached which the strikers say is a victory for them. The men were promised a bonus of $15 each, to be paid them on Christmas day, two weeks' vacation each summer, and an arbitration of wage scale to be undertaken Jan. 1, 1911. The strike was declared three days ago and over 500 men went out.

DROWNS HIMSELF IN POT OF BOILING METAL.

Barnesville, Ohio, Dec. 8.—In plain sight of fifty fellow workmen, Charles Kendall, a moulder, leaped into a cupola full of white hot metal at a foundry here. The man's flesh was entirely consumed, and only the bones were recovered. Kendall had been separated from his wife for a number of years.

Health and Beauty Helps

BY MRS. MAE MARTYN.

Hester: You say you are taking on flesh at a rate that dismays you, and will faithfully follow my advice if I tell you how to secure stylish slenderness. I am glad to say you will not find my directions difficult to follow, for I do not believe in starving or violent exercise to avoid obesity. Just get four ounces of parnotis from your druggist, dissolve it in 1½ pints hot water, and take a tablespoonful of this harmless fat dissolver before each meal. Weigh yourself at the end of each week for four weeks and you will be delighted with the result. You will be lighter in spirit as well as body, for parnotis benefits the general health.

Mrs. R.: To allay and soothe the irritation and roughness of your complexion caused by hard water, sun or winds apply a lotion made as follows: Dissolve four ounces of spurmax in a half-pint of hot water and add two teaspoonfuls of glycerine. Apply with the palm of the hand and gently rub until dry. Use this inexpensive and excellent face wash daily instead of powder or cosmetic. Spurmax preserves the skin and beautifies the complexion, making it soft, smooth and white.

M. S.: I do not think brunettes are afflicted with superfluous hairs on the face any more than are blondes. Of course, black or dark hairs are more noticeable. You can easily get rid of them if you will use delatone. Make a paste by mixing a little of the powder with a little water, cover the skin from which you wish to remove the disfiguring hairs, let remain two or three minutes, then wipe off the paste and wash the skin thoroughly with warm water. Delatone is pretty expensive. Druggists charge one dollar an ounce, but it is worth it. If the hairs should return they will be thin and almost colorless and another application of delatone will permanently rid you of them.

W. J. G.: Especially at this season of the year you should be feeling energetic, full of life and have a good appetite. Even though you do not feel really sick, you should take a good tonic to rid your blood of its impurities and build up your health and strength generally. Get an ounce of kardene from any drug store and dissolve it with half a cup of sugar in a half pint of alcohol; then add enough hot water to make a full quart. This is a splendid remedy for that run-down, tired, indifferent feeling you speak of. Take a tablespoonful before each meal and in a short time it will restore your appetite and free your skin from those pimples and liver blotches which now annoy you.

Lucy M.: You have made a great mistake in neglecting your hair so long. But it is not too late to restore it to its former beauty, even if it is "falling, scurfy and weak hair," as you call it. Regular use of a good quinine hair tonic will accomplish wonders. To make this tonic, get one ounce of quinzoin from your druggist, dissolve it in one-half pint of alcohol and add one-half pint of water. Rub this tonic into the scalp and hair roots two or three times a week, and it will restore your scalp to a healthy condition, feed the hair follicles, giving your hair new life and causing it to grow in thick, long and glossy. Your sister will find this same quinzoin tonic the right and true remedy for her fading, dull and brittle hair. It will stop the splitting and breaking in one or two applications, but she should continue its use for several weeks and resume the treatment whenever her hair requires it. Read answer to Hermione.

Hermione: You must get the dandruff off your head. Dandruff is a hair destroyer; it chokes the hair, kills it and causes it to fall out. Don't use soap for shampooing; soap leaves the scalp dry and hard, and streaks the hair. I know of only one perfect shampoo, and that is canthrox. All first-class druggists sell it. Just dissolve a teaspoonful of canthrox in a cup of hot water; pour on the head a little at a time and rub well—precisely as you would with any other shampoo; then rinse the hair and scalp thoroughly with clean warm water. Canthrox removes dandruff, and relieves itching scalp. It dries quickly and makes the hair soft, bright and fluffy. For a hair tonic, use quinzoin—described in the preceding paragraph.

A. B. R.: It has been indeed a trying season for even the strongest eyes, and you are only one of thousands who are suffering from sore, red and inflamed eyes. To relieve the irritation, redness and granulated lids, get an ounce of crystos from your druggist, dissolve it in a pint of water, and drop one or two drops in each eye whenever the eyes feel tired, weak or sore. The use of this home-made eye tonic gives brilliance and expression to the eyes, keeping them clear and bright. It is a favorite toilet adjunct with actresses and society women.

"Betty:" I don't know who said "Any fool can catch a husband, but it takes a wise woman to keep one"—but it comes pretty near to being true. For the sake of your present and future happiness, don't neglect your complexion—don't let your skin become sallow, dark, coarse or rough; don't let it wrinkle or sag. Use this home-made cream-jelly for massaging and as a face cream: Get from your druggist one ounce of almozoin, dissolve it in a half pint of cold water, add two teaspoonfuls of glycerine, stir well and let stand over night. This is "the cream without grease"—it won't cause hair to grow. Gently massage your face and neck and you will find it acts on the skin, seeking out the deepest layers, the deepest tissues, the deepest cells and there works like Nature works, thoroughly and surely, for skin health, purity, color and freshness. It not only restores a lost complexion but creates a new one.

THE COMMISSION PLAN.

No. 21.—What it Did in Houston.

Yesterday The Herald showed what the commission form of city government did in Galveston, the first city to adopt it. There it brought about a new and almost miraculously improved city government, vastly increasing and bettering the service without increasing the tax rate.

One of the cities that soon followed the example of Galveston was Houston. Houston had had no great disaster, but like every other American city, it needed better government, and in the commission plan it found a means of getting it. Here are the results:

The commission retired city indebtedness of $400,000.

The practice of issuing bonds to cover annual deficits was discontinued; there were no deficits to cover because the expenditures were kept rigidly within the city's income.

Current city obligations were promptly met; warrants, previously discounted down to 75 and 80, went immediately to par.

The city's credit was completely restored following a period when bondholders had been threatening to sue on account of defaults.

Waterworks were bought for $901,000, with popular approval showing confidence in the new administration. The purchase was approved in 1906 by a three-to-one vote, whereas it had been rejected in 1903, before the commission plan was adopted.

The water service and fire protection were greatly improved.

The street railways were compelled to bear their share of taxes and improve their service.

Three schoolhouses were built at a cost of $106,000. A 15-acre park was bought for $55,000—cash. Dangerous old bridges across a bayou in the heart of the city, which the old government had refused to replace except with a bond issue, were replaced with new bridges built out of current revenue. Twelve other bridges were put in repair.

The city supplies were bought at reductions of 15 to 25 per cent by the use of business methods.

Good vitrified brick paving was substituted for inferior work.

A shipload of brick was imported from New York and a local brick combination was destroyed.

The cost of city lighting was reduced from $80 to $70 per arc light per year.

Graft, sinecurism, favoritism and incompetency, which permeated every department of the old government, were done away with.

Police and sanitary regulations were strictly enforced, and the fostering of vice was discontinued.

Quarreling and dissensions disappeared; harmony was restored both in the city government and among citizens.

Business methods were adopted in all departments. Council sessions became short, business-like and devoid of speech-making and partisan politics. The confidence of the citizens in the integrity of the city government was completely restored.

Finally, though the results secured were very much larger than before, the tax rate was reduced from $2 to $1.80 per $100.

It was simply because business methods were applied to the conduct of public affairs.

AS TO BALLINGER.

It was time somebody exonerated him. He requires a lot of exoneration, and if there is any more in store anywhere it might as well be added to that provided by the Nelson section of the investigating committee. He needs all he can get.

According to Messrs. Nelson, Flint, Sutherland, Root, McCall, Olmsted and Denby, Republicans, the charges against Ballinger have fallen to the ground, and he is "a competent and honorable gentleman, honestly and faithfully performing the duties of his high office with an eye to the public interest." It follows, of course, that since Mr. Ballinger is such an exemplary citizen and public official, Pinchot and Glavis, who made the charges against him, are not all they ought to be—at which conclusion the committee hints darkly.

But these glorifiers of Ballinger are but seven—all Republicans and all appointed to this committee for the express purpose of doing exactly what they have done. There are five more members of the committee—Messrs. Fletcher, Purcell, James and Graham, Democrats, and Mr. Madison, progressive Republican. These gentlemen evidently were not informed of the purpose for which this committee was framed, and they were innocent enough—or ignorant enough—to go into the matter with the sole purpose of ascertaining the facts. So their report, published last summer after Chairman Nelson had jockeyed the committee hearing to prevent a quorum, sustains the Pinchot-Glavis charges and declares that Ballinger has not acted in the interests of the people.

Politics might be suspected of the seven Republicans who sign the Ballinger whitewash. Politics might be suspected of the four Democrats who arraign him for unfaithfulness. Politics can hardly be charged against Representative Madison, who is a Republican but did not let his Republicanism blind him to his public duty—and Madison agrees with the minority.

If the majority report provides Mr. Ballinger with an easy way of resigning his office, making it available for somebody who will work solely in the interests of the people, it will be well worth while.

THE CENSUS AND REAPPORTIONMENT.

There seems hardly any need of further argument as to the need of a reapportionment of legislative representation in Minnesota. It has been needed for a dozen years, and up to this moment nobody has arisen to deny the need.

Nevertheless, the opportunity offered by the publication of the Minnesota figures from the new federal census should not be passed by, because it furnishes too many strong reasons why any postponement of reapportionment would be an act of perfidy and injustice that would brand the state of Minnesota with the shame of tyranny.

Minnesota has 63 senators and 120 representatives. According to the new census it has 2,075,708 people, an increase of 324,314.

These figures mean that throughout Minnesota there is a state senator for each 32,947 people, and a representative for each 17,297 people.

Though in the state at large 32,947 people are represented by a senator, in Northern Minnesota, the thirty-two counties included in the Northern Minnesota Development association with two additional counties lying in legislative districts of Northern Minnesota but not themselves counted part of Northern Minnesota, it takes 51,688 people to elect a state senator and 22,398 people to elect a house member. In the balance of the state—including the Twin Cities, which are also under-represented—it only takes 28,075 people to elect a state senator and only 15,597 to elect a representative.

Here is a contrast that still further accents the existing injustice: The Fifty-second legislative district, with one senator and two representatives, includes the counties of Aitkin, Cass, Carlton, Itasca and Koochiching, with 63,189 people. These people—63,189 of them, are represented in the state senate by one man.

Now look at the population of a handful of senatorial districts elsewhere in the state, each represented by a senator: Houston, 14,297; Faribault, 19,949; Dodge, 12,094; Steele, 16,146; Waseca, 13,466; Martin, 17,518; Le Sueur, 18,609.

Twelve thousand people in Dodge county have one senator. More than five times that many people in the Fifty-second senatorial district also have one senator.

This state should not rest under the injustice of such a condition a moment longer than is necessary.

Reapportionment should be the first order of business before the session of the legislature which is about to begin.

A fair reapportionment bill, based on population as the Constitution requires, should be prepared in advance of the session, should be introduced in the house on the opening day, should be reported out of committee promptly, should be made a special order for an early day, and passed over to the senate. There a similar course should be followed.

If this is not done, and the legislature adjourns without passing a fair reapportionment bill, Governor Eberhart should make good his implied promise at Brainerd, and call the legislature together immediately in extraordinary session for the exclusive purpose of passing a reapportionment bill.

CHRISTMAS VANDALISM.

It is beautiful to gather the family 'round a brilliantly decorated Christmas tree, but it isn't beautiful to do it if the Christmas tree was stolen from the few remaining groups of evergreens that represent the vanishing glory of the woodland wild that once stood where Duluth now stands.

If there is any way of stopping further inroads upon the scant supply of evergreens left within the limits of the city of Duluth, therefore, steps should be taken to stop them.

In past years private property, and even city parks, have been raided by dealers in Christmas trees, and the indications are that the same thing is happening this year. There are plenty of evergreens further out, without taking the few that remain in Duluth, and nobody with a trace of public spirit will take for a day's use one of the handful of spruce, balsam or fir trees left standing in the city. There is little chance that more will grow, and these trees add so much to the beauty of the city that they cannot be spared.

The parks should be guarded carefully against vandalism of this kind. Owners of property on which evergreens are standing will do well to keep watch. Those who buy Christmas trees should be careful to find out where they come from, and to buy none that are procured at the expense of the city's scenic beauty.

THE WHEELAGE TAX.

According to a local story in The Herald last night, not more than a fifth of the amounts due in taxes under the wheelage tax ordinance have been paid, though the ordinance has been in effect several months and has been so widely advertised that every owner of a vehicle must know that he owes something to the city.

Therefore Mayor Cullum has issued orders to the police department to arrest those who have not paid their tax, and this action is timely. Similar action has been threatened before, without much result. Action, not threats, seems to be what the situation calls for now.

This tax is not burdensome. Neither is it unjust. It merely requires users of pavements to contribute in a small way toward repairing the wear caused by their use of the streets. The money is to be used only for street maintenance, and it will permit a consistent maintenance of pavements that will prolong their lives greatly, thus saving large sums to the property-owners and the city. It is a fair tax, and it ought to be paid promptly and without the necessity for making arrests.

PROTECTING THE FORESTS.

What would be thought of a business man, owning a large amount of valuable property, who not only left it exposed to fire, but practically invited fire through his negligence, when he carried no insurance?

That is exactly what the state of Minnesota is doing with its timber holdings; and it is doing worse than that: it is maintaining a constant menace from fire all around the clearings in which it invited settlers to make their homes.

The resolutions on this subject adopted by the lake states fire conference yesterday are to the point. They favor the establishment of state fire patrols, the opening of adequate fire lanes, the building of roads and trails, the construction of telephone lines through the forests, and the adequate regulation of railroads, lumbering operations and individuals whose carelessness menaces the forests.

THE OPEN COURT.

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their ideas about the topics of general interest. Letters should not exceed 300 words—the shorter the better. They must be written on one side of the paper only, and they must be accompanied in every case by the name and address of the writer, though these need not be published. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

WORK FOR STATE DAIRY AND FOOD INSPECTOR.

To the Editor of The Herald:

I would suggest that the agent of the state dairy and food department in Duluth make an investigation of the quality, I should say, of eggs put up in fancy packages and sold as special stock. My experience has been that a number of such brands of eggs are nothing but the most ancient of ancient storage eggs that could not be sold for anything as storage eggs. They bring 35 and 36 cents a dozen when put in colored cartons, marked with a brand and advertised as finest quality.

I refer to some particular brands. People who have purchased them will know those to which I refer. If the state dairy and food inspector takes a hand, other people would not be taken in by the fancy packages containing long-stored stock. R. H. G.

TREES ON PRIVATE PROPERTY ARE BEING DESTROYED.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Boys, large and small, armed with axes have begun their annual slaughter of the fir trees on the hills. These trees are taken into the city and sold at so much each and they serve to hang Christmas presents on in many of our city homes. Now, much of the land on which these trees grow is private property. The owners cannot be present to watch their land and the result is that year after year the trees on the hills behind the city become fewer. I live close to one place where the boys, and in some instances men, have been hacking away for some days. We who live on the hill want the trees left as they are. With the building and the growth of the city, they will disappear soon enough. Through the open court column I wish to call the owners' attention to these facts that signs may be posted warning people against cutting the trees. By going out in almost any direction from the city a few miles, larger and better trees may be had, and as these people are in it purely for the money, they should be careful in the matter of cutting trees that are on private property. I wish property owners to take notice that their property is being ruined. This communication to the paper is simply made so that they can post signs if they so desire.

UPHOLDS POLICY OF LIMITING OUTPUT.

To the Editor of The Herald:

I read your editorial, "An Unwise Policy," last night. Excuse me if I cannot see it your way. There are many fundamental reasons, on the basis of which I protest. Among these reasons are:

That war is war, even among classes, and that in war ordinary reason and morality have no place.

That efficiency and output have nothing to do whatever with a working man's earnings at present, except as creating dividends on watered stocks, if he holds any, which he does not. It is the first fundamental law of Wall Street and "business," that workers, inventors and scientists shall be squelched.

That all benefits arising from science, invention and discovery together with increased individual output of workers shall go to stock and bondholders.

That under present conditions, all improvements, commercial and scientific, only serve to further enslave the multitude, via the stock, bond and dividend route.

That when industry is automatically robbed by the dividend system, it is just as well to be lazy and poor as to be industrious and efficient.

You know it to be a fact that the fatter a hog is the sooner it will be killed. Which is some reason why the unions want to be lean. Yours at variance. PONTIFEX.

Pa's Failing Faculties.

It's lined with silk and one of those brown, softish, wooly kind;
He brought it home the other night and kept it on a while;
Before she found out what it cost, ma kind of liked its style,
But when Pa told her what he paid she sank down in a chair,
And said: "Pa, every day you get more foolish, I declare!

"I shouldn't think," she said, "that you would waste your cash like that!
Nobody but a fool would pay six dollars for a hat!
The children need new overcoats; their shoes are shabby, too;
Sometimes you make it hard for me to keep respectin' you;
Think of the many years I try to save day after day;
And here you go and waste the cash in such a foolish way!

"If we had millions, I should be the last one to complain,
But here we live from hand to mouth—it's just a constant strain!
I must deny myself the things I often wish I had,
And then you buy a hat like that—it simply is too bad!
Six dollars merely thrown away! It fills me with the blues—
Six dollars for a hat! Enough to buy two pair of shoes!"

Pa sat and listened for a while as though he felt ashamed,
And pretty soon he says: "Well, I'll take it back, but say,
How much did that one cost that you brought home the other day?"
Ma left the room and we could see a tear roll down her cheek;
She's worried over pa and thinks his mind is gettin' weak.

The Fable of the Golden Plough.

Clifton B. Dowd in Lippincott's: There was once a Benevolent Fairy who was accustomed to doing Good Deeds in Whimsical Ways. One day she was flying across the country to attend a meeting of the A. O. B. F., when she noticed a Farmer laboring in the Fields. His horse was Attenuated and Decrepit, and his plough was Heavy and Old-Fashioned. Often he would pause and wipe the sweat from his brow. Plainly he was having a Hard Time.

The Benevolent Fairy watched him a moment and observed his Haggard Look and his general air of Misery. Suddenly an Idea came to her—to make this man Rich, so that he would no longer have to delve and struggle to eke out a Bare Living. So she swooped down and touched the plough with her wand—she was of course invisible—and instantly it was changed to Solid Gold. Then, with an amused but kindly backward glance, the Benevolent Fairy went on her way.

A year later, remembering the occurrence, she flew over to see how the Farmer was enjoying his Good Fortune. She found him in the Fields, ploughing laboriously, and, if anything, he and his surroundings looked Meaner and More Miserable than they had before. Much surprised, the Fairy flew closer, just in time to hear him murmur:

"I wish this ding-busted plough warn't so heavy!"

The Benevolent Fairy eyed him Pityingly—then she once more touched the plough with her wand, and it again became a thing of wood and iron. Then she flew away, and the Farmer resumed his Toil.

After all, are there not some folk who would die of thirst adrift on a river?

The Pride of Atchison.

Atchison Globe: Atchison people point with pride to Ed Melloy; he got drunk in the City of Mexico once and whipped twenty-eight policemen.

DULUTH AT BRAINERD.

Elmer E. Adams, in the Fergus Falls Journal: As might be expected, Mr. G. G. Hartley of Duluth, was one of the most prominent backers in every way of the development association. For thirty years he has been exploiting Northern Minnesota and has never wavered in his faith, although there have been periods of depression. Years ago when all of Northern Minnesota was in one political division, Mr. Hartley was better known in this end of it, than he is now, but all the old timers who had to do with business or politics still remember him, for his personality is such that when once he is known, he is never forgotten. If Mr. Hartley had been born in Italy instead of Maine he would have been an artist; if he had settled in the Lake region of Scotland instead of Crow Wing county, he would have been a poet; if he lived anywhere else but Duluth he would be a statesman; if he had been born poor intead of rich he would have been a spendthrift, but as it is, he is simply a plain farmer and spends the most of his time in talking agriculture and the agricultural possibilities of Northern Minnesota. Like our pioneer farmer, Jacob Austin, he does not raise wheat because the elevators and railroads would rob him, but he raises more expensive potatoes and produces costlier butter than any man in Minnesota outside of St. Louis county. He is a regular agricultural wizard, not of the Burbank type, who creates new forms, but more on the order of the Indian magicians, who make things grow under impossible conditions and in unexpected places. We know this because we have seen it. In the radiance of his optimism unexcelled vegetables will grow in the pure white sand of Northern Minnesota without water or fertilization. He was at Brainerd helping pay the expenses of the meeting and talking agriculture sixteen hours a day. It seemed good to have him there for when he is on deck no man from Southern Minnesota will come around and offer to cede Northern Minnesota to Canada, reserving half the mineral rights and all the ice privileges.

Mr. Chester A. Congdon was another Duluth agriculturalist who attended the Brainerd meeting. He is more strictly speaking, a pomologist, for he gets his living raising apples. He talks fruit in Duluth but he raises his apples in the Yakima valley. He used to practice law but now that his orchard is beinning to bear he is gradually giving up his law practice and depending more and more upon his apples as a source of income. When the crop is good he is able to devote some time to politics and as a member of the outgoing and incoming legislature he was qualified to sit and participate in the Northern Minnesota Development meeting. Mr. Congdon was quite active in political affairs in the state while a young man and it was during the time he was assistant United States district attorney that he carried a case to the United States supreme court and it was decided that agents of the Indian department had the right to do what they are doing now, spilling spiritous liquors onto the ground when found in the Indian territory. Mr. Congdon has not participated publicly in the political affairs of the state for some time as he has been engaged in his law practice, but two years ago he was sent to the legislature from Duluth to reason with the members of the legislature and attempt to show them and the people of the state why they should not passs a tonnage tax. He knows every phase of the mining business and as the strongest lawyer and the strongest man intellectually in the house, he was able to present Duluth's side of the case as no other man could and while he was not able to prevent the passage of the bill he greatly changed the view of the state in regard to the matter. In his desire to do nothing as a member which would create hostility to the Duluth view of the tonnage tax proposition he did not take the part nor render the state the service which he might have done, with his experience and ability, in shaping the general legislation of the session. He has a strong leaning to the insurgent view of matters, so much so that one of the Hennepin delegation remarked that it was a good thing that they had the tonnage tax hanging over Congdon or he would have been the worst anarchist in the house.

Duluth was very strongly represented at the Brainerd meeting and appeared to be the dominant factor in it. The Duluth influence is gradually extending over Northern Minnesota and particularly that portion lying north of the Northern Pacific road. The extending of the mining zone, originally confined to St. Louis county and now including Itasca, Aitkins, Carlton, and last of all Crow Wing, for proved ore has been discovered four miles from Brainerd, has put all these localities in closer touch with Duluth. Their interests are common and in many instances controlled from Duluth. Many of the men, influential in the mining operations, were at the convention. Duluth feels or affects to feel that the hand of the rest of the state is turned against it. This feeling was voiced years ago when one of its state senators proposed to secede because he was unable to secure what he thought his section ought to have. It is of course true that Duluth and the corner of the state tributary to it, is isolated and cut off in a certain sense from the rest of the state and its interests are different from the rest of the state, especially mining and shipping. These two great interests are controlled outside the state while almost every other interest in the state is controlled within the state. It is perhaps unfortunate for Duluth that when anything affecting these interests is to be done, the orders have to come from Pittsburg or New York. But Duluth is extending its influence over the state and when Northern Minnesota is developed Duluth will get the main benefit from it and can therefore afford to lend a helping hand in carrying on the work. This it seems more than willing to do and the next meeting of the Northern Minnesota Development association will be held there.

It is really too bad that the mining men of the state should feel just this way just because the state wanted to put a tonnage tax on the ore shipped away. They appear to be human beings with red blood corpuscles in their veins, sober and industrious, and it is too bad that, when they want to go some where, they feel that they must go to Hurley, Wis., or Pittsburg, Pa. It would unquestionably do them some good to come out onto the prairie people some time just as it would do the prairie people good to visit Duluth and the Northwest corner of the state and see the wonderful development which has been made there in the past ten or fifteen years.

DULUTH AND THE HERALD.

Just a Half Suspicion.

Houghton Mining Gazette: We sort of half suspect that The Duluth Herald is getting the town of Duluth framed up for the commission plan of government.

Good Commission Material.

Eveleth Star: Down in Duluth the News Tribune and The Herald are agitating the question of a commission form of government for that city. Maybe it would be a good thing, maybe not. There are enough good men in that community to make an ideal commission—if they could be induced to serve.

It's Not That Kind.

Virginia Virginian: "The Odeum" is the name lately applied to a Duluth theater. This would not be an inappropriate title to some of the houses patronized by those odious burlesque performances in some of our larger cities.

Making It Strong But Safe.

Winona Independent: The Duluth Herald intimates that the advertising of Minnesota's products by the Northern Pacific road is, in language not smooth but very expressive, rotten.

Kind to the Locomotives.

Ely Miner: The Duluth Herald is keeping up a humanitarian campaign to ease the strain on the poor horses who are overloaded on Duluth grades. The life of a horse in Duluth is certainly not all sunshine. Every avenue in the Zenith City leads straight up, and horses without a load have about all they can do to travel the avenues. We would suggest that an extra team be stationed on the avenues to help up overloads. This would not cost much, and surely would be a source of much gratification to the horse as well as the teamster. The railroads use extra engines up the hills, and why not give the horse as much consideration as an engine.

Papers and Commission Form.

Hill City News: Duluth has two of the best daily papers published west of Chicago, The Herald and the News Tribune. The News Tribune is a Republican party paper, while The Herald is independent, which means that it lines up on the Democraaic side of the fence. During a political campaign these two papers are implacable enemies, but aside from that, their only contention is to see which one can get in the most boosts for Northern Minnesota. If either one advances a good doctrine the other takes it up and works for it. Just now they are advocating a change to the commission form of government for Duluth, and they will win it, too. It will probably take some time, as the people have to be educated to it before any great change can be brought about. The task of bringing the general public to realize the advantages to be gained by the change belongs exclusively to the newspapers, and with the two strong papers working harmoniously for it, the commission government is bound to come for Duluth.

Duluth Has the Future.

Ely Miner: Duluth has increased 48 per cent in population in the last ten years and the St. Paul Pioneer Press aptly says that "the Zenith City is not only the Head of the Lakes, but is making rapid strides towards the Head of the List." Duluth has a future while some of the other cities have a past. The range towns have done their share towards making Duluth what she is and in the next ten years the Zenith City will do still better.

A Lincoln Story.

Washington Star: Berry Wall said at a dinner in New York:

"It pays to dress well. The most carelessly dressed man will notice and admire elegance in others. Even Lincoln—"

Berry Wall smiled.

"A man named Parsons, a very well dressed man, indeed," he said, "having been appointed minister to a South American republic, came to Washington to thank the president.

"His dress on this occasion was very elegant, and during the interview President Lincoln shot many a shrewd glance at it. The president, as usual, was humorous and abrupt, and Minister Parsons had a very pleasant time. When he rose to go, he said:

"'Good-by, Mr. President, and thank you again and again. I hope I'll see you again, though I've been told it's pretty hot down there, and the climate is likely to affect my health.'

"'Well, Mr. Parsons,' said Lincoln, putting out his hand, 'if you do die down there you'll leave a mighty good suit of clothes.'"

My Old Cob Pipe.

When the world goes wrong, as this old world will
At times, and the wheels of Fate
Don't turn around as I think they should,
And I'm sick of the greed and hate,
Then I hike to the chair on the old back porch,
Away from the din and throb,
And I take my ease and I soothe my mind
In a smoke from my friendly cob.

There's a time, you know, when a fellow likes
To sit and reflect on things
That are past and gone—to cogitate
On thoughts that a ripe age brings.
He likes to steal in a quiet way,
(I'm one of that kind of stripe)
And dream the dreams that he used to dream
In the smoke from an old cob pipe.

Then a toast to the "great god Nicotine,"
For he means good-by to care;
There is never a god in the wide, wide world
Gives rise to dreams so fair.
So sing your songs of the nectars sipped
By the gods of the olden type,
But I'll take my ease and my comfort in
A smoke from my old cob pipe.

The Real Cause of High Wages.

Prof. F. W. Taussig, in the Atlantic: It is a familiar adage in the business world that an efficient man is cheap at high wages. Yet in its application to larger questions this adage is never thought of. In discussing the tariff and wages, people assume as a matter of course that the employer who pays high wages must therefore sell his goods at a higher price. The fact is that if the labor is well-fed and intelligent, and is applied under good natural conditions and with skillful leadership, the employer can turn out an abundant product (or a product of high quality), sell it cheap, and still pay his laborers well. And the real source and cause of general high wages, says the economist, is precisely in these conditions: efficient labor, good natural resources, skillful industrial leadership. Given these, and you will always have higher wages, and need not fear competition from cheap and inefficient labor.

Not the Lathery Kind.

Philadelphia Times: A New Jersey farmer came to the city the other day and, among other things, he visited a high-class restaurant. His appetite ran to cheese and, inquiring of the waiter what sort of cheese was listed, remarked that he desired "something new."

"Why don't you try a bit of roquefort?" sugested the waiter.

"What's that?" asked the farmer. "Hang it," he added, "bring me some. I like the name anyway."

He ate of it and liked it. So he thought he would take some home to his wife. Arriving late, he laid the small cheese wrapped in silver paper on the sideboard.

He forgot to inquire about it till the next night and then he asked his wife how she liked it.

"Oh, I s'pose it's mighty stylish up to the city, but I jes kinder couldn't use it. I couldn't get the foam out of it, and when I washed the children they smelled kinder funny, and I can't say's I like it."

Washington Star: "It seems cruel to slaughter all those pigs for market," said the Chicago girl.

"I don't know that it's cruel," replied Miss Cayenne. "But when you think of what the packers charge for the meat, it does seem a little unfraternal."

Fliegende Blatter: "But, Cousin Bertha, how did you make the acquaintance of your second husband?"

"It was quite romantic. I was out walking with my first when my second came along in an automobile and ran him down. That was the beginning of our friendship."

Houston Post: "She was very complimentary to me last night."

"In what way?"

"She called me a human comet."

"And you consider that a compliment?"

"Sure! means I'm a hustler."

"Not exactly; she told me yesterday that she had just learned that a comet is composed of millions of feet of gas."

New York Sun: Noah rejoiced to see the water outside. "I was afraid they were going to conserve it," he cried. Gladly he saw Ararat appear.

Cleveland Leader: "I can't see why men like to get up early and go fishing," said Mrs. Malaprop. "Now, my husband is a regular anglomaniac. I mean, he's a debauchee to the episcatory art. Fish? Why he's an apostle of old Isaac Newton himself!"

Judge: Mrs. Simmons glanced at the scare headline, "Bank Robbed! Police at Sea!" and laid down the sheet.

"Naow, look at that, Ez!" she ejaculated, repeating the headline aloud. "Here's a big city bank broke into by burglars, and th' city police force all off fishin' somewhere! What a scandal!"

Not the Medicine.

Washington Star: Upton Sinclair, apropos of the recent church congress' discussion of Christian healing, said:

"An hour later a very fat man entered the doctor's office.

"'Doctor,' he said, 'I want to be reduced.'

"'This will fix you up,' said the doctor, filling another bottle from the same demijohn. 'Take a teaspoonful after every meal. At the same time eat no soup, red meat, starchy vegetables, cereals or sweets, and take lots of violent exercise. Five dollars.'"

SOCIALISTS WILL INVITE QUERIES

Non-Believers Asked to Question Speakers at Virginia Meeting.

Virginia, Minn., Dec. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Next Saturday evening, Dec. 10, the joint Socialist locals will hold a mass meeting at the Socialist hall at which Ralph Krongold, one of the most forceful speakers, will speak and fully explain the Socialist doctrines.

Mr. Krongold has instructed the joint committees of all the Socialist locals to invite all clergymen, professional and business men to come and ask questions of the speakers. By so doing the Socialists of Virginia are establishing a precedent which will be carried out in the future at all political meetings held in the city. As the Socialists will invite everybody to ask questions, they in turn will ask the right to go to all other political meetings and ask questions. The Socialists hope to gain control of Virginia at the next city election and intend to keep up a steady campaigning until that time.

A special invitation is extended to all workingmen and women to attend the meeting on Saturday, to hear Mr. Krongold answer the questions put to him by the local politicians. There will be a concert by the Virginia Socialist band at the opening of the meeting and everything will be free and every one is invited.

VIRGINIA OWES VERY LARGE SUM

Numerous City Improvements During Year Have Caused Big Deficit.

Virginia, Minn., Dec. 8.—(Special to the Herald.)—The report submitted by City Clerk A. E. Bickford for the month of November shows that the actual indebtedness of the city is approximately $184,146.24. On April 1 last, the beginning of the fiscal year, the city did not owe a cent but had several thousand dollars to the good. The large deficit is due to the fact that the city has done a great deal of street improvements during the past year, paving some nineteen blocks, put in several miles of both sanitary and storm sewers, and making many other needed improvements. These figures show the financial standing of the city on Dec. 1: clerk's overdraft on Nov. 1, $65,353.03; receipts for the month, $27,392.52; total overdraft Dec. 1, $37,960.51; orders issued during month, $44,016.82; clerk's overdraft Dec. 1, $81,977.33; outstanding orders, Dec. 1 $108,105.11; treasurer's balance Dec. 1, $26,127.78. A large overdraft is noted from the different funds: General fund balance Dec. 1, $18,597.06; sewer fund balance, $608.61; park fund balance, $1,660.11; police-fire fund overdraft, $2,180.63; library fund balance, $1,369.26; interest fund overdraft, $1,634.39; permanent fund overdraft, $100,397.35; balance in all funds, $22,235.04; making a total overdraft of $81,977.33.

Total outstanding orders Dec. 1, $108,105.11; improvement warrants outstanding, $39,647.03, add overdraft, $81,977.33, making a total of $229,729.47 indebtedness; deduct assessment asset of $45,583.23, and the approximate indebtedness of the city of Virginia up to Dec. 1, was $184,146.24.

FATALLY SHOT BY COMPANION

Joseph Franze, Sliver Mine Miner, Accidentally Shot While Hunting.

Virginia, Minn., Dec. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Joe Franze, an Italian miner employed at the Silver mine, north of this city, while out hunting rabbits with a party of friends yesterday afternoon, was accidentally shot by one of his companions and died while on the way to the hospital. Franze was walking in front of Leonard Curry, when the latter's gun was discharged, the charge of shot taking effect in Franze's back near the spine. With him were his brother, Rock Franze, Tony Youko, Dominick Mentelena and Leonard Curry. Chief of Police Walsh received word that there was trouble and some one had been shot and went to the scene of the fatality, but upon investigating was convinced that the shooting was purely accidental and made no arrests.

Franze was about 30 years of age and has a wife and one child living in the Old Country.

His fellow-workmen had narrow escapes. The mass of earth, hard as a rock, struck Lokson on his head and crushed his skull.

ALDERMAN CUTTING ICE.

Member of Virginia Council in Business on Big Scale.

Virginia, Minn., Dec. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Messaba Range Ice company recently organized by Alderman Frank Weber, has begun cutting on Haenke lake, some distance from Wolfe Junction. The lake covers about 1,800 acres, and has a sandy bottom. The company expect to load about 400 cars this winter for the big users of ice all over the Missabe range.

In order to reach the lake the company was obliged to lay a spur track about 1,800 feet in length, which connects with the main line of the Missabe railway between Wolfe and Hibbing. The work of grading and the furnishing and the laying of the ties on the spur track was done by the ice company, while the railway company supplied the rails for its construction.

BREWERIES NOT SHIPPING BEER

None of Amber Fluid Being Hauled Into Hibbing By the Makers.

Hibbing, Minn., Dec. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The local agents of the liquor companies are not getting any further replenishment of stock.

The breweries are not hauling beer into the town, and have decided not to do so, according to the statements of two of the best known agents, just here.

Whatever beer is being hauled into town is being brought in by private parties, and not by the agents of the breweries. The latter are not consigning any more beer to their agents either in or near Hibbing, so that it is a cinch that they are not hauling it.

Another agent of a well known wholesale liquor firm stated that his firm had complete confidence that the matter would soon be adjusted, and that afterwards conditions would be better for the town than prior to the closing order.

Grand Rapids Is Now on Dry List.

Grand Rapids, Minn., Dec. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The local saloons, twenty in number, went out of business late yesterday afternoon following a visit of Indian Agent T. E. Brentz and Deputies Fred and James Davis, assisted by B. E. Patten and F. S. Kahlberg, the latter of Bagley.

They served notice upon all dealers to close and ship their remaining supplies out of town as soon as possible. Many saloon men had anticipated this order and had allowed their stocks to run low so the loss will not be as heavy as otherwise. Last night was the first time in years it was hard to secure a drink here.

The closing of local saloons was conducted very quietly, and there was no demonstration of anger or of violence on the part of the saloon keepers. One of the deputies stated that the closing here was the most orderly they have made in the closing campaign.

The saloon men were given twenty-four hours in which to remove their stocks. This morning every dray in town was busy hauling booze. Two cars have been loaded, and the Great Northern depot is the only place in town where there is booze in any quantity. The express office is piled high with barrels and cases which have been offered for shipment. Mr. Brents and his men will remain until they have seen the wet goods on their way to the wholesalers, to whom most of the shipments have been consigned.

COLERAINE, TACONITE AND BOVEY CLOSED.

It is presumed the men who cracked the depot safe stole the paybox, too.

There is considerable traffic on this road, Allen being a junction point and many have to lay over here between trains. Since the beginning of the extensive logging operations near Missabe by the Duluth & Iron Range railroad the depot has accommodated large crowds of lumbermen almost continually.

MERCURY DROPS BELOW ZERO

Duluth Has 10 Degs. Below and Eighteen-Mile Wind.

The cold snap did its worst last night and Duluth had the first below-zero temperature of the winter. This morning at 6 o'clock, the mercury stood at 10 deg. below zero and an eighteen-mile wind impressed on those who ventured forth in the early morning air the fact that winter is really here.

At 10 o'clock this morning the mercury had climbed to zero again, and it is standing at about zero during the day with little variation. The forecast for the next thirty-six hours holds out no hope of a break in the cold snap, although the temperature is expected to be only a little below zero tonight.

Oscar Ellis, whose home is at 1107 Baxter avenue, Superior, was brought to Duluth last evening from a lumber camp at Allen Junction, and he is at St. Mary's hospital. His back is broken and he will die. A falling tree is believed to have caused his injuries.

SAY VICE IS UNCHECKED

trict below the dead line early in October. Following his excursion he delivered an address under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. in which he commented upon conditions in Duluth.

In the letter Mr. Ferguson states that he and the man who accompanied him saw two prominent business men in the the abodes of the women upon the night in question. He said that he saw women soliciting from the windows of eighteen or twenty houses and that beer was sold freely.

The letter, which is dated Oct. 5 last, is as follows:

"I understand that there has been some little misunderstanding about what I said in my address at the Y. M. C. A. in your city last Sunday regarding the existence of vice in Duluth.

"I came to Duluth under the supposition that the reports which I had heard about conditions there were correct. I had been told that vice had been driven out of your city; that there were no known vicious resorts and that your city government was enforcing the law. I found the condition to be the exact contrary of this.

Saw Women Soliciting.

"I examined the situation carefully, going personally into the district that used to be your vice district and finding it still devoted to vice. I saw women soliciting from the windows of eighteen or twenty houses; together with another gentleman who was with me, I entered some of the places and we saw liquor sold, of coure, in violation of the law, but without the slightest hesitation.

"Two prominent business men of your city were pointed out to me among the visitors in that district that night.

"In short, I was very much disappointed to find that, instead of being free from vice, Duluth bears all the marks of being as thoroughly as ever under the domination of the vice dealers and of having a police department that allows the law to be violated, so long as it is violated according to the rules which they set down for its violation."

The league also passed a resolution against the presentation of indecent and immoral plays in the city and appointed a committee to make a formal protest against them. The commission form of government was also discussed.

SPOONER, MINN., BUILDS RAPIDLY

New Buildings Going Up in Fire-Swept Town at Rapid Rate.

Spooner, Minn., Dec. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Building operations continue here at a rapid rate and it is predicted that before extreme cold weather sets in the fire-swept village will be a newer and better town. The $25,000 school building is rapidly approaching completion and is expected to be finished by Jan. 10. The building occupies the site of the structure that was burned. It will contain eight school rooms, a large assembly room and teachers' rooms as well as a vault for the records. The new village hall is also expected to be completed soon. It will be a two-story brick. The first floor will be used for fire hall and office rooms, the second floor for theatrical purposes and public gatherings. The most pretentious residences that are nearing completion are C. L. Isted's bungalow; A. E. Noble's, Knute Nelson's and Joseph Meloney's residences. The Shevlin-Mathieu Lumber company have completed many of their fifty dwellings under construction, and their employes are now occupying the same.

BURN FISHERMEN'S NETS.

Objection to Lake Being Robbed of Fish Alleged Motive.

Fergus Falls, Minn., Dec. 8.—Deputy Game Warden J. H. Jones was called to Ashby yesterday to investigate a fishing controversy. Messrs. May and Kester had prepared to seine a large lake for buffalo fish. They had miles of seines, costing about $2,000, and had expended $1,600 in making soundings and for apparatus for hauling the seines under the ice. The seines reach to a depth of twenty-five feet and, as the water is very deep, two of them are fastened together, making a seine fifty feet deep and half a mile in length. People living in the vicinity, believing the fishermen would strip the lake of fish, set fire to their seines, which were piled up on shore, destroying hundreds of dollars' worth of them. Deputy Warden Jones found that the seining was perfectly legal and that the men were proposing to take nothing except buffalo fish, which are destructive to other varieties.

TO DEVELOP WATER POWER

Pinchot and Others Are Working for Co-operative Plan.

Private and Federal Interests May be United for the Work.

Washington, Dec. 8.—A plan is being considered by the National Conservation association, of which Gifford Pinchot is president, to bring together the advocates of federal regulation of water power sites and those who stand for state control, according to an announcement made today by the executive committee of the association.

The object of the plan, which was drafted by Philip P. Wells, former law officer of the forest service, is to afford "a water power platform on which both sides of the water power controversy may unite to protect the public interest and at the same time encourage the development of the many millions of horse power now going to waste in the mountain streams of the Far West and the great rivers of the central and Eastern parts of the country."

The proposed plan has been laid before a number of engineers of wide experience in water power development as well as various officers and managers of hydro-electric power companies, and is said to have met with their approval.

Without Waste or Delay.

The basis of the plan is development "without delay, waste or the sacrifice of other and higher uses of flowing waters."

For this the plan declares, private capital must be aided by the states or federal government through corporate franchises, condemnation of private property, and licenses to use public lands and obstruct public waters. The power companies are to have certainty of tenure for a reasonable time and a chance for "generous profits on their actual investment."

For the public the plan promises "good service, fair prices, full publicity as to cost, honest capitalization and fair rentals for public property used by the companies."

The federal government, it is conceded in the plan, has no jurisdiction unless its land is to be occupied or navigable streams affected.

The bankrupt stock of clothing of S. Van Wagner will go on sale at the Oak Hall, Saturday morning. Suits and overcoats, hats, caps and neckwear for men and boys, all to be sold very cheap.

Makes a Pint of Finest Cough Syrup.

Cheap and Effective, Too.

The most effective and economical cough syrup can be made at home by any one, and in this day of high prices for foodstuff and clothing any family can appreciate a saving even on a necessity like cough syrup.

First, obtain of any well-stocked druggist 2½ ounces of essence Metho-laxene. Empty it into a pint bottle. Then take a pint of granulated sugar, add a half pint of boiling water, put on fire and let come to a boil. Cool and pour in bottle. Shake the mixture well and take a teaspoonful every hour or two until cough is broken up; then take whenever necessary. Give children less according to age.

This mixture will break up a cough much more rapidly than any cough syrup you can buy. It is not constipating, but laxative in action when 8 to 10 doses are taken daily. If your druggist does not have metho-laxene, he can obtain it for you from the wholesale firms. Try this splendid recipe and you will never want anything better.

PROGRAM FOR FREE CONCERT

Some Music New to Duluthians Will Be Heard Sunday.

The program for the Masonic free concerts at the auditorium of the Masonic temple, tomorrow at 3:30 p. m., follows:

Organ—
(a) Selections from "William Tell". .... Rossini
(b) Selections from "William Tell". .... Rossini
Song—Selected
Miss Marie Clark.
Symphony, No. 6, "Surprise" .... Haydn
(a) Adagio-Vivace
(b) Andante
(c) Menuetto
(d) Finale Allegro.
Song—Selected
Miss Marie Clark.
Organ—"Reminiscences of Ireland". .... Godfrey

The program for the next Sunday concert at the Masonic temple presents delightful music new to Duluth programs although not new music.

So many people have heard and enjoyed the overture to "William Tell," that when music from that opera is mentioned 90 per cent will have in mind the music of the overture, but the "William Tell" overture, while a very pleasing and satisfying piece, embraces but a very few of the most tuneful and striking portions and it is to present those parts seldom heard that the first double number on the program is given.

One of the most strikng characters in the development of music was Franz Joseph Haydn, the father of the sonata form and symphony, and if it is excusable to use slang at all in connection with such music, it may be allowable to say that he was the "Sunny Jim" of that cult. His compositions are particularized by geniality and grace and the symphony mentioned in this program is a good sample. It is called the "Surprise" symphony because, it is said, that when Haydn led the orchestras in London the heavy feeding Englishmen often fell asleep during the softer and more languorous passages, which annoyed Haydn and he determined to wake them up, so after he had lulled them to sleep in the second movement, without warning or reason, he introduced a terrific crash on one note by all the instruments and then as if nothing had happened proceeded on with the soft, simple melody. It is thefore rightly called "Surprise." It tickled the joker and awakened the Johnny Bulls. The entire composition is beautiful, most simple, clear, free from technical display and can be easily followed and understood by a novice, who really wants to understand it.

The concluding number is a collection of many of the best known and generally most liked Irish melodies, arranged by the English bandmaster Godfrey.

There will be no concert on Christmas day, but a special program of Christmas music will be given on New Year's day when the temple will be opened up to the Masons and their friends, including the regular concert goers, in order that the new interior decorations, which will then be finished, may be examined by those who desire to do so.

Actress Tells How Youth Is Preserved

(From New York Theatrical News.)

One of America's leading actresses—who for thirty years has stood in the front rank of her profession, and who still plays young girls' parts in a manner to cause our fathers to say: "She doesn't look a day older now than when I first saw her,"—recently told an interviewer how she retained her beauty.

"I never use paint, powder or other cosmetic, except on the stage. I attribute my complexion today to the use of mayatone, the only thing I use to preserve a woman's complexion in its natural daintiness. I buy an original package of mayatone from my druggist and dissolve it in eight ounces of witch hazel to make a solution with which to massage my face, arms and neck daily.

"I have been on the stage more years than I care to tell, but you see my skin is not coarse nor saggy. Mayatone keeps my face free from pimples, blotches and blemishes and prevents the growth of downy hair that annoys so many women. This treatment is not harsh—indeed, it is absolutely harmless and I would advise any woman not satisfied with her complexion to try mayatone. It certainly does wonders for me."

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

TO WED OLD SWEETHEART

J. M. De Lance of Ross, N. D., Formerly of Crookston, to Marry Widow.

Crookston, Minn., Dec. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—A romance which had its beginning forty years ago in a little hamlet sixty miles up the Hudson river from New York City will, it is said, culminate in a marriage next spring. One of the principals will be J. M. De Lance of Ross, N. D., who was for many years a prosperous farmer, living south of Crookston, for years on the H. E. Cooke farm which he later purchased.

Although on the shady side of the three score year mark, Mr. De Lance is in rugged health and a few years ago moved to Ross, N. D., where his son, A. J. De Lance, also located and was elected to the North Dakota legislature last month.

J. M. De Lance went back to New York this fall to spend Thanksgiving with several brothers and sisters residing there. He made known his intended visit to but one brother, who is wealthy, and who had the other relatives as Thanksgiving dinner guests Thanksgiving day and wandered into the parlor where all were assembled just before dinner, and none of his brothers or sisters recognized him as he had not been back in eighteen years.

But there was one who did know him, a comely widow who had been a sweetheart o this young manhood. She recognized him at once; the old flame was soon fanned to life with the result that when Mr. De Lance returned he had the promise of a bride and will return to New York in the early spring when the wedding will take place. His old sweetheart has been a widow for many years and has a daughter of 18. Mr De Lance is a man of means and his bride-to-be is also independent.

QUICK ACTION PRESCRIPTION CURES COLDS IN A DAY

What is said to be the best and quickest prescription known to medical science for colds and coughs is as follows: "Get two ounces of Glycerine and half an ounce of Concentrated Pine compound. Then get half a pint of good whiskey and put the other two ingredients into it. Take a teaspoonful to a tablespoonful of this mixture after each meal and at bed time, shake the bottle well each time." Smaller doses to children according to age. This has cured hundreds here. Be sure to get only the genuine Concentrated Pine. Each half ounce bottle comes put up in a tin screw-top case. Any druggist has it on hand or will quickly get it from his wholesale house. Any one can mix it. Don't use the weaker pine preparations.

EAST GRAND FORKS MEN ARE INDICTED

Two Are Alleged to Have Been Implicated in Robberies.

Crookston, Minn., Dec. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The grand jury, which convened Monday has returned but two indictments thus far, one against William Forsyth for robbing the saloon of H. P. Gies at East Grand Forks of some goods, and Martin Anderson for robbery committed upon the person of Knute White.

Several sensational cases in which the accused had been discharged after preliminary hearings in municipal court here and at East Grand Forks are being probed and indictments may result. Otherwise nothing is expected from the grand jury which will probably conclude its work today. The petit jury will convene next Monday.

WESTERN COUNTIES SHOW GREAT GAIN

North Dakota's Census Gain Means New Reapportionment Deals.

Grand Forks, N. D., Dec. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—North Dakota's census published yesterday will raise the reapportionment question in the state and delegates from western counties are expected to push claims before the legislative assembly this winter for an increased representation. The census reveals a tremendous increase in population in the counties of the western districts while in several instances the eastern counties, in which there are good sized delegations allotted under the present apportionment, have shown decreases.

One of the situations resulting from the increased population of the western counties indicates the condition at present. Cavalier county, with a population of 15,659, has two legislative districts and thereby gets two members of the senate and three in the house. Ward county's population is 42,185, the report of this year including Burke and Renville, which have since been established as independent counties, and it has two legislative districts giving it two senators and seven representatives. Ramsey county, with the same population as Cavalier county, has one legislative district and is entitled to only one senator and three representatives. Pembina county, with 500 less population than Ramsey, has two senators and three representatives.

Just what stress will be laid on the re-apportionment question is still uncertain, but developments will be watched with general interest.

BUYS BACK NEWSPAPER.

W. M. Smart Has Repurchased the Minot Optic.

Minot, N. D., Dec. 8.—A change took place in the management of the Minot Daily and Weekly Optic Monday, when W. M. Smart became editor and general manager, having repurchased an interest in the paper from Franklin Kauffman.

Mr. Mitchell, who for several months has been the efficient city editor, will leave Friday for his home at St. Cloud, where he will spend a couple of weeks before taking up any new work. He has several propositions submitted to him, but has not yet made any selection.

GETTING MAIL OVERLAND.

Winter Schedule Now in Force for Grand Marais.

Grand Marais, Minn., Dec. 8.—This village is now getting its mail by the overland route always followed in the winter. John Melin, who has been the stage driver west for the past two years, is again serving the public in that capacity. Joe Disheau drives the stage from Grand Marais to Grand Portage, as usual. The contract this year is sublet to John Woods. The west mail connects with the railroad north of Schroeder, via the new county road just completed. Each year shortens the distance to railroad travel.

BLAMES BLACK HAND.

Benton County Man Believes One of Them Fired at Him.

Foley, Minn., Dec. 8.—There are no new developments in the attempted assassination of John Moser, who was fired upon as he lay sleeping in his farm home, but was not hit. Moser is firm in his opinion that the attempted murder was committed by some friend of Sam Rosso, now in the Stearns country jail for the abduction of his two children. He feels certain that the man, a member of the Black Hand, fired the shot through the window which, in his mind, accounts for the poor aim.

MORE MONEY FARMING THAN SHEEP RAISING.

Richardston, N. D., Dec. 8.—Peter Gress, an old time sheep rancher of this place, has sold out the last of his sheep, and this year as a side line he put some of his land in crop. The result has been so satisfactory that he will never have another large flock of sheep. He has marketed flax to the amount of $2,200 and $1,600 worth of wheat, and still has on his farm enough wheat and flax to bring him $2,500 more, including a lot of fine seed wheat which should bring more than market price. This is a total of $6,3000, aside from his sheep business and is probably as much as he ever made in a single year from sheep.

Gress has a large plowing outfit and will have about 1,000 acres seeded next spring.

Mankato, Minn., Dec. 8.—Whitford M. Hall, charged with shooting George Crook, the husband of his niece, at their home, Oct. 1, was found guilty of murder in the second degree.

Hall's spirits had been buoyed by his attorneys, who told him the worst he could expect would be a verdict of manslaughter in the first degree, and when the jury announced its finding, Hall appeared crestfallen. VICTIM'S FATHER BLOCKS PARDON FOR HIS SLAYER.

Upham, N D., Nov. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The fact that the aged father of Jefferson Whittaker's victim, Conrad Steenerson of this city, entered objection to the granting of a pardon to the man who is now serving a penitentiary sentence, was probably responsible for the adverse action of the state board on the convicted man's application. Young Steenerson was killed in a pool hall at Upham in 1908 and Whittaker was sent to the state's prison for a term of ten years as a result.

$50.00 In Gold for the Best Essay on Beer—See HERALD of October 11th or 13th or 15th, 1910

Public Drinking Places are Necessary

"To say that certain evils come from a certain source suggests only to fools the hasty annihilation of the source before studying whether greater evils might not result from its destruction, and without asking whether the evils might not be reduced, and the good from the same source remain untouched and untampered with."—Prof. Hugo Munsterberg, of Harvard, in "Prohibition and Social Psychology."

MONOTONY of life—the great evil of modern industrialism which confines the worker to a narrow circle of never changing duties—is the most dangerous condition for a people full of health, strength and vitality.

Nothing so relieves the tension as a good glass of beer in the evening in congenial company.

Many can have it at home or in the club, but even they want a change now and then.

And where will the masses find it?

Where, if not in the beer hall, concert garden or other form of public-house?

Places for the public dispensing of beer are a necessity for the health of the public mind. If there are bad features connected with existing saloons they can be corrected by those who will earnestly and honestly study the matter.

We want our beer sold only in an environment as wholesome and clean as our beer itself.

SPORTING NEWS OF THE DAY

OVER AN HOUR FOR ONE FALL

Jesse Westergaard Puts Up Stubborn Fight Against Hackenschmidt.

Russian Gets Second Fall in Eleven Minutes With Body Hold.

Chicago, Dec. 8.—George Hackenschmidt defeated Jesse Westergaard, the Iowa wrestler in two straight falls last night. The first was taken in 1:02:15 with a double bar arm hold. The second fall occurred in 11 minutes, 20 seconds, with a reversed body hold.

At no time during the match did Hackenschmidt exert himesif, except when he broke away from several hammerlocks, which the Iowan had secured. Hackenschmidt seemed to rely only on his strength The two men tugged and pulled each other about the mat for over an hour before the first fall went to the foreigner. Several times Hackenschmidt attempted to throw his opponent over his head but on each occasion, his grip gave way.

Westergaard worked harder. He worked the foreigner to the mat and then squeezed Hackenschmidt's head until the foreigner's strength told on the Iowan and his grip was released. Westergaard rushed at Hackenschmidt seven or eight times and lifted him bodily and threw him to the mat.

The second fall came in much quicker time. Hackenschmidt rushed at his opponent at the call of time and in a few minutes both men were on the mat, Hackenschmidt holding a hammerlock. Westergaard broke away and the Russian followed, forced him to the mat and finished the match with a reversed body hold.

In one of the preliminaries, Eugene Tremblay, champion lightweight catch-as-catch-can wrestler of America and "Young" Jordan of Chicago wrestled about 30 minutes without securing a fall.

SLOW PACE IN BICYCLE RACE

Ten Teams in Six-Day Grind Are Far Behind the Record.

New York, Dec. 8.—Although the monotony of the grind around the saucer track was relieved by several sprints, there was no parallel in the early hours today for the exciting moments of yesterday, when the big shakeup occurred among the six-day bicycle riders.

The ten teams left in the Garden contest contented themselves for the most part with a slow pace that resulted in the teams this morning being fifty miles behind the best figures for previous contests. The easy going was evidently helping keep the men in trim and so far as could be observed nearly all of them were in excellent condition. The one exception was Walker of the Pye-Walker team, who fell and sprained his ankle during the night.

At 8 a. m. the score was: Hehir-Goullet, Pye-Walker, Fogler-Hill, Root-Moran, Mitten-Thomas, Cameron-Halstead, Collins-Drobach, 1,526 miles, 8 laps; MacFarland-Clarke, West-Demara,, 1,526 miles, 7 laps; Rutt-Stol, 1,526 miles, 6 laps. The record is 1,575 miles, 7 laps, made by MacFarland and Clark in 1909.

Duluth Roller Champion Preparing for Races With Harley Davidson.

The ambitions of John McGinnis to become professional champion skater of the Head of the Lakes district were rudely nipped in the bud last evening, when little Frank Bryant defeated the amateur champion in a mile race by about forty feet. The time of the race was 5:12 and Bryant did not exert himself at any stage of the distance except the spurt that put space between the two skaters.

HARLEY DAVIDSON,
Who Will Race Frank Bryant on the Rollers.

By winning last night, Bryant has established a record that places him in the class of some of the best boys of the country. Last night's victory was the forty-fourth race won by the Duluth flyer. In all his professional career he has lost but four races, these being the contests dropped to the veteran Joe Munch.

Harley Davidson, world's champion roller skater, will be here Friday and Sunday for a series of races against Bryant. After that the little fellow will go to St. Paul and Minneapolis and enter into the roller skating championships.

The race with Davidson will be the biggest contest in the career of the Head of the Lakes' champion.

GOSSIP PICKED UP ALONG THE SPORTING HIGHWAY

(BY BRUCE.)

"BILL" HATLEY WAS IN A REMINISCENT MOOD YESTERDAY. When William gets that way he can sling some choice dope regarding the personalities of the sweet cue handlers. He has met most of them, knows all of them, and has grown gray in the gentleman's game.

"Speaking regarding this Al De Oro person," started William, "he has more nerve than all of the rest of the pool players who have come under my observations. He has won a lot of games on his nerve, for no matter how hard they come, and no matter how they are stacked agin' the Cuban, he is nonchalant, so to speak, the same being cool and collected.

"De Oro comes of the real classy company down Cuba way. There are high class Cubans and there are others who are not so high classed. This De Oro comes from the very best of the class; those that were intermixed with the Spanish nobility, and his grace and easy bearing and the way he tackles every angle of the game, speaks the breeding in the player.

"He used to be in the buggy business in this country. Later he broke into the professional game of pool. His recent victory over Jerome Keogh stamps him as perhaps the greatest of the players of today. He has nerve, and any player with nerve will succeed at either billiards or pool.

"Kline has told me that this boy Hoppe has a whole lot of nerve. I haven't been mixed up with this wonderful boy as much as I have some of the older wizards of the cue, but from his marvellous playing I am ready to believe that the kid does possess nerve and that in abundant quantities.

"This Kline fellow is a real nice chap, and he told me that sometimes he could go along and give Willie fits for 500 points; but that is not saying that Kline could beat Willie, for not so long ago the boy wonder trimmed Kline something like a 100 points in a 500 ball contest.

"Frank Ives, who was called the Napoleon of the game, and who you will remember, was perhaps the greatest opponent of the late lamented Wizard Jake Schaefer, had an iron nerve that nothing could shake. Nothing feazed this really wonderful player, and many of his brilliant victories were gained after the odds were all against him.

"Old Jake was prominently present when it came to the matter of nerve and composure. Composure means much to the player of a game that is as delicate as billiards, and the crowd seemed never to enter into the calculations of the old boy.

"I see his kid is coming along nicely. I should say young Schaefer is a better player today than his old pap was at the same age. It will require years before we will know whether this young man will fill the shoes that the old man left. Here's the very best luck to the kid of the man I was once very proud to call my friend, young Schaefer.

"The game is awfully fast today. Billiards has progressed with the age, as other sports are going ahead. I will believe, however, that Ives and Jake Schaefer were the equal of any of the players of today. Hoppe is a wonderful player, and in some respects may shade the veterans that played their last when he was coming into his full prime.

"But as far as brillance is concerned, there are, any of use who have seen them all, who will hesitate before stating that there was a player ever lived who could make any more wonderful plays than Frank Ives. For all round mastery of the cue, there are many who believe that Wizard Schaefer was the daddy of them all.

"It is reasonable to believe that Hoppe will even get better, and it is not unlikely that he will go down in history as the greatest player produced during our times at least. Hoppe is a wonder, don't make any mistake about that. Sutton, Morningstar and the rest of the boys are great players and good fellows, and more power to 'em all."

Tea May Be Served at Future Football Games.

Some of you who read the Chicago determination of the conference leaders in regard to the new regime of football and the abolition of messy manners on the part of the little students, are no doubt wondering what the young college man of the present age is coming to. And you have righteous right, Bill, to this wonder.

Every once in a while we hear some sturdy old man from the country rear up and rave several bars about the college education stuff. These hard-grained old boys from the rural communities have sometimes claimed in the past that the colleges are putting a lot of silly notions into the heads of the boys, be gosh.

Education is one of the very best things we do in this great and growing age. Had Mother Eve been educated along the line of will stability and possessed of a general knowledge of the mean and double crosing tendencies of the reptile, such as are many of our learned biologists, we would all be free of this problem of living stuff and would be left to free and careless ways, etc. But that is neither here or over there.

As has been said, education is fine for low foreheads. But when college profesors come to the point where they want to place bibs and pinafores on the young men of our colleges, there are some of us who wil climb on to the band wagon with the gent from the backwoods.

Just now, in the West, a bunch of college instructors have high handed charge of the athletic affairs of the leading colleges. If the students are well behaved, are quiet and promise in the facetious future to refrain from clapping their hands, from stamping their impulsive feet and rudely whistling, they may be allowed to attend the games. It is preferred that they attend in a body, wearing their college gowns and paste board reinforced chapeau; that odes to sweet peace be hummed, preferably in tender tenor, and that the home rooters salaam before the rude rooters from the visiting colleges, kissing the visitors on the alabaster brows when such act does not create a riot.

We are entering on the new football age. The profs. desire that the visiting team be met at the depot and taken to the nearest fraternity house, where tea and caviar sandwiches will be served. If there is no objections, the visiting team might give their signals to the entertainment committee, in order that the home pets may become cognizant of their eccentricities, thus abolishing all nervous dread, which is so bad for the student body.

Both teams are sternly obliged to attend a purity banquet on the eve of the game, where some man with a carnation and a goatee will rave about the dove details attending modernized football. After the professors have been given their first opportunity to speak in public outside the class rooms, the members of the tiddliwinks field corps may be alowed to go to their white cots for refreshing sleep before the brain fag of the morrow.

The good old days are passing fast. There were days when the dear old West hotel of Minneapolis was the quarters of the visiting warriors, as we called the players in those far off days, and students spoke with awe and deep respect of the abilities of the great men on the team. In those dear days there were great and never to be forgotten scenes around the old Park hotel of Madison, fun and frolic raged gayly in the lobbies of the Lexington, Auditorium and Chicago Beach hotels. When students left college and looked back on the days that were past, they remembered with a dear remembrance that sometimes left a lump of tender sentiment in their throats, of the times when all the world was young and men lived in the full exuberance of their youth.

Ah those were days! They gave a man a knowledge of life when life was corking fine. Men met and learned to know each other better in the meeting. They made college life, and somehow and in some way some of us still cling to the opinion that these dear times made better men. The sissy and careless cad was the only one ill at ease in these merry gatherings.

Alas, we have progressed. Instead of the stalwart student leader, the president of the athletic association; instead of the young athletic representatives of their college, keen, eager and in love with the game, knowing the record of every player in the West, knowing and loving the better, therefore, every wrinkle of the game, we have some very serious and bespectacled professors, picking here and prying there, ever critizing, harping upon purity as an institution and not as an asset of the young men of the country, forgetting that they were very young, and frowning with tightened lip upon the natural outbreaks of the charming young animal, man.

They may go further, these professors. They have gone far and there is going to be a break one of these days. When it comes to the pass where students have naught to say regarding their athletics, where rules, silly, shallow and narrow are laid down for the following by men who are supposed to possess sense and ordinary powers of discretion, it is time for a protest.

Faculty control has ruined athletics at Madison. Faculty control at Minnesota will probably compel the cancellation of all further athletic relations with Michigan and will put Minnesota in the petty position of Chicago. Faculty control of the Western conference, a control so autocratic and so absolute that every committee is manned by men who should be confined more closely to the class rooms for the general good of the community of football interest, has made that body a joke among men with ideals of athletic dear and sweet to them; ideals that soar one slight degree above the red blood line.

These men, wholly unfitted by training to take charge of athletic affairs, unfamiliar with even the fundamental training rules, seeking only to inflict some silly rules of moral welfare on the teams and now on the students, are making the whole football atmosphere like unto a gathering where creatures prate and strut and speak of morals and know not one degree of the force of red-blooded accomplishment in the world of athletic idealism, which has always had its basic principles built firmly on pluck, grit, gameness and courage.

Some men have pressed a great misunderstanding down on football. They have mistaken primitive force and sinewy muscular effort for brutality, because their natures, fitted primarily for sedentary occupations, can never know the real glory of returning a little back upon the road made in history by the valorous deeds of our fathers.

These men are in the chair of directorship. They hold the whip in the shape of pink ribbons of petty persecution, and like the young lady who experimented delightedly with pink face powder, they have gone too far. Until that time, until men with broader and saner ideas get into control, this angel cake feed upon the night when athletes should be resting, this escort of the visitors in wheel chairs to their white and pink rooms, with the five feet of books; until that time the good old days will be nice to tell the children about, if you want your boys to grow into stalwart manhood, to rough it with the rest of the gang, to be red-cheeked and full-chested, and not doing a Marathon brain chase after the somewhat mysterious meaning of the long tramp of poor Pilgrim or doing a duty dive after the hidden stuff of irritating Ibsen.

We have spoke.

PACKEY GETS OFFER.

Promoters Want Stockyards Champion to Meet Abe Attell.

Chicago, Dec. 8.—Tom O'Rourke, matchmaker of the National Sporting Club of New York, yesterday wired Packey McFarland, the stockyards lightweight, offering him $3,000 with a privilege of 35 per cent of the gross receipts, if he would agree to meet Abe Attell, featherweight champion, before his club on Dec. 23. Packey said he would accept this offer unless Billy Gibson, matchmaker of the Fairmont club, gave him a similar offer.

Johnny McFarland, a cousin of Packey, who is looking after the managerial affairs of the fighter, talked with Gibson over the long distance telephone and the promoter asked the manager to hold off until 3 o'clock today before accepting O'Rourke's offer. McFarland agreed to this and the matter will be settled definitely before night.

McFarland and Attell have agreed to terms and the fighters will either meet at the Fairmont club on Dec. 19 or before the National Sporting club on Dec. 23.

New Sporting Annual.

That greatest of standard authorities, the "Police Gazette Sporting Annual," published by Richard K. Fox, Franklin square, New York, has just been issued for 1911, and the many new records have increased its size. It contains records of baseball, bicycling, trotting, jumping, football, racing, aquatics and all athletic sports, compiled by Sam C. Austin.

The main feature of the book, however, is the pugilistic records, and many pages are devoted to that popular branch of sport. The book is authentic and reliable, and stands today an authority on the subjects upon which it treats.

Syracuse Meets Michigan.

Syracuse, N. Y., Dec. 8.—According to the schedule of the Syracuse University baseball team, announced yesterday. Syracuse will play Pennsylvania State at Syracuse May 5, Michigan at Ann Arbor May 11, Michigan Agricultural college at Lansing May 12 and Michigan at Ann Arbor May 13. Michigan will come East for two games at Syracuse, May 25 and 26.

SKI CLUB TO BRANCH OUT

Organization Will Probably Take Up Other Winter Sports.

Suggestion That Annual Ski Meet Be Part of Winter Carnival.

Whitney Wall presided over an enthusiastic meeting at the Commercial club last evening, the meeting being a gathering of those who are interested in the complete reorganization of the Duluth Ski club.

There was a good crowd in attendance and the spirit of the evening promises well for the ultimate aim of the men behind the movement, which is to make the club one of the leading athletic organizations of the Northwest.

As stated last evening, it is the object of the men behind the new movement to give the club a broader policy, to embrace a wider range of sports, to provide a greater variety of interest for its members, and also to make skiing one of the geatest winter sports in this section of the country.

It was stated last evening that every effort will be made to make the ski meet scheduled for this city the present winter the greatest ever held in the Northwest, despite the fact that the national meet is to be held the present season at Chippewa Falls.

It was shown last evening that those most interested in the forming of the club are in favor of having the winter ski meet in the form of a carnival, along the general plan of the old ice palace that made St. Paul famous the world over as the home of winter sports. It is suggested that the carnival would be typical of Duluth and would attract visitors to this city from every point of the Northwest. It has been further suggested that the meet last longer than a day.

To Make Club Broader.

As outlined by Chairman Wall, the object of the meeting was the gathering into the club of a number of new members who would take hold and make the organization a big and growing institution. In the reorganization of the club, it has been suggested that the program be made broader, so that a common ground of interest may be provided for a large number of members.

It developed last evening that the club financially is in the best condition of its career. The ski meets have always proved paying propositions and have added to the finances of the club. A carnival, such as the club proposes, under the new organization, it is believed, would add greatly to the treasury.

Mr. Wall stated that the club could be made into one of the greatest organizations in the Northwest, that the scope of its activities would include all kinds of athletics and that it could be made into a club that would prove a credit and excellent advertisement for the city.

A committee composed of Messrs. Mattocks, Wannebo, Evans, Telford, Abbott and Wells, was appointed by Mr. Wall to draw up a set of by-laws. This committee will report next Wednesday evening, when it is believed the new club will be set squarely on its feet.

LEHTO IN DULUTH FOR BIG CONTEST

Finnish Champion Will Complete Training for Match With Hackenschmidt.

Karl Lehto, the pride of the Finnish race, arrived in Duluth last evening and will finish his training for the greatest match in the history of his short but brilliant mat career. Lehto will meet five and six men a day from now until Monday, when his training for the Hackenschmidt match will have been completed. Karl will rest Tuesday so that he will step on the mat in the very best condition.

Encouraged by the showing made by Jesse Westergard against the Lion in Chicago last night, Lehto hopes to make a showing against the wonderful Russian that will make his name famous the length and breadth of the country. In pursuit of his ambition the husky Finn has trained as he has never before prepared for a match.

Lehto is finishing his training at the Finnish gymnasium on West First street, over which Gus Friland, the Finn's manager, presides. Karl will work with four or five men daily, meeting all comers, until next Monday.

In addition to the big match of next Tuesday evening, the officials of the Greater Duluth Athletic association have signed Chris Person, Ole Johnson, Mauritz Harris, lightweight champion of the district in both Northern Minnesota and Wisconsin, and Joe Fish, the popular little grappler who showed such form at many of the shows given last winter by the Duluth Athletic club. These make up the best program that has ever been offered at a wrestling show in this city.

The demand for seats is already brisk. The seat sale will go on today, and Manager Marshall of the Lyceum has stated that mail orders for seats will be given prompt attention.

Hackenschmidt will reach here Tuesday morning, coming in from Minneapolis where the Lion meets five men Monday night. He will rest all day in anticipation of one of the hardest matches he has encountered on his American tour.

FOOTBALL LOST MONEY.

Pennsylvania Directors Report Deficit as Result of Past Season's Play.

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 8.—At the meeting of the directors of the University of Pennsylvania Athletic association, Treasurer Gilpin announced that football receipts this fall had run far behind the average and that the loss for the season probably would reach $30,000.

The members did not think that the decrease in receipts was due to any dissatisfaction over the new rules, but rather to a series of counter attractions which have never been equaled before in this city. In the first place the excitement over the winning of the world's championship by the Athletics carried baseball interest far into the realm usually occupied by football.

On one Saturday there was the big automobile race, and on the day that Penn played Michigan, Princeton was struggling with Yale only a few miles away, and local attendance suffered. Finally, on the day of the Cornell game, the aviation meet was in full progress and thousands who would ordinarily have gone to the game, went to see Drexel and Grahame-White instead.

After gloomily perusing Treasurer Gilpin's report for some time the directors awarded the letters to the varsity, scrub and football teams of the past season. The list of varsity letters awarded numbered twenty, an unusually large quota. The men so honored were Jourdet, Marks, Kaufman, Rogers, Morris, Dillon, Wolferth, Craemer, Patterson, Cozens, Scott, Ramsdell, Mercer, Sommer, Young, Keough, Thayer, Hough, Harrington and Kennedy.

"NO CHANCE," SAYS FRANK GOTCH

Humboldt Farmer Denies He Is Planning to Re-Enter Game.

Chicago, Dec. 8.—Frank Gotch will never wrestle again in a big public match.

This was the big champion's ultimatum issued at the Morrison hotel, where he is stopping for a couple of days.

"No chance," he declared when asked if he intended to get back into the game and take on some of the foreign stars.

"What I wrote about retiring, and what I have said since, goes at this time and stronger than ever," he said. "I have had some attractive offers, but have turned down every one of them."

Has a Good Business.

Gotch looked to be in the very best of health, and there are hints that he is to be married next month, hence his anxiety to keep the promises he had made to "somebody." That he intends to keep these promises there is no doubt now after what the world's champion said yesterday.

"To begin with, even if I hadn't the personal inclination to quit the game, my business in Iowa is such that I would have to anyway," he said. "I have a business there that is netting me from $10,000 to $15,000 a year, and it would be foolish to let it run down because I could make a little more than that this winter.

"W. W. Wittig of Milwaukee, the man who promoted my match here with Hackenschmidt in 1908, has offered me the sum of $30,000 for fifteen weeks on the stage. That's going some, isn't it?

Turns Down $50,000 Offer.

"In addition to that he offered me the sum of $20,000 for a match with a man he was to select, and of course that man would have been Hackenschmidt. That makes $50,000, but I have turned down the offers cold.

"The wrestling game has been good to me, but I think I have been good, too, because I have always tried to be square and to wrestle on the level. Always I have tried to give the public that supported me so well and enabled me to accumulate a large fortune a good run for its money.

"These things, I think, entitle me to retirement at this time, and I want to take occasion while I am in Chicago to thank my thousands of friends here for their kindness and support. I'd like to show for them again, but it just cannot be."

ELECTION HELD AT THE Y. M. C. A.

Eight Members of Old Board Are Re-Elected—Two New Directors.

The other eight old members are: Watson Moore, E. T. Buxton, J. D. Stryker, Alfred Merritt, Oscar Mitchell, Albert Baldwin, L. A. Barnes and W. S. Woodbridge.

THREE STATES TO PROTECT FORESTS

Lake States Conference Decides on Legislative Measure to Check Fires.

St. Paul, Minn., Dec. 8.—The resolutions offered by W. S. Bissell of Wisconsin and seconded by W. R. Mackenzie of Bemidji, secretary of the Northern Minnesota Development association, at the first lake states fire conference held here composed of delegates from Minnesota, Michigan and Minneapolis, were unanimously adopted last evening, after which the conference adjourned.

The resolutions proposed legislative measures intended to prevent and check forest fires. No arrangements were made for future meetings.

Briefly the resolutions provided for the establishment of a non-partisan commission in the several states, constituted with adequate authority to act and to prescribe rules and regulations for the control of the forests. Present systems in the three states were declared to be inefficient.

As the delegates scattered throughout the corridors of the hotel, nothing was heard except expressions of satisfaction over the results of the meeting. There was surprise, both at the attendance and at the interest shown, and it was declared entirely unexpected that such a unanimity of opinion should concur in the framing of the resolutions.

Fire Insurance Men Present.

Conspicuous in yesterday afternoon's gathering were the number of fire insurance men present. They sat alongside of railway presidents, lumbermen, foresters, professors and students to complete agreement with these that forest fires were losses both to business enterprises and to the community at large.

Following the adoption of legislative recommendations, a resolution was passed to the effect that a campaign of education be undertaken with the object in view of arousing public sentiment to the value of precautionary measures. By this method it is hoped to bring the people to a better understanding of forest conditions.

The discussion which preceded the adoption of the resolution, was informal in its nature.

John F. Rhodes, president of the Minnesota Forestry association, presided at this meeting.

Among those who spoke were Thomas B. Wyman of Munising, Mich., forester for the Cleveland-Cliffs Iron company; C. S. Pierce of Michigan, state fish, game and forest warden; H. M. Kelsey of Chicago, chairman of the committee of publicity for the insurance companies of the United States; William O'Neil of Forest Lake, United States Indian timber agent; George H. Marshall of Cass Lake, head forester of the Minnesota national forest reserve, and F. E. House of Duluth, president of the Duluth & Iron Range railway.

PRIMA DONNA FIRST TO USE PRIVATE DINING ROOM.

Mme. Antoinette Kopetzky, prima donna of "The Chocolate Soldier" company, was hostess at an after-theater supper to the leading members of her supporting company, and the occasion was signalized by the opening of the Rose room of the Spalding hotel's new trio of delightful private dining rooms Mme. Kopetzky being the first to requisition their use since it was finished.

There are in the group a rose room, a green room and a yellow room. The designations are supplied by the color schemes followed in the adornment of each. These rooms are easily the finest private dining rooms in Duluth and compare favorably with the private dining rooms in the best metropolitan hotels.

Mme. Kopetzky's guests were: Misses Margaret Crawford and Ilon Bergere and Messrs. Charles A. Moore, Frank Belcher and Harry Davies.

FOREST PATROL MAY COME AS RESULT OF CONFERENCE

Forest Fire Convention a Practical Gathering, Says Z. D. Scott.

Situation Discussed By Men Who Knew Their Subject Thoroughly.

That the Lake States Forest Fire conference at St. Paul Tuesday and Wednesday will exert a powerful influence for the improvement of conditions which have resulted in vast preventable losses in the past, is the opinion of Z. D. Scott, president of the state forestry board, who returned from St. Paul this morning.

Mr. Scott spoke today in highest praise of the work of those who took part in the deliberations of the conference, and was enthusiastic in his description of the great possible scope of the efforts that may be put forth for the realization of the highest hopes of those interested in the preservation and proper use of the forest resources of the state.

"When the great forest fires swept over the border region this year and wiped out prosperous communities, Mr. Rhodes suggested that it might be well to call a conference of the official representatives of the three states most interested," said Mr. Scott, "but the suggestion was at first thought to be almost presumptuous. It was said the problem was one that applied primarily to Minnesota and we might seem to be intruding our own troubles upon Michigan and Wisconsin in suggesting such a conference, but when it was done we found, with surprise and delight, that the forestry officials of those states were even more interested in the possibilities of such a gathering than we had been.

Interested in Facts.

"Perhaps it was to have been expected that there should have been some intimations that the conference was packed and in the interests of the lumbermen, but the suspicion is utterly lacking in foundation. The lumbermen are interested in securing the solid facts. That is all they wanted to get at. The gathering was not one of a popular sort, but rather of official, with expert representatives of the states involved, with the assistance of outside specialists in their several lines. There was no oratory. The speakers talked to us—they were so well versed in their subjects that at times prepared papers were forgotten and the speaker went ahead and talked what he knew just as he could talk about it off-hand.

"The results we got at this conference were more important than we expected. It is a notable thing to have men like Messrs. McGonagle and House of the northern roads and Aishton of the Northwestern take such an interest in the proceedings of a convention as these gentlemen did, and the exponent of every point of view was given an opportunity to be heard. For that reason we found it easy to formulate the views of the conference as they are voiced in the resolutions.

"With resolutions such as those adopted by the conference to back up our requests, it will be with assurance that we can go before the legislature to ask for what is needed to afford the protection from forest fires that must be provided if there is not to be a recurrence of such disastrous conflagrations as that which we suffered this year.

Forest Patrol.

"The conference in its resolutions recommended that the state provide through the legislature for an adequate forest patrol and efficient protection from fire. The forestry board has no power in the premises. There is a peculiar situation in this respect. The state fire marshal is ex-officio secretary of the board, but his duties are separate and distinct from those of the board. He is appointed by the state auditor and is a member of that officer's staff. It is his duty to combat the fires that destroy the forest wealth of the state, and the board has no money for such work. The only places where the board is authorized to afford fire protection are the forest parks under its control, and no money is provided for such work. Board members sufficiently interested to make inspections of these tracts must do so at their own expense even.

"In Wisconsin and Michigan conditions are somewhat different. Wisconsin has a fairly good forest patrol system, and so too has Michigan."

Mr. Scott smiled, with just a suggestion of state pride when he said:

"The Wisconsin and Michigan officials were quite envious of the good fortune of Minnesota in possessing the great empire of forest and mineral to which it holds title. Governor Ramsey must have had some prophetic foresight, some strange understanding of what the future held for Minnesota, when he proposed the restrictions which he did on the disposal of state lands.

"Thousands of people go to the Adirondacks yearly to enjoy a brief space of rest and recreation in the region of lakes and woods, and probably a million people annually go to Maine. These people leave in the summer resort districts great amounts of money each year. Think what Northern Minnesota has to offer in that direction."

Mr. Scott dilated on this feature of what the proper protection of the forests means to Minnesota, saying that from the Twin Cities and from all parts of the country people will come to spend a week, two weeks, a month or more, in the beautiful lake region.

"When the sessions of the conference came to a close, we were mighty well satisfied," said Mr. Scott. "The resolutions adopted very nicely express the thought developed by the deliberations. We don't want any drastic legislation, you understand. That is not the idea. But in view of what has happened in the North this year and for years past, it cannot but be conceded that there is a pressing necessity for the establishment of a careful forest patrol system. The lumbermen should and certainly are willing to share with the state the expense of such a patrol. In the fires this year, one of the largest timber interests lost more than it has altogether by fires in the past.

"The fact is that we are in danger of having more serious fires in the next few years than we have had in the last few, because dry seasons come in cycles. Of late we have had wet seasons. It follows that dry seasons will be encountered for a time, and we must be prepared to combat the menace of them."

Mr. Scott's interest in modern forestry work is not wholly official but private and individual as well, for he has initiated a system of reforestation on lands cut over by his firm in the northeastern corner of the state which has had a considerable influence on the work now in progress along that line in the state.

AGENTS WILL HELP IN WORK

Honest Employment Men Will Welcome Investigation, Says Richards.

Will Co-operate With City to Drive Crooks Out of Business.

George S. Richards, proprietor of the National Employment agency, in answer to the statement of Walter F. Dacey, assistant city attorney, regarding an investigation of the methods of some of the employment agencies of the city, today stated that he would welcome such an investigation, would pay a handsome reward for any irregularity that had ever been found in the conduct of the affairs of his company and, moreover, would get some of the other owners to join in the investigation of the methods of the employment men.

What Mr. Richards objects to is the classing indiscriminately of all the employment agencies. Admitting that there are employment men in this city who have been guilty of unfair practices toward the laboring men Mr. Richards makes the statement that in his opinion the great majority of the employment men of Duluth are honest and square in their dealings with the laborers that flock to the Duluth market for employment.

"Some of the agents have offered to co-operate with the city department in an effort to weed out those employment agents who do business on a plane that is not legitimate," said Mr. Richards. "In the past we have suggested that the record of a man be thoroughly investigated before a license is issued permitting him to conduct an employment bureau. We have offered to assist in this investigation and do everything in our power to work along this line, with the city attorney's office. Our offers of the past have met with no response.

"At this time of the season the work of getting jobs for the laborer must be handled with particular care. There are men being turned out of the mines, from the railroads and also men seeking employment because of the close of navigation. Because of this flooding of the market with laborers, many of the companies have taken these men into their employment directly and have at the same time failed to cancel orders that they have given the employment offices for men.

"As a result some cases have occurred where men have gone to fill jobs and found these places filled. A fair-minded man can see that this is not the fault of the employment agent, where the order of the company employing labor has not been cancelled. In cases like that, we have endeavored in the past to either return the fare expended by the laborer, or secure him another position.

"Those of the employment agents who have tried to conduct an honest and legitimate business, object to being classed with those who may have taken advantage of the laborers. We welcome a rigid investigation by the city and also welcome any ordinance that will make it impossible for the dishonest agent to do business.

"Ten years ago practically all the laborers for the market in the vicinity of this city were supplied by the Minneapolis employment offices. The men, that is the better class of employment agents, who have been in this business here, have built up this city as one of the biggest employment labor markets in the Northwest. These men desire to conduct their business in an honest manner and also object to being misrepresented by being classed with crooks.

"In my business, and also in many other of the employment offices here, business is done directly with the heads of the big firms. We do not send men to a camp on the order of a clerk or camp foreman, unless this order has been countersigned by the head or manager of the company. Most of our correspondence in this regard is carried on with the head of the firm employing labor.

"Mistakes will happen, have happened, and are not always the fault of the employment men. There are two sides to many stories. The best way to get to the bottom of this agitation, which is almos an annual occurrence, is to start a thorough and lasting investigation of the methods of doing business of the various companies, and in this matter the city department will find the willing co-operation of the better class of men conducting employment offices in this city."

COPPERS NERVOUS; UNDERTONE WEAK

Shorts Cover at Close and Market Regains the Early Losses.

The copper market was nervous and erratic today. Weakness in the early hours was pronounced, but the day was saved for the bulls when the report of the Copper Producers' association showed a decrease of 8,872,845 lb in the visible surplus. The November production was 119,353,463 lb compared with 126,469,284 lb in October. Domestic deliveries amounted to 60,801,992 lb compared with 67,814,172 lb for October. Exports amounted to 67,424,316 lb compared with 68,186,912 lb in October. The total consumption was 128,226,308 lb

On its face the report is favorable, but a close analysis does not reveal anything worth crowing about. The real feature of the report is the fact that producers must continue to curtail production. Exports of copper on Wednesday were 215 lb. Since Dec. 1 exports have amounted to 4,027 tons.

The London market came slightly higher and the discount rate of the Bank of England was unchanged. A meeting of steel manufacturers is being held in Pittsburg today when some price reductions may be agreed upon. The Jones & Laughlin Steel company will make important enlargements to its capacity which caused a favorable feeling. This was overthrown, however, by the probable reductions in prices of steel products and the opinion of many people in the steel trade which is adverse to the recent statements of Judge Gary of the United States Steel corporation. They do not concur in his optimistic reports.

Saturday's bank statement may be extremely unfavorable. If loans are not curtailed by New York banks it is possible that the surplus will be wiped out in Saturday's statement. This fact may bring further liquidation in stocks.

The short covering which was prominent at the close today did not strengthen the market. The copper producers' statement helped the market so far as values are concerned. Outsiders are not in the market and banking interests are concerned more with the reduction of loans than in the trend of stock values.

The local market was fairly active. Keating showed strength and was the feature. Keating sold at 95c, 96c and 93c. Butte Ballaklava sold at $7, Greene at $7, North Butte at $27.87½, Red Warrior at $1.68¾ to $1.75, Butte & Superior at $7.62½, Calumet & Montana at 94c, 95c and 96c, Calumet & Corbin sold at 22c, 25c and 23c, Calumet & Sonora at $8.87½, Rawhide Royal at 1c, Summit at 64c and Tuolumne at $4.87½.

Amalgamated sold at $63.25 to $62.87½ to $63.25, off to $61.50 and up to $63.25, slightly under yesterday's close. Butte Ballaklava sold in the East at $7.12½, Butte Coalition at $17.75, Calumet & Arizona at $48.50 to $47.50 to $49, Greene at $6.87½, $7, $6.75 and $6.87½, Shattuck at $22.75, North Butte at $27.75 to $28.25, $27.50 and up to 28.50, Cactus at 22c, 23c and back to 22c. Superior & Pittsburg at $13.50, $13.25 to $13.50.

At the North Butte, marked and constant improvement is noted. The Speculator shaft has been sunk from the 2,200-foot level to the 2,400 foot level, where a station was cut and sinking has been resumed. The shaft will be taken down to the 2,800-foot level, where a station will be cut probably about next April.

A winze from the 2,200-foot level has been sunk on the Edith May vein for 112 feet and about 200 feet of drifting has been done. The Granite Mountain shaft has been sunk to a depth of 1,800 feet and is now connected with practically all the North Butte underground workings.

Three good veins have been opened in the Croesus, one of them about 25 feet wide, where ore is being stoped. Good ore is also being mined from the Gem vein, and both the Jessie and Edith May have improved considerably.

The company is employing at present about 750 men and hoisting about 1,200 tons of ore per day with an output of about 2,000,000 pounds of copper per month.

The Boston News Bureau said today: The new Calumet & Arizona company which is to absorb the 1,500,000 shares of the Superior & Pittsburg in the ratio of one share Calumet & Arizona for three and a half Superior & Pittsburg, will have an outstanding capital of 628,000 shares instead of the 200,000 shares, as at present.

The output of the new company should be at least 50,000,000 pounds of copper per annum, and the cost, with economies incident to consolidation, should not exceed 9c per pound. A profit of 4c on the above output would yield $2,000,000, or little over $3 a share on the increased capital on a 13c copper market. Every advance of 1c per pound in the price of copper should increase by 80c per share the divisible net profits of the new company.

Since the reports were made on the two properties as of Aug. 1 last, and which reports formed the basis for the merger, Superior & Pittsburg has increased its ore bodies by at least 30 per cent, and assays show that the recently encountered ore is of very high grade. At the Junction shaft of the Superior & Pittsburg new tonnages have been developed at a remarkable rate.

Boston wired Paine, Webber & Co.: "William A. Paine is at the Lake making an inspection of the property, his second visit in two months. Mr. Paine is devoting considerable time to Lake Copper company affairs and the expenditure of $443,850 received from the recent issue of treasury stock was made largely on his recommendations.

"President Paine will seek to expedite the installation of the new compressor equipment to permit of more extensive explorations in all directions before any step is taken toward resuming ore shipments.

"The officials state that the favorable showing by the diamond drill in the South Lake property is of the greatest importance to Lake as the cores were taken near the Lake boundary line, in fact, they state that these ores are of greater significance to Lake than to the South Lake property."

J. A. Minnear of Calumet, Mich., a broker, was in town today on business. He thinks the market will be higher after January. He believes that North Butte, Live Oak, Hancock, Shattuck and Butte Ballaklava are selling too low. He thinks Butte-Ballaklava will be successful in its ligitigation with Anaconda and that it will be a favorite in Boston.

COST EBERHART MORE THAN $2,000

Election Expense Is Filed By the Governor at St. Paul.

St. Paul, Minn., Dec. 8.—(Special to The Herald.) — Governor Eberhart crowded close to the limit in his expense incurred during the recent campaign. Some astute mathematician has figured out that a candidate for the state job can spend $2,366. The governor spent $2,342. According to his report, filed this morning, $2,000 went to the Republican state central committee and the rest mostly for railroad fare. Hotel keepers got only $45 from him.

James Gray, the Democratic candidate, has not yet filed his expense account.

It required close to $21,000 to run the Republican state campaign. The time covered by the report is from Aug. 11 to Dec. 7. There are outstanding claims amounting to $1,635.69 with a balance in the treasury of $68.07.

There were several contributions by the same person. Eli S. Warner, St. Paul, G. G. Hartley and A. M. Chisholm of Duluth, each sent in nice amounts to the committee.

The chief expense items were headquarters rent, salaries of office employes and printing and advertising.

STANDS HIGH IN THE WEST

Duluth Looked Upon as Great Commercial Center, Says B. P. Neff.

Bentley P. Neff, secretary and sales manager of F. A. Patrick & Co., wholesale dry goods, returned this morning from his annual visit to the Western territory.

Mr. Neff reports conditions as being very good in the West, and although there is some inactivity on the part of the lumbering interests, there is every prospects of a big year in 1911, both in the agricultural and lumbering sections.

Mr. Neff found the prestige of Duluth increasing year by year and the city's gain of 49 per cent in population was very favorably commented upon.

"There seems to be a disposition on the part of Western people to think of Duluth as strictly a commercial city, a city of immense activity and a place where the figures of population do not tell the whole story," said Mr. Neff.

"Everywhere in Western territories you find Minnesota people who, while loyal to their new place of abode, are still great boosters for their home state and its business institutions."

OLD RAILROAD BONDS BURNED

St. Paul, Minn., Dec. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Finis in the railroad bond boom of 1858 and their repudiation was written today when $188,000 of the bonds authorized at that time were consigned to the flames. They were the last of an issue of $5,000,000 authorized by the people in the days when Minnesota was just beginning to break into national view.

Governor Eberhart, State Auditor Iverson, Attorney General Simpson, State Treasurer Pettijohn and Secretary of State Schmahl witnessed the burning of the bonds. They were consigned to the furnaces in the capitol power house, and in addition to the $188,000 in old railroad bonds, included $1,450,000 in state capitol construction certificates retired some weeks ago.

MORPHINE RELIEVED PAIN—THE GREAT KIDNEY REMEDY RESTORES TO HEALTH.

For the past few years I suffered greatly from what three physicians called neuralgia of the stomach. The doctors treated me without any success and I called in a fourth doctor, who pronounced my disease gall stones. I suffered intense pain and the only relief the doctor could give me was by injections of morphine. I was so completely discouraged that I had almost given up hope when a neighbor told me about Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root. I decided to try it and began its use at once and after taking nine bottles was completely cured, not having a spell of sickness in over two years.

I have so much confidence in Swamp-Root that I never fail to recommend it to my friends who may have kidney trouble of any kind. I feel certain that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root saved my life, why should it not do likewise to others who take it in time.

MARINE

LOSSES WERE VERY HEAVY

Lake Marine Insurance Companies Hard Hit on Hull Risks.

Made Money on Grain and Ore Cargoes During Past Season.

The lake marine insurance season just closed has been unprofitable on hulls, but has done well on grain, lumber and package cargoes, with a poor record on coal and ore. The total losses of lake hulls for the season aggregate $1,500,000. The principal weeks were as follows:

Lake Superior—	Loss on hull.	Cargo
Str. W. C. Moreland ..	$402,000	$40,000
Str. Langham	45,000	5,000
Str. V. H. Ketcham ..	60,000	10,000
Str. Wasaga	22,000	55,000
Lake Erie—
Str. F. H. Goodyear ..	255,000.	25,000
Lake Michigan—
Car Ferry, No. 18	500,000	50,000
Str. F. L. Vance	30,000	7,000
Lake Huron—
Str. New York	20,000	5,000

Partial loss and general average claims will aggregate close to $2,000,000, leaving the insurance companies, after paying commissions, taxes and expenses, practically no profit.

The grain premiums, owing to a short wheat crop in North Dakota, which moves East via Duluth, show a decrease from 1909 of fully one-third, but the grain losses have been few and the companies will make a good profit on this commodity. Iron ore and coal movement shows an improvement over 1909 in tons carried. The losses have been heavy and there will be little left to the companies when the claims are all paid. The lumber business shows a normal movement, and the absence of heavy loss shows this commodity to be again very profitable to the underwriters.

Nothing definite has been determined as regards rates for 1911 on either hulls or cargoes. The probabilites are, however, that there will be little change. The marine underwriters are usually slow in publishing rates, and their meetings come in the spring just before the opening of navigation.

DUNELM'S FATE IS NOT KNOWN

No Message From Canadian Steamer Ashore on Isle Royale.

Nothing further was heard this morning by the local office of the United Wireless Telegraph company from the steamer Dunelm, which is aground on Isle Royale. As soon as the announcement of the wreck was received yesterday the tug Whalen and lighter Empire were sent to the assistance of the Dunelm, and they are probably at the scene of the wreck now.

The steamer F. B. Squires stood by the Dunelm yesterday ready to take off the crew if there was danger of the wrecked boat going to pieces. The Squires is equipped with wireless and sent the fire call for assistance, but nothing further has been heard. The Dunelm has no wireless equipment.

Green Room Gossip.

"The Chocolate Soldier" will close its Duluth engagement at the Lyceum tonight. It is one of the biggest and best musical organizations that Duluth has seen in years. The orchestra is one of the most enjoyable features of the production. Two rows of seats have been removed from the parquet to make room for the augmented orchestra, which compares very favorably with large grand opera organizations.

Two genuine globe-trotters are on the Orpheum bill this week. They are Hugh Lloyd and Ernest Scharff. Lloyd is the clever performer on the "cord elastique." He has performed in every civilized country in the world, including Australia, South Africa, the South American republics, all of the principal European countries and North America.

"It is easier to change your territory than to change your act," says Mr. Lloyd. "After you get an act perfected, why not keep it, and change your territory?"

Mr. Scharff, who has a unique musical act, is also a globe trotter, and has toured almost as extensively as Mr. Lloyd. They fell to comparing notes yesterday, and found that they had visited almost the same countries.

Lyman H. Howe's travel festival will open an engagement of two nights at the Lyceum Sunday. As proof of the importance, novelty and originality of the features, it is necessary to mention only a few of the subjects on the new program, such as the king's funeral in London and Windsor, showing the kings, princes, field marshals, potentates and dignitaries in attendance from all lands, including Col. Roosevelt; a reproduction of the eruption of Mount Etna; a ride up the Eiffel tower; the fiords of Norway; through the Alps in winter; life on a training ship; constructing the Grand Trunk Pacific railroad; a Japanese jubilee and many that are naturally humorous.

"Really, it is amusing to see the looks on the faces of the people in the audiences when we appear on the stage," said dainty Miss Lafferty of Kelley & Lafferty, who are appearing at the Empress this week. "Of course, our names indicate that we are Irish and most people expect to see the old stunt of burlesquing the real Irishman and they are sometimes disappointed. But I am pleased to note that the days are past when they did this sort of thing and to note that actors now try to portray the real, true-hearted Irishman as he really is. In the days gone by, it was considered quite the proper thing to wear a hideous make-up and present a character that was as far from the real Irishman as day is from night." The act presented by Kelley & Lafferty is an up-to-date dancing act and Miss Lafferty presents the toe dance with ease and grace that would do credit to a dancer of much more experience.

Edward Flanagan, who is at the Orpheum this week with the team known as Flanagan & Edwards, has some new ideas on the subject of tipping. He does not protest against the prevalence of tipping, but claims that the wrong people are tipped.

"Men will tip waiters in fashionable cafes," he said, "and the same men will then go into a cheaper restaurant, where they will be served by a girl, and will not dig up a penny. These girls work for very small salaries, and they generally give much better service than the men waiters in the fashionable eating places, yet the deserving ones are passed by and the undeserving ones tipped far more than they are entitled to."

"The King," the new comedy of adventure which James K. Hackett presents at the Lyceum tomorrow, was written by George Brackett Seitz, a Boston playwright, who has given to the play goers of America a play which is calculated to cause a stir in the dramatic world.

It was first produced by Mr. Hackett at the Winnipeg theater in Winnipeg on Thursday evening last and the first criticism from the Manitoba Free Press says in part: "The play is somewhat extraordinary inasmuch as at moments it would appear to be frankly melodrama, then, hey presto, with a whimsical remark spoken in Mr. Hackett's almost whimsical tones, the play becomes comedy, fantastic, if one will, but nevertheless comedy. * * * Mr. Hackett has a part in The Man, alias The King, which fits him like a suit of clothes by a swell tailor.  The piece is full of comedy. * * * The man who prophesies on the future of a new production is exceedingly unwise, but if the New York theatergoers appreciate a clean, wholesome play, with plenty of movement in it, interesting dialogue, and presented by an admirable cast, 'The King,' should score an undoubted success."

Mr. Brady, under whose direction Mr. Hackett is touring, has engaged an exceptionally strong company, including Miss Beatrice Beckley, Arthur Hoops, Charles C. Brandt and Robert Lawler. The staging of the play is perfect in every detail.

PLANTS IN BOXES ON STANDARDS NOVELTY IN CITY DECORATIONS

In the elimination of unsightly objects along the streets, many cities are obtaining the consent of owners of houses to the installation of trolley wires by the fastening of supporting wires to the fronts of buildings. Light standards cannot be done away with so easily, however, and many cities in the United States are adopting decorative innovations in connection with their "White Ways."

One of the innovations, which adds greatly to the decorative value of light standards consists of the placing of boxes on light standards and trolley poles and the planting of greens in them. The idea is derived from the plan in use in the city of Antwerp and has been imported for use in American cities.

The boxes are unobtrusive and do not obstruct the view and yet they brighten up the bare poles and the whole street. The sight of spots of green in the heart of the business district of a city is unique and makes a very favorable impression on visitors to a city, especially. In some cities where high standards are in use, two boxes may be placed on each, one below the other.

In cities which have adopted the plan, co-operation is secured between the park commissioners and commercial organizations for the planting of flowers and plants in the spring. Abutting property owners or tenants are charged with the duty of watering the plants, and it is said that civic pride is effective in obtaining attention to the duty. The boxes are made of iron and arranged to clamp on the standards so that they may be removed at the end of the summer season.

The proposition has not been brought up in Duluth but it is possible that it will be considered.

MURDER SUSPECT HAS ESTABLISHED INNOCENCE.

Hutchinson, Minn., Dec. 7.—The murderer of Mrs. Joseph Simon may escape the net thrown out by officers. A suspect has proven his innocence and the slayer is believed to have made his way west over the Hastings & Dakota division of the Milwaukee road.

F. Dvorak, the suspect, was placed in the sweatbox by Sheriff Klaus and a Pinkerton detective. He is a Bohemian and lives in the neighborhood of the murder. He was able to account for his time, however, and satisfied the officials that he had nothing to do with the crime.

Farmers Object to Charges.

Carrington, N. D., Dec. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Farmers served by a telephone company operating south and west of Carrington are up in arms at the annual rate that is charged for the service and within a short time it is expected that they will take steps to bring about the granting of a lower rate, or the construction of a new line is probable.

Family Cough Syrup

Cures Any Cough in Five Hours. NEW PRESCRIPTION HERE.

Here is given the most effective cough prescription known to the medical world. It is a mild laxative, too, and this is what a body needs when suffering with cough and cold on the lungs. A cough or cold indicates poisons in the system, causing inflammation and congestion. Nearly all cough syrups relieve, but make the trouble worse by their constipating effects. This prescription not only relieves quickly, but it cures any cough that is curable. Get one-half ounce fluid wild cherry bark, one ounce compound essence cardiol and three ounces syrup white pine compound. Mix in a bottle. Take for acute cough or bronchitis twenty drops every half hour for four hours. Then one-half to one teaspoonful three or four times daily. Give children less according to age. A few hours' treatment will cure and heal the throat and lungs of all but consumptives. Cut this out and give it to some friend who may need it to be saved from an early death by consumption.

This Beats The Bankrupt Stock!

Some years ago we agreed to take every year all the sample gloves and mittens of the famous Gordon make. This year they certainly went some and sent us $6865.07 worth—over 7300 pair. Being always in the van, we were game and took them all.

This is $800 more than the entire Van Wagner Bankrupt stock amounted to when it was auctioned off this week, and we bought this tremendous glove stock 38 (thirty-eight) per cent cheaper than the Van Wagner stock was sold for, which was no bargain at all, contained much summer stock, also nine overcoats.

To get our money quick out of this tremendous glove stock we will put all the

ELECTION IN PORT HURON

Michigan City Chooses Business Men for Its First Commissioners.

The New Plan Is Warmly Favored By Dr. J. J. Eklund.

Port Huron, Mich., which recently adopted the commission form of government, held its first election under the new system Monday. The election resulted in the choice of five substantial business men of the city as the first commissioners and those who know men and conditions in Port Huron say that the voters used excellent judgment.

John J. Bell, the present mayor of the city, was elected as one of the commissioners, but he is not of the professional politician class and his two administrations under the old system were commended for their economy and freedom from partisan domination. The other four men elected as commissioners have never been mixed up in partisan politics as leaders, have shown great ability in their private business and have the public spirit to take up the administration of the city's affairs.

A. J. Smith is a member of A. J. Smith & Sons, building contractors who have had large contracts in Detroit and other cities in Michigan. S. O. Aikman is owner of a large biscuit factory. F. J. Dixon and C. E. Mudford are both prominent business men interested in the government of a city as a business proposition. The personnel of the first commission augurs well for the operation of the commission plan in Port Huron and the voters there have shown the same good judgment in the choice of commissioners that has characterized the balloting at similar elections in other cities.

"If properly worked out, I believe the commission form is the right government for Duluth," said Dr. J. J. Eklund this morning. Dr. Eklund has been prominent in municipal affairs and has also taken a prominent part in politics.

"I have never believed in partisanship in municipal politics," Dr. Eklund said, "and I believe the elimination of party designations from the ballot is one of the best features of government by commission. This idea of putting up Democrats and Republicans in the primaries and at the election for city offices is all wrong. We should choose for municipal offices men we know to have the necessary ability and the interest of the city at heart and we should elect such men regardless of whether they are Democrats or Republicans or of any other party.

"In adopting the commission form of government, we should throw safeguards around it to prevent its being directed into the wrong channels, but it has been successful in other cities and it should be in Duluth."

The Beautiful Hair of English Women

(Annie Bly in N. Y. Graphic.)

The long, abundant and glossy tresses of English women are not due to hair tonics and heroic shampooing. There is a general belief over there that the less water put on the hair, the better it is; they say wetting "takes the life out" and leaves the hair dull, brittle and colorless.

English women with hair rich in color, clean and wholesome—and plenty of it—have told me they attribute it to dry shampooing two or three times a week. They mix four ounces of therox with four ounces of orris root and sprinkle a tablespoonful of this mixture on the head; then brush the powder thoroughly through the hair. They thus also avoid the danger of catching cold and the discomfort that accompanies washing, rinsing and drying the hair.

This treatment keeps the hair light, fluffy and lustrous, and is the only thing I know that will actually produce the growth of hair.

BIG MEETING OF GROCERS

Retailers Are Guests of Gowan-Peyton-Congdon Co. at Banquet.

Speakers Urge Strengthening of Ties Between Grocers of Both Cities.

The Gowan-Peyton-Congdon company, the wholesale grocery firm, was host at a banquet at the Commercial club last night to 116 retail grocers at the Head of the Lakes. The company gave a banquet to the trade before but last night's affair was the biggest of its kind that has been held here in a long time.

W. R. Peyton welcomed the guests, expressing the hope that social meetings would promote friendship between members of the wholesale and retail trade. G. Peterson, secretary of the Duluth Grocers' association, spoke in flattering terms of the Pure Food show. He said he hoped any little differences that had existed in the trade would be buried and forgotten.

M. M. Gasser said the Retail Grocers association has considerable work cut out for it in regulating credits and preventing the retailing of produce and meats by wholesale concerns. Mr. Gasser said there had been enough pure food legislation. He thought that was one of the reasons for the increased cost of living. He said the tax of ten cents a pound on butterine should be removed so the poor man who cannot afford butter will be able to buy outterine.

President J. W. Cummings of the Duluth Retail Grocers' association said that organization had passed a resolution asking Representative Clarence B. Miller to see what he could do toward getting the tax repealed.

Several speakers talked informally and Toastmaster R. W. Brown suggested that all attend the pure food show. The suggestion met with favor and everybody went to the show, 224 West First street.

KEEPING A LINE ON WASHINGTON DOINGS

Those Ballinger Reports.

Interest in congress thus far has centered in the reporting to both houses of the findings of the special joint committee which for eleven months was busy with the charges made against Richard A. Ballinger, secretary of the interior. Three reports were filed—a majority report clearing the cabinet officer of all the charges; a minority finding condemnatory of him, and an individual report by Representative Madison, Republican, of Kansas, also condemnatory.

The senate ordered 30,000 copies of the reports printed, and no discussion in either house attended their introduction. The result of the committee's work probably will prove to be negligible, for the report leaves the question just where it was when the inquiry started, and there is said to be trouble ahead if a vote is called for to determine which of the reports shall be adopted.

The Indian Bill.

The Indian bill, the first of the big money measures, has been introduced in the house. It carries $8,160,980. The amount exceeds the formal estimates of the interior department by $14,723, but is $551,663 less than the total appropriations for the Indian services for the current fiscal year. The larger items are:

Survey and allotment work, reimbursable in part, $251,000; irrigation system Indian reservations allotments, $300,000; irrigation projects, reimbursable, $625,000; suppression of liquor traffic among the Indians, $70,000, and pay of Indian police, $200,000; relief of distress among the Indians and for prevention of disease, $60,000; support and civilization, including purchases of goods and supplies, $935,500; educational purposes, approximately $300,900; provision for treaty stipulations other than educational, $996,560.

Wisconsin Indian Affair.

The bill provides for capitalization of annuities in pursuance of an agreement concluded with the Oneida tribe of Indians of Wisconsin on Jan. 4, 1909, on a basis of 5 per cent, and requiring an appropriation of $20,000. The result of this capitalization will be to eliminate the Wisconsin Oneidas from participation in the appropriation for fulfilling treaties with the Six Nations of New York, which appropriations hereafter will be reduced annually by $1,000,000.

The Carlisle, Pa., Indian school estimate was cut in half.

Amend Railroad Law.

A number of bills and resolutions were introduced in the senate, generally of a private nature. Among the exceptions was a bill by Senator Brown of Nebraska, looking to the amendment of the railroad legislation of last session so as to prohibit one railroad company from acquiring control of a competing line, either by lease or purchase, and two by Senator Smoot regulating the public lands.

Trouble Ahead For Taft.

President Taft's consultations with regular and insurgent Republicans and with the Democrats of the senate, have developed a difference of opinion among the members of the upper house which promises to make the president's already difficult task a much harder one.

The insurgent senators, it is said, have agreed among themselves that the new members of the supreme court must not be men of reactionary tendencies or temperament. They are said to be insisting that the new judges shall be men of sufficient advanced ideas to decide questions of the day alone on broad lines and not be bound by mere legal technicalities.

The regular Republicans on the other hand, are not willing that these new theories as to judgeship qualifications shall be the determining factor as to the fitness of candidates.

Democratic senators have begun insisting that one of the new justices shall be a Democrat. The death of Chief Justice Fuller left only two Democrats on the supreme bench—Justices White and Lurton.

For One-Cent Postage.

For the establishment of 1-cent letter postage, a bill was introduced in the house by Representative Shepard of Texas. It would take effect July 1, 1911. It proposes that the rate for drop letters shall be 1 cent an ounce, instead of 2 cents as under the present law.

Report on Brownsville.

The last gun in connection with the Brownsville riots of 1906, when negro troops were charged with shooting up that town, was fired when the report of the special court of inquiry ordered by the senate was submitted to that body. The report was ordered printed.

Cannon Gives Last Honors.

Speaker Cannon announced a number of committee assignments of members, including both new members and present members who succeeded to committee places made vacant by deaths. Dawson of Iowa, Republican, who declined a re-election, was appointed on the appropriations committee to succeed Brownlow of Tennessee, who died during the recess; and Morehead of North Carolina, also an outgoing Republican, goes to the committee on merchant marine and fisheries. These assignments are of members who will not be in the next congress, thus avoiding any possible embarrassment to the Democratic speaker of the next house.

You Must Read This if You Want the Benefit.

J. W. Greer, Greenwood, La., suffered with a severe case of lumbago. "The pains were so intense I was forced to hypodermic injections for relief. These attacks started with a pain in the small of my back which gradually became fairly paralyzing. My attention was attracted to Foley's Kidney Remedy and I am glad to say that after using this wonderful medicine I am no longer bothered in any way by my old enemy, lumbago." Sold by all druggists.

ACCUSED OF SWINDLING JEWELER IN GERMANY.

New York, Dec. 8.—At the request of the German government, detectives have arrested John Don Cirlole Jose de Filderduy, a Mexican, on the charge that he had swindled Otto Koch of Frankfort-on-Main, a jeweler, of gems worth about $34,000.

The prisoner admitted he was the man wanted. He said he and another man, whose identity he refused to disclose, went to France and Germany last summer, determined to make all the money they could. He said his home was in California and that he had a wife and child there.

OSBORN WILL NOT BE CANDIDATE NEXT TIME.

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 8.—Governor-elect Chase E. Osborn of Sault Ste. Marie, in a letter to the Associated Press, announces that he will not be a candidate for a second term. In the same letter Mr. Osborn expresses the conviction that it is desirable to change the term of the governorship from two to one term of four years.

San Francisco, Dec. 8. — Domingo Navarro, president of the Scalers' union, was shot and killed yesterday by Augustine Arevillo, a member of the union. One hundred scalers were holding a meeting to organize an opposition union. Navarro protested and a riot followed during which he was shot.

The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon at 1 o'clock from the residence and at 1:30 o'clock from the West Duluth Baptist church. Rev. Hugo J. P. Selinger will officiate and burial will be at Oneota cemetery. Mrs. Meldrum, prior to her coming to West Duluth, lived at Winnipeg.

HANDS BADLY FROST BITTEN

With both hands frozen, Louis Borge, a laborer, slept in the snow until he was awakened from his drunken stupor by an officer, who helped him home. Pedestrians first noticed the man lying on the sidewalk in front of 309 North Sixtieth avenue west, late last evening and notified the police.

Sergt. Barber responded to the call and found Borge asleep and numb with the cold. After experiencing considerable difficulty, the officer finally helped the man get home. Borge lives at 6210 Green street.

Dr. D. E. Seashore was called at once and attended to the man's injuries. It is possible that he may lose one or both of his hands as they were badly nipped by the frost. Borge probably owes his life to the passerby who observed him and telephoned for an officer.

Four weeks ago, when the Alger Smith mill shut down, Borge was thrown out of employment. Since that time, his wife told Officer Barber, he has been drinking heavily and on one other occasion he had to be helped home by an officer.

WHEAT AND FLAX LOWER

Former Declines But Steadies After a Weak Opening.

Flax Market Unsettled—Barley Prices Still Soaring.

Duluth Board of Trade, Dec. 8.—Wheat closed lower today, values being unable to regain the losses at the opening. December lost ⅜c and May declined ⅝c. Cash wheat was on a parity with December and closed higher than the Minneapolis spot market. Oats lost ¼c, rye was unchanged and barley advanced 2c to a new high record for this year. There were no cash transactions in barley reported. Durum lost ⅛c.

Flaxseed closed weaker. December lost 5½c and May declined 6c. Spot seed was on a parity with December and about 1c under Minneapolis. Antwerp quoted new crop La Plata seed for early shipment in the new year at $1.97, a decided drop from the levels of the last few days.

The wheat market was firm today after a weak opening. The stubborness of values was apparent on the surface although the undertone did not appear to be particularly strong. The weakness of the market at the opening was caused by lower cables and the execution of stop-loss orders. The situation was mixed as there was very little news of local character in the fore part of the day although later the reported improvement of the Northwestern flour demand and the continued light receipts of choice milling wheat contributed to the firmness of the market.

Liverpool and continental markets were down because of lower Buenos Ayres quotations, cheaper La Plata offerings and a fairly large estimate of Argentine shipments of wheat this week, which were placed at 400,000 bu in comparison with 952,000 bu last week. The foreign demand for wheat was slow and prospective purchasers were disposed to back away from offers. Bids were lower.

The trade was confronted with the figures showing the large increase in stocks of wheat on this side and an interview with a former Chicago speculator had some effect on the weak opening of that market.

Toward the close pressure was absent and the few buying orders that came into the market were sufficient to put up values. Bears offered little resistance being content to experience a harder spot on which they could sell again. The Southwestern receipts of wheat showed a healthy increase although in the Northwest receipts and offers were exceedingly light.

The Northwestern Miller said that the Minneapolis output of flour this week is 70,915 barrels less than last week. Sales are materially less than the output. A wire from Minneapolis said, however, that the demand for flour for future shipment is increasing and that millers are not so pessimistic.

The condition of Ohio wheat as wired by King of Toledo is 94 per cent of normal.

A large increase in the visible supply of wheat is expected by some people this week. Others look for a gradual hardening of the situation in the United States, as considerable wheat will disappear and stocks will soon begin to show a decrease. Stocks are burdensome, however, and are greatly in excess of stores at this time last year.

The government's report on winter wheat was not construed as bullish by many traders on account of the large increase in acreage. The foreigner was disposed to regard the report as bearish. The official loss in winter wheat acreage a year ago was 4,439,000. Kansas lost 35 per cent of its acreage, or 2,168,000 acres; Nebraska lost 25.5 per cent, or 789,000 acres, and Missouri lost 17.5 per cent, or 386,000 acres. Of the entire total these three states lost 3,343,000 acres. Because of this loss the winter wheat crop was reduced to 458,294,000 bu from the December estimate of 560,000,000 bu. The crop was exceeded only by two other crops in the history of the country.

With these facts in mind, traders look for an improvement in the condition of winter wheat by the January report and they think the increased acreage this year will help to offset the damage.

Argentina has shipped 70,000,000 bushels of wheat thus far this year and a claim is made by some people that the exportable surplus of the new crop will not be larger than that of the last crop. Other estimates run as high as 112,000,000 bushels. Official estimates indicate a crop about on a parity with that of last year.

The flaxseed market was erratic. Pronounced weakness developed when longs began to throw over flaxseed and on the decline Minneapolis crushers were buyers causing the market to become firmer. The market was extremely narrow and prices advanced and fell on sales of 1,000 bu. There was some speculative activity but toward noon traders grew cautious and were disposed to let the market alone. Northwestern crushers probably will go after all of the seed they can obtain and some people look for extremely high prices in December flaxseed.

On the other hand the market is becoming more unsettled and there are traders who would not be surprised at pronounced weakness. They think the Argentine crop will be larger than expected. Offerings of Argentine seed in the Northwest under prevailing prices have a demoralizing effect. People who look for a short crop and rapid marketing of the Argentine surplus think prices next spring will soar.

MARKET GOSSIP

Foreign crop summary as published this week in the Liverpool Corn Trade News reads: "United Kingdom—Weather continues wet and sowing of the new wheat crop is still delayed, while outlook for that already sown is unfavorable. France—Floods still continue and agricultural situation is unfavorable. Much of the new crop has not been sown, and that already sown shows poor condition. Supplies of native wheat show some increase, but still are smaller than last year. Quality is poor. Germany—Condition of late-sown wheat rather poor, otherwise outlook generally favorable. Supplies of native wheat are increasing. Both local and export demand shows continued improvement. Hungary—Some complaints regarding delayed seeding owing to unfavorable weather and some estimates point to a smaller acreage than last year. Supplies rather light and weather now mild. Italy—Crop outlook continues favorable, but this country still buying foreign wheat. Spain and North Africa—Complaints being received that the outlook is becoming less favorable owing to dry weather. Russia—Weather continues cold through the Southern belt and there is no snow covering. Arrivals at ports increasing, and are expected to be large later on, as interior stocks are heavy. Chartering for winter loading at Crimea ports and Novorossisk has become more active, and large business is being done with the Mediterranean for winter loading. Spring chartering slow. Navigation in Sea of Azoff practically closed. Australia—Outlook continues favorable and yield is expected to be about same as last year. Last year the crop amounted to 28,800,000 bu."

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool—Argentine estimates: Wheat, this week, 400,000 bu; last week, 952,000 bu; last year, 200,000 bu. Corn, this week, 4,500,000 bu; last week, 1,624,000 bu; last year, 1,263,000 bu. Weather is now generally fine and crops favorable. Corn is starting well. The wheat market at the opening responded to the weakness shown in the Buenos Ayres market at the close and values were ½d lower. The American decline and the bearish interpretation placed on the government report caused further selling and offerings were larger and rather pressed for sale. During the morning the distant months were further influenced downward by the cheaper Plata offers, favorable weather in Argentina and better crop reports and this induced renewed selling by large houses here. There was some disposition shown to support December and after the opening decline of ½d this month steadied ⅛d. Argentine forecast was for smaller shipments. At mid-day the market was easy and ½@¾d lower than yesterday. Corn was easy at the start and about ⅛@¼d lower. The forecast was for large Argentine shipments this week and this led to realizing.

Noble, Mo., wired: Wheat very backward and no rain for six weeks.

Lyons, Kan., wired: No rain to speak of since Sept 6, but some snow on the ground now. Wheat generally looks well.

Cincinnati Price Current said: Dry weather prolonged over large part of central region, although ground in some localities now covered with light fall of snow, which may prove beneficial to growing wheat. All things considered, time not reached when positively discouraging view of crop situation is called for. Later evidence of corn yield furnish no occasion for changes in previous general view of extent of crop. Hogs 300,000 against 555,000 last year.

C. A. Cooper wired from Enid, Okla.: "Betwen Hobart and Enid along Frisco road, four out of five fields do not show wheat up. In territory around Rocky, Custer, Thomas and Ames, wheat has made a start and that is about all. Examined several fields between Hobart and Rocky—found majority up, very little growth, thin stand and poorly rooted. There will be a decrease in acreage in this territory. Considerable land that has been prepared for wheat, account of drougth, will now be used for spring crop. Stocks of wheat in elevators very light, majority having less than car load on hand. Mills about normal amount for this time of year. Farm reserves of wheat around Hobart, Rocky, Cordell, Custer and Thomas probably average about 15 per cent."

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

World Supplies Talk Puts Wheat on Downward Trend.

Chicago, Dec. 8.—Bearish talk about world's supplies of wheat being the largest on record had a depressing effect on prices today. A prominent speculator who has been out of the market recently was active in forcing attention to figures showing the total stock to be 48,678,00 bu more than a year ago. The increase in America was given as 10,000,000 bu. Favorable weather in Argentina tended also to cause a heavy tone in the pit. The opening was ¼@⅜c lower. May started at 96⅜@96½c covering the entire range of the market, and later sold off to 96¼@96⅜c.

Some firmness arose on reports that the Minneapolis flour trade was picking up, but the effect was lost because of the shut-down of a mill at Kansas City through lack of orders. The close was weak, with May at 96⅛@96¼c, a net loss of ½@⅝c.

Cold weather and big Argentine shipments made corn easy. May opened unchanged to ⅛c off at 47⅝@47¾c, and declined to 47½@47⅝c.

Large shipments from Iowa and continued selling by a local concern kept prices down. The close was easy, with May ¼@⅜c off at 47⅜@47½c.

Although oats were fairly well supported, the market sagged with other grain. May opened unchanged to a shade down at 34¼⅝34⅜c to 34⅜c and declined to 34¼c.

With a liberal hog run West, commission houses were sellers of provisions. Buying in part of pit shorts led to a reaction later. First sales were a shade to 7½c lower wth May at $17.17½@17.25 for pork, $9.70 for lard and $9.30 for rbs.

SOME GAINS IN STOCKS

Market Closes Active at Best Prices of the Session.

Early Losses Reduced to Fractions and Some Advances Recorded.

New York, Dec. 8.—Higher prices were the rule at the opening of the stock market today but the gains in representative stocks were as a rule of little consequence. The copper group was heavy, Amalgamated Copper losing ½ and American Smelting ⅝. Advances were made of 1 to 1¼ in National Lead, Pacific Mail and International Harvester.

The market backed and filled during the first hour but none of the leading stocks got far away from yesterday's closing. Supporting orders were distributed at intervals which offset the short selling. Minor stocks showed strength in spots. American Agricultural Chemical advanced 1¾, American Beet Sugar 1⅝, and St. Louis & San Francisco second preferred, Chicago Great Western and Colorado Fuel 1. Lehigh Valley declined 1¼ and American Cotton Oil 1.

Some disappointment was expressed at the retention of the English bank rate, but no noteworthy changes occurred during the morning session. Trading fell to insignificant proportions, the professional element evincing even less than usual interest in the course of prices. Mild pressure was extended against United States Steel on reports that a meeting of independents in the trade is being held at Pittsburg to cut prices.

Noon prices were mostly a trifle above yesterday's closing. Northwestern, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis, Southern Railway and American Can preferred gained 1 to 1½. Railway Steel Spring preferred lost 3 points. Bonds were firm.

The market closed active and at the best prices. The buying of United States Steel at the low level was followed by an almost instant reversal. The shorts made haste to cover and the traders generally participated in the buying movement which then ensued. Losses of the previous hour were soon reduced to mere fractions and in many instances gains for the day were registered. Especial features of strength were Louisville & Nashville, Baltimore & Ohio, Pennsylvania, Atchison, St. Paul, Southern Pacific, Union Pacific and Reading. Of the speculative leaders the metal stocks were the only issues that failed to make complete recovery.

The Cotton Market.

New York, Dec. 8.—Cotton opened easy at a decline of 3 points on December and a 10 to 19-point decline in later months under heavy liquidation and active bear pressure, inspired by the report of the census bureau showing more cotton ginned to Dec. 1, than had been generally anticipated. There was some buying on the decline and spot people seemed to be giving December support, but the market was very nervous and prices during the middle of the morning were about 21 points under the closing figures of yesterday. The ginning report showed 10,139,986 bales ginned to Dec. 5, against 8,876,886 last year and 11,008,661 two years ago.

Spot closed quiet at 20 points decline. Middling uplands, 14.80; middling gulf, 15.05; sales, 7,000 bales. Futures closed easy. Closing bids: December, 14.45; January, 14.50; February, 14.60; March, 14.72; April, 14.75; May, 14.86; June, 14.82; July, 14.82; August, 14.50. October, 13.25.

ICE RINK MAY BE BUILT

New developments today following the meeting last night of those interested in the organization of a new ski club, assure the beginning of work within a few days on the erection of a new toboggan slide and other improvements at the grounds.

A committee will go to the grounds to locate the spot where the new slide will be constructed for inexperienced ski riders, and Whitney Wall announced this morning that the money for starting immediate work on the construction of this slide is on hand. The proposition for the construction of a new toboggan will be taken up immediately. On the committee that will visit the ski grounds today or tomorrow will be one of the professional ski riders, who will give his opinion as to the location of the smaller ski slide, so that it will not interfere with the professional riders.

While it cannot be stated definitely today, Mr. Wall said that there is a possibility that a skating rink will be constructed at the ground the present season.

"The money has been promised for immediate improvements that are necessary," said Mr. Wall this morning. "This money is at hand and work will be started just as soon as the extent of the improvements are determined upon. Work will be started very soon on the slide that will give every member of the club an opportunity of learning the winter sport. Heretofore only the experts have been able to get any sport from the big hill. The smaller slide will give those an opportunity who desire to learn to ride the skis.

"Plans may be made for a skating rink the present winter. It is very probably that a new toboggan slide will be constructed, and it is the desire of the officials to make the club a headquarters for toboggan parties. The money is at hand for these improvements and the work will start very soon."

SUIT FOR $5,000 BEGUN AGAINST MATHEWSON.

New York, Dec. 8.—Suit was begun in the supreme court in Brooklyn today by Frank Schmidt, a Brooklyn man, against Christy Matthewson, pitcher of the New York Nationals, for alleged false arrest. Schmidt wants $5,000 damages.

In a game between Brooklyn and New York at Washington park on April 28, 1908, of which Schmidt was a spectator, the ball disappeared, Matthewson claiming that Schmidt took it as a souvenir. Schmidt denied taking the ball, but was arrested and later discharged.

ONE TEAM RETIRES FROM BICYCLE RACE.

New York, Dec. 8.—At 10 o'clock, the relative standing of the teams in the six-day bicycle race remained unchanged. The seven leaders had covered 1,561 miles. 2 laps, MacFarland and Clarke, and West and Demare 1,561 miles, 1 lap, and Rutt and Stol 1,561 miles flat. The record for this, the eighty--second hour, is 1,610 miles, 8 laps, made last year by Pye and Hehir.

Pye and Walker, the Australian team, after plucky efforts from the time Walker was injured, retired from the race at 11:32. Pye started a sprint at 11:25 after riding steadily for four hours, and was cheered lustily when he left the track. He has four hours in which to pick up a partner among the nine remaining teams.

INSTITUTE IS SUCCESS

Gathering of Farmers at Cloquet Speaks Well for Community's Growth.

Pointers on Dairying Methods and Kindred Subjects Given By Experts.

Cloquet, Minn., Dec. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The farmers' institute opened here yesterday morning at the Nelson opera house, conducted by C. E. Brown of Elk River, and C. O. Carlson of Erskine. Mr. Brown is a practical farmer, and one of the best known dairyman of the state, being a member of the Red River Valley Dairymen's association.

Farmers in this part of the state were urged to go into the dairy business, to raise clover, which is the natural crop of this soil, and to keep the clover crop on the farm, feeding it instead of selling. Mr. Brown gave a splendid talk on soil and how to keep it productive and not let its fertility get so low as to be unprofitably productive.

Urges Boys to Become Farmers.

He applied theory and practical experience to conditions here and gave a large class of high school students who came in to the afternoon session, some pointers on possibilities of making a living on the farm. He urged that the boy be given as good an education along the lines of farming as for any other occupation. He encouraged the farmers of the district where the fires of the past summer burned entirely away the top of the soil, the deposit of years, calling up the experience at Hinckley, where a few years ago the same thing happened, but where now are some of the finest farms in the state. He said that the fires had helped to clear the land.

At noon the attending farmers were served a lunch, and afterward gathered at the opera house, where it was noticeable that until the opening of the afternoon session, Mr. Carlson was the center of a group of farmers where his enthusiasm for the soil was contagious and questions were asked as fast as he could answer them. Mr. Carlson believes that the ideal home is the farm home. He spoke of the natural clover crop and advised the farmers, to get into the dairy business, but to "grow" into it, and not "go" into it.

Raising calves on the Carlson farm at Erskine is an exact science, and Mr. Carlson says their success is not due to seeing how cheaply they can "keep" a calf, but how cheaply they can "grow" a calf. Their system seems to be "Do a good job," a phrase which Mr. Carlson used several times in the course of his talk, and which seems to be the key note of his character.

Thanked By Finn Farmers.

Two years ago at Embarrass he talked to a group of Finnish farmers, and it was necessary to have an interpreter translated his instructions to the farmers. Some weeks ago the same Finnish farmers sent one of their number fourteen miles to a near-by town where Mr. Carlson was to speak that they might express their thanks for the help he had given them and by which they had evidently profited. There is a large community of Finnish farmers about five miles from [illegible] of them were present and were among the most interested listeners. The crowd in attendance at the institute was good sized, considering the comparatively small farming community, and another such gathering would draw a much larger attendance.

There is some talk of organizing a farmers' club, and the general desire for progress seems to indicate that the time is ripe to make such a club for the advancement of mutual interests a success. Messrs. Brown and Carlson will hold institute near Biwabik today.

THIRD LIBRARY IN THE WORLD

Congressional Collection Will Lead All Others Soon, Says the Librarian.

Washington, Dec. 8.—Within a few years the Library of Congress will occupy the supreme position in numerical strength among the libraries of the world. It now ranks third, with the Bibliotheque Nationale and the British Museum holding first and second places.

The annual report of Librarian Herbert Putnam was submitted to congress today. It shows that in the year 1909-10 there were added 90,473 volumes, making the total possessions of the library in printed volumes 1,793,158. There are 118,165 maps and charts; 517,806 volumes and pieces of music and 320,251 prints.

To show the character of the ascesсions, Mr. Putnam points to the receipt of the collection of Thacher Incunabula, made by John Boyd Thacher of Albany, N. Y.; the volumes of the Madison Papers, heretofore owned by the Chicago Historical society, and the papers of James K. Polk, which were transferred from the same society; gifts of manuscripts and of correspondence of Burton N. Harrison, relative to the defense of Jefferson Davis, and letter showing the disposition of the specie in the Confederate treasury after the surrender in 1865.

Some Invaluable Documents.

A large number of invaluable documents are included in a long list of accessions for the last year.

Another list shows that the music collection has ben greatly strengthened. The Weckerlin and Martorell collections were purchased, the former containing a large number of specimens of French folk songs, chansons, etc. In the latter collection are about 1,300 full scores of "Favorite" arias from the eighteenth century operas.

An event of the year was the completion of an additional book stack containing forty-four miles of shelving. It will accommodate nearly 1,000,000 volumes, which at the present rate of increase will provide only for the growth of a decade.

IOWA LIQUOR MEN PUTTING UP FIGHT

Will Ask Supreme Court to Enjoin Enforcement of Law.

Washington, Dec. 8.—Several saloon keepers in Marshalltown, Iowa, will ask the supreme court of the United States, probably next Monday, to issue a temporary order staying the enforcement of the Iowa liquor laws pending an appeal to the court in regard to their validity.

The liquor dealers filed a bill in the federal court of Iowa for an injunction to prevent officials of Marshalltown from enforcing the law. The injunction was requested on the ground that the law discriminated against liquor dealers, in violation of the Federal Constitution. The lower court dismissed the bill and declined to continue a temporary injunction, which had been issued, until an appeal to the supreme court of the United States could be perfected.

EXHUME BODY IN TRUNK MYSTERY

Dead Man Is Believed to Be Murderer of Artist.

Providence, R. I., Dec. 8.—Definite efforts were begun today to discover whether the body of William H. Lewis, buried in the Foster cemetery, is William Lewis, who is supposed to have murdered Albert C. Callier, believed to have been the man whose body was found in a trunk in New York.

A special meeting of the town council was called for 11 o'clock to grant a permit for the disinterment of the body, and it was expected that the question of identity would be finally solved this afternoon.

COLERAINE MAN HURT.

Falls Fifty Feet From the Roundhouse Structure.

Coleraine, Minn., Dec. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—J. Sullivan employed on a steel gang, building the structural work for a roundhouse here is in a hospital in a critical condition as a result of a fall received early in the week.

He fell about fifty feet, breaking some bones and sustaining internal injuries. It is feared he cannot survive.

MRS. DIETZ ROBBED?

Claims That Vandals Rifled Family Dowry Box.

Hayward, Wis., Dec. 8.—The members of the Dietz family who are at liberty, aided by detectives, are searching for the contents of Mrs. Dietz's dowry box, which she declares was rifled by vandals after the family surrendered. The loss of articles, Mrs. Dietz declared yesterday, had caused her more worry than the coming trial, for every valuable she owned, including her engagement and wedding rings, were taken from the box.

Mrs. Dietz learned a few days ago that the box had been rifled and she planned to begin an investigation as soon as she was released. The box, she says, contained her wedding gifts, several pieces of silverware and presents from friends who are now dead. It contained some of the childhood toys of the children which Mrs. Dietz had preserved.

All these things are gone according to Mrs. Dietz who had her attorneys investigate.

Even the wolf poison, which John Dietz kept in the box, was taken, and this has caused John Dietz no little anxiety. When things do not go to suit him, he says he expects to be poisoned before the trouble is over.

OHIO'S STATE CROP REPORT IS PUBLISHED.

Columbus, Ohio, Dec. 8.—The state crop report, issued by the state board of agriculture today, shows that the total corn production in Ohio this season is 105,512,245 bushels.

The wheat crop sown for the harvest of 1911 is shown to be in unusually good condition and is rated at 94 per cent. It shows also that 44 per cent of the wheat crop of 1910 was sold as soon as thrashed, so that 56 per cent of the crop still is in the hands of the farmers.

John W. Schaum of Milwaukee Shoots Himself.

Milwaukee, Wis., Dec. 9.—John W. Schaum, formerly part owner of the Milwaukee Journal, committed suicide today by shooting himself through the head with a .32-caliber revolver. Mr. Schaum, after the morning meal, walked into the parlor and, assuming a kneeling position, fired a bullet through his head. Death was instantaneous.

WEALTH GOES INTO CHURCH

Alleged Terms of Mrs. Eddy's Will Published in Boston.

Farlow Says the Statements Are Pure Guess Work.

Boston, Mass., Dec. 9.—According to the Post this morning, the will of Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy, which will be made public in a few days, leaves practically the whole of her $1,500,000 estate to the Christian Science church. The board of directors of the church is to have the final decision as to the form the bequest will take, it is said.

Ex-Congressman Henry M. Baker of Bow, N. H., a relative, is named as administrator, according to the Post. The will was drawn in 1904 in Concord, N. H. Not a dollar is left, it is said, to George W. Glover of Lead, S. D., or to Dr. E. J. Foster Eddy, the son and adopted son respectively of Mrs. Eddy. Both recently received substantial sums from her estate.

Calvin Frye Gets $18,000.

Bequests of from $1,000 to $10,000 go to Mrs. Eddy's household staff. Calvin Frye, one of her advisers, gets $18,000, it is said, and Rev. Irving C. Tomlinson and Mrs. Laura E. Sargent also are beneficiaries.

Members of the board of directors and other leaders of the Mother church are not mentioned in the will. According to the Post's informant, there is nothing in the will which relates to the location of Mrs. Eddy's burial place.

"Purely Guess Work."

Alfred Farlow, manager of the Christian Science publication committee said today:

"The story of the Mary Baker Eddy will which appeared this morning is purely guess work. The directors have not looked at the will and when they have anything to make public they have told me that they will give it to me so that I can give it to all the papers.

"The board of directors has so many more important things to attend to that I cannot tell when the will will be read. Upon to 10 o'clock this morning the document has not been opened."

UNWRITTEN LAW FREES HOOSIER

Menlo Moore Is Acquitted and Crowd Cheers In Courtroom.

Vincennes, Ind., Dec. 9.—Another victory for the unwritten law was recorded today in the local court when a jury brought in a verdict of not guilty in the case of Menlo Moore, manager of a circuit of theaters, accused of the murder of Charles E. Gibson, a wealthy operator in the Indiana-Illinois oil fields.

During the trial Mrs. Moore testified that she had been led by Gibson to believe her husband was unfaithful to her and had been forced by Gibson to submit to demands that she hold illegal relations with him. She said that she finally told her husband about the whole affair and that he shot Gibson while in an insane fit of anger.

When the verdict was read the crowd in the court room broke into a cheer, and men rushed upon the platform and carried Moore from the court room. The court made no effort to stop the demonstration.

The trial has been in progress for about ten days.

EMPLOYERS' LIABILITY

Members of Minnesota Commission Will Address Mass Meeting Here.

Will Be Feature of Annual Meeting of Builders' Exchanges.

A public meeting at the Commercial club next Wednesday evening at which George M. Gillett, W. E. McEwen and H. V. Mercer, the commissioners appointed by Governor Johnson two years ago to study the question of employers' liability, will be the speakers, will be the feature of the annual meeting of the Minnesota Association of Builders' Exchanges, which will be held in Duluth Wednesday.

Employers' liability will be the subject of discussion at the public meeting and the three commissioners, who have accepted invitations to attend, will make their first public utterance on the subject since they completed their investigations. They will probably give some inkling of the contents of the report they will make to the legislature at the coming session and may give an intimation of the character of the employers' liability bill they will suggest.

Substitute For Banquet.

Heretofore, each meeting of the Association of Builders' Exchanges has concluded with a big banquet. This year, the banquet feature has been eliminated and the public meeting, which is expected to be of vastly more interest and importance to the delegates, has been substituted. The meeting will be open to every-

MURDER SCORES OF CHRISTIANS

Bedouins Also Massacre Turks in Sight of Jerusalem.

Constantinople, Dec. 9.—A telegram from Jerusalem today states that Bedouins have massacred the Turkish garrison at Kerak, a town in the Turkish vilayet of Syra, and killed more than 100 Christian inhabitants of the place in revenge for the execution of a Bedouin chief.

The Bedouins, the dispatch adds, now hold the fortress, in the vicinity of which there has been desultory fighting between the tribesmen and the government troops for the last year and a half.

Kerak, formerly the capital of Moab, has a population of 8,000, of whom 6,000 are Moslems. The town is the last on the road from Damascus to Mecca, where Christians may reside. It stands on the mountains of Moab and may be seen from Jerusalem, fifty miles away.

There are no American missionaries there, the only missionary station being that of the British Church Missionary Society for Africa and the East. This is a branch of the organization at Es Salt, and is composed of one missionary, his wife and one native worker.

SHOW TRADE HAS DOUBLED

Statistics Are Given for Philippine Commerce Under New Law.

Removal of Tariff on Many Articles Makes Big Difference.

Washington, Dec. 9.—That the Payne-Aldrich tariff law has tended to increase the trade between the United States and the Philippines is exemplified by figures compiled by the bureau of statistics. Permitting an interchange, free of duty, of practically all articles passing between this country and the islands, trade between the United States and the Philippines has practically doubled.

The total value of imports from the islands for the first fifteen months' operation of the new law amounted to $24,336,000 against $11,500,000 for the fifteen months immediately preceding its enactment. Exports to the islands for the fifteen months since the new tariff has been in effect were valued at $23,500,000 against $12,500,000 for the preceding fifteen months.

NO OPEN MARKET IN SHEET STEEL

Campbell Predicts Rise in Prices in Middle of January.

Pittsburg, Pa., Dec. 8.—According to the best opinion in Pittsburg today there will be no open market in the sheet steel trade. This conclusion was reached at yesterday's meeting of important manufacturing interests. The opinion was held that the present uneasiness in the trade is due to overproduction and increased capacity rather than a general desire for lower prices.

Before leaving the city, James M. Campbell, head of the sheet department of the American Institute of Iron & Steel said:

"No changes were made in prices and the only thing accomplished was a thorough discussion of the sheet trade. The market is dropping off a little and will continue until about the middle of January. I feel there will be a decided improvement and the tonnage of the coming year will be greater than that of 1910."

TELL ABOUT MRS. GLOVER

Witnesses for Defense Testify in Trial of Hattie Le Blanc.

Threats of Woman to Kill Her Husband Repeated on Stand.

Cambridge, Mass., Dec. 9.—Mrs. Irene Le Blanc Langley, one of the sisters of Hattie Le Blanc, testified at the opening of today's session of the girl's murder trial that Hattie had threatened to commit suicide if convicted on the testimony of Mrs. Glover, widow of the slain man.

Mrs. Langley's statement was made in response to questions of District Attorney Higgins on cross-examination. She further testified that when the body of Glover was brought into the house, Mrs. Glover turned her back on it.

Received Many Letters.

A mail carrier was then called, who said that Mrs. Glover had received more than 500 letters in the last three years under the name of Minnie Everett Clark.

Mrs. Glover three times threatened to buy a revolver and shoot her husband, Clarence F. Glover of Waltham, according to the testimony of Mrs. Kate Sampson of Auburndale, one of the witnesses for the defense. Mrs. Sampson said Mrs. Glover made these threats while visiting her at Auburndale and that she appeared enraged because, she

WOUNDED MAN MAY BE THIEF

He Is Found Walking With Woman After Burglary Is Attempted.

New York, Dec. 9.—A middle-aged man believed to be a burglar, is dying today at St. Mary's hospital in Passaic, N. J. With a bad looking wound in his head he was found wandering about the streets of that city in company with a woman who said she was his wife.

A short time before Theodore Tapley, a manufacturer, saw a woman standing by his yard gate, and at the same time saw a man step in through a window of his residence. Tapley fired and the burglar turned and ran.

On going to an address furnished by the man, the Passaic police found some broken up jewelry and a kit of burglar tools.

Close All Saloons, But Twelve Reopen After Papers Are Served.

Brents Declares Courts Will Not Uphold Injunctions.

Writs Are Directed at All Special Agents—Returnable Dec. 29.

Bemidji, Minn., Dec. 9.—(Special to The Herald.) — Government agents struck a snag when they started at 9 o'clock this morning to close the saloons of Bemidji, the last town to get the "lid" in the territory covered by the Indian treaty of 1855.

There were twenty-four places doing business here. Special Officers T. E. Brents and H. F. Coggeshall went to every saloon in town and told the proprietor to clear the place, lock the door and have his supplies packed and ready for shipment out of Bemidji by 6 p. m. today. No resistance was offered at the time, but as soon as Brents and Coggeshall got back to their headquarters at the Markham hotel they were served with injunctions by Deputy Sheriff Rutlege, the

UNIONIST GAIN THE LARGEST

Healy's Defeat Is the Day's Feature in the British Election.

London, Dec. 9.—Tonight's totals show that the coalition parties have thus far secured 244 seats in the new parliament, and the Unionists 207 seats. The Unionists have gained 21 constituencies, the Liberals 14 and the Labor party 4.

The coalition aggregate is divided as follows:

Liberals, 156; Irish Nationalists, 53; Independent Nationalsts, 6; Labor members, 28.

The elections continue their hundrum course, the chief feature, perhaps, being the striking similarity to the returns of January last. Hardly is a gain noted on one side before it is equalized on the other.

Timothy Healy Beaten.

Today's news of special interest was the defeat of Timothy Healy at Louth, which constituency he has represented in the house of commons for eighteen years. Healy is known as the "Ishmael of Nationalist politics," and has followed an independent course since the downfall of Parnell, to which he largely contributed. The successful candidate was Richard Hazleton.

The cause of woman's suffrage is making a pitiable showing in the elections. Thus far they have had but two candidates, and of these one polled but 22 and the other 35 votes.

CALLS HONDURAS REPORTS FALSE

Englishman From Tegucigalpa Denies There Is Any Strife.

Mobile, Ala., Dec. 9.—"At present there is perfect harmony among the people of Honduras, for congress will meet in January and the people will frown on the person who dares to try to create a disturbance," was the statement of O. M. Wilshere, an English mining engineer representing an English syndicate of Tegucigalpa, Honduras, who arrived here last night.

OF SANDS VAN WAGNER

CONSISTING OF SUITS AND OVERCOATS FOR MEN AND BOYS, HIGH CLASS FURNISHING GOODS, HATS, CAPS, RUBBERS AND SHOES

All Will Be Sold Regardless of Former Price or Value

EVERYBODY knows that Sands Van Wagner is a good fellow—progressive and ambitious. He thought the time was opportune for opening a specialty store to cater to the exclusive fellows. A long time lease was taken on the store at 329 West Superior St., and it was fitted up as fine as any store on Broadway. At first everything went along nicely, the fine store and swell merchandise made a big hit, but later the drouth came on, followed by the long-continued hot weather in September and October, and early in November the creditors commenced to clamor for their money. He could not meet the demands, and a trustee was appointed, who sold the stock at Auction last Monday. The bidding was spirited as knowledge of the high-class merchandise was well known to the trade. Traveling men had spread it near and far that Sands Van Wagner would only buy the best-quality merchandise. Representatives from the Twin Cities and other cities nearer here were among the bidders, but we were determined that the Oak Hall should distribute the values among the people of Duluth, and our bid was accepted although it was only one-fourth of 1 per cent above that of our competitor, who has since then developed a very bad case of sour grapes.

Oak Hall sales have never disappointed you. The savings and values have always been real ones, but this sale of the Bankrupt Stock of Sands Van Wagner will stand for years without an equal. All past value giving eclipsed by this sale.

Christmas Greens in Market —Brisk Demand for All Poultry.

As the holidays approach, the volume of produce trading is increasing.

In the poultry market the business is excellent. Prices are slightly firmer. Turkeys are in demand at higher prices. There is a plentiful supply of turkeys and chickens but a shortage in ducks. The dairy market is about unchanged, the only price fluctuations being in makes of foreign cheese. Packing butter is slightly weaker, but other grades are firm. Eggs are unchanged.

The week ushers in the annual trade in greens and holiday decorations. Wreaths are selling at $1.75 a dozen. While the demand is not brisk, yet sellers look for a heavy business as the season approaches. Coil strips are being sold at $1.10 a coil. The first shipment of holly is expected tomorrow from the East. Holly probably will sell at $5.50 a crate, wholesale. Mistletoe will arrive in a few days and will be sold, wholesale, probably at 15 cents a pound. The prices on holly and mistletoe cannot be determined definitely until the stuff arrives and the transportation charges are known.

Green wreaths and coils are made up at Chicago, where the stuff is assembled. The greens are taken to Chicago from the Lake Superior country, generally along the south shore, in boats which have made a specialty of this class of cargoes for many years. The stuff is formed into wreaths and other shapes for the trade, and after being assembled, is packed and forwarded to all parts of the country tributary to Chicago. The same system prevails in other parts of the country which have their own supply centers. Chicago and New York are the two largest distributing centers for such goods. Holly comes here from the East. It is growing scarcer each year and prices are increasing year to year. Mistletoe is grown in Oklahoma for the big central markets. It, too, is not as liberal in supply as in former years, and producers have increased difficulty each year in supplying the demand.

Potatoes are unchanged at from 58c to 60c a bushel. The quality is not as good as might be expected. The fault seems to lie with shippers. Many Northern Minnesota growers do not take the trouble to select their goods properly, and they are careless in preparing potatoes for transportation. For instance, a car of nubbins and good potatoes, mixed, may be unsalable, as the receiver cannot spare the time nor the money in separating the nubbins from the salable stuff. The shipper thus has the entire car thrown back on his hands. In this weather such consignments generally are spoiled by the cold temperatures before they reach him again, and his loss is total. If he had separated the nubbins from the salable stuff before shipping, his consignment would have been accepted and would have been handled quickly without loss from deterioration on account of cold temperatures. Extra fine potatoes bring fancy prices and are at a premium. Jersey sweet potatoes are slightly higher at $4.75 a bushel.

The dairy market is slightly weak but prices are holding steady. Packing butter is off 1 cent to 20 cents a pound. Fancy creamery is firm at 31 cents and dairy is selling at 26 cents. The demand is moderate and the supply is equal to it. The cheese market, so far as American descriptions are concerned, is firm. Foreign makes are in less demand and are cheaper. Block Swiss is selling at 19 cents a pound, a reduction of 1 cent from recent quotations and wheel Swiss is quoted at 19 cents, a loss of 1 cent.

The cranberry market is strong and supplies are scarce. The demand before Thanksgiving was unusually brisk and surplus supplies were quickly cleaned up. The shortage in the cranberry crop became acute when the Thanksgiving sale developed. Prices have been firm since then and in the last few days have hardened on account of an increased demand before the holidays. The trade is seasonable but the supply is short. New Jersey cranberries are quoted at $9.50 a barrel, an exceedingly high price. Cape Cod cranberries are $2.75 a crate.

The fruit trade is active. California navel oranges are arriving freely and the quality of the fruit is improved. Florida is shipping grapefruit. The quality is excellent and prices are moderate. California grapes and imported Malagas comprise the supply. The grapes from Spain are of unusual excellence. Receivers think prices on the foreign article may be higher and the quality less favorable in the near futur as the grape crop in Spain this year showed considerable deterioration on account of the inclement weather. Cuban pineapples are being received in moderate quantities and the demand is fair. The lemon market is easier and supplies from California are liberal. California tomatoes are arriving in liberal quantities. The quality is excellent and the trade is brisk. The arrivals are from the new crop and considering their freshness and soundness prices are reasonable. The apple market is brisk and the volume of trading not only is large but exceedingly broad. At this time of the year the supply holds many varieties. The East and the West have practically ceased to ship.

The cabbage market is stronger. Large quantities are reported to have been frozen in the ground on account of the early cold weather. The seasonable temperatures may cause advances soon on practically all root crops, including potatoes.

Canned peas from Wisconsin have taken a sharp advance. So far as cheap peas are concerned, jobbers are out of the market. At low prices they have nothing to offer. The firmness of peas, especially lower grade sweet peas, is generally admitted although the higher prices do not seem to meet with the views of buyers.

The tomato market remains firm. Canned spinach and pumpkins are scarce and string beans are beginning to show life. Corn, kraut and canned baked beans are less active. Canner apples are especially strong and prices give indications of advancing. Pears of all grades are firm and stocks have been heavily reduced. The steady demand for canned pineapple has caused a reduction in stocks and prices are firm. Berries and cherries are dull. The scarcity of cove oysters continues Shippers of raw oysters continue to pay prices for fresh stock that are prohibitive to canners of cove oysters. Cold and inclement weather prevails in the East which will have a tendency to accentuate the scarcity of oysters and produce higher prices.

Retailers report a shortage of currants The supply is exceedingly limited on account of a shortage in the yield in Greece. Dates are firm and in good demand. Walnuts from Naples, Italy, and Hungary are coming into the market more freely. They are slightly lower in price than the California variety.

TAFT HAS NOT PICKED JUDGES

Has Consulted With More Than Fifty Senators About Them.

Washington, Dec. 9.—President Taft called a special meeting of his cabinet late yesterday to go over the supreme court situation. The list of likely appointees is narrowing rapidly, but it is said that Mr. Taft has not reached a conclusion and probably will not until next Monday or Tuesday.

Mr. Taft has consulted with over fifty senators regarding the forthcoming appointments. The insurgent leaders, with the exception of Senator La Follette, who has declined to go to the White House, have been quite conspicuous in the more recent conferences. Senators Cummins of Iowa and Borah of Idaho were with the president again last night The regular wing of the party was represented in late afternoon conferences by Senator Lodge of Massachusetts and Flint of California.

Senator Knute Nelson of Minnesota also saw the president. Representative Walter I. Smith and Senator Lafayette Young of Iowa called to urge the appointment of Chief Justice Doomer of the Iowa supreme court to one of the supreme court places.

The claim made by the inspectors is that the "vacuum cleaner" does not do what it is advertised to accomplish in any or all parts. It is said that more than $200,000 worth of these cleaners have been disposed of since Jan. 1 last.

BAARS NOT LOST IN THE WOODS

Duluth Man Returns to Quiet Fears of His Friends.

The announcement in The Herald last evening that friends of J. Frederick Baars, Jr., feared for his safety, brought out the information that Mr. Baars is alive and well, and had merely failed to communicate with some of his Duluth friends since he went on the Vermilion range early in November.

Mr. Baars returned to Duluth last evening from the Cuyuna range, where he had gone on business a short time ago. He was surprised to learn that his friends were worried over him, and he hastened to assure them that he had not been lost in the woods on the Vermilion range, as they had feared.

Mr. Baars' friends were delighted that their fears were quieted so satisfactorily. The information in The Herald last evening was given by one of Mr. Baars' closest friends, who was genuinely disturbed over Mr. Baars' failure to appear where he had been expected on the range.

MERCURY TAKES TURN UPWARD

Snow and Warmer Weather Will Follow the Cold Snap.

The mercury last night dropped to 6 deg. below zero, but the motto of the little indicator today is, "Coming up!"

The Lake region and Southern Wisconsin had a comparative monopoly on cold weather this morning, but it won't last. It began to warm up this morning and will continue to do so for a few days. To the west the forces of Old Freeze-out are being dispersed by an area of warm weather, and it is expected to be considerably milder here tonight. The weather man says he doesn't think the mercury will go below the 10 above mark after nightfall.

The mild spell will be followed by a period of cold Saturday night and Sunday, but just how much colder it is likely to get is not on the cards.

However, it will warm up tomorrow, but there's no probability of a thaw, and there is a strong likelihood that we will get more or less snow tonight and tomorrow.

FEES FOR ADVICE BY TELEPHONE

All phases of malpractice as they appear in the Minnesota courts were discussed in an able paper by Attorney Howard T. Abbott.

Dr. S. H Boyer, Dr. T. L. Chapman of Duluth, and Dr. E. W. Harwood of Eveleth, were chosen as delegates to the convention of the state association, which will be held in Minneapolis late in 1911. The alternates named are Dr. M. K. Knauff of Two Harbors, Dr. C A. Stewart and Dr. J. M. Tufty.

Dr. W. A. Coventry was elected president of the St. Louis county association; Dr. J. A. McCuen, first vice president; Dr. E. Pengilly of Hibbing, second vice president; Dr. A. G. Schulze, secretary and treasurer. Dr. T. L. Chapman, Dr. C. A. Stewart and Dr. W. H. Magie were re-elected censors.

BRING THE LITTLE FOLKS IN TO TOYLAND

Santa Claus Will Be Here

A wireless message just received from Santa Claus states that he will arrive in his new 1911 model aeroplane, if nothing prevents, and be with us Saturday. He wishes to meet all boys and girls.

Formal Opening of This Wonderland Saturday: All Good Children Invited

TOYLAND in the basement is ready. Saturday has been set aside for the formal opening of this wonderful land. All the good children are invited to come and see the many things jolly old Santa Claus has sent to his Duluth headquarters from his toy factories at the North Pole. Such a wonderful lot there is, too. Enough for all the boys and girls of Duluth, Superior and the surrounding country for miles.

For the boys there are steam engines that make real steam, and will operate machinery; trains that will run on tracks and never tire; airships that fly like the big ones you have been told about; the jolly Mr. Jigger, who will dance every style of step for you. Besides there are the pretty drums, rocking horses, magic lanterns, games of every sort, and many other things you will delight to see.

For the girls there are the cutest little play stores, postoffices, and pianos. The prettiest dolls, some with lace or silk dresses, some with coat suits, some have hats with real ostrich tips; all will go to sleep, and some will talk. Then, there are doll cradles, and the most complete doll beds you ever saw, with wire springs, casters and everything just like the big one you sleep upon. There are doll dressers, chiffoniers and, in fact, every piece of furniture to completely furnish dolly's house.

Come, children, boys and girls, and see how well dear old Saint Nick has planned for you. Ask papa or mamma to come with you, for they will enjoy the visit most as much as you. Santa Claus has sent some presents, which we are going to give you Saturday. There's a puzzle for the boys and a skipping rope for girls. Come and get yours.

VASSAR IS IRRITATED

Scores the Slander That None of the Girls Can Cook.

Why! One Student Made Oyster Lunch For Forty Persons.

Poughkeepsie N. Y., Dec 9.—Vassar college is much irritated at the editorial inquiry of a New York newspaper in connection with the present strike of cooks and the consequent shortage of luncheons. The paper asked:

"Are there not four robust young women among the whole thousand who could temporarily fill the places of the absent cooks? Does no Vassar student know how to roast a joint, boil potatoes and dress a plain salad?"

From principal to the most diminutive freshgirl they indignantly deny the insinuation that there is such a lack. They say that if any such emergency had arisen several Hypatias would have been ready to take off their mortar coards and don checked aprons.

"The idea!" said a member of a basketball team today, "Why, lots of us know how to cook. The other day I made soup and oyster fricassee in my chafing dish for forty persons, and we often get our whole breakfast in our rooms."

Spent Her Christmas Cash.

As a reporter for the World was waiting to see Mrs. Kendrick, the principal, a student from Richmond received a caller from her home town and he asked her out to dinner.

"I hear you're starved," he said.

"Oh, no," she laughed. "This hall wasn't affected. But I met one of the girls from Raymond who said she was so hungry she'd spent all her Christmas allowance for sandwiches."

Both sides claim victory. The college authorities assert they have engaged cooks in New York and Albany, with the matrons and chambermaids helping out in the interim. Four chefs and about eight assistants are idle. They quit because the chefs had been deprived of the aid of one other helper.

"We get paid less than at any other institution," one boss cook told the reporter. "The man helper starts work at 5 in the morning, and the girl at 6. He gets $25 a month and she $18. The kitchen equipment is very inadequate and out of date, which makes our work twice as hard. We cook for 120 persons, including the help.

They Liked the Culture.

"Breakfast includes fruit, hot and cold cereals, eggs to order and chocolate or coffee. Luncheons are of soup, two meats, vegetables and pudding. Dinner in the evening has soup, two meats, three vegetables and dessert. Our help is green when we get it and we have to train it, but we have been willing to stay because our homes are here and we like the atmosphere of culture."

"The pupils have not gone into the kitchen, because there has been no necessity of that," said Mrs. Kendrick. "In the first place, it is not our policy to mix housework with studies, for the reason that our girls should spend their spare time outdoors or in exercise. We have never seriously considered putting in a domestic science course at Vassar. Our studies are cultural studies and our theory is that if we give a woman a well trained mind she will be able to manage the housework herself.

"When this writer asks if Vassar students are little interested in the realities of life, I would answer that I think they are very much, but to these girls at present the great realities are not steak and mashed potatoes. There is a tremendous interest in social service which is an enlarged and idealized domestic science."

Cultural Studies.

"Do you not think that those cultural studies tend to make women less willing to bear the drudgery of housework?"

"No, quite the opposite," Mrs. Kendrick replied "They subordinate it to its proper place. Sweeping the room is no longer a menial task, but is interesting to the erstwhile student of chemistry and bacteriology, because she recognizes the necessity for it. Again, she understands that she does not exist for the house but the house for her. It is not her biggest interest in life. You seldom see a college graduate wearing her soul out because 'the jelly won't jell,' or because one of her children have disarranged the library furniture.

"The woman who has nothing to think of except housework grows rusty and ugly and old. The college woman has hundreds of thoughts and interests outside.

"Do you think it is not necessary to train these young girls for housework—that women afterward just learn it by inspiration?" Mrs. Kendrick was asked.

"Not entirely," she replied. "Most women have a natural inclination for housework, so that it is not extremely difficult for them to master. It seems better to us to train their minds in these cultural studies while they are in this most plastic age. Most women can learn housework at home."

Why They Find Homes Dull.

"Isn't it true that most girls who go home from college are dissatisfied and don't care for their homes?"

"Yes," Mrs. Kendrick admitted, "but that is because they have been away and are a little out of interest. Then this college life has been brilliant; they have been mixing with many girls and having little social affairs. Also they have been having their fill of culture and association with people of unusual attainments. They are a little spoiled, too, because they have been having everything done for them. The buildings are here on their account; so are the teachers; so is the very curriculum planned for them. One mustn't be too severe with them or too disdainful. The girl of common sense soon works in and is happy and useful again. It is just the flash in the pan of the young thing."

"If it had been necessary, would there have been four volunteer cooks?"

"It is our boast that a Vassar girl can arise to any emergency," Mrs. Kendrick laughed.

Lady Baltimore Cake

The Most Popular Cake This Season

By Mrs. Janet McKenzie Hill, Editor of the Boston Cooking School Magazine

This is considered by many cooking authorities the finest cake that can be made, though in reality it is not at all difficult.

K C Lady Baltimore Cake

One cup butter; 2 cups granulated sugar; 1 cup milk; 1 teaspoonful rose water; 3½ cups flour; 3 level teaspoonfuls K C Baking Powder; whites of 6 eggs, beaten dry.

Cream the butter and beat in the sugar gradually. Sift together, three times, the flour and baking powder, and add to the butter and sugar, alternately with the milk and rose water. Lastly, add the egg whites. Bake in three-layer cake pans. Put the layers together with the following frosting.

NOTE—The cake is a large one and sells at Women's Exchanges for $1.50

Frosting for Lady Baltimore Cake

Three cups granulated sugar; 1 cup boiling water; whites of 3 eggs; 1 cup chopped raisins; 1 cup chopped nut-meats; 5 figs cut in thin slices.

Stir the sugar and water until the sugar is dissolved, then let boil without stirring until the syrup from a spoon will spin a long thread; pour upon the whites of the eggs, beaten dry, beating constantly meanwhile. Continue the beating until the frosting is cold; add the fruit and spread upon the cake.

The K C Cook's Book contains ninety just such delicious recipes,—bread, muffins, cakes and pastry. You can secure a copy free by sending the certificate packed in every 25-cent can of K C Baking Powder to the JAQUES MFG. CO., Chicago. Small cans do not contain Cook's Book certificates.

AVOID REVIVALS, PLAYS AND OPERAS

They Are Driving Chicagoans to Commit Crimes, Says Dr. Grinker.

Chicago, Dec. 9.—Noise, grand opera and religious revivals are driving thousands of nervous Chicago people to shoot, rob and kill. Dr. Julius Grinker, an expert on neurotics, told this to the Chicago Medical society.

"Excesses in emotionalism find thousands of easy victims," he said. "Exciting plays, operas, or revival meetings are dangerous to those predisposed to nervousness. Hysteria is the predominating element in religious awakenings. Such revivals are not lasting. The eloquence of the revivalist sways his nervous hearers, but it is followed by a reaction. Why is it that a wave of religious enthusiasm is so closely followed by a wave of crime such as is sweeping over the city now? It is because the masses are carried away by an idea. They are borne on a surge of hysteria.

"Religion should be calm and reflective. I condemn everything that appeals to passion. The nervous should avoid revivals, plays and operas that carry them away. Hysteria is lying in wait for them when they give way to their emotions.

'Many a good movement is killed in its incipiency by the over-exaltation of emotionalists. I see much good in woman suffrage, but the suffragettes are harming their cause. They are emotionalists. They are nervous."

Dr. Grinker linked Dowieism, the Emmanuel movement and the New Though together as "religio-medicalism," dependent on the emotionalism of their proselytes.

"It would be impossible for these movements to exist were it not for the nervous and emotional people who are ready to throw themselves into anything.

"Noise in our big cities is nerve wrecking. Crime waves are due to reaction on the nerves of certain elements of the population.

"The road to health is to live in the philosophy of optimism, and live so as to set a good example to your children. This is the best training for them and for you. If you do it you will escape nervousness.

TENOR COULD NOT SING.

Had No Gun License as Required By Russian Law.

Warsaw, Russian Poland, Dec. 9.—Russian red-tapism was brought to a climax this morning when the police called in by the customs authorities refused to let the widely known tenor Ignatz Dygas have his costumes for the opera called "Bal Masque."

"You haven't a gun license," said the officers, "so we can't let you have the properties without special permission from the czar."

Dygas asked what a gun license had to do with his costumes.

"There is a sword among your things," was the answer.

In vain the artist protested that the weapon was only a property sword and could not kill anybody, even if a Cossack wielded it. The authorities were firm and sent him away to get a gun license.

A gun license is only issued to people who have proved that they know how to shoot, and Dygas declares he has never handled a real firearm in his life.

His costumes, covered with government seals, are lying at the custom house here, while he is vainly trying to get somebody to persuade the police that his sword is harmless.

Meanwhile the opera bills have been changed, because Mr. Dygas has nothing but his everyday clothes to sing in. As Russian formalities take a long time, the properties are likely to remain where they are for another fortnight.

GLACIAL PERIOD AX IS FOUND IN IDAHO.

Dillon, Mont., Dec. 9.—Word has reached Dillon of the finding of quite a curiousity near Junction, Idaho, a few days ago in the form of a stone ax. While digging a well on his ranch near that place, George Plum discovered the ax at a depth of thirty-five feet below the surface, after digging through sand, clay and hardpan.

The ax is described as being about eight inches long, six inches broad and two inches thick and weighs about ten pounds. The find has attracted considerable attention and much speculation has been indulged in as to how old the thing is. It is estimated that the last glacial drift of that section occurred some 20,000 years or more ago and the manufacturer of the weapon undoubtedly roamed the hills before that imoprtant event which changed the appearance of the face of the earth. All old-timers in that section have abandoned their claims of being "among the first pioneers."

CABBAGE EVERY MEAL

Proved Too Strenuous and Ivinich Beat His Wife.

Philadelphia, Dec. 9. — When arraigned before Magistrate Beaton, Ludwig Ivinich, of East Edgemont street, admitted having given his wife a severe beating and as a justification declared he had been forced to eat cabbage twenty-one times during the past week.

Ludwig says he wanted pea soup once in a while, but his wife insisted upon the cabbage diet. When it wasn't cabbage straight it was sauerkraut, and when it wasn't sauerkraut it was boiled cabbage. After eating twenty meals Ludwig rebelled at supper, took a mouthful of fried cabbage and then turned his wife over his knee. She said in court she was unable to sit down.

Magistrate Beaton advised Ludwig to eat anything in the future, but assured him he would get pea soup for the next four weeks. That is the regulation diet in Moyamensing prison.

TRIP TO ENGLAND AS GIFT.

Mayor of Hackensack Makes His Gardener, Rebbick, Happy.

New York, Dec. 9.—Albert Rebbick, a gardener, of Hackensack, N. J., who for nineteen years has been in the employ of Mayor Cortlandt Linkrown of that place has often longed to spend Christmas with his mother in England, but he never could save enough money to pay for such a trip.

On Saturday, however, his dream at last came true, for Mayor Linkrown presented the gardener with a Christmas gift that was big enough to pay for a trip to England and return, and Rebbick will remain away till the middle of January.

"Received the free sample of Syrup Pepsin and have taken another bottle and find great relief from it. CHILDREN'S PARADISE

Mrs. Humphry Ward's Pleas for Evening Playgrounds in London.

Succeeds in Keeping 40,000 Youngsters Off the City's Streets.

London, Dec. 9.—There is no English novelist so perversely unappreciated in England as Mrs. Humphrey Ward. Not long ago I heard Hilaire Belloc, who, with the assistance of Father Andrew Lang, sheds a literary tone over the Morning Post, remark to himself: "Oh, yes, they read Mrs. Ward in America, I am told." Other men, after attempting to prove the peccability of our literary taste, conclude their argument with: "But what can you expect of a nation that reads Mrs. Ward!" She seems to be regarded here as a Marie Corelli trying to be a George Eliot.

This lofty literary condemnation is nothing, however, to the slanders which the suffragettes have circulated; the things they say can be described best as real mean. Mrs. Ward, like everyone else in the world, did not foresee in its beginning that the suffrage movement would attain the foothold it has in England. In spite of the fact that her sympathies are and always have been anti-suffrage, she is now accused of regretting her affiliation with the anti-suffragettes. Petty accusations of this kind are unanswerable. Nevertheless, the splendid work Mrs. Ward has done for the poor children of London makes 99 per cent of the suffragettes look small.

Five years ago Mrs. Ward began to plead the cause of evening playgrounds for children. So successful has she been that there are now sixteen centers, and a weekly attendance of 40,000. When I expressed my surprise at these remarkable figures, Mrs. Ward exclaimed: "But!—we are only still at the beginning. There is nothing for it but to go on asking, with all the urgency I can, for more sympathy and more help. The growth of the centers has outstriped the fund, and we are at a standstill until those who love children come once more to our aid.

"The winter evenings will be upon us directly, and in the vast working-class districts of London thousands of children, as they come trooping out of school at 4:30 into winter darkness, or fog, or rain, will have at least three or four hours of leisure before there is any chance of their going to bed.

"We all know the pathetic, familiar figure of the 'little mother,' the girl of 11 or 12, who wheels or carries the family 'biby' about for hours; and then there is much earning of stray pennies among the elder boys. But the majority of the children, especially of those between 5 and 11, have no home duties; they are simply in the way in the small tenement rooms where they live. The parents turn them out, and they have nothing to do but roam the streets, to get all the excitement they can out of them, to hang around the saloons and watch all the unsavory things that may go on in their neighborhood, with no supervision, nothing to stand between them and the vice that lies in wait for them. Besides the moral dangers of the streets, think of the exposure that often befalls young children in the winter evenings. And then the childish loneliness and misery they go through is pitiful to see.

"Meanwhile, close to these thousands of unshepherded children are the great school buildings, with their large, bright rooms standing empty, just in these hours between the end of school and the beginning of the evening classes. What the play centers committee does is to obtain free use of them and then turn in a proper staff of play leaders and hand-work teachers, with a proper supply of toys and materials."

There aren't many suffragettes who have created a paradise for 40,000 children—or authors either.

SILENCE REIGNS IN VILNA STREET

No Sound Breaks Stillness of Thoroughfare in Russia.

Vilna, Russia, Dec. 9.—Vilna, the capital of Lithuania, in Russia, is unique in having in the busiest part of the city a street in which nobody ever speaks.

At the northern entrance to the street is a huge archway on the top of which is an altar containing a sacred picture of the Blessed Virgin. Adjoining it is a Roman Catholic church. Mass is daily said before the picture, which is then unveiled. People passing through the street at that time of the day, no matter what their religious belief, kneel down in the street, their faces turned toward the picture.

The rest of the town is paved with noisy cobblestones, but this thoroughfare is laid with wooden planks, so that the traffic may make as litle noise as possible. No sound of quarrelling, no urging of horses or cracking of whips has been heard in the street for centuries.

When visiting Vilna during the Moscow campaign Napoleon I said he would like to carry it just as it stood to Paris. He gave strict orders that none of his troops should break the rule of silence while passing that way.

The picture, which is 500 years old, came from Italy. It is hung with votive offerings and has, among other gems, a priceless rope of pearls. Except for the face, little of the original picture can be seen, as the whole front is covered with beaten gold, forming a kind of dress and leaving the hand exposed. It is known as "the Blessed Virgin of the Gateway," and attracts large numbers of pilgrims.

Five years ago the head of the Greek church in the city wanted to take it away from the gateway and put it in his own cathedral. He was taken ill and died soon after. The archimandite who succeeded him also tried to get the picture for his own church, but he also died suddenly of a mysterious illness. Then the governor of Vilna, who was a member of the Greek church, obtained permission from the holy synod at St. Petersburg to have the picture removed. He also died a violent and sudden death, being mysteriously shot outside the barracks.

Those who believe in the picture's miraculous power said that these sudden deaths were a sign that the picture must not be removed, and no further attempt has been made in that direction.

GIRL'S HEAD ROLLS OFF COUNT SEEFRIED'S DESK.

Salzburg, Austria, Dec. 9.—Two famous tragedies—the suicide of Crown Prince Rudolph and the assassination of his mother, Empress Elizabeth—are recorded in the annals of the house of Hapsburg. Now a third tragedy, not so sensational, perhaps, but none the less remarkable, occupies the aged emperor's thoughts.

Count Seefried, who married Princess Elizabeth of Bavaria, a granddaughter of Francis Joseph, and who has a fine castle near Salzburg, was overawed one day recently to see a girl's head roll off his desk as he sat down to work. The police were called in immediately.

The same day the headless body of the young woman was found on the railway which runs past the castle.

All sorts of horrible rumors filled the neighborhood, but the theory accepted is that the count's dog carried the head to the place where it was found.

Anarchist orators declare that the reigning house is under a spell.

TIME BEING MONEY, HE SPENDS TO SAVE TIME.

Trenton, N. J., Dec. 9.—It takes James M Donald eight minutes to get from his home to the nearest suburban railway station, with fair consideration for New Jersey's speed law, and with regard for the mechanism of his high powered auto. Eight minutes is more time that Donald feels he can spare at the start of his daily trip to New York, where he is chairman of the Hanover National bank.

So, to cut down the running time he has bought a 100-acre farm that lies between his home and the station. He will cut a road through the farm at his own expense, dedicate it to the public and reduce his running time by five minutes.

THE COMMISSION PLAN.

No. 22.—What it did in Leavenworth.

When Leavenworth, Kansas, adopted the commission plan matters were in a bad way. Kansas is a prohibition state, but Leavenworth has little prohibition sentiment. Blind pigs were the natural result. The old city government had been getting a steady revenue out of them by a system of monthly fines. Then a zealous state official put the lid on Leavenworth, and this source of a large revenue dried up.

Then came the commission, and the old administration was glad enough to escape. The commission was composed entirely of business men—a hardware merchant, a soap manufacturer, a lumber dealer, a furniture manufacturer and a drayman—and its only conception of doing business was along business lines, and not political lines. In spite of a loss of $80.000 a year from the blind pig revenues, here is what the commission did in Leavenworth:

Impending—if not actual—bankruptcy and financial helplessness were succeeded by a sound and satisfactory condition of the city's finances.

Citizens of the highest standing having been induced to take office, and the politicians being driven out by large majorities, city affairs were put on a business basis.

A period of decreasing population and stagnation in business and building was followed by one of rapid growth in all these respects.

In twenty-five years under the old government the city paved twelve miles of streets. In the first twenty-one months under the new system five and a half miles were paved.

City bonds amounting to $20,200 were paid off in two years.

The county indebtedness for which the city was responsible was paid off by the city to the amount of $119,750 in two years.

Only $27,000 of new bonds were issued against these reductions; a net reduction of the bonded debt of $112,950 took place, and new bonds were issued only for permanent improvements.

A new set of books was installed, and the city's business handled like that of "an up-to-date mercantile establishment."

All city bills were paid before the tenth of each month. Appointments were made for fitness, regardless of party, with the results to be expected from such a policy.

Property values, largely because of the improved civic conditions, increased largely. New factories were brought in.

All these improved conditions were brought about despite a loss of $80,000 in illicit revenue from blind pigs—an amount that bulks largely in the affairs of a small city—and without increasing the tax rate.

THE ILLINOIS "LITTLE BALLOT."

As tending to show that the people take interest in their own affairs, that they want the opportunity to pass upon them, that they want their government brought closer into their control, and that they vote on such questions with intelligence and discrimination, the results of the "little ballot" put before the people of Illinois at the last election are interesting.

Complete figures are now in the office of the secretary of state of Illinois. They show wide interest and an enormous majority for popular government. Illinois hasn't been a conspicuous example of the success of representative government, which in nine cases out of ten in this country has turned out to be misrepresentative government. Its state house has reeked with scandal. Chicago furnishes to its legislative bodies a large number of unprincipled rascals, and recent disclosures have made the country look about as bad as Chicago in that respect. The showing on the "little ballot," therefore, is peculiarly interesting.

Three proposals were submitted to the people in a sort of unofficial referendum.

First, the people were asked whether they wanted the initiative and referendum submitted as a proposed constitutional amendment.

Second, they were asked whether they approved a comprehensive state system of civil service.

Third, they were asked whether they wanted corrupt practices legislation, intended to purify politics.

On all these proposals, particularly the first, the affirmative vote was heavy, and the total vote cast on them was a very large proportion of the total vote cast at the election.

There were 443,505 votes for the initiative and referendum, and only 127,751 against them, the affirmative majority of 315,754.

There were 404,444 votes for a state civil service system, and 119,889 votes against it; an affirmative majority of 284,555.

There were 417,311 votes for corrupt practices legislation and 122,068 against; an affirmative majority of 295,243.

Such results as these go far to cut the ground from under those who declare that the people will not take interest in their own affairs, and that the only way to transact public business is to delegate it all to legislative assemblies.

After more than a hundred years of representative government, during which it has had a thorough trial, there is no remaining room for doubt that representative government must be tempered with pure democracy to get good results—that the people must be given closer control. The theory that the people cannot be trusted to handle their own affairs, and that public business must be left to representatives chosen by the people is exploded. If the people are fitted to pick their representatives, they are fitted to pass on public policies; and certainly results of direct legislation cannot possibly be worse than the results of a representative government which has almost invariably been misrepesentative and which has worked to enslave the people instead of to serve them.

THE ECONOMIC POSSIBILITIES OF DULUTH WEATHER.

The publicity committee of the Commercial club does well to gloat over the character of the Duluth climate. There is so much in it to gloat over that it is good to know that steps will be taken to inform the world at large of it, so that the world may come here and participate, and get into a position to join in the gloating.

The committee's jubilations have to do largely with summer weather, in its relation to crop-growing; and as to that it is well known that there is plenty of rainfall, drouths being almost unknown; that there is plenty of sunshine, as there is a longer daylight period during the summer here than there is much further south; and that these things, combined with a prodigiously fertile soil, make this section pre-eminently well adapted to agriculture, horticulture, dairying and kindred pursuits.

But while that may be the most important aspect of Duluth's weather commercially, a fact hardly less important is that Duluth's weather makes this about the finest spot on earth to live in; and when a place that is pleasant to live in happens also to be a good place to make money in, that is a thing which it is wrong to keep secret: it ought to be published to all the world. And that, apparently, is what the publicity force of the Commercial club proposes to do.

The Herald still hopes that steps will be taken to carry out the plan it has been suggesting for several years. On the delightful days of summer, when the day temperatures are running in the pleasant seventies, with night temperatures in the early sixties and even dipping down into the fifties, other cities are sweltering in unbearable heat night and day. If advertisements could be telegraphed once or twice a week to leading dailies in the heat-afflicted cities, telling what Duluth's weather conditions are, there could be but one result: everybody who is movable will pick right up and come to Duluth to enjoy life.

That is a mighty good way to start a big tourist traffic. Tourist traffic is important in itself, because it is profitable. Tourists leave money behind.

But it is more important still in another aspect. A large proportion of the tourists are men of means, with capital to invest. Coming here for relief and recreation, they cannot fail, being men of observation and discernment, to look about and take in the enormous possibilities for enterprise, backed by capital, that lie all about this region.

Tempted here by the fine weather and splendid summer conditions, some, at least, can hardly fail to make up their minds to invest here, or to come here to live.

Duluth's climate, taking it all in all, is a mighty good card to play, and Duluth hasn't, thus far, played it strongly enough.

SELLING FRAUDULENT FOOD.

According to a local story in The Herald last night the city milk inspector has been analyzing samples of the milk sold in local restaurants. Out of twenty-five samples taken, fifteen fell below the standard of 3.5 per cent butter fat required by the state law.

This standard is very modest. Milk that contains 3.5 per cent of butter fat is just ordinarily good milk. Really good milk contains more than that. Milk that contains less cannot by any amount of allowance be called good milk.

Milk is good food. That is, it is good food when it is clean, fresh and contains a decent amount of nourishment. When it has less than 3 per cent of butter fat—one sample had only 1.8 per cent—it is a delusion and a fraud.

Cows whose milk contains less than 3 per cent of butter fat aren't worth keeping. They don't earn their board. Modern dairymen who test the milk given by each cow weed out the animals that give such thin milk, and sell them to the butcher because they can't afford to keep them. It is doubtful if any cow, however, gives milk so thin and poor as some of the alleged milk sold in restaurants.

Milk costs enough, these days, even when it is rich and pure. When it is watered, or the greater part of the richness is taken out of it before it is sold, it is very expensive food indeed. Folks who pay the regular price for milk, whether by the quart or the glass, are entitled to honest milk—and judging from the report of the milk inspector, a good many of them are not getting honest milk.

Surely the public, which isn't able to judge by its looks the milk it buys, is entitled to protection against fraud of this character.

HOW IT WORKS.

Port Huron, Mich., which lately adopted a new charter providing for the commission form of city government, held its first election under the new system this week, and the result was described in The Herald last night.

While Port Huron will be unable to furnish testimony as to the advantages of the commission plan until it has tried it in actual operation, already that city provides proofs of one very important claim that is made for the new plan, and that is the claim that by eliminating party designations it eliminates party methods, and encourages business men of capacity to take part in city affairs.

In its election Monday Port Huron cleaned out the politicians, one and all. It elected as mayor the man who has been its mayor for two terms; but he never was classed as a political mayor, and was re-elected on his merits as a public official.

The four other commissioners are all business men of broad public spirit who have never taken an active part in partisan politics, but have been leaders in the city's public and business affairs—just the kind of men, indeed, that every city needs, but just the kind of men no city ever gets under the old political system of city government.

Without waiting for returns as to the working out of the commission form in Port Huron, that city already has furnished reasons enough for adopting it—that it cuts out the old style partisan government, and by substituting plain business government offers an incentive for men of business capacity and experience to take an active part in public affairs.

All eyes will be on St. Paul during the session of the legislature, and a fiercer light of publicity will beat upon the doings of that body than ever before.

THE OPEN COURT.

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their ideas about the topics of general interest. Letters should not exceed 300 words—the shorter the better. They must be written on one side of the paper only, and they must be accompanied in every case by the name and address of the writer, though these need not be published. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

PROPER COURSE FOR LEAGUE TO PURSUE.

To the Editor of The Herald:

If the laws of Duluth are being violated as flagrantly as is claimed by the so-called "Civic" league, why don't the members of the organization lay their information before the grand jury? It strikes me that that would be the proper manner to get action. If they cannot produce the facts the members of the league ought to keep what they think to themselves. Advertising Duluth broadcast as being rotten with vice is certainly not helping the city, to say the very least. If Duluth is overrun with lewd women, if gambling is prevalent, if the liquor laws are being violated as claimed by the "Civic" league, it should be an easy matter to put enough witnesses before the grand jury to secure indictments. That would be getting action of the most positive sort and would do more wholesome good than columns of resolutions telling about what is said to be going on.

CHAUFFEURS ARE MADE THE "GOATS".

To the Editor of The Herald:

Please permit us, in the columns of your valuable paper, to reply to the article appearing in The Herald under date of Dec. 6, entitled "Lesson to Chauffeurs," wherein you quote Mr. Russell, of the Russell Motor company, as making the statement that every garage in the city has had more or less trouble in preventing the railroading of cars from garages without their owners' consent.

We take exception to this statement, for only recently under date of Oct. 22 and 23, we offered a reward of $50 to any one who could prove that their cars had been taken from our garage for joy riding, or without the owher's consent. This reward was also intended for any one who could prove that any tools or accessories belonging to any automobile in storage at our place, had been stolen or removed without the owner's consent.

We believe the majority of the chauffeurs in this city are misunderstood, and in a great many cases, made to bear the brunt of the burden of proof for a great many more misdemeanors than they actually commit. They seem to be, in a time of stress, the logical ones to be attacked to prevent the burden of responsibility from resting on the shoulders of those committing daily offenses, and which so stir up public opinion against automobiles in general, and experienced operators.

The Commission Form of Government.

Atlanta Constitution: In an able and informative address before a notable gathering of Alabama business men, Associate Editor J. B. Hornaby, of the Birmingham News, discusses the triumph of the idea behind the commission form of municipal government in the cities in which it had been adopted.

The recital of what the new plan has done in such cities as Galveston, Des Moines, Houston, Dallas and smaller communities is a forceful argument to prove what it may do in other communities.

Back of the whole plan is the basic idea that a municipal government is a business corporation. Tax payers who invest money in municipal government are entitled to returns as surely as stockholders in a railroad or a banking corporation.

Tax payers are entitled to have their money well invested; to have public officials who are faithful to their trust and, above all, who are scrupulously careful in the expenditures of the public money.

Good government is an asset to any community.

Bad government will retard a city's growth despite every natural advantage it may possess.

An aroused public sentiment, which will place capable men of proven capacity in municipal office and give them authority to exercise their talents and to shoulder the responsibilities of their positions, will bring about a transformation.

This is the purpose behind the municipal form of city government. It concentrates authority, and likewise concentrates responsibility.

Back of the three or five commissioners stand the people.

In the hands of able commissioners gratifying success has been encountered in Galveston, Houston, Dallas and Des Moines.

The wider latitude allowed under a commission form of government to the municipal heads will attract men who have ideas and the ability to put them into effect if given free rein.

The city of Birmingham has shown its faith in the new form of city government, believing that what has been accomplished in other communities can be duplicated in any other city.

In any event, the commission plan has passed far beyond the experimental stage.

In the hands of good men it approaches as near the ideal as any scheme devised by modern civics.

A Visit.

I went to the lily pond today.
The skies were dark and cold and gray.
I stumbled along through drifts of snow,
Where pinks and daisies used to grow.

The tall pines bowed their proud heads down
Under the weight of their ermine gowns.
Each twig was dressed as a king might be,
And the pond, ah, the pond, was a diamond sea.

Such dazzling splendor, such gorgeous array,
I had not beheld for many a day;
For even the lowliest hidden limbs
Were dressed in robes of flashing gems.

The harp of the winds played a loud fierce tune,
Not the kind that lulled my soul in June,
But the kind that sets the blood on fire
And filled the heart with a wild desire.

'Tis a time of war o'er the hills and lea,
And the soldiers' camp by the diamond sea.
King Winter has triumphed o'er the lands
And strangled summer with icy hands.

But the fallen foe shall rise again,
And by the strength of her grief and pain
Shall cause the howling winds to cease,
And then, shall come a time of peace.

—Della McGovern.

Those Stripes.

Our Dumb Animals: "Now, children what is this?" asked the teacher, holding up the picture of a zebra.

"It looks to me like a horse in a bathing suit," answered a little boy.

The Runners.

......For I run not alone.
There run with me the Silent Three,
Through fields the dead have sown.

One with a sweet and piteous smile—
The tireless Past—ah, he will last
For many a footsore mile.

And one, the Now—with stern, white gaze—
Who gives no heed though I do bleed
Along the thorny ways.

One with masked face, lips dumb,
Beckons my soul to some blind goal—
The wrath of Things to Come.

......Nay, I run not alone.
There run with me the Silent Three,
Through fields the dead have sown.

SOME "PUSSYFOOT"-PRINTS.

Inconsistent Uncle Sam.

Coleraine Optic: Seems strange, doesn't it, that our Uncle Samuel has just discovered that the saloon men of this section are breaking the law and must be punished, when he has been licensing them to do this very thing for over sixty years?

Takes Decided Exception.

Ely Miner: "Pussyfoot" Johnson is not quite certain that Hibbing and Chisholm are in the Indian country, but in the meantime has ordered these towns to abstain from anything intoxicating. Seems to us that "Pussyfoot" is taking some extra long chances in his blind zeal to earn his salary. That "Indian country" gag is getting to be somewhat of a nuisance, and the question now arises, is the lazy, government-fed Indian better than the tax-paying, law-abiding white man?

Warns the Overbold.

Virginia Enterprise: It behooves the liquor men to play their game in accordance with the provisions of the state law, that attention of the department may not be directed their way.

What Bemidji Wants to Know.

Bemidji Sentinel: It seems very strange that W. E. Johnson is always harping on that there will be no discrimination shown, yet he admits that Duluth and parts of the Twin Cities are within the boundary of the prescribed treaty, and that if Mr. Zollman, attorney for the brewers of the state, does not get too perniciously active, he (Johnson) may not enforce the treaty law in these places. Can he be indiscriminate in his work and at the same time permit saloons to run in these places?

Big Bill for Drinks.

St. Cloud Journal-Press: Uncle Sam will be called upon some day to liquidate a mighty big bill for "drinks"—liquors consumed. The destruction of property (liquors) by the special agents of the interior department is unwarranted, and while it may, technically, be sanctioned by Indian treaty provisions, the necessity for such prohibition no longer exists. We predict that congress will be flooded in the future with bills for such property wantonly destroyed.

Blames the Brewers.

Aurora News: "Sightless porkers" are not so much in evidence as they were before the government started its crusade in Northern Minnesota, but the brewers continue to sell about as much beer to the illegitimate saloons as to the licensed places. But for this condition, Hibbing and Chisholm would not have been closed.

Put Up to Washington.

Biwabik Times: It is to be hoped that the responsible officials in Washington will see the matter in the right light and instruct Mr. Johnson to keep his hands off except as to towns where Indians have secured or are likely to secure liquor. We believe the protection of the Indians is justified, but cannot see the necessity of closing many other towns where it is admitted that the Indians do not secure the product. The closing of Hibbing and Chisholm through petty spite is carrying the matter to the extreme of the ridiculous.

Call Out the Troops!

Morris Sun: The federal authorities are now trying to keep liquor out of the Indian country by forbidding the shipment of liquor into the Indian dry belt, as it is called. Railroads and express companies have been notified not to accept such shipments, and what goes in now will have to be hauled in in some other manner. The saloon keepers will undoubtedly try to secure liquor for their customers in some way, and the government may find it necessary to call out the troops for patrol work in order to put a stop to the traffic.

Pensions.

Harper's Weekly: William Bayard Hale's articles in the World's Work about pensions are pretty doleful reading. Hardly any one questions that pensions have been shockingly overdone and that our pension system is honeycombed with politics and fraud, and that the great extension have been planned and carried through with too little purpose to afford relief to veterans and their dependents who deserve and need it, and too much desire to keep up a vast expenditure to enrich pension agents, to rivet high protection upon the country, and to hold the old-soldier vote to the Republican party. Pensions this year will cost the people about $157,000,000. The laws under which these pensions are paid will stand. To repeal any of them is not sugested. The sums paid out under them will fall off rapidly in the course of the next ten years provided no wholesale new pension legislation is enacted. What is to be done is to induce a critical attitude on the part of congress and the administration and all future administrations toward pension legislation. Further than that, it may be possible, if the inspiration is strong enough, to overhaul the pension list and excise from it the swindlers, of whom there must be an enormous number. No merited pension is grudged, no lawful pension under existing laws, good or bad, is in any danger of attack; but the list might very properly be examined, and further reckless legislation should be stopped. The pension-jobbers doubtless feel that they and their clients have now a vested right in about $150,000,000 of the taxpayer's money, and that the rate of increase must march with diminishing numbers. For that idea they are likely to find plenty of backing, though there is encouragement in the recollection that the next pension committee in the house will not be named by Uncle Joe.

Fad Warnings.

New York Press: Drink water and get typhoid fever. Drink milk and get tuberculosis. Drink whisky and get jimjams. Drink soup and get fat. Eat meat and encourage cancer, apoplexy and appendicitis. Eat oysters and absorb typhoid and gastric poison germs. Eat vegetables and give the system Asiatic, thin-blooded weakness. Eat dessert and die with paresis or something else. Smoke cigarettes and die too soon. Drink coffee and fall into insomnia and nervous prostration. Drink tea and get weak heart. Drink wine and so drink gout. Blame it all, if you want to keep well, quit eating and drinking, smoking and loving, and before breathing or touching anything, see that the aid and everything is perfectly sterilized. Some scientific cranks or madmen think every man should so live, while another set of cranks think all modern science is nonsense. There is a scientific moderation in living that almost surely insures long life, no matter what the different kinds of cranks say.

Millionaire and Housemaid.

New York World: Much is made of the marriage of an "heir to millions" and a young woman who was once a housemaid. The marriage of a millionaire political leader and a hospital nurse is included in the same category of romance.

What of it? We are periodically reminded that there is nothing in blue blood, and no doubt a housemaid's veins have derived enough azure drops from the long past to qualify for a matrimonial alliance with a rich husband. The girl's the girl for a' that, as in the case of petty Martha Hilton, the tavern maid-of-all-work whom Governor Wentworth married and Longfellow celebrated in verse; the fair Agnes Surriage, or Sarah Hoggins, the village beauty who married the Marquis of Exeter. The mother of Don John of Austria, was a washerwoman, and from Anthony Hope we know how Sophy Grouch, the English kitchenmaid, "rose to be Queen of Kravonia."

Poor Sarah Hoggins died of a broken heart as a result of her social translation. But such a contingency is not to be apprehended in the present instance. When a lord marries a chorus girl or a millionaire's son a former housemaid nowadays, love is not called on to "level ranks" to an extent threatening unhappiness as a result of any serious social inequality.

OVER THE CHRISTMAS WIRE.

Life: "Hello, Central. Give me Forty Below Zero, North Pole. All right. Is that you, Santa Claus?"

"Yes, yes. Who's calling?"

"Uncle Sam. I want to give you the list of things you're to bring for my children."

"All right. Wait till I get a pencil. Ready now. Go ahead."

"Put down a hobble skirt for the Goddess of Liberty. She's getting so old-fashioned nobody ever notices her any more."

"One hobble skirt. Next."

"You may bring Wall street a nice new standard of business morals."

"Very well."

"For the Democratic party a big bunch of plain common sense."

"And for the suffragettes a little old-fashioned feminine modesty."

"Yep."

"For the trusts you may bring, let me see—well, never mind. Scratch them off. They've got everything already. Instead of that put down the common people. Bring them a new tariff."

"Very good."

"In the stockings of Willie Bryan and Teddy Roosevelt you may put certificates of life membership in the down and out club."

"Got it."

"And for the soldiers in my army you may bring the canteen that was taken away from them."

"Down."

"To my congress you may fetch a goodly quantity of honest desire to serve the people."

"That's a pretty big order, Samuel."

"Pack up for the American woman a bundle of sensible clothes to take the place of the silly duds she's wearing now."

"Right."

"Put on the list some celerity for my judges and lawyers."

"Correct."

"To my people who live on farms and in lonely places, the comforts and convenience of a parcels post system."

"Entered."

"And to all little children and aged persons love and care from the young and strong."

"No mistake about that."

"To every sweet dispositioned maiden lady a handsome, rich and loving husband."

"That's easy."

"And to each of the states of the Union and to my outlying possessions peace, prosperity and happiness."

Sitting on a Fence.

The Atlantic: An element of grave importance and unquestioned worth is the privilege, nay, the imperative necessity, of sitting on a fence from time to time. Literature hints at this. Lewis Carroll's "aged, aged man a-sitting on a gate" had, by the sunset of his days at least, acquired this wisdom. Poor Keats owned to a hankering to "sit upon an Alp as on a throne"—although the German school of critics, keenly sensing the discomfort which inevitably disqualifies a mountain pinnacle for the scene of prolonged sessile repose, suggests metathesis, and would amend the reading to "sit upon an Alp as on a thorn;" adducing as collateral argument Keats' well-known admiration for the nightingale, and that bird's familiar practice of artificially stimulating the centers of voice-production by causing its breast to impinge upon a thorn or similar sharp object. Leaving this delicate problem to the competent consideration of the wise, we may safely conclude that our first thesis is correct, and that to sit on a fence beside a road is of itself a satisfaction and an inspiration. For, be it posited again, the walker walks not to arrive, but to be in the world, to contemplate the same, and to take sufficient leisure for the formation of his judgments. To do this, he must sit.

Songs of Wedlock.

You are so brave, so loyal and so true!
You bring such sunshine to the last farewell
When some far duty calls me forth from you,
What fears consume your heart I cannot tell;
Not mine to know what prayers or teardrops pour
From your pent heart, when you have closed the door.
But this I know: How long, how far I roam,
My honor and my babes are safe with you
And light and sweetness shall illumine our home;
You are so brave, so true!

Your are so brave, so loyal and so true,
I should be worse than craven did I fail
To make the last long kiss I had from you
My knightly sword and shield and triple mail.
You cannot see through leagues of space that part,
If passion or if peace be in my heart.
But this believe: How long, how far I roam,
Whate'er my brain may plan, or hands may do,
I would be worthy to be welcomed home
By you, so brave, so true!

—T. A. Daly, in the Catholic Standard and Times.

The Primary System "Made Good."

William Allen White in December American Magazine: The primary system of nominations has done all that its advocates claimed it would do. It has broken the chain binding business to politics. And it has done more. It has released public sentiment, and with the possibility of a real expression of public sentiment has come a definite growth of public sentiment. And how strong and unanimous it was as it came rolling up in the returns from the primary elections and in the returns of the general election. Never before have we been so nearly one people, with one dominant political ideal as we have shown ourselves this summer and autumn. We have said this is our country—we realize it now; we propose to run it; now that we have found the political gunpowder we propose to end the political feudalism under which we have been living; this is our country, for we are of one mind and that mind is finding voice. And that voice is speaking for the average man. Never before in all the world have any 90,000,000 of people held one idea, one abstract idea, so firmly in mind as the American people have held this idea; that capital the product of the many is to be operated fundamentally for the benefit of the many. This idea is essentially an altruistic idea. For it is not the poor who have spoken, nor the rich, but those who have small means which they are willing to put under the common rule. The masses who spoke at the primaries and at the elections were well-to-do, honest men with sacrifice, not greed, in their hearts. They are the insurgents. They—the common people, whom the great Insurgent loved—are beginning to understand and repeat His message of service through sacrifice.

Opponents.

Cincinnati Enquirer: Colonel "Abe" Gruber, at a luncheon at Saratoga, paused in an eloquent address to tell a story.

"Yes," he said, "those two factions are as ineradicably opposed as Brown and Black.

"Brown and Black were always arguing. They could never see any question in the same light.

"Brown,' said Black one day, 'I wonder what would happen if you ever agreed with me on anything?'

"'I'd be wrong; I'd be wrong," Black answered hurriedly."

A Safeguard.

Collier's: Maine began the Democratic sweep. Massachusetts did her full share. Bounded by both of them is New Hampshire, which went insurgent. The others are not. The moral can be picked out of the election almost everywhere. And, by the way, just watch La Follette in the next senate. He will fight for all the measures he believes in, and against those which he thinks wrong, and he will be a relief among those who allow their party labels to act as chains.

No Dissenting Voice.

Pittsburg Dispatch: Hon. Chauncey M. Depew's declaration of pleasure at being retired to private life, seems to make it unanimous.

A MOMENT WITH THE WITS.

Louisville Courier-Journal: "You ought to do something in the world," declared the wealthy father.

"All right, dad," said the idolent son. "I'd like to be an editor. Suppose you buy me a newspaper."

"I'll buy you a newspaper. Here's a newsboy. Now look over the want column and see if anybody is advertising for an editor."

Chicago Tribune: Indignant Constituent—This is the fourth time I have called to see the senator, by appointment, and found him out every time!

Private Secretary (of eminent statesman)—Oh, well, I wouldn't make a fuss about that. According to what the papers say, everybody is finding him out.

Louisville Courier-Journal: "Do foreigners buy many of our stocks?"

"Some. Usually, though they prefer to acquire them by marriage."

Baltimore American: "Don't you think the man at the soda water fountain has a queer phiz?"

"Effect of the soda water, dear."

Washington Star: "Do you forgive enemies?"

"I try to," replied Senator Sorghum. "I can't exactly forgive them, but I do my best to put them in a position where I can sympathize with them."

Punch: The Vicar—I haven't noticed little Willie in Sunday school lately, Mrs. Brown.

Mrs. Brown—No, zur, 'e bin an' taken a positive dislike to the new curate. It be summut dreadful the way 'e do go on about 'im.

Chicago Daily News: "And why are you here, my poor man?" asked the visiting parson.

"I've got me friens t' blame for it," answered convict 1323.

"Why, how is that?" queried the parson.

"De judge said it was de 'lectric chair fer mine, but me friens got bizzy an' had de sentence chang'd t' imprisonment fer life," explained the other.

Kansas City Journal: "Well, have you learned anything from your experiment at making garden?"

"Yes; I have learned not to promise anyone any vegetables."

Washington Star: "What makes the butcher put both hands in the air? Is he afraid you are going to shoot?"

"No," answered Bronco Bob. "He has gotten over being afraid. He knows I ain't going to shoot as long as he keeps his hands out of reach of the scales while the meat's bein' weighed."

Louisville Courier-Journal: "I fear the hero of the magazine serial will be bankrupt next month."

"Why so?"

"He leaves a taxicab waiting in the last chapter."

Pittsburg Post: "Then there is no bowing to public men in America?"

"No; we call it respect for the office."

New York Press: "And now, Jimmy Norton," asked a Bronx school teacher the other day, "how many kinds of teeth are there?"

"Two, ma'am," replied Jimmy; "quinines and cuspidores."

"The Typhoon," Anti-Japanese Play, Had Successful Berlin Run.

Purpose of Author Is to Warn Against Mongolian Invasion.

Berlin, Dec. 9.—Not many months ago an Englishman named Gerald du Maurier created a tremendous sensation among his countrymen with a play portraying the "German peril," which he believes is hanging over Great Britain.

Just as Mr. du Maurier's play, "An Englishman's Home," was designed to arouse Britons to the necessity for preparation against invasion by the kaiser's forces, so is a still newer play, "The Typhoon," by Melchoir Lengyel, a young Hungarian, intended to stir the white races into preparation against a Mongolian invasion.

"The Typhoon" already has had a most successful run in Berlin, where it has been the season's dramatic sensation, and now plans are being made for taking it to the United States. For political reasons, however, some of the men interested in the trans-Atlantic production are known to think that it may be a trifle too peppery and that perhaps it may be necessary to tone it down in spots.

The hero of "The Typhoon" is Dr. Tokeroma, a Japanese scholar sent to Europe by the mikado's government on a mysterious mission. As his lieutenants he has an aged man named Kobayshi, an elderly one called Yoshikava, a youth known as Hironari, the lawyer Omayi, the physician Kitamaru, and two others who take minor parts.

These individuals really are commissioned to worm out all sorts of secrets from Occidental governments for future use in the interests of Japan. Their headquarters is in Paris, where the scene of the play is laid. Here his agents report to Dr. Tokeramo the results of their investigations, and the doctor enters them in volume after volume of records.

In the first act all these Japanese emissaries are seen in Dr. Tokeramo's apartment in Paris, where, after the doctor's servants have been sent away, they doff their Western attire and don their national costumes, squatting upon the floor and telling each other tales of the glories of Nippon, at the same time discussing the different aspects of their work in Europe.

Gir Learn Secrets.

Suddenly they are interrupted by the arrival of Helene, a Parisian girl, of whom Dr. Tokeramo is very fond. The other Japanese immediately depart, leaving Helene and the doctor together. The girl is consumed with curiosity, however, concerning the strange gathering into which she stumbled and does her utmost to persuade her admirer to tell her its meaning. The doctor is for a moment on the verge of betraying himself, but remembering just in time the sacredness of his mission, abruptly changes his tone and rejects Helene's demands for an explanation.

The curtain rises upon the second act to reveal Dr. Tokeramo at work upon his records. He is interrupted by the entry of his lieutenant, Yoshikava, with the information that Helene has betrayed at least enough of the spies' secrets to a French writer, Renard Boninski, to do infinite damage to the mission.

To test the extent of the girl's treachery the two Japanese send for Boninski, whom they know slightly, and, having plied him with drink, discover that Helene has purloined a number of the doctor's letters and given them to the young writer to read. Dr. Tokeramo is alarmed by this information and agrees with Yoshikava that his realtions with Helene must cease immediately.

Accordingly, when the girl appears a few moments later, the doctor repulses her, and after wavering a few moments between love and duty orders her to leave him forever. In her rage Helene tells him that she never really loved him, always regarded him as an "unclean yellow thing" and only tolerated him for the sake of his money.

Volunteer For Sacrifice.

This infuriates the doctor to such an extent that he strangles the girl. Then, alarmed by the thought of the possible consequences of his act, which he realizes may mean the ruin of his work, he summons his comrades to him and tells them what he has done.

The lieutenants' one thought is to shield their superior, that he may complete his mission, and to this end each one offers to accept responsibility for the murder. Kobayshi, a tottering patriarch with white hair and bent form, pleads that at his age his life is worth little at best and that he ought to be denounced as the criminal. Yoshikava, the lawyer; Omayi, the physician; Kitamaru and others, one by one, in turn urge their respective claims to be sacrificed.

Then, in a scene of thrilling interest, the youthful Hironari, still in his teens, argues that, unlike his comrades, he has no particular work to do and that, as the least valuable member of the band, he is the one to be chosen. Ultimately his elders consent, and Hironari is arrested for Helene's murder.

The third act brings Hironari's trial and condemnation. It is marked by many exciting incidents and is full of dramatic situations.

In the last act Dr. Tokeramo is shown, saved from the consequences of his crime by the sacrifice of his youthful follower, but broken under the fearful load of remorse, he is compelled to bear. On the night on which he finishes the last line of his records and hands the volumes to Yoshikava to be sent to Japan he quietly expires, and the curtain falls with Yoshikava delivering a striking eulogy upon Japanese views of life and death.

HATPIN SLEUTHS MAY BE NEEDED

Philadelphia's Mayor May Appoint Them to Enforce Ordinance.

Philadelphia, Dec. 9. — How will the proposed ordinance to punish women for wearing long hatpins be enforced? Will it require a new corps of city employes known as hatpin inspectors?

These questions are puzzling Mayor Reyburn, who expects to be obliged to sign or veto an ordinance introduced in select council on Thursday by Nicholas J. Schmucker of the Twenty-fourth ward, providing for a fine of $50 for wearing a hatpin which projects more than half an inch beyond the crown.

It made the mayor weary to think of the trouble he would have of selecting inspectors to see whether the ordinance was violated. "Why," he said, "there would be more applicants for the job than there was for city solicitor, and I think it would be harder to select the man than it was to choose a man for solicitor."

The mayor was not clear as to the provisions of the ordinance. He wanted to know whether the pin could protrude half an inch beyond the crown of the hat or beyond the brim. The mayor thought that if it was beyond the brim the hatpin could be two feet long before making the woman who wore it liable to a fine.

Then the mayor had a happy thought as to the method of detecting violations. He said:

"I guess we will have to erect measuring posts or a guage on Chestnut street. Any woman under suspicion of having a hatpin that is in violation of the ordinance will be obliged to pass through the gauge. If she fails to get through without her hatpin touching we'll have to arrest her."

He complained that his watch and a roll of bills were gone.

BOY'S HEART PARALYZED

When He Swallowed a Drug His Mother Had Taken.

Paducah, Ky., Dec. 9.—Imitating his mother, who had taken a drug to relieve neuralgia, Charles Waltman, the 14-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Bell Waltman of this county, picked up the bottle and drank the contents, which resulted in his death two hours later.

Preceding the death, the boy became blind and pitifully called to his parents for relief from his terrible sufferings.

The drug paralyzed young Waltman's heart and he was beyond human aid when a physician reached him.

SCOTT'S EMULSION

Intense Suffering

From Dyspepsia and Stomach Trouble.

Instantly Relieved and Permanently Cured by Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

A New Discovery, but Not a Patent Medicine.

Dr. Redwell relates an interesting account of what he considers a remarkable case of acute stomach trouble and chronic dyspepsia by the use of the new discovery, Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

He says: "The patient was a man who had suffered, to my knowledge, for years with dyspepsia. Everything he ate seemed to sour and create gasses in the stomach. He had pains like rheumatism in the back, shoulder blades and limbs, fullness and distress after eating, poor appetite and loss of flesh; the heart became affected, causing palpitation and sleeplessness at night.

"I gave him powerful nerve tonics and blood remedies, but to no purpose. As an experiment I finally bought a 50-cent package of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets at a drug store and gave them to him. Almost immediate relief was given and after he had used four boxes he was to all appearances fully cured.

"There was no more acidity or sour, watery risings, no bloating after meals, the appetite was vigorous and he has gained between 10 and 12 pounds in weight of solid, healthy flesh.

"Although Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are advertised and sold in drug stores, yet I consider them a most valuable addition to any physician's line of remedies, as they are perfectly harmless and can be given to children or invalids or in any condition of the stomach with perfect safety, being harmless and containing nothing but fruit and vegetable essences, pure pepsin and Golden Seal.

"Without any question they are the safest, most effective cure for indigestion, biliousness, constipation and all derangements of the stomach, however slight or severe."

CHINA NEAR NEW EPOCH

Absolute Regime Will Be Only History After Next January.

Throne Accedes to the Demand for Constitutional Cabinet.

Pekin, Dec. 9.—It seems safe to announce that the ancient absolute regime in China will exist only historically after the Chinese new year in January, 1911. It is stated that the throne has decided to accede to the resolution of the imperials appealing for the ceration of a constitutional cabinet.

Political events in China have moved with a rapidity that appears almost revolutionary when it is considered that the provincial assemblies representing the first step toward popular government in the empire's history of thousands of years, were inaugurated so recently as Oct. 14, 1909. The first imperial senate met on Oct. 3 last. The late empress dowager had decreed that a general representative body, to be known as the imperial parliament, be convoked in 1915 at the end of the nine-year period of preparation.

People Were Impatient.

However, the people, having had a taste of popular government, were impatient and the senate, soon after it was organized, demanded the immediate convocation of a general parliament. The throne and grand council yielding to the extent of advancing the date for the inauguration of parliament to 1913, a decree making this effective being promulgated on Nov. 4.

It was at first thought that the senate, one-half of the membership of which was appointed by the throne, would be subservient, but early in its existence it developed a striking independence and exhibited a spirit that was almost rebellious.

When a few weeks ago this attitude was changed notably, the general belief was that the body had been intimidated. An increased number of troops in the streets was mistaken as an evidence of the government's determination to suppress the activities of the provincial delegates and their supporters.

Changed Their Tactics.

It appears now that these and others who urged a still earlier meeting of parliament had no intention of abandoning their campaign, but simply altered their tactics and embarked upon a plan of private, though undoubtedly forceful, persuasion.

At a series of secret sessions, it was decided that they would not further tolerate a grand council which was not responsible to the imperial senate and would not execute that assembly's resolutions.

Briefly stated, that senate resolved to relieve Prince Chuen, the regent, of absolute power and make the cohntry a constitutional empire forthwith.

The reported compliance of the throne is regarded as a compromise. The senate will not press for an immediate parliament, but proposes to conduct the government on a single chamber basis until 1913.

It is understood the venerable Prince Ching, of Boxer memory the present power behind the throne, will retire and that Duke Tsai-Tse will become prime minister.

BOYS NOT TO SEW MUSLIN ARTICLES

School Superintendent at Chicago Suddenly Ends Teachers' Plan.

Chicago, Dec. 9.—The "rough and virile mannerisms" that make for the success of Chicago boys are not to give place to the veneer of Boston boys, if Chicago papas and Supt. of Schools Ella Flagg Young can prevent.

Those school teachers—the women are under suspicion—who thought they would "rub off the rough places" by having the boys sew articles of dainty white muslin, have discovered that neither the fathers nor the superintendent approve of that method.

Mrs. Young embodied her ideas on the subject in a circular letter sent to the teachers, in which she emphatically set forth that boys should not be called upon to make anything with a needle that they would not have use for themselves.

If boys must use a needle instead of a hammer or saw, Mrs. Young says she believes they might make such articles as these:

Coarse marble bags.
Bags for skates.
Carpenters' aprons.
Heavy mittens.

The trouble began some days ago when the course of sewing in the elementary grades was opened to boys as well as girls. The boys, it was discovered, had been put to sewing white muslin.

After accomplishing the seemingly impossible task of handling the needle and thimble, the boys went home and "bragged" before fathers who never had conquered those household implements.

But, contrary to their expctations, the fathers weren't proud of their sons' accomplishments. On the contrary, they indignantly complained to Mrs. Young, asking why such useless tasks should be set for otherwise manly boys.

BURGLARS, BEWARE!

Ticker Now Will Catch You If You Are Not Careful.

Pittsburg, Pa., Dec. 9.—A new police and fire signaling apparatus has been tried in Pittsburg and pronounced a great success. It is the invention jointly of Superintendent of Police Thomas A. McQuaide and Jail Warden Edward Lewis.

It consists of a system of lights by night and bells by day at the patrol boxes, the lights and bells being so arranged that a policeman will never be out of sight or hearing of his boxes. Within three minutes it is claimed every policeman in the city can be told of a murder or robbery by this system.

If the description of an offender is given the police by the informant it will be found nicely typewritten out for each officer by the time he reaches his box, a ticker service being used for this. Chief McQuaide declares by the new system a burglar can be surrounded by officers in any part of the city within five minutes after an alarm is turned in.

The Nursery

Stammering.

It is a strange fact that according to the recent report, on the health of school children, stammering is found to be three times more frequent in the case of boys than of girls, and so far no reason for this can be suggested. Children very often show a tendency to stammer when very young, which a little later they overcome with ease. This is probably due to their inability to frame their thoughts or wishes in words because of having at their command a very limited vocabulary. It is a bad habit, or the beginning of one, and can be checked if a little care is taken with the child's speech.

He should be brought to attention, as it were, when it is noticed, made to repeat the sentence properly and slowly, giving every word its full value, and in most cases there will be no more trouble.

Children are very strongly imitative, and it will often be found where the habit suddenly appears that the child has been associating with someone who stammers. Here, again, the proper treatment is to correct the habit firmly whenever it is practiced, and, of course, if possible, to keep the imitator away from his model.

Very often, however, stammering is an affection of the nerves, and it may be so persistent that medical advice is needed. You will notice that a boy stammers when speaking to strangers or when asked a question somewhat suddenly. He has no defect of any kind, but is merely nervous, and a sharp reproof will only make him worse. Anyone who has to do with such a case will find that the easiest and quickest way to effect a cure will be to refrain from looking at the boy while he is speaking, and if he should come to a momentary stop, to wait patiently, still without directly meeting his eyes, till he has recovered himself.

In really bad cases skilled treatment may be necessary, and many teachers make a specialty of different good systems. In any case, stammering is such a painful affection, both to the sufferer himself and his hearers, that every effort should be made in early youth to overcome the defect.

THE EVENING STORY

A Demerara Burglary

By Alfred S. Betts.

It was a glorious Sunday afternoon. Four young men, idly lounging on the veranda of the overseer's quarters, sought rest after a week's sweltering under a tropical sun. The hot season being at its height, cool shade and refreshing breezes were indeed welcome. They have been discussing the numerous recent burglaries on the coast, but conversation lagging, drowsiness was creeping over them when Laurier, the light-hearted, remarked in a quiet voice:

"Most extrordinary."

Three pairs of eyes opened and three pairs of lips emitted puffs of fragrant smoke to utter the monosyllable:

"What?"

"What Yarrell told me."

"Oh, it's one of Yarrell's, is it?" murmured the others.

"Why, he thinks he has the thieves among the last draft of Chinese sent to this estate."

"Wonderful man, Yarrell, for curiosities."

"Oh, be original if you must interrupt; everybody has said that hundreds of times before," remarked Laurier. "He says the head of the draft men hinted to him that in his own country he was a professional thief, but so long as Yarrell gave him protection he would be immune from depredation. 'Consummate ipudence,' Yarrell called it."

"Consumate impudence on his part to relate such a yarn."

"I think it an extraordinary confession," Laurier concluded.

"Say rather, uncredible," put in Grahame.

"Nonsense, why isn't it quite possible?" asked Davis.

"Because it's preposterous."

"But look at the robberies we have just been discussing," Davis persisted.

"Only commonplace pilfering," Barlow replied.

"Not that one at the doctor's: surely that was too clever to be commonplace."

"What was that?" asked Grahame.

"Only the other night while you were in Georgetown, the doctor being away; Mrs. Baines thought to combine security with comfort this sultry weather, and bedded the whole family, herself, children and nurse, on the floor of their big nursery, placing the household plate in a cupboard on the side opposite to the windows. All was safe the first night, but on the second morning the silver was missing and footprints showed that the thief had passed several times from the window over and among the sleeping forms on the floor. The goods, too, had been sorted, the silver taken and the plated left. Now, who but an uncanny Chinese could have managed so silently and adroitly?"

And Davis looked around on his listeners with an air of conviction.

"The colored nurse," said Barlow.

"I don't think so," Davis replied. "She has been in the family since a child; besides the sorting of the silver—no, it was the work of a heathen Chinese," said Laurier. "I shall lock my few valuables away in safety."

"But not necessarily Yarrell's," Barlow insisted.

"Yarrel's or not, I agree with Davis, it was a Chinese," said Laurier. "I shall lock my things away."

"Rot," exclaimed Barlow. "I'll warrant no thief visits such a poverty-stricken hole as this. I shall lock up nothing."

"Nor I," said Grahame. "If any rascal goes into my room I have my revolver."

"To kill or maim with sleepy aim?"

Just then a sturdy negro boy came up, and, looking slyly at Davis, said with an all-embracing grin:

"Got noos fo' tell, massa."

"News, Quashie? Out with it."

"Yo' know Massa John, de oberseer on Richland?" this confidentially.

"Yes."

"An' Massa Jeffrey?"

"Yes."

'An' Mass—"

"Tom'kins?"

Grahame got up, and the young scapegrace retreated to the gallery steps.

"Come here and finish your story,' Davis ordered.

"No, sah, not till Massa Gra'me sit down 'gen."

As Grahame took a step in his direction, he slid nimbly out of sight. The next moment he appeared in the yard below, and, making a trumpet of his hands, bawled:

"De t'eeves broke into the 'ouse las' night and stole ebrything dey got. Per'aps dey come heah nex'." Then, flinging his heels impudently as he ran, he fled.

The four men looked at each other in silence. So far burglars had been but things to chat about, but now that the overseers had fallen victims, there was quite another aspect to the mater.

Then Laurier laughed.

"It's serious," said Davis solemnly. "Grahame, do lock you cups and other athletic trophies up."

'There's no necissity," the athlete replied.

"You think not, but if I were you, I would at least send them to a place of safety."

"Nonsense; I can deal with any thief."

'It would not be pleasant to have a shooting affair in the house."

"Oh, if you are going to be nervous, I won't shoot anyone. When I spoke of my revolver I was romancing. Look here, if any Chinaman gets into my room I will undertake to keep him there until he is handed over to the proper authorities," Grahame answered stoutly.

Barlow had sporting tendencies and the chance of a wager was not to be lost.

"I will bet you $5, Grahame, you don't 'handle and hold' any thief who gets into your room, be he Chinaman or any other nationality," he said.

"It's a bet," said the lazy athlete with a stretch; and Barlow booked the wager.

The tropical night was moonless, the air heavy and oppresive; a dank mist floated above the ground; the stars, usually so bright, were lazy and gave but little light; everything indicated the approach of a rainstorm.

A man emerged from a neighboring bush and crept stealthily towards the overseer's quarters. He was small and lithe; decidedly delicate of the smallest obstacle in his path, he moved noiselessly, yet freely, as though to the manner born, and made his way to Bob Grahame's room. His skin had not the yellow of a Chinaman, but the black of a negro.

After a busy minute or two, the window was noiselessly raised a few inches, and the thief peered within; when his eyes grew accustomed to the gloom he saw that the inmate was sleeping soundly. The window went up, moving imperceptibly, and the man crawled in, carefully feeling around for strings or alarm springs, which his fingers would find instinctively.

As all was clear, he stepped within and stretched out his hand; nothing opposing it, he took a step or two further into the room, when his hand detected a string tautly drawn across the chamber.

He knew these strings; had met them before; a pair of scissors taken from his belt snipped it through and then— there was a swishing, falling sound behind him and the rattle of heavy metal near the bed.

He turned to fly and the next moment leaped up convulsively with a sharp cry, only to descend and spring up again and again. As he snatched his ready knife from his belt, he received a blow on the arm, which sent the weapon flying into a corner. Recovering himself instantly, he eluded Bob's grasp and rushed to the door. It was locked.

"Why not get through the window again, old man?" Bob asked, with a derisive laugh, as he contemplated his victim in the obscurity of the room.

But the man hesitated and Bob leaped upon him. There was a short, sharp struggle, but again he escaped Bob's grasp easily, the midget besting the giant. As he approached the window, which Bob had drawn down, he once more sprang upward with a cry of pain and limped back into the room.

Bob heard a huge thumping outside the door and voices calling, "Let us in Bob, let us in."

"Wait a minute," he answered, with a cheery laugh. "I have got him here and handled him, but as yet I have not held him. I am going in fine form and winning Barlow's money easily."

Then he made another dash at his elusive prey, trying to close with him. But the man was like an eel, slipping from his usually tenacious grasp and disappearing. Never had he tackled such a slippery customer. He felt that he must circumvent him and so he drew a sheet from the bedstead, and groped under it, his hand encountered the man's heel and he secured a grasp on it and drew him forth.

"I am holding him now," he called out. "No, I am hanged if I am," he cried a moment afterwards as the man slipped from his grasp.

From without came more urgent demands of admission.

The man was scrambling to his feet again when Bob deftly threw the sheet over him, and rolling him over securely, bundled him up by knotting the four corners together. Then he opened the door triumphantly exclaiming:

"Got him."

His friends rushed in and as their lights fell on the weird figure before them their laughter became uncontrolable

"Never saw anything so funny in my life," said Tom Laurier. "Why, Bob, you are a black and white man," he added, as he held his aching sides.

Truly Grahame presented a ludicrous sight. His torn night shirt hung in black and white shreds about him, his face and bare portions of his limbs being thickly streaked with inky blackness.

Lifting the bundle of the man from the floor, he held it in his great arms, and, looking at Barlow, exclaimed:

"Behold, I handle and hold him."

"Is he that?" asked Barlow, but his question was unnecessary—the vigorous struggle in the bundle gave ample indications of the burglar's whereabouts.

Bob laid his burden down and opened it. The creature that stepped out was even more ludicrous than Bob Grahame himself. The little man, save for his best, was mostly a shining black from head to heel. He was striped with streaks and splashes of a pale yellow color.

"Why, Bob, you have captured a zebra-marked thief," exclaimed Davis, "and he is Yarrell's man after all."

"Confound the knave, I thought he was a nigger, but he is a Chin-Chin smeared all over with blackened grease; no wonder I couldn't hold him"

When the roars of laughter had subsided somewhat, Barlow grasped Grahame's hand.

"You have fairly won," he said. "It was a daring thing to do, as evidenced by the knife there. Now tell us how you managed it."

"Easily enough," Bob replied, laughingly. "Just a length of string attached to a tea tray and a few pounds of tin tacks, which I suspended over the window. I wonder you fellows didn't think of that as a protection against the barefooted marauders."

"But how did you manage among them yourself?"

"Slept in my boots," was Bob's laconic reply.

Young Men and Maidens

By MISS EXPERIENCE

A Question of Sisters.

"I have had a sweetheart for a year," confides 'Bert,' and she has a sister. now it seems the sister, too, has taken a fancy to me. When the second one speaks to me it makes mine jealous, and it seems to be setting them against each other. What should I do—stop going to the house and only meet my one out?"

That seems like a good plan. It is unfortunate that there should be such awkwardness, but as it exists, it is better not to increase it. If you are in a position to become engaged it would be better to ask the sister you want to marry you, and so settle the matter.

Right to Write.

"I parted from my lover because he was not steady," 'Puzzled' tells me. "I told him I would not see him till he altered. Now I heard from a friend he had met her and told her he has reformed and wanted my address. She couldn't give it to him. Should I write? My friend only knows the name of the town he is in."

How unlucky, isn't it? I should write in my case. If you only put the name of the town he may get the letter, or you could put an advertisement in a local paper asking for his address. It seems such a pity you should not come together again, after all that has been and when he has tried so hard to grow steady and win you.

Love Grown Cold.

The man who was paying "Janet" attention at first was very devoted. "Then he left the town, and though he writes, still his letters have grown shorter and colder. We were not actually engaged, but on the verge of it, and I feel it terribly."

Write and say that you find there is a change in his letters, and ask if he would like the correspondence to cease and if he is tired of it. If he is, it is far better yor you to know it at once and not go on in this miserable state of uncertaintly.

My Lad.

By A. REITH.

He is just a little midget,
  With a rougish, laughing eye,
You may see him any morning
  At the gate, as you pass by.

You may hear his laughter ringing,
  And it would be worth your while
Were you feeling world weary,
  Just to catch his sunny smile.

He's a little imp of mischief,
  From his toes up to his crown,
From the sunshine of his laughter
  To the shadow of his frown.

Lay my choice between a kingdom
  And my boy, I'd have you know
Out of count were twenty kingdoms;
  I would take my lad and go.

DUKE GAVE UP TITLE

Now in New York and Plans to Crush Black Hand.

Lineage Entitles Him to Sit at King's Left Hand.

New York, Dec. 9.—Every evening a small, swarthy man with black snapping eyes and a lofty forehead sits down in his litle Harlem flat at 3129 Broadway and patiently works on the solution of a problem that is keeping Deputy Police Commissioner Flynn and his detectives on the anxious seat—the Black Hand outrages.

He is Tomaso Pugliatti, duca di San Giorgio, or duke of St. George in plain English. But in spite of his title he is far from being a fortune hunter, for he brought with him from sunny Calabria a little wife, whom he adores and who is his constant associate in his work.

On Saturday he marched down to the federal court and became just plain American Citizen Thomas Pugliatti. Yet his lineage is so ancient that he is entitled to sit on the left-hand side of the king of Italy on state occasion, for one of his ancestors was created duke of San Giorgio in 1275 by Carlo di Angio, king of Southern Italy. Later another ancestor was made a duke of the Holy Roman empire by Emperor Charles V.

Member of Knightly Orders.

He is a commander of the knightly orders of the alta and Jerusalem, founded during the second crusade, when Richard the Lion Hearted tried, with his brother Christian monarchs, to drive the Saracens from the Holy Land. On his coat of arms he is entitled to bear a princely as well as a ducal coronet.

During the day Citizen-Duke Pugliatti is a professor in New York university, teaching Italian literature. But at night he plunges into the work that first brought him to America, and which he hopes will put an end to Black Hand crimes.

As an Italian himself, he says he understands the mental twists of his countrymen and is sure that he can deal with them as an Anglo-Saxon never could. In a nutshell, his plan is to create a board, preferably of Italians, who shall meet all Italian immigrants. These immigrants will be forced to attend a school conducted by the board, at which they will be taught the duties of American citizenship. The perils of crime will be impressed upon them together with the assurance that if they commit any criminal act they will be deported or sent to prison for long terms.

"All this my board will do," the duke explained to a reporter for The World last night, "but there is one other thing which it will do, upon which I base my greatest hopes for success.

"My countrymen, you know, are very hospitable. They appreciate hospitality. So we will impress upon the immigrants that when the United States admits them it is extending the hospitality of the country to them. Like if I should take one of them into my home and entertain him—just like that, poof! And if they commit a crime it will be as serious a breach of hospitality as if my visitor smashed up my furniture.

Likes America's Social System.

"When they see the matter in that light everything will be different. You will see. If I am successful in establishing my board—Ha, in a few years the black hand outrages will be a thing of the past. The Italian immigrants will be as good citizens as I am going to try to be."

"How does it happen that a man of your rank voluntarily abandons his prestige and titles to become a plain American citizen " the duke was asked.

"Because I like the social system of this country," he replied quickly. "Because I honor this country."

"In the Old World, if a man works he loses his social caste. Ugh! that system is bringing about the decay of those countries. Here everybody works. It is honorable to work. And I want to be a citizen of such a land, where work, not accident of birth, is noble.'

While the Pugliatti family is ancient, the Poerio, his mother's family, is still older. The Poerio are descended from the royal family of mediaeval Normandy, whose reigning dukes seized England from the Saxons. Joseph Poerio, the duke's grandfather, was viceroy of Southern Italy under Ferdinand, king of the Bourban kingdom of the Two Sicilies. He himself was born in Cartongaro, Italy, on June 28, 1870.

MAN IS FOUND JUST IN TIME

Lost in Maine Woods and Decided to End His Life.

Bangor, Me., Dec. 9. — Lost in the dense woods in a blinding snow storm since Wednesday of last week, John Pope of Waterville was about to shoot himself when he was found by Ernest Gibbons and F. H. Farley, two New York sportsmen, and carried on a stretcher to Blanchard.

Pope started from a shooting camp six miles from Shirley to go deer hunting. It was snowing and early Wednesday morning he broke his pocket compass and lost all sense of direction. He built a fire under the lee of a pine stump and spent Wednesday night there. On Thursday he staggered through the deep snow all day, arriving at a deserted camp that night. His matches had become wet, but he had put them in his hair under his hat and dried them sufficiently to build a fire. He found some tea in a can and made two cups, drinking the grounds to appease his hunger.

He traveled through the snow Friday until late in the afternoon. He had given up hope and was about to shoot himself, he says, when he came upon the camp which Gibbons and Farley were just leaving.

MARRIAGE FOR MONEY

Is the Aim of Most Americans, Says One Savant.

Boston, Mass., Dec. 9.—Dr. David Starr Jordan of Leland Stanford university, in a verbal skirmish here with President Marion Leroy Burton of Smith college, declared that American men are as a whole idealistic on the question of marriage and despise the European custom of marrying for money. Dr. Burton retorted that to the contrary commercialism and materialism pervade the lives of most American men.

"Let no one think I am pessimistic,' said Dr. Burton. "I say these things because I am an American. If any other person stood on this platform and said these things I would resent it. As educators, however, it is our duty to acknowledge truth."

"However bad he is," replied Dr. Jordan, "in my opinion the young American is the most idealistic and the least commercial of the young men of all nations."

DRINK CAUSED DOWNFALL

Of Noted Surgeon Who Is Dying at Los Angeles.

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 9.—Dying a public ward, at one time one of the most prominent physicians and surgeons of the world, Dr. Michael J. Keating is now at the county hospital. Dr. Keating, who is 77 years old, is a native of Ireland and graduated from the Royal College of Surgeons in 1868. He went to London in 1869 and was granted a professor's degree at the King and Queen's college of physicians in that year. For two years he was superintendent of the Rotunda hospital in Vienna, which is the second largest hospital building in the world.

In 1872 he came to the United States where he obtained a position as examining physician with the United States marine corps and also filled responsible positions at Annapolis and for the immigration bureau. The doctor admits that his downfall is due to drink, and says that he broke his father's heart through his indulgence in intoxicants.

Dr. Keating is very well connected, his brother-in-law being George Routledge, the largest book publisher in the world. Anotherbrother-in-law is Henry J. Gill, who twice has been a member of parliament for Dublin.

Restorative Treatment for Nervous Men

Coming from a source of unquestioned authority on the ailments of men it is presumed to be infallible, while the profession generally endorse the ingredients and prescribe them in many different forms of various diseases. The following formula is highly efficient in quickly restoring in nervous exhaustion, melancholia, anxiety, timidity in venturing, dizziness, heart palpitation, trembling limbs, insomnia, thinness, cold extremities, tired-all-in feeling and general inability to do those natural and rational acts upon which depends a man's success and happiness in social and every-day life.

The instructions for mixing at home secretly so that no embarrassment may be felt, are as follows: First get three ounces of syrup sarsaparilla compound and one ounce compound fluid balmwort; mix and let stand two hours. Then add one ounce compound essence cardiol and one ounce tincture cadomene compound (not cardamom), and mix all together. The directions are to take one teaspoonful after each meal and one when retiring, until bounding health and full strength are restored. Even a few weeks will witness most wonderful results.

Astonishing nervous force and equilibrium follow the treatment, no matter how serious the case.

This contains no opiates whatever and may also be used by women who suffer with their nerves with absolute certainty of prompt and lasting benefits.

LONG SEARCH FOR DAUGHTERS

Is in Vain and Near-Centenarian Gives Up the Quest.

Mobile, Ala., Dec. 9.—"Yes, I have given up the quest, I am 98 years of age, and can walk no longer." Such was the statement of Frank Schrom, who lacks two years of being a century in age, shortly after he reached Mobile from New Orleans, after a brief stay in Biloxi.

After working from New Orleans to San Francisco and back in quest of his two daughters, the aged man has arrived in Mobile to enter a Catholic home for indigent and old people in this city. His daughters are Frances Schrom, a spinster of about 52, and Mrs. Josephine Fleischkamp, 301 Baltimore street, San Francisco. As it took the old man four months to walk the distance and his daughters received no word from him during that time it appears that they had decided he had died, so when he arrived at San Francisco he found that Mr. Fleischkamp had sold out his business, a plumbing establishment, and, taking his wife, and sister-in-law, had left for other scenes.

Some neighbors reported that they had gone to Southern California to buy an orange grove; others said they had gone to Pittsburg.

HANDSHAKES DANGEROUS.

Much More So Than Kissing, Declares Colorado Professor.

Denver, Colo., Dec. 9.—Prof. Frank E. Thompson, who occupies the chair of education at the University of Colorado, is for kissing.

Instead of issuing preachments against osculation, says Prof. Thopmson, educators and instructors ought to warn against the common handshake.

In this position Prof. Thompson takes issue with Herr Knopf, whose name is a sufficient guaranty of his high standing in the medical profession. Knopf in New York recently issued a warning against the kiss. His words impressed State Superintendent of Schools Katherine M. Cook, and in a circular issued to the teachers of the state she repeated Knopf's interdiction.

"There's nothing unhygienic in kissing, compared with handshaking," says Prof. Thompson. "Almost every hand incloses within the recesses of the nails or tissues millions of germs, which are communicated by the act of shaking hands."

WELLESLEY BARS FUN TO SAVE FOR BIG BUILDING.

Wellesley, Mass., Dec. 9.—No more breakfast parties, no more chocolates, no more bridge, no more toast and tea at the inn, no more cab rides if Wellesley college is to raise the $100,000 necessary for the student building.

This is the verdict of Miss Dorothy Applegate, an energetic senior, who is heading the movement for a building similar to the Harvard union. Adoption of these plans in one week has brought in $100. In the meantime Wellesley groans. Even the poor faculty plod on foot to save carriage fare. Cabs are depressed.

NO TRUST IN COAL FOUND

Court Dismisses Suit Against Anthracite Coal Combination.

Finds Temple Iron Company Illegal in Philadelphia Case.

Philadelphia, Dec. 9.—The United States circuit court here this afternoon dismissed the suit filed by the government to dissolve the so-called anthracite coal trust, but declared the Temple Iron company to be a combination in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law and therefore illegal.

The suit was filed on June 12, 1907, and the defendants included the Reading company, Philadelphia & Reading railway, Lehigh Valley railroad, Delaware, Lackawanna & Western railroad, Central Railroad of New Jersey, Erie railroad, New York, Susquehanna & Western, Philadelphia & Reading Coal & Iron company, Lehigh Valley Coal company, Lehigh & Wilkesbarre Coal company, Pennsylvania Coal company, Hillside Coal & Iron company, New York Susquehanna & Western Coal company, Temple Iron company and about forty individual so-called independent coal companies.

Petition of Government.

The government asked that the court adjudge and decree that the defendants are parties to a combination and conspiracy in restraint of trade and that they be enjoined from continuing the combination, and that they also be enjoined from continuing the 65-per cent contract existing between the big companies and the independents.

The court will be asked by the government to declare the acquisition by the Erie of Stock of the New York, Susquehanna & Western railroad and of the Pennsylvania Coal company and of the Delaware Valley & Kingston railroad, the acquisition by the Lehigh Valley of the stock of Cox Bros. & Co., were all in violation of the anti-trust act, and the companies acquired; that the Temple Iron company be declared a combination of the defendant railroad in vioation of law, and that the combination be dissolved.

Brought In Independents.

The independents were brought into the case because of the 65 per cent contract existing between them and the large coal companies controlled by the railroads. The independents sell their product to the big companies for 65 per cent of the price the big companies receive for it at tide wate. The government contended that the independents were forced into making these contracts because there was no other way to get their coal to market if the coal railroads chose to discriminate against them in the matter of cars and rates.

KIDNAPED BOY IS RECOVERED

New York Police Make First Such Find in Scores of Cases.

New York, Dec. 9.—"They told me I was in Chicago," said Guiseppe Longo, 8 years old, when the police led him to freedom yesterday from the tenement room where he had been locked up by kidnapers. Among the scores of children stolen by lawless Italians, his is said to be the only New York case on record in which the police have effected a recovery.

The boy was traced by the aid of another child whose brother is also held for ransom. The police learned that Guiseppe was a prisoner in an East side tenement. They searched the corridors and listened at transoms. At the door of a rear room they heard a child crying. The guide was lifted up and peered over the transom.

"That's him," he whispered excitedly, and the police broke in the door.

Guarding Guiseppe were two men, and in the same room with him were two other children, a boy and a girl, whom he only knew by their first names. The police think they also may have been kidnaped. The two men on guard were arrested.

Guiseppe's father is a well-to-do Brooklyn grocer. Since he disappeared on Nov. 19 the father received two letters demanding money, the first asking for $10,000 and the second $15,000.

WHITE SLAVERY TRIAL IS BEGUN

Prisoners Are Accused of Enticing Girls to Go With Show.

Greensboro, N. C., Dec. 9.—In the United States court the case against Charles Quaster and Joseph Napier, proprietors of traveling shows, under indictment charging them with engaging in the white slave traffic by inducing young girls to leave their homes under lucrative employment and afterwards luring them into other occupations, has begun. The prisoners have been in jail for the last two months.

The government has a score of witnesses for the trial, twelve of whom are young women who are alleged victims.

The first witness examined was 18-year-old Mary von Newendorf of Baltimore, who told of being induced by the defendants to leave her mother under promise of $25 a week to take part in girls' dancing and chorus shows at fairs. She left with another girl friend, Maud McClellan. A relative in Charlotte found Miss von Newendorf after a week's search in a room with Quaster, the couple being registered as man and wife at a leading hotel. She declared this was done under her protest after Quaster had promised to marry her.

WIRE MAGNATE IS TO MARRY STENOGRAPHER.

New York, Dec. 9.—Albert Brown Chandler, 70 years old, of Brooklyn, chairman of the board of directors of the Postal Telegraph company, has obtained a marriage license to wed Miss Mildred Vivian, 38 years old. Miss Vivian came to New York from Lexington, Mo., and met Mr. Chandler when she was in the employ of the Postal Telegraph company as a stenographer. The date of the wedding is not announced, but it will be a quiet affair, attended only by relatives and friends.

Mr. Chandler had a record as a telegraph operator during Civil war times, was a close friend of the late Thomas T. Eckert and has been identified with the Postal company continuously since its organization in 1884. SLEEP ON BACK

With Money Sewed in Pajamas, Judge Counsels Husband.

Philadelphia, Dec. 9.—William McCaffery caused the arrest of his wife, Nellie McCaffery, charging her with pilfering $3 from the pockets of his trousers while he slept.

The case was heard by William M. Belcher the Solomon magistrate, who, after discharging Mrs. McCaffery, gave the husband some advice as to the best method of keeping his money. Magistrate Belcher acknowledged that "his lot had fallen along similar lines."

"You might hide your pants," said Magistrate Belcher, "but your wife probably would find them. You might go to bed wearing them, but that might be uncomfortable. Either purchase a strong box or each night sew your money to the back of your pajamas, then sleep on your back."

PARDON REFUSED.

But Ellis, Slayer of Willis, Is Released on Parole.

Little Rock, Ark., Dec 9.—W. Y. Ellis, a wealthy lumber manufacturer, who shot and instantly killed N. P. Willis, a prominent citizen of Indianapolis, Ind., his wife's first husband, in the court house here, fifteen months ago, was granted a parole by the penitentiary board. Willis had just won a suit against his former wife for custody of their child when he was murdered.

Shortly after Ellis was given a three-year term in the penitentiary a petition, signed by 10,000 Arkansans, was presented to the governor, asking for his pardon. Governor Donaghey denied the request, but he voted with the other members of the board for the parole.

Accompanied by his wife, Ellis left for his home in Pine Bluff.

CONSTITUTION FOR ARIZONA FINISHED.

Phoenix, Ariz., Dec. 9.—The constitution for the state of Arizona has been completed.

It is rumored that majority of Republicans will decline to sign the constitution, but a leader says no decision has been reached. Every indication is that the Republicans will make organized attempt to make a revision. Democratic leaders, however, predict a heavy majority for the constitution.

Among the provisions of the document are:

Initiative and referendum; amendment to the constitution by a majority vote of the people upon the initiative of 15 per cent of the voters; recall of all elective officers; direct primaries; direct advisory primary for United States senators; anti-lobying clause; non-partisan election of the judiciary; juvenile court with the age of criminal responsibility fixed at 18; rigid corporation regulation with a provision designed to abolish wild-catting; physical valuation of railroads as a base for rate control; corporation committee with wide powers; employers' liability provision abrogating the fellow servant doctrine; elimination of probate courts.

KICK FROM TEXAS.

People Claim State Got Poor Showing in Census.

Austin, Tex., Dec. 9.—If the plans of state officials work out, the population of Texas will be recounted. Governor Campbell acted as spokesman last night for those who anticipated that the announcement from Washington could have given Texas a population of at least 5,000,000.

"The figures are very disappointing," declared the governor. "There are few communities that will not show a greater precentage of figures than given by the census bureau."

CROOKSTON IS STIRRED

Arrest of Mixed Blood Leaving Town With Liquor Creates Furore.

Mayor and Police Determined to Prevent Liquor Being Shipped Out.

Crookston, Minn., Dec. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—While the arrest of Paul Belcourt of White Earth, a mixed blood, by Chief Creamer and Capt. Eck yesterday and the seizing of his suit case containing four quarts of alcohol and a quart of whisky as he was boarding a train for Ulen, "dry" territory, caused a big sensation, the position of the city administration is upheld by all the leading citizens and most of the saloon keepers as well. Special Agent Johnson was notified and pending instructions from him Belcourt will be held.

Belcourt said he secured the liquor from John Morin, who runs both a wholesale and retail business, and also stated that he bought drinks over the bar there. Mayor McKinnon had previously called the saloon keepers together and explained the situation to them. He told them flatly that he was convinced that the only course to pursue was to refuse to sell any bottled goods to anybody for any purpose. They all agreed to this plan. He notified them there that if they violated the agreement he would nail the first shipment and arrest the first man found with liquor on him which he secured in Crookston.

Crookston May Remain Wet.

The mayor does not believe Crookston will be included in the "dry" belt as long as no liquor goes out of the city and the saloons have been refusing to sell bottled goods even to the well known farmers who wanted a little Thanksgiving cheer. They sell drinks over the bar and stop short at that. This was the first kick over the traces and it has received such prompt treatment and such wide publicity that it is doubtful if any of the other dealers will take a chance in the future till the liquor question is finally determined in this section.

Mayor McKinnon and Chief Creamer state that every attempt to get liquor out of Crookston by shipment or in grips will be dealt with and so many citizens have volunteered to act as private detectives that there can be no successful smuggling even if the saloon men were disposed to try it.

WAGNER FAMILY AGAIN IN COURT

Brother of Divorced Woman's Husband Sues Her for Money Husband Gave.

Devils Lake, N. D., Dec. 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—When Albert Wagner made a deposit of $2,000 in a local bank about a year ago as a guarntee to his wife that there would be no family jars, he probably did not know that in another year he would be divorced from her and that in the Ramsey county district court an action would grow out of the making of this deposit with Charles Wagner, the husband's brother, as the plaintiff, and Mrs. Wagner as the defendant.

The Wagners and their troubles have received no little notoriety throughout this section for some time past. After their recent difficulty which resulted in divorce, Albert Wagner, the husband, assigned the bank account in question to his brother, Charles Wagner of Crookston, and the latter has commenced an action against the bank and Mrs. Wagner for the cash.

Wagner, the plaintiff, contends that the agreement made between his brother and his wife was illegal and does not hold, as such promises as he made at the time were those that any man makes in being married. Mrs. Wagner, the divorced wife, holds an entirely different view of the situation and will make a hard fight for the deposit.

BROOKSTON MEN HEAVILY FINED

Two Greeks and Italian Flourish Weapons Too Freely During Trouble.

Brookston, Minn., Dec. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—George Patroa and Athos Carlos, two Greek railroad laborers, were each fined $25 in justice court Tuesday for carrying concealed weapons, and Nick Delacos was fined $30 for pointing a revolver at an Italian section foreman.

The arrest of these three men was the outcome of a small sized strike among the Greek laborers, who endeavored to tie up the gravel trains that have been working here since the first of the month. The Greeks refused to work and they have endeavored to prevent other men from taking their places, but the fines assessed upon three of them has prevented them from carrying out the plans they had laid.

UNIVERSITY DANCES.

To Keep Young People Away From Evils of Minneapolis.

Minneapolis, Minn., Dec. 9.—It is announced that weekly dances will be given at the University of Minnesota armory under the auspices of student organizations, as a counter attraction to downtown public dance halls. This action was taken following a statement by Dean Downey that no man or woman can attend one of those dances without being corrupted.

Petition for Appointment.

Valley City, N. D., Dec. 9.—By a petition signed unanimously, the bar association of Valley City and Barnes county has approved of the candidacy of Attorney Alfred Zuger for appointment to the position of judge of the district court to succeed Judge E. T. Burke, elected to the supreme court.

CROSSED WIRES BLAMED FOR MENOMINEE'S BIG FIRE

WHEN THE BREWERY BLAZE RAGED THE FIERCEST.

Menominee, Mich., Dec. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Already workmen are beginning to clear away the debris from last Monday's disastrous fire at the plant of the Leisen & Henes Brewing company here, which caused a loss of $50,000, as told in The Herald dispatches. The fire wiped out the malthouse, dry kilns, icehouse and stables. There was $45,000 insurance. Crossed wires are believed to have generated sparks which caused the fire that for a time threatened to develop into one of the worst fires in this section in years.

The brewery was established in 1872 by John De Heck and George Sharmbruck, afterwards passing into the hands of George Harter and Frank Eggert.

The business eventually became the property of Jacob Leisen and John Henes, who conducted it in partnership from 1876 to 1891, when the Leisen & Henes Brewing company was incorporated, with Jacob Leisen as president, Louis Leisen, vice president, and John Henes, secretary-treasurer.

TOWN CLERKS MUST BRING IN BALLOTS

Inspectors Will Go Over Part of Polk County Senatorial Vote.

Crookston, Minn., Dec. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—J. N. Kirsch yesterday served the summonses on the town clerks of Brandsvold, Eden, Queen, Knute, Woodside, Garden, Garfield and Winger townships, which requires them to appear here tomorrow with the ballot boxes containing the ballots cast at the recent election. The ballots will be inspected by the three inspectors named by Judge Watts, G. A. E. Finlayson of East Grand Forks, W. A. Marin and Judge Gossman of this city in the contest brought by A. D. Stephens and others against John Saugstad to determine who was elected senator from Polk county.

W. E. Rowe will direct the contest for Stephens and A. A. Miller will look after Saugstad's interests here, and it is expected that the contest will require several weeks, as the Saugstad contingent will also order the ballot boxes from many precincts brought in, according to their present program. In addition to the ballot inspection, the testimony of a large number of witnesses will be taken in an effort to show that "sticker peddlers" swarmed through the polling places and even into the voting booths, and that no pretense was made in many instances of keeping the sticker peddlers 100 feet from the polling places.

COMMISSION PLAN IS GREAT SUCCESS

Works So Well in Minot, Phamplet Will Be Issued Telling of Benefits.

Minot, N. D., Dec. 9.—So immensely well pleased is the board of commissioners of the city of Minot with the manner in which the commission plan has worked out in this city that it has been decided to publish an advertising phamphlet covering the situation. The city commission and the Minot Commercial club will go together in making up the phamphlet.

Minot's commission plan, it is declared, has been immensely beneficial, and it is for the purpose of pointing out the benefits that have been derived that the publication of the statement in question has been determined upon.

CLAIMS IRREGULARITIES.

Defeated McHenry County, N. D., Candidate Wants Recount.

Towner, N. D., Dec. 9. — That the canvassing board of McHenry county failed to count thirty-six votes that had been cast for him for sheriff is the claim set up by D. A. Kramer in an action brought to secure a re-count. His opponent, J. Sampson, was elected by a majority of only eleven votes, and Kramer now alleges that in several different precincts of the county, there were irregularities in the county which, if corrected, would give him the sheriffship by a majority of twenty-five votes.

The matter will be argued before Judge Burr.

GRAND FORKS MAN HURT "CRANKING" ENGINE.

Grand Forks, N. D., Dec. 9.—When Orla Cummings, aged 21, had the thumb of his right hand torn off by a gasoline engine, a tendon in his arm was pulled out with the digit to a length of eight inches and when discovered, the young man was in a pitiful condition. He had been cranking the engine with a pair of mittens on when one of these became caught, and in a moment his hand had been jammed in a horrible manner. In addition to having his thumb literally torn out by the roots, the arm was also broken just above the wrist.

FORMER MAYOR OF GRAND FORKS DIES

John Dinnie, Eight Years Head of Nerth Dakota City, Is Called.

Grand Forks, N. D., Dec. 9.—(Special to The Herald.) — John Dinnie, for eight years mayor of Grand Forks, died yesterday afternoon of stomach trouble. Twenty-nine years ago, when he came to the Red River valley, he was a brick mason, and was engaged in plying his trade for a number of years until the growth of this district caused him to launch into the contracting business in which he made good financially. He was the first resident of Grand Forks to engage in the brick making industry.

In 1896 he was elected mayor and was re-elected on three subsequent occasions, serving eight years in all, which is the longest time in the office of mayor served by any citizen. He was 57 years old and leaves a wife and eight children.

Crookston, Minn., Dec. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—The grand jury will report some time today after a five day's session. Several witnesses have been called in connection with the recent primary election and rumor has it, earnest efforts are being made to have several indictments returned because of alleged illegal voting. No other sensations are promised by the grand jury.

WISCONSIN BRIEFS

Eau Claire — The Chippewa Valley Railway, Light & Power company of this city is now getting power from its magnificent power plant at Cedar Falls, which has just been completed at a stupendous cost. This gives the Eau Claire concern an almost unlimited supply to draw upon when taken together with the company's splendid power plant at Menomonie.

"JIM" CROW ON DULUTH

Manager of Erie Dispatch Comments on City's Great Growth.

Says It Is Becoming One of the Big Railroad Centers.

William Rudolph Crow, known from the Atlantic to the Pacific as "Jim" Crow, general manager of the Erie Dispatch, and one of the best known railway men in the entire Western country, is in the city today on his annual trip of inspection of the business interests of his line in this territory.

Mr. Crow covers one of the largest territories in the railway business. His field of activities extends from the Eastern to the Western coasts, and during his travels he naturally comes into intimate touch with the business of the railroads as a whole. Therefore it can be taken as a cheerful indication, when Mr. Crow states that he has a very optimistic feeling in regard to the future business of the various railroads of the country.

"The trouble is," said Mr. Crow today, "that we have taken to measuring business up to the immense volume this country did in 1907. We hit a tremendous clip that year, and the natural recession has made some people annually pessimistic. The present time is the dull time of the year for general business and consequently for the railroads; but I can see no reason why railroad men or business men in general should be inclined to look on the dark side of things. After the first of the year there should be a general upbuilding in all lines of commercial endeavor."

"Jim" Crow is equally at home at the Atlantic City cafes or with a bunch of operating railroad men at some small inland station house. His experience with railroading has been broad and comprehensive, as he has been in the railroad business for the past twenty-five years. For some time he was stationed at St. Paul. He has been making Duluth for a number of years and is very well acquainted in this city, both with the railroad fraternity and the commercial men.

The Tipping Evil.

"Some one should throw a brick at the tipping system," said Mr. Crow today. "Down at Albany and New York it has reached about the limit of human endurance. The other day in Albany, N. Y., some of us railroad boys were dining at one of the fashionable cafes of that city. You see the politicians have spoiled the waiters down that way. Some of these politicians think little of parting acquaintance with the dear old dollar.

"One waiter started the general activities; soon he was joined by another. To our surprise a third was soon added to the force. And, believe me, they all had a bright little air of expectancy in their optics. We became wise to the general plan of campaign and laid plans accordingly. We permitted them to work away in happy expectancy, then called the first waiter, the one who had started the work unaided, and gave him his tip, politely but nevertheless firmly ignoring the existence of the other two. They are ringing in the three-man system on diners at many of the cafes of the country."

Mr. Crow gave the customary compliment to the growth of Duluth as a railroad center. The word customary is used here, as railroad men visiting Duluth, fully alive to railroad developments at any center, have been quick to notice this growth.

"We didn't used to pay very much attention to Duluth, back in the old days," continued Mr. Crow. "It was considered kind of a jumping off place, and we considered the traffic and general business originating here as a feeder to the Twin Cities. I notice now that the Twin Cities are viewing with some apprehension the growth of Duluth, and when one comes to gain first hand information of the growth you have acheived here and the future that lies ahead of Duluth, it is small wonder that St. Paul and Minneapolis are beginning to rub their eyes and glance up your way.

"Situated at the very head of the wonderful commerce of the Great Lakes, is there any reason why this city should not be one of the greatest traffic centers in the entire West? If there is, I fail to see that reason. Duluth is surely destined to be one of the big railroad and traffic centers of the West. Your growth has surprised me in some ways, but the very good things that many railroad men have been saying about the city had, in a measure, prepared me for what I have beheld with my own eyes."

Mr. Crow will leave tonight. His headquarters are in Chicago.

FARMERS EAGER TO GET MANURE

Trestle Must Be Built Before Cars Can Be Loaded.

Farmers tributary to Duluth are sending inquiries to the health office relative to the shipments of manure for fertilizing purposes. One man living over 100 miles away, on the Great Northern, wrote in this morning asking for information. He said that he could use a large car, if the freight wasn't prohibitive. One car has been loaded on the tracks by the health department, but the work is too slow under present conditions. A trestle or other device which will facilitate the unloading of the wagons will have to be built before the practice can be put into general use.

HORTICULTURISTS HAD A COSTLY LESSON.

A. B. Hostetter returned this morning from St. Paul, where he attended the meeting of the Minnesota State Horticultural society, representing the test station on Duluth Heights, of which he has charge.

C. E. Roe was there as the delegate of the Northern Minnesota Horticultural society and J. Kimball represented the beekeepers. Mr. Hostetter said that the attendance was large and that much interest was shown in the proceedings, in spite of the fact that the past season had been a failure because of dryness. Most of the horticulturists attending the meeting said they had suffered practically complete failures, but consoled themselves with the thought that the lesson they had learned about how to conserve moisture was worth all the crop would have been.

The test station here is to be utilized to the fullest extent next season for the purpose of trying out fruits and small plants recommended for this region, and is expected to prove a great help to the holticulturists of Northeastern Minnesota.

HUGE STEEL ORDERS FOR THE HEAD OF THE LAKES.

The Iron Trade Review, publishes an article on steel orders in hand for the season, and among the items are mentioned the new Great Northern dock in Allouez bay, requiring about 9,000 tons, the same amount being needed for the Iron Range road's new ore dock at Two Harbors. Among other items is one of 7,000 tons for buildings at the new steel plant.

INDEMNITY FOR HEIRS OF PANAMA EMPLOYE.

Washington, Dec. 9.—Little progress in legislation was made in congress yesterday. The senate, immediately after the morning business, took up bills on the calendar and passed one of them providing an indemnity for the heirs of a government employe who lost his life on the Panama railroad. Two important measures intended to better the postal service and carrying the indorsement of Postmaster-General Hitchcock were taken up, but consideration of them was put over on the objections of Senators Heyburn and Bacon.

In the house practically the entire day was occupied in consideration of the Indian appropriation bill.

The house adjourned until noon today. The senate, in the absence of important business, adjourned until Monday.

CROOKSTON LODGES ARE BURNED OUT

Regalia and Records Lost in Fire—Damage Is $10,000.

Crookston, Minn., Dec. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Odd Fellows' block here was totally destroyed this morning by a fire which originated in the boiler room. The loss includes charters and lodge paraphernalia of the Odd Fellows, Maccabees, Lady Maccabees, United Workmen, Degree of Honor, Sons of Herman and their ladies' auxiliary, the Eagles, Loyal League and United Commercial Travelers. The damage to the building is $10,000.

The building was erected in 1881 and was Polk county's first courthouse. It was sold to the Odd Fellows when the new county building was put up. The fire was spectacular and nearby buildings were threatened. During the fire an explosion in the attic of the building endangered the lives of the firemen.

Begin Building Brainerd Plant.

Brainerd, Minn., Dec. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Toltz Engineering Company of St. Paul today commenced the construction of a big electric light and power house near Laurel street and the Northern Pacific railroad tracks.

GROUCH GERM WORST OF ALL.

Scientists Discover Bad Temper and Ugly Nature Caused By Microbe.

Philadelphia North American: Grouch is a word that is in the dictionary, but, though the word has not been in existence long enough to work itself out of the "slang" class, they have already discovered a grouch germ.

This is certainly an era of germs. No one is appalled when he is told nowadays that this or that disease is due to bacteria in his system; but when it comes down to regulating temperaments by these infinitesimal vermin, one is inclined to believe that there is no use combating fate—"Let's balme it on the germs."

"If there is a germ for the grouch there is perhaps a joy germ, a laughing germ, a happy germ, and—who knows?—there may be even a booze germ, which would forever exonerate the devotees of Bachus from their personal responsibilities. It is truly a pleasant theory.

When a grand opera star cuffs her maid, breaks the china, abuses the impresario and kicks the electric light bulbs on the plea of temperament, she may be free to protest that the temper germ has got into her system all unawares, and that the manager is cruel and heartless to scold or even restrain one so afflicted.

So much for germs in general.

There are nearly as many kinds of grouches as there are germs. There is the born grouch, the affected grouch, the disgruntled grouch, the grouch by dyspeptic and the grouch per se.

The origin of the grouch germ gets into the systems of some people at such an early age is hard to determine, especially since the rascally bacillus has not yet been very thoroughly studied, though his manifestations are patent to all.

We are familiar with the sullen small boy who screams when others smile, and kicks his fond parents on the shins when they attempt to coax him. You have certainly felt that burning, gnawing passion to kick the bodily manifestation of the same germ into infinity, on a score of occasions, and would have done so had it not been for the parental extenuation of the little dear.

How mysterious are the ways of parenthood, and how just! They know that the poor little fellow is not responsible; that it is only the frightful germ that has crept into his system. Some say it is due to his having pie when he should have had corned beef and cabbage; others blame it upon the ministrations of an indulgent grandma. And there are authorities who aver that a good piece of hickory, say, half an inch in diameter, applied at the right spot in time, will check the growth of the germs as quickly as anything.

The born grouch is to be pitied. The germ has such a hold upon him that it is practically incurable; but for the affected grouch, germ or no germ, there can be little sympathy. The man who thinks for any reason that he is more impressive, more a man for an assumed air of cynicism, pessimism and all the other unfortunate isms that go to make up the grouch, could be hobbled and set to feed on chips at a safe distance from polite society to preven further contagion.

The dyspeptic grouch is truly a victim of misfortune, and of all the grouches is most deserving of a share of sympathy and a large allowance of coaxing. But the disgruntled grouch, the man who pouts and shows the same symptoms as the born grouch in the earliest stages could be remedied with a full and vigorous allowance of the same medicine, the stout hickory—only let it be a thick one.

We hear so much about the blessed sunshine, and there are so many dear little books published in holiday season to gather dust on the tables of one's inoffensive friends which have that sweet, optimistic tone, that if there is any virtue in them, the mother of a grouchy household should have no difficulty in allaying the family complaint. She could buy them by the gross about Christmas and serve them with the meals for a full year at a trifling cost.

The grouch germ itself was discovered in Kansas City by an enterprising man, Dr. E. L. Mathias. The doctor has observed that the germ is fond of torrid weather. More than that he is fully persuaded that the germ attacks none but man. Beyond this the diet, appearance, habits and mannerisms of the germ are unknown and offer a wide and profitable field of research to the enterprising investigator. In this matter a little advice might not be considered impertinent, inasmuch as no one has adopted the germ for his private property as yet.

First, catch a grouch. They are numerous in all latitudes, and it matters little which species you begin with; only as a matter of mercy spare the dyspeptic grouch, because he is least responsible. Having secured the grouch fairly in a recumbent position, face down, elevate a broad, stout stick above his person and proceed as instinct dictates. As the germs escape, bottle them for future investigation. If they do not come, keep on with the treatment, for a grouch the less in the interests of science is a small loss.

It might be well to add that there are pathetic treatments which are just as effective in ridding a subject of the grouch germ, but they presuppose such qualities in the operator as patience, forbearance, tact and no little determination. After all, if one can afford to dispense with dignity, the physical treatment is quickest and most certain of lasting results.

LETTERS TO MAYOR GAYNOR.

Mayor Gaynor's mail averaged about 400 letters a day, says an Outlook article, referring to the time preceding the attempted assassination. These were opened by Secretary Adamson before the mayor reached his office at 9:30 in the morning.

The mayor does a great deal of business by mail and he has reduced the handling of it to a system. Letters on arriving are sorted into three lots, those requiring immediate attention, those of less immediate importance and personal letters. Frequently the secretary makes a memorandum synopsis of a letter and attaches it to the original, enabling the mayor to get through his mail in a shorter time.

No letter which comes to Mr. Gaynor's office goes unanswered. They do not come alone from the city, many are from out of town. Some persons outside the city apparently think that the mayor's office has a department for the collection of overdue accounts. A woman from up-state wrote that she had remitted $22 to a New York dry goods firm for the purchase of certain goods. She had never received the goods nor had the money been returned.

The letter was forwarded to the dry goods firm, which sent an answer thanking the mayor for calling attention to the oversight and stating that the matter had been adjusted with the woman.

Another woman in Virginia wrote to the mayor that a New York self-styled "physician" had obtained money for a useless quack cure from her newphew, who was seriously ill.

"I want you to go up and see the doctor,' she concluded.

The mayor did not go up to see the "doctor," but wrote him a note, and shortly afterward he received a grateful letter from the Virginian woman thanking him for helping her nephew recover the money.

A KANSAS SILKVILLE.

Kansas City Times: The old silk farm in Franklin county, Kansas, known as the De Boissiere Odd Fellows' Home, which was the cause of much litigation, has been sold to J. O. Patterson of the Patterson Realty company by James Troutman and Robert Stone of Topeka. The consideration was $130,000. Of this amount $63,000 was paid in warehouse property at Third and Wyandotte streets, where Troutman and Stone plan to erect a four-story warehouse.

Some forty years ago M. De Boissiere of France went to Franklin county, Kansas, with philanthropic and business intentions. He erected a silk factory eighteen miles from Ottawa, which in time came to be known as Silkville. De Boissiere raised silk worms on a 3,100 acre farm and manufactured silk and satin ribbons. The silk industry in Kansas was a failure, and, becoming discouraged, De Boissiere returned to France, abandoned Silkville and the silk business. He willed the property to an associate, Mr. Sears, and on Mr. Sears' death it was to be given to the Odd Fellows. In 1894 the gift was repudiated, after which Mr. Troutman went to France and bought the property from the De Boissiere heirs. When the purchase was made the trustees of the grand lodge refused to surrender the property. Thirteen law suits covering a period of sixteen years followed. Jan. 10, 1909, the supreme court of Kansas awarded the property to Troutman and Stone.

BALLINGER TELLS ABOUT WORK OF THE LAST YEAR

Says Federal Agents Cannot Do Police Duty in Liquor Matters.

Opposes Coal Land Leases and Suggests New Legislation.

Washington, Dec. 9.—In his annual report, just made public, Secretary Ballinger of the department of the interior devotes a large amount of space to public land problems. He recites the history of the public domain and gives statistics to show that there is now remaining unappropriated and unreserved 711,986,409 acres of public land in continental United States and Alaska.

Regarding the sale of liquor to Indians and the enforcement of treaty provisions, the secretary says:

"Perhaps the most trying and difficult feature of Indian administration is the effort to inhibit the sale of liquor to them. Notwithstanding the vigilance of the federal officers, and prosecutions and convictions for offenses of this nature, a vast amount of mischief is done by the liquor traffic in preventing the advance of the Indian. The report of the commissioner of Indian affairs sets forth the activities of the service in this respect, and every effort will be made by the department to reduce to a minimum this evil.

Not Function of Government.

"It is not, however, the function of the government to perform, and it can not properly exercise, through its officers police duties in white communities and settlements organized under state and municipal laws, and when the Indian has been released from his restrictions and recognized as a citizen federal authority over him should cease and should no longer with reasonable propriety be exercised over his personal conduct.

"The leasing of allotments of restricted Indians should not be made where the Indian can be induced to improve and cultivate the land. In exceptional cases where the lands contain minerals, or it becomes necessary to make beneficial use of water for irrigation within a limited period, leasing may be necessary upon approval by the department."

The granting of free homes to the landless settler, he says, has proved its wisdom. The lands in the hands of the industrious settlers, whose labor creates wealth and contributes to the public resources, are worth more to the United States than if they had been reserved as a solitude for future purchasers.

For nearly forty years the statutes have declared that all valuable mineral deposits in lands belonging to the United States, both surveyed and unsurveyed, are to be free and open to exploration and purchase and the lands in which they are found to occupation and purchase by citizens of the United States and those who have declared their intention to become such. Rich deposits of precious metals in the Pacific states and territories have been discovered and located under these general mining laws and have been operated for many years.

Mineral Land Laws Good.

Granting defects in the laws, they have accomplished their purpose in causing the mineral resources to be developed and have thus contributed enormously to the wealth of the nation. It is hardly reasonable to believe that any material change will be made in these laws or of the method of disposal of the lode and placer claims of the mineral regions.

Heretofore, as will be seen, it has been the policy of congress to dispose of the public lands to those who were disposed to make the best use of them, none of which were disposed of with a view to securing revenue for governmental support. Even the coal lands were sold at nominal figures, and until a few years ago they were not entered even at that figure, except where market facilities made the land salable for their product.

Under more conservative theories the question now is of saving the remnant of the public lands from monopolization or misuse without abandoning the old policies of encouraging development. The highest productive use of these lands is the concern of the people. The methods of securing this use are the concern of national and state governments.

Rests With Congress.

The executive can move only as directed or authorized by congress in selling or otherwise disposing of this national estate; therefore all questions relating to a change from the existing status or of policy over this estate resides alone in the legislative branch of the government, and all popular movements looking to the reformation of our land system must of course be addressed to the congress. Consequently the movement to conserve the national resources in this national estate of lands—that is, to secure the wisest and most lasting benefit to the nation in their use—is a matter with which congress must deal.

New or amendatory legislation respecting our public lands should be direct, simple, effective, and relate principally to the proper form of disposition of the withdrawn lands—waterpower sites, oil lands, coal lands, and rights-of-way over public lands.

The Federal government should not undertake or assume the entire burden of the conservation of the natural resources of the states in which they are situated, for it has been demonstrated that the states are capable of taking care of these questions in a large measure, as is shown by the legislation effectuating these purposes in states like Massachusetts and Washington, at the extremities of our country.

Methods Are Improved.

The secretary reports marked advances in administrative methods and efficiency within the department during the year. He also reports that the recommendations made from time to time by the committees appointed at the instance of the president to suggest economies and changes to improve the service are being put into effect wherever existing law will permit, without waiting for legislation.

Four thousand six hundred and sixty-five entries were canceled as the result of investigations; 12,065 acres were restored through proceedings for the removal of unlawful inclosures.

The area of public and Indian lands included in original entries and filings during the fiscal year 1910 is 26,391,269.09 acres, which is an increase of 6,498,765.33 acres over the area entered during the year 1909.

The area patented during the fiscal year 1910 is 10,983,150.12 acres, of which amount 7,404,598 acres was disposed of under the homestead laws.

Net Receipts $8,000,000.

The total cash receipts from the sales of public lands, including fees and commissions, were $8,371,637.10; from the sales of Indian lands, $2,037,551.68; reclamation water-right charges, $770,586.35; depredations on public lands, sales of government property, and copies of records, $284,148.93, making the total cash receipts from all sources in connection with the public lands $11,463,924.06, a decrease of $752,491.33 from the fiscal year 1909.

The excess of receipts over all expenditures and estimated liabilities of the public-land service is $8,284,560.57.

In view of the conflict between waterpower withdrawals and applications for rights of way for purpose of irrigation, as well as the development of power, the department is granting, after field investigation, rights of way for irrigation where the value of the site is found to be higher for the reclamation of arid lands than for the development of commercial power. All applications, however, have been granted under stipulations designed to limit and control the use.

Under Homestead Law.

Under the enlarged homestead act of 1909 allowing entry of 320 acres, there have been classified and opened for entry approximately 188,900,000 acres.

The existing withdrawals of coal, oil, phosphate, and waterpower lands aggregate at this time, in round numbers, over 91,000,000 acres.

A failure to release much of the lands now under withdrawals by new and amendatory acts directing the manner of their disposition will inhibit development and greatly retard the new and struggling settlements and industries of many of the western states and territories.

All the coal lands in Alaska not located prior to Nov. 12, 1906, are under the bond of withdrawals. Those located prior to said date are for the most part under departmental investigation on charges of fraud or irregularities, etc.

A class of entries, known as the Cunningham entries, made in 1907, have provoked wide discussion and popular interest, largely because of their alleged value and method of attempted acquisition.

"In view of such conditions," he says, "I deem it of the highest importance that all these cases, involving thirty-three entries, or 5,280 acres, of coal lands, be transferred from the jurisdiction of the general land office directly to the court of appeals of the District of Columbia for consideration and adjudication, without the necessity of a ruling as to the validity or invalidity of these entries by the commissioner of the general land office as is now required in such cases. This procedure may well be provided by special direction in the bill now pending in congress for the authorization of appeals in land cases from the interior department of that court.

Alaska Land Laws Bad.

"Reverting to the condition of the public land laws in Alaska, even the most cursory examination of them, in view of local conditions of climate, of isolation of territory, except as to ocean transportation, its vast extent and lack of homogeneity, satisfies all practical men that they are crude and unsuited to the best interests of the government. On the other hand, experiments at amendment have placed the ban on development so that progress is at a deadlock."

The secretary directs attention to the recommendations contained in his report for 1909 for coal-land legislation and quotes from an official statement made in 1907, wherein some of the difficulties which would be encountered in the operation of a leasing system are pointed out, and again calls attention to the importance of enacting legislation which would give the department an effective method of disposition of coal lands, especially in Alaska.

Lease Oil and Gas Lands.

He declares he is in favor of a general leasing system of oil and gas bearing lands, such a system as will promote legitimate development of this industry, prevent monopoly, and conserve one of the great natural resources of the country. But he would apply the leasing system only to areas withdrawn for classification or classified by the geological survey. He recommends that "the government adopt a liberal policy in opening the oil lands in California."

Concerning water power he says:

"There is now withdrawn from disposition, pending legislation concerning water-power sites, approximately 1,450,000 acres of the public domain.

"In the various public-land states and territories containing water-power resources, in so far as there is present market for those powers, the title to areas greater in extent than that remaining in the government has long since passed into private ownership, and it must be realized that any radical or burdensome restriction imposed by the Federal government upon this resource will operate as a servitude on the public lands and discourage their development and use.

Let States Have Use.

"Taking into consideration the facts that the states own the waters in the streams and have police power to supervise and control public utilities, it would seem a direct and effective method of control would be to trustee the power sites to the states in some such manner as proposed by a bill now pending in congress.

"I earnestly advise the adoption of some legislation which will in any event retain the fee title to the lands in the people and effectually vest the power of regulation and control in the state or in the federal government, and which will not result in limiting prompt and economical development, or permit monopolization or extortion."

Legislation Recommended.

Other recommendations for amendments to existing laws or for enactment of new laws are as follows:

Amendment of existing desert-land laws so as to limit the maximum of area which may be entered to 160 acres; to extend the time within which final proof may be made to seven years, but impose the additional condition of actual cultivation of not less than one-half the irrigable area of the entry for a period of not less than three years prior to final proof.

Repeal of the commutation provisions of the homestead law, or, if this be deemed inadvisable, modification of the present laws so as to require two years' actual residence, cultivation, and improvement as a prerequisite to commutation. Also provide that no patent shall issue under any commuted homestead entry hereafter made, except to citizens of the United States.

Legislation requiring notice of mining locations to be recorded in the office of the register and receiver of the land districts; requiring final payment and entry for mineral claims to be made within seven years from date of location, exclusive of any time covered by pending adverse or contest proceedings; and modifications of the placer mineral laws so as to provide that no placer location hereafter made, whether by one or more persons, or an association of persons, shall exceed forty acres in area.

Limit Railroad Construction.

That the act of March 3, 1875, be amended so as to provide specifically that no railroad construction work shall be permitted upon the public lands, either surveyed or unsurveyed, until application therefor shall have been approved by the secretary of the interior; that he be authorized to disapprove the application or to require appropriate stipulations as a condition precedent to the approval of the application when in his judgment the public interests so require.

Legislation making it a criminal offense to hunt, kill, or destroy game at any season of the year in any national park, national monument, or game preserve; legislation giving police jurisdiction in national parks to United States commissioners, and legislation to protect these reservations from forest fires and to provide a penalty for failing to extinguish fires therein.

Recommending the amendment of the reclamation act, he says:

"It is important to the reclamation of arid lands contiguous or adjacent to existing projects, to the government from the standpoint of revenue, and in line with practical and useful conservation, that legislation be enacted authorizing the secretary of the interior to dispose of any surplus water available from irrigation projects to persons, associations or corporations operating systems for the delivery of water to individual water users for the irrigation of arid lands, and I earnestly recommend the enactment of such legislation.

Sale of Condemned Land.

"Private lands purchased or condemned for use in construction of reclamation projects and public lands reserved and improved for this purpose should, when no longer needed, be disposed of, and I therefore recommend the enactment of a law which will authorize the secretary of the interior to sell at public auction such lands when no longer needed for the purpose for which acquired or reserved, the receipts from such sales to go into the reclamation fund."

The secretary recommends that the board of pension appeals be abolished from July 1, 1911, and its duties transferred to the office of the assistant attorney general for the interior department. He also recommends that congress give "careful consideration to previous recommendations that the number of pension agencies in the United States be decreased or abolished, with a view to economy in administration."

Bureau of National Parks.

Urging the creation of a bureau of national parks and resorts, he says that the creation of such a bureau, and the planning under it of a consistent and broadly considered scheme for national parks and resorts to fit the future needs of the United States of America "would be in line with the policy under which our first president planned, in 1803, the federal city which now bears his name, without which planning no such civic convenience, beauty, impressiveness and national dignity as the city of Washington now enjoys would have been possible.

"The volume of the work and its importance in the supervision of the national parks and resorts under the secretary of the interior has passed beyond the stage of satisfactory control by operations carried on with the small force available in the secretary's office."

PET DOG AND AGED MAN.

Latter Refused to Stay at the Poor Farm Without Canine.

Boston, Mass., Dec. 9.—The canine love of a four-footed pet for Hiram Thompson, 80 years old, of East Brookfield, recently came near cmpelling the town authorities to take the dog to the poorhouse when Thompson was carried there.

Only with force and blows was the pet finally prevented from following Thompson. The same love returned by the master for the dog last week caused the old man to give up snug quarters at the poor farm and return to his isolated and lonely home. Thompson and his dog have for years lived in a little house a short distance out of the village. The old gentleman, now 80, has been an authority on the village life of the community of a half century ago.

Four years ago Thompson's wife died. In spite of the objections of friends and neighbors the old man persisted in keeping house, with only the dog for company. Up to a year ago Mr. Thompson got along very well. In spite of loneliness. It was not until sickness and increasing poverty began to make harsh inroads that the neighbors decided to take action.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY

TELLS NEEDS OF CURRENCY

Aldrich Leads Discussion of Reforms in Treasury Department.

Says National Bank Laws Are Badly in Need of Revision.

Philadelphia, Dec. 9.—"The need for currency reform," was discussed by Senator Aldrich, chairman of the national monetary commission, Senator Burton, a member of the commission, Assistant Secretary of Treasury Andrew and Director Roberts of the mint, at a special session of the American Academy of Political and Social Science held here last night.

Senator Aldrich said that in his opinion the reform of the present banking system was the most important of the work now before the monetary commission. The currency problem would adjust itself, he said, when the banking system was taken care of.

Up To Government.

He said that many methods prescribed by law for the management and control of national banks have become obsolete and that the "national government having assumed control of the organization of credit, it is manifestly incumbent upon it to enter at the earliest possible moment upon such a revision of our national banking legislation as will make our methods and practices more responsive to the demands of our modern business life.

"The structural weakness and practical defects of our national banking system are shown by the relative growth of national banks and state banks and trust companies in the last twenty-five years. Within this period the number of national banks has increased 4,268 while the number of state banks and trust companies has increased 11,085.

State Banks Growing.

"The capital and surplus of the state banks and trust companies have increased in the same time from $175,000,000 to $1,283,000,000. In many important communities practically all of the banking business is carried on by state trust companies.

"If we are to give the banks of the country and of every section an opportunity which can only be afforded by the general government, for association and co-operation, the result must be of such a nature as to be mutually beneficial to all banks and clearly in the interest of the people of the country as a whole. It must be an organization that will as far as possible insure reasonableness and steadiness of rates of discount throughout the country, that will prevent the possibility of bank suspensions in the future. It must provide against any possible disruption of domestic exchanges.

To Maintain Credit.

"It must be an organization which will have both the power and the purpose to maintain at all times, under all circumstances, the credit of the great people whose interests it is bound to serve."

Director Roberts of the mint said there is no pressing occasion to deal with United States notes and silver certificates, which, he said, are being rapidly absorbed by the retail trade and there is no probability that they will ever again embarrass the treasury.

"The total amount of United States notes and silver certificates now outstanding in denominations above $5, is only about $250,000,000," he said. "They are being reduced to the smaller denominations as fast as the treasury can lay hands on them, and at the present rate will be absorbed in the next five or six years, if the treasury can get them."

Banks Break Trust Law.

New Orleans, La., Dec. 9.—The department of justice has held that the agreements in effect among the bankers in the principal cities of the country to charge a uniform rate of exchange on all out-of-town checks, is a violation of the Sherman anti-trust law, and that suits are to be brought against New Orleans bankers, is intimated here on reliable authority.

The federal grand jury now in session has been investigating the subject and it is said indictments have been prepared by the district attorney.

GIRL TO EMULATE WESTON.

She Plans to Walk From Boston to Pacific Coast.

Boston, Mass., Dec. 9.—Miss Mildred Belknap, a 14-year-old sophomore in the Dorchester high school, has announced that she will attempt to walk across the continent.

She intends to take long tramps during the next few months so that by next spring she will be trained and accustomed to covering forty miles a day.

She tramped to Providence several days ago, making the forty-four-mile jaunt without apparent fatigue and covering a route over which she had walked once before. She was accompanied by her father, Charles F. Belknap, who is a postoffice employe.

With her father Miss Belknap made an extended trip on foot through the White mountains last spring.

STARTED FROM JAPAN.

But Death Claimed Ohioan While Crossing the Pacific.

Kenton, Ohio, Dec. 9.—Charles J. Cooper, formerly of this city, critically ill, started a race with death across the Pacific. He lost.

A year ago Mr. Cooper, who for many years has been master mechanic at the Ohio Central shops here, went to Japan. There he became instructor in mechanical engineering at the government university at Kumamoto.

A week ago Charles Cooper, a son of the dead man, received a letter from his father saying that he was sick and would sail on Thanksgiving day for home. Then another message came, a wireless received at Honolulu, saying Mr. Cooper was dead.

FORGOT; LOCKED UP BRIDE.

Gary, Ind., Dec. 9.—Can a man be so happy that he forgets he is married? Friends of Attorney Clyde Hunter are asking him this question because he locked his bride in their apartments by mistake.

Tuesday morning Mr. Hunter, who on Nov. 23 married Miss Daisy Atland, arose and rushed out of his rooms to catch a train for Crown Point. Following the custom of his bachelor days he locked the door and put the key in his pocket.

When the absent minded husband returned Tuesday evening he found his bride hungry and tearful after a twelve hour fast.

SNOW

Who wants any better weather than this? The sky is clouded this morning, there is a snap to the air that brings color to the cheeks and there is more medicine out of doors than in all the drug stores in existence. December isn't the time for high temperatures in this Northern clime. Warmer weather is predicted for tonight.

A year ago today was clear, bright and cold.

The sun rose this morning at 7:42 and it will set at 4:19, giving eight hours and thirty-seven minutes of sunlight.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"The British Columbia disturbance has increased somewhat in tensity and has advanced its center to Saskatchewan since Tuesday morning. In the meantime warmer weather has resulted throughout the Rocky mountains and the Northwest, and rain or snow fell over Oregon, Washington, Nevada, Idaho and Western Montana. An area of high pressure that overlies Eastern Lake Superior has caused colder weather at Eastern Ontario, the St. Lawrence valley, Eastern Lake region, Pennsylvania and New York. Zero temperatures prevail near Lake Superior and Northern Lake Michigan, while the southern limit of freezing temperature includes New Mexico, Northern Texas, Arkansas, Tennessee and North Carolina. Indications favor snow again at the Head of the Lakes during the ensuing thirty-six hours."

General Forecasts.

Chicago, Dec. 9.—Forecasts for twenty-four hours ending at 7 p. m. Saturday:

Upper Michigan—Cloudy, with snow flurries tonight or Saturday; rising temperature.

Wisconsin — Increasing cloudiness, with snow late tonight or Saturday; warmer tonight and in the east portion Saturday.

Minnesota—Increased cloudiness, with snow tonight or Saturday; warmer tonight; colder in west portion Saturday.

Iowa—Increasing cloudiness, with rain or snow tonight or Saturday; warmer tonight.

North Dakota—Generally fair tonight and Saturday; colder in northwest portion tonight.

South Dakota—Cloudy tonight, with colder in west portion; Saturday generally fair.

Montana—Generally fair tonight and Saturday; colder tonight.

Shippers' forecast—Protect 36-hour shipments of perishables against temperatures of 10 to 20 deg. above zero in Minnesota, Wisconsin and the Dakotas.

WEST END NEWS

"SWEDISH SANKEY" WILL PREACH IN THE WEST END

Swedish church people of the West end are much interested in the appearance Sunday at the Swedish Mission church, Twenty-first avenue west and Second street, of Rev. Nels. Frykman, who stands foremost among the Swedish people as a composer of hymns.

Rev. Mr. Frykman, whose home is in Minneapolis, has been in the West end for the past few days visiting friends. Wednesday evening he delivered a lecture at the Swedish Mission church at West Duluth.

Sunday morning he will preach at the Swedish Mission church at the West end and in the evening he will deliver a lecture on "The History of My Songs." He has written more sacred songs for Swedish Hymnals than anyother one man and is known among the Swedish churchmen as the "Swedish Sankey."

Rev. Mr. Frykman has passed his 70th birthday and is numbered among the superannuated preachers of the Swedish Mission church. For twenty years he was pastor of Salem church, Kandiyohi county, Minn., and prior to that was pastor of the Swedish Tabernacle church of Chicago.

For a number of years he was also vice president of the Swedish Mission covenant of America. At the services Sunday evening the choir will sing several of his hymns.

Erickson-Knight.

Miss Geneva Erickson of Clinton, Wis., and J. George Knight of the West end were married yesterday by Rev. Swaney Nelson, pastor of the First Swedish Baptist church. The wedding was a quiet affair and after the ceremony the couple left for Wisconsin points on a short wedding trip.

WATER MAIN EXTENSIONS WILL BE DISCUSSED.

The water question will again be brought up at the meeting of the West end Hillside Improvement club at the Ensign school, Twenty-third avenue west and Tenth street, this evening.

A committee will be appointed to appear before the water board and ascertain what guarantee, if any, will be required of the West end hillsiders, if the proposed extension of water mains is made as far as the Ensign school.

LINEMAN FALLS FROM TELEPHONE POLE.

Algot Lager, a lineman employed by the Zenith Telephone company, fell twenty-five feet from a pole while working at the West end yesterday and sustained only a fractured leg.

He was taken to his home, 2301 North Twenty-third street, Superior, where it is thought that he will soon recover, as it is not believed that he received any internal injuries.

Fellow workmen picked him up and carried him to the office of Dr. A. J. Braden, who dressed the injuries. An ambulance was summoned and he was removed to Superior.

Foresters' Election.

St. Louis court, Catholic Order of Foresters, held its annual election of officers last evening at St. Jean Baptiste hall, Twenty-fifth avenue west and Third street. The following were named to serve for 1911:

The state convention will be held at Mankato and the delegate named was Frank Robitaille with Peter Grignon, alternate.

Hibernians Elect.

Division No. 6, Ancient Order of Hibernians, elected the following officers last evening: P. A. Hughes, president; George Ryan, vice president; L. Drohan, recording secretary, John Simon, financial secretary; Frank Gallagher, treasurer; L. Flood, sergeant at arms; J. Garvey, sentry. The standing committee was chosen as follows: A. J. Beers, chairman, J. Devaney, P. O'Toole, J. D. Murphy and J. J. Hughes.

A open meeting of the West End Commercial club will be held this evening at Sloan's hall, Twentieth avenue west and Superior street. Mayor M. B. Cullum and Alderman Wharton will speak on the commission form of government.

The United Temperance association will meet this evening at the home of L. A. Simonson of 2102 West Superior street. This will be the first meeting of the association since it was formed three weeks ago.

SOO FAST TRAIN KILLS MEEKER COUNTY FARMER.

St. Cloud, Minn., Dec. 9.—Michael Simonson, a wealthy and prominent farmer of Meeker county, was instantly killed Wednesday evening while driving home from the village of Kimball, Stearns county, by the Winnipeg flyer on the Soo railway. The train was going at full speed and in the dark Simonson misjudged its speed and thought he could cross the tracks first. The horses were safely on the other side of the track when the engine struck the heavy wagon, cutting it in two and instantly killing Simonson, who was alone in the wagon. It is probable that an inquest will be held.

WOULD WIN WOMAN BY FIRING HUSBAND'S BARN.

Sioux Falls, S. D., Dec. 9.—Charles Bagunola, who worked on an Edmunds county farm this year for H. H. Hanson, has been arrested, charged with arson. He is accused of setting fire to buildings on the Hanson farm because he was infatuated with Mrs. Hanson and thought that by ruining her husband he could cause a separation and thus have a better chance of winning her.

It will make you open your eyes to see the style, quality, pattern and fit of a Columbia $30 Overcoat.

Last night we heard two gentlemen comparing notes about their overcoat experience in the St. Louis hotel lobby.

One wore a last season's $35 made-to-order coat that looked like 30 cents—lining torn, shape gone, neck out of place, ill-fitting—and it wasn't a Mitchell creation, either.

The other had a last season's Sincerity Coat. I think he paid us $30 for it. It looked as aristocratic as on the day he bought it.

Outcome—another Columbia Overcoat customer.

NEWS AND VIEWS OF LEGISLATORS AND POLITICIANS

Guy A. Eaton Commands Oil Inspection Army as Well as the Naval Militia—Samuel Lord Reappointed to Tax Commission and C. G. Schulze Remaines Superintendent of Education—Money Spent By the Republican State Central Committee.

Eaton Is Appointed State Oil Inspector.

Announcement that Guy A. Eaton has been appointed state oil inspector, which was made by the governor yesterday afternoon, did not come as a surprise, as it was generally known among St. Louis county politicians that Capt. Eaton was slated for something worth while. As secretary of the Republican county committee he bore the brunt of the office work of the campaign, and his genial personality contributed much to the harmony and good fellowship that pervaded headquarters in the St. Louis hotel.

Eaton managed J. Adam Bede's successful campaign for congress and in due time was appointed postmaster, from which office he retired at the expiration of his term to be succeeded by A. P. Cook, appointed on the recommendation of Congressman Miller. No love is lost between Miller and Eaton, so the story goes, but Eaton might have been reappointed postmaster had he cared to play the Miller game. But he wasn't reappointed.

There was talk of his getting the job of surveyor general of logs and lumber, but complications antedating his becoming a Barkis, precluded his landing that job, the value of which is problematic, and when the governor offered him the inspectorship, during the Brainerd meeting, he was urged to accept it.

M. Eaton will succeed E. J. Lynch, a Johnson appointee, high in the councils of the Democratic party of the state. Mr. Lynch was a member of the far-famed kitchen cabinet, the adjunct to the Johnson administrations which supplied almost as much material for newspaper "copy" as did the personality of the late governor himself. Mr. Lynch is a shrewd politician, thoroughly imbued with the spirit of the game, and may be expected to be heard from later in Minnesota politics, and when he is, there is every likelihood that most of the other kitchen cabineteers will be on the job with him.

The office of state oil inspector pays a straight salary of $2,500. He appoints two deputies each for Ramsey and Hennepin counties and one for St. Louis county, these five deputies being paid $100 a month each. Deputies are appointed for each of the other counties, but their pay is prescribed by the state inspector and limited to the amount of fees they collect, and in no case may go above $100. The inspector receives monthly reports from his deputies and makes an annual report to the governor. The state pays the mileage of the inspector and his deputies at the rate of 10 cents a mile.

With ninety odd deputies on his list, the state oil inspector is an important cog in the political machine. In fact, the oil inspection department has long been considered to all intents and purposes largely a political agency of the state administration, the chief duties of its personnel being to perpetuate the dominant power in control of the state government.

Lord Kept On the State Tax Commission

Samuel Lord of Kasson remains a member of the state tax commission, according to an official announcement made by Governor Eberhart in St. Paul yesterday. This is another appointment that was expected. The place is one of importance and dignity and is monetarily desirable, paying $4,500 a year. Commissioner Lord is chairman of the body from which Commissioner Charles Halvorson is to retire at the end of his term. Carl J. Swendsen of St. James has been appointed to succeed him. Mr. Lord was a member of the state senate two terms, serving in the legislature from 1893 to 1907. He is an old line Republican, a native of Minnesota, is a lawyer and was county attorney of Dodge county twelve years. He was appointed by Governor Johnson a member of the first state tax commission.

Another reappointment announced is that of C. G. Schulze as superintendent of education, and he also is a Johnson appointee. County superintendents of schools throughout the state urged Governor Eberhart to keep him in the office, to which he succeeded upon the resignation of Supt. Olson.

Duluthians Help Poverty Stricken G. O. P.

An examination of the campaign expense account turned in to the state authorities by the Republican state central committee is interesting to Duluthians, showing as it does that Zenith City men came to the front nobly when Chairman Ed Smith said "Come across." Senator E. B. Hawkins, for instance, contributed $1.750, in three lots—$1,000, $250, $500. C. A. Congdon put an even $1,000 into the G. O. P. jackpot; A. M. Chisholm and M. H. Alworth each $500; G. G. Hartley $400, and W. H. Cole $250. Guy A. Eaton and Odin Halden each put in $300, and Walter J. Smith of Eveleth, who was elected state treasurer, was permitted to swell his campaign expenses to the extent of $500, $300 in one ante and $200 in another.

*Treasurer of former state committee.

The total amount contributed was $19,517.04. It doesn't appear from the figures where that four cents came from, but maybe it represents how some of the defeated candidates felt after the Republican state convention.

The committee must spend more than it received, the total liabilities being $21,152.73. In the treasury there is $68.07, which financial situation creates a deficit of $1,567.02. The statement of disbursements was filed:

Senator Cheadle Talks To Lakesiders.

Harry W. Cheadle, state senator-elect from the Fifty-first district, will speak before the Lakeside club this evening, when legislative subjects of interest to Duluth will be given consideration. The meeting will be held in the hall at the corner of Forty-fifth avenue east and Robinson street. It will be the last meeting of the club before the legislative session opens and the members are taking a lively interest in projects that are to be presented to the legislature in behalf of Duluth.

Municipal affairs also will be discussed, of particular interest to Lakesiders, such as alleged inadequate street car service and the problem of combatting the dust nuisance. London road residents pay $1,200 annually for sprinkling that thoroughfare and they say automobiles from all parts of the city stir up the dust as soon as it has been laid. It is proposed to find some preparation that will do the work more effective than does water.

Other municipal subjects are expected to come up.

Campaign Money Is Accounted For

Bert Fesler, as treasurer of the Democratic congressional campaign committee, filed the statement of that organization's expenses in its fight for the election of Judge Jaques yesterday, giving $1,264.41 as the total of such expenditures. Judge Jaques also filed his statement, the total of his expenses being $520.42, making a total set-back of $1,784.83 to the lost cause. John Saari, treasurer of the Miller campaign committee, has not filed a statement of expenses for that committee.

Senator Laybourn, who opposed the victorious ambition of Harry W. Cheadle to serve in the state senate from the Fifty-first, says in his statement that he spent $235, and J. H. Whitely, whose struggle to gain the Republican nomination for judge of probate was unavailing, sacrificed to the god of the ambitions a total of $277.67.

C. C. Bartholomew, a Prohibitionist who was willing to risk association with the members of the house as a representative from the Fifty-first, spent $24.50. Although in all probability the two facts have no relation to each other, it is true that Mr. Bartholomew was not given mandate to risk that association.

William McComber, Democratic candidate for county commissioner for the Second district, got rid of $96 in the campaign, which resulted in reelection of John Tischer.

J. A. McCuen, re-elected coroner, spent $44.25.

PERHAM LATEST TO ADOPT "LID"

Saloons There Closed But Agents Found Very Little Liquor.

Fergus Falls, Minn., Dec. 9. — The eight saloons in Perham, which was the largest "wet" village in Otter Tail county, were closed Thursday by government agents. The reports indicate that there was but little liquor found when the deputy arrived to close them. It has been known for several days that the deputies would soon be on hand, and saloon patrons have been stocking up, it is said. The demand for jugs suddenly rose to enormous proportions, and every grocery and crockery store was soon cleared out. Bottles were utilized as far as they went, and a large part of the saloon stocks was soon transferred to private owners. Consequently, the deputies found little to ship out.

Hans O. Hagen, a summer resort proprietor at Pelican Rapids, was brought to this city yesterday and was bound over to the grand jury on the charge of selling liquor illegally. This is the sixth case from that locality.

THREE DISTRICTS IN NORTH DAKOTA

Increased Population to Add Additional Congressmen to the State.

Grand Forks, N. D., Dec. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Assurance that North Dakota will be entitled to three members of congress under the new apportionment based on the increased population of the state, raises the question of congressional division for the coming legislative assembly to settle.

Politicians appear to be favorable to a division of the eastern section of the state into two districts, one for the north quarter and the other for the south quarer, while the third district would be made up of counties on the Missouri slope and those lying parallel to the north, going as far east as Ward, Sheridan and Burleigh. Such a division, it appears, can be made with a very fair distribution of population through the three districts.

How Districts Will be Made.

Under the plan proposed for two eastern and one western districts, the counties would be included in the different districts as follows:

Northeastern district—Pembina, Cavalier, Walsh, Grand Forks, Traill, Steele, Nelson, Ramsey, Pierce, Rolette, Bottineau, McHenry, Towner and Benson.

FAMOUS DEADWOOD COACH OUT OF GAME.

Lead, S. D., Dec. 9.—With the letting of a contract for the carrying of the United States mails over the Spearfish-Whitewood route, the postoffice department abandoned the famous old Deadwood coach. For twenty-seven years Harvey Fellows had been carrying the mails over the Spearfish-Deadwood route, and many an Eastern tourist took a delight in taking the trip with him.

WASHBURN SALOON MAN IS FOUND NOT GUILTY.

Madison, Wis., Dec. 9.—Louis Werner, a Washburn saloonkeeper, was found not guilty by a jury in federal court here, on a charge of selling liquor to an Indian. The trial of George E. Benedict, a bartender of Ashland, on a similar charge, is on.

Wesley Bartel, 22 years old, of Bayfield, pleaded guilty to introducing liquor on the reservation. Judge Sanborn withheld sentence until later.

The government recently indicted many saloon men on charges relating to the sale of liquor to Indians. For years it has arrested Indians, but now it proposes to make an example of the men who are responsible for the Indians' possession of firewater. The crusade against the liquor men was waged by W. E. Johnson and his deputies.

NOT REGISTERED.

Cavalier, N. D., Defeated Candidate Raises Pertinent Point.

Langdon, N. D., Dec. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Conditions almost identical with those existing in Grand Forks are revealed in an action brought by Joseph Power against J. K. Hamilton contesting his election to the position of county auditor of Cavalier county. Power alleges that the fact that the voters of Langdon were not registered as provided by law, makes null the votes cast in the city.

The same question brought up here is found in the suit brought in Grand Forks county in which the office of county superintendent of schools is at stake, it being charged that the women of Grand Forks city were not registered.

Minors Barred From Pool Halls.

Minot, N. D., Dec. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Laws regulating the admission of minors to pool and billiard halls will be strictly enforced, orders having been issued to that effect by the city commission. Already the campaign is in active progress and warnings have been given to both pool hall proprietors and to the minors in question that any violation of the law will result in arrest.

ACTING IN GOOD FAITH

Homestead Entrants Now Complying Strictly With Letter of the Law.

Flood of Land Contests of Few Years Ago Is Receding.

The increasing demand for land for actual settlement and the decreasing supply of desirable tracts have brought about a strict compliance with the homestead laws that is resulting in a recession in the flood of land contests from the high tide of three or four years ago.

A few years ago the Duluth land office was flooded with contests. People desiring land were on the lookout and the least wavering of homesteaders from the letter of the homestead laws precipitated a contest and the homesteader was put to great expense and the vexations of prolonged litigation. Some of the cases filed three or four or five years ago have not yet been decided and the people who made the original entries are waiting for patents which may never be issued to them.

Time was not very many years ago when perjury was common in obtaining title to government land. People who lived in the cities entered on land under the homestead laws, lived on it a short time each year or just long enough to make the necessary improvements and then swore under oath that they had lived on the land for the required length of time to obtain title. The land office officials had no way of learning otherwise and took the statemetns under oath for their face value.

There was plenty of land for everybody at that time and there were few contests. Rather than "jump" a claim and start a contest, a person would make an original entry on another claim fully as desirable. Times have changed. Desirable tracts of land are so scarce that, if there is a chance of winning a contest, a person will readily "jump" another man's claim if the other man is not acting in good faith.

The law has always been "residence, settlement and improvement in good faith," but in the old days, there was no check on homesteaders. Now the people standing ready to "jump" claims are a check on the others and nobody would think of making a homestead entry unless he intended to act in good faith.

The flood of contests of three or four years ago has had a salutary effect on homesteaders. The requirements of the law are not regarded any more as so much red tape. People know that, when invoked, the letter of the law holds and the result is that people actually make homes on their claims and comply with the law as to residence and improvements.

In the days when the law, except in its general provisions, existed only in the statute books, much land in Northern Minnesota passed into the hands of those who never intended to cultivate it and the agricultural development of this section of the state was consequently retarded. The government land now remaining is in demand by actual settlers and people who enter on the land will assist in the agricultural development of Northern Minnesota and the land will thus go to those whom the homestead laws were intended to benefit.

Even Dogs Are Developing the Motor Mania in New York

"MIME" MOTORING.

"Mime" is the latest evidence of motor-mania. "Mime" is a dog of the Papillon breed living in New York at the Hotel Walton. He has developed such a craze for motoring that it is hard to keep him out of the seat of any passing motor car. He prefers to ride on the front side and the faster the machine goes the better it suits him. He disappeared one day this week and the police are now looking for him in motor circles. As he weighs but nine pounds he will be hard to find in a big city like New York. It is thought that he has jumped into a passing automobile and gone on a joy ride. His mistress is very unhappy over his desertion.

"POLLY" IS AFTER HIM ALL THE TIME

Imaginary Foe Will Not Allow John Andrews a Peaceful Moment.

An evil spirit known as "Polly," keeps right after John Andrews, 65 years old, and won't allow him a peaceful minute.

So John, pursued by the imaginary influences, rushed into Poor Commissioner Shogan's office in the courthouse this morning and closed the door quickly behind him. He didn't want the door opened even for a moment for those who pursued him can slip through even the smallest epenings, he says.

He says that he does not even know who "Polly" is, but that "Polly" does cause a great deal of trouble. When "Polly" cannot come himself, he sends substitutes to bother John and the old man's life for the last few weeks has been almost unbearable.

The substitutes follow John wherever he goes. They followed him to the poor farm when he was sent there some time ago.

Thinking that he would give them the slip and outwit them, he went to Superior and secured a job washing dishes in a boarding house, but "Polly" "put them wise" and they were soon after him in Superior. He hurried back to Duluth and got a job in a Third stret boarding house. Te thought that he had shaken them, but he hadn't. They are with him all the time and he doesn't know what to do.

He visited the poor office this morning to ask advice of Mr. Shogran. The old man's mind wanders and he will probably be given an examination as to his sanity before the local probate court.

The Van Wagner bankrupt sale of men's and boys' clothing starts tomorrow at the Oak Hall.

AMUSEMENTS

TONIGHT'S ATTRACTIONS.

LYCEUM—James K. Hackett in "The King."
ORPHEUM—Vaudeville.
EMPRESS—Vaudeville.
ODEUM and LYRIC—Motion Pictures.

Green Room Gossip.

James K. Hackett will open a short engagement at the Lyceum this evening in a new comedy of advenure entitled, "The King." This play is from the pen of George Brackett Seitz, a Boston author, and promises to create a sensation inasmuch as it deals with a delicate subject, but is handled so deftly that it is considered one of the greatest plays of this season.

Mr. Hackett will use this play for the remainder of his road tour and will also be seen in it in New York later in the season.

William A. Brady, under whose direction Mr. Hackett is touring, has surrounded him with an excellent supporting company including Miss Beatrice Beckley, Arthur Hoops, Charles C. Brandt and Robert Lawler. Although the play is styled a comedy it carries a romantic story which is intensely interesting and in keeping with Mr. Hackett's reputation as a romantic actor.

Mr. Hackett will give a matinee performance tomorrow and the final presentation takes place on Saturday evening.

Musical comedy will be the feature of next week's bill at the Orpheum. "The Top of the World Dancers" is the name of the feature act. The company is composed of seventoen people, presenting a tabloid musical comedy entitled "Kris Kringle's Dream." The famous collie ballet, introducing some Scotch collie dogs, will be a feature of the act. There will be three more performances of this week's show, tonight, tomorrow afternoon and tomorrow night.

The bill at the Empress theater this week has aroused more favorable comment than any that Manager Maitland has presented for several months. The program contains several first-class comedy features, which are always popular with a vaudeville audience. There will be five more performances, two tonight, one tomorrow afternoon and two tomorrow night, the new bill opening with the Sunday matinee.

Earle Mitchell, Jimmy Jinks in the farce which has made Margaret Mayo famous, "Baby Mine" and which comes to the Lyceum for four nights and two matiness starting next Thursday, is well known to readers of the Smart Set because of the delightful stories of adventures in high society with which he is able to force editors to draw checks in his favor.

Associated with him in the cast of "Baby Mine" is George Probert, who plays Alfred Hardy in the farce. Mr. Probert studied painting in Paris before going on the stage and Messrs. Mitchell and Probert are now at work on a series of articles descriptive of foreign travel. One of the largest monthly publications will bring the series out. Harry Davies, the stage manager of "Baby Mine" has written many vaudeville playlets, which have been successes, and he has completed a farce which is scheduled for presentation in the spring. Consuelo Bailey, another member of the "Baby Mine" company is collecting everything available pertaining to the life and work of O. Henry, and hopes to bring out the result of her collecting in a volume on that most fascinating of short story writers. Taken on the whole the artistic spirit is rampant in the "Baby Mine" company.

The idea for the comedy sketch, "High Life In Jail," which is the feature of this week's Orpheum bill, was secured by the author during a visit to a county jail in the East, where the jailor was very lenient with the prisoners. The inmates of the jail were treated almost like guests, and allowed to purchase all kinds of luxuries. The jailor permitted them to assemble in the corridor of the jail and indulge in card games, and the 'trusties" were sent on errands to all parts of the city, without guards. The author of the sketch visited the jail, and seeing two men engaged in a game of pinochle in the jailor's office, asked who they were, and was informed that they were two of the "trusties." The situation appealed to the sense of humor of the visitor, and he built his vaudeville sketch upon it.

LONG TIME SUFFERER FINDS RELIEF IN HUMAN BAKE OVENS

MRS. JAMES HENDERSON.

Mrs. James Henderson, living at 2026 West First street, Duluth, has been a constant sufferer from rheumatism and nervousness for six years, and now, at the age of 57 years, is cured through the agency of Loughney & Loughney's Bake Ovens, that curious invention for mankind that has cured hundreds of the severest cases of rheumatism, lumbago, neuralgia, catarrh, nervousness, colds, la grippe, bronchitis, stomach, liver, kidney and bowel troubles, heard of in Duluth in years.

Mrs. Henderson did not have much confidence or hope that she could ever be cured, but now that the Bake Oven results have demonstrated that the claims of its owners are correct, she has nothing but praise for it. When one suffers from an ailment for six years and then in her declining years finds relief so quickly there is no wonder that praises will fall from her lips. Her case is only one of several hundred that have had a similar experience. As a result of their cures, many of them almost marvelous, Loughney & Loughney have come to be known as among the most successful specialists in Duluth. They have their offices in the Christie building, located on Fourth avenue west between First and Second streets. Their hours are 8 a. m. to 7 p. m.; Sundays, 9 to 12 only. They give free consultation to all who call at their offices.

About 100 baskets will be given out as the average family consists of five members.

Turkey, bread, celery, potatoes, canned goods, sugar, butter, tea, coffee and flour, besides other good things to eat, will be put in every basket, the army workers figuring that the expense will be between $300 and $350. About $125 has already been subscribed to the Christmas fund.

On Monday, Dec. 26, a Christmas dinner will be served from 12 to 3 in the army hall at 613 Tower avenue. Preparations are being made to feed about 100 at this dinner, the affair being intended for those who have no homes in the city.

Last year the affair was held at the Spalding hotel in Duluth.

MINNEAPOLIS MAN INJURED IN FALL.

Charles Ysevich, who gave 3331 North Second street, Minneapolis, as his address, slipped and fell at the Omaha Tower avenue crossing last evening and fractured one of his legs. Being unable to walk, he was assisted to St. Mary's hospital by an officer. The injured man is 45 years old.

Revenue Man Resigns.

Light Vote Cast.

A light vote is being cast today at the special election held in Superior, when it will be decided whether or not the city will expend $90,000 to $100,000 for a new steel bridge over the Nemadji river at the East end.

Indications are that the bond issue will be lost as there is much sentiment against it.

EJECTED WOMAN HAS NOT CALMED DOWN

MRS. MINOR MORRIS.

New York, Dec. 9.—Mrs. Minor Morris, who was ejected from the White House with some violence during the Roosevelt administration, is to be heard from again in the near future. Writing to the Bain news service under date of Dec. 1, she says:

"My affairs are by no means yet settled, and I am preparing to take subsequent outrages to the courts—a fraudulent incarceration among the insane; the debauchery of some members of my own family, attack on reputation, etc., and more which shall seem incredible until proved."

CASSEROLE COOKERY.

The principle of casserole cooking is really old, but the present day equipment is vastly different from anything housewives have ever known before. The poor family in practically every country in the world for many centuries has observed the principle, but the utensils were always very crude.

The covered bean pot of the New England housewives is a fair example of the evolution of cooking utensils, says the Housekeeper. From that it is possible to trace very directly the present casserole dishes, though they are very artistic and made in such shapes and wares as to lend a real charm to the table.

Casseroles nowadays take on all shapes and sizes, from the individual dishes up to a size sufficient for serving a large number. The standards in which they are placed when removed from the oven and taken to the table are of silver, nickel, brass, copper and wrought iron, and are examples of real artistic merit.

One of the most commendable features of the casserole is that the food is always sure to come to the table hot, and it will keep hot for some length of time. It is a great aid in serving meals in courses, as the casserole course may be kept hot for some time without any special attention being given to it, and whatever is cooked in the casserole will not deteriorate if left for some little time. This is especially convenient when a meal is delayed or when some member of the family is not able to sit down with the rest.

When casserole cookery is thoroughly understood many combinations of food and many inexpensive foods will be put to use and very palatable results obtained. The process of cooking should be carried on at a comparatively low temperature.

When articles of food like fowl, meats, mushrooms, sweetbreads or game are to be cooked, they should be browned in butter or oil in a separate dish and then placed in a casserole and the pan carefully rinsed in order to secure all the juices for the earthen dish. Never forget that this cooking process should never be more than a simmer, and of course that takes considerable time.

A word here might be said about the care of the pottery. All casseroles and ramekins and dishes related to them have a polished interior surface, therefore no flavor is retained if the dishes are properly cleansed with hot water and soap.

There is one thing always to be remembered, however, and that is not to change the temperature from hot to cold or from cold to hot too suddenly, as that is a sure means of cracking the ware.

SURPRISED THE SULTAN.

London Globe: Recently a party of Americans visited Constantinople and were permitted to enter Yildiz Kiosk. The sultan, who was walking alone in the gardens, entered into conversation with the visitors and addressed himself to a bright-looking girl. His majesty said, "We speak here French, English, German and Russian, but our visitors seldom know our language. We pardon them, for it is very difficult. I suppose, miss, you do not know a word?"

"Pardon, sire," replied the girl, "I know two Turkish words."

"What are they, miss?" asked the sultan.

Assuming the whining tone of the mendicants, she replied:

"Baschich, effendi" (a sou, monsieur), pointing at the same time to the sultan's pocket. His majesty presented her with a gold coin, and then she answered sweetly, "Tachacouralum, ghazi!" (thank you, seigneur).

The sultan wondered, for he was ignorant of the little pocket dictionary, Turco-English.

EVELETH GOING AFTER LIBRARY

Commercial Club Takes Steps to Lay Matter Before Andrew Carnegie.

Eveleth, Minn., Dec. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Miss Clara Baldwin, secretary of the state library commission, spoke at the Commercial club meeting last evening on the proposed Carnegie library. She recommended that a $25,000 structure, well situated, with experienced help, be maintained. Much interest was shown in her address and she answered several inquiries. The audience was told that about 3,000 books, that would cost about $3,000 be purchased, and that an appropriation of $4,000 by the council would amply maintain the library, each year. The mayor was requested to appoint a library board, to secure the donation from Mr. Carnegie, select a centrally located site, and complete all the arrangements.

Attorney Gillette of Duluth, representing Anthony, Tucker company, Boston, and W. Barney company, New York, informed the meeting of the plans of the Easterners on the proposed range electric railroad. He stated that capitalists believe that the range is a suitable field for an electric railway and that the new company has the support of the United States Steel company, also that prominent Duluth capitalists interested in the Great Northern Power company are also connected with the project. He stated that the company had secured a franchise from the county and was desirous of securing franchises at Hibbing, Virginia, Eveleth, Gilbert and Chisholm. The company will apply for franchises in the range cities.

A communication was read from the secretary of the Minnesota State Federation of Commercial clubs, requesting that the local club suggest topics and speakers for the annual meeting at St. Paul. Those present suggested that forest fire protection and taxation of state lands, for the benefit of better roads and schools, be suggested and the secretary of the club was instructed to send the same to the state federation.

JOSEPH JUDNICK IS FOUND GUILTY

Facing Sentence of From One to Five Years in Penitentiary.

Virginia, Minn., Dec. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—The jury in the case of the state against Joseph Judnick, who has been on trial the past ten days on a charge of shooting James Martin, an Oliver Iron Mining company police officer, at Ely last June, reached a verdict at a little after 5 o'clock last evening. Judge Hughes had gone to the depot to take the 5:15 train for his home at Hibbing and the verdict was not announced until this morning. The jury found Judnick guilty of assault in the second degree. The punishment is from one to five years in the penitentiary.

A surveyor and cruiser say they have just followed the lines indicated in the treaty of 1855 and that the eastern boundary of the Indian territory extends four miles west of Hibbing, taking a course from the mouth of the east branch of the Swan river southwest of Hibbing to Carson lake, thence north to Powers lake.

body and a large gathering of employers, working men and others interested in the subject, including the newly elected representatives in the legislature, are expected to attend.

Gillett was chosen as the representative of the employers, being president of the Minnesota Employers' association. W. E. McEwen is state labor commissioner and secretary of the Minnesota Federation of Labor, and he was placed on the commission as the representative of the working men. H. V. Business Meeting.

The annual meeting of the State Association of Builders' Exchanges will open Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock in the rooms of the Duluth Builders' Exchange in the Lyceum building. Delegates are expected from Minneapolis, St. Paul, Stillwater, Faribault and other cities, as well as from the Duluth exchange.

The morning meeting will be given over to the appointment of committees and the reading of the president's report, which is the keynote of the annual meeting. President J. W. L. Corning of St. Paul will discuss in his report different subjects of interest to the builders, including legislation, employers' liability, industrial education, labor conditions, etc., it is expected. Legislative Matters.

The meeting in the year just before a session of the legislature is always an important one, as there are legislative matters of importance to the building trades to be considered. The visiting delegates will be entertained by the members of the Duluth Builders' Exchange at a luncheon at the Commercial club during the noon recess, but that will be the only social feature of the gathering, which is primarily for business purposes.

SHOW TRADE HAS DOUBLED

now available, Jan. 1 to Oct. 31, all of which was under the new tariff law, with the corresponding months of the calendar year 1908, all of which was under the preceding law, the figures are:

Imports from the Philippines in the first ten months of the calendar year, 1908, $8,146,238; in the corresponding months of the calendar year, 1910, $15,366,893.

Exports to the Philippine islands in the first ten months of 1908, $8,432,104; in the corresponding period of 1910, $16,497,057, the 1910 figures being thus practically double of those in 1908 in imports and exports.

Records in Islands.

He attended the common grade schools in West Duluth and later attended the Central high school. He was, when in West Duluth, an enthusiastic member of the militia, old Company G. He was very well known all over the city and was something of a "lion" in a social way.

His father, who started the Marinette Iron works, lost his property during the panic in 1893. The old factory is now used by the Union Match company. The family moved back to Marinette, Wis., about twelve years ago, and since going back have established one of the largest and most prosperous iron foundries in the state of Wisconsin.

said, she had found her husband insulting Hattie Le Blanc, who then was working in their home.

Had Beaten the Girl.

The witness further said Mrs. Glover told her of having repeatedly beaten Hattie, and that once Mrs. Glover brought Hattie to the home of the witness and struck her under the chin in an attempt to make her confess that she had acted improperly with Glover.

This was but one of numerous sensations at the session. The state had concluded its direct case and A. Farley Brewer, junior counsel, outlined the case of the defense. He said Hattie Le Blanc was brought to Glover's designedly and was sent from there designedly on the night of the murder.

INDIAN AGENTS MEET WITH INJUNCTIONS IN "DRYING UP" BEMIDJI

papers having been prepared by Attorney E. E. McDonald.

Twelve Saloons Opened.

Under cloak of the injunctions twelve saloons were opened—the only twelve in the entire territory—and at noon were doing business after having been shut for three hours.

Agents Brents and Coggeshall accepted service of the injunctions without protest and will proceed at once to St. Paul, arriving there Saturday morning for a conference with United States District Attorney Houpt.

The liquor dealers here have high hopes that the injunction, made returnable on Dec. 29, will permit them to continue to do business without molestation from the government. This would mean that all saloons would be reopened throughout the dry territory.

Agent Is Confident.

"That is where they are fooling themselves," said Agent Brents." This thing has been all gone through with before in Oklahoma and other places. It will give this dozen saloons a brief lease of life, but that is all. They die hard, but die they must."

The injunctions are addressed to W. E. Johnson, T. E. Brents, J. J. Matulys, N. J. Sero, N. A. Way, J. M. Quinn, J. T. Davis, Denton Patten, and Davis and Brannon, whose full names are unknown.

The injunctions were issued on a complaint which demands judgment herein adjudging and decreeing that said defendants and each of them, their agents, servants and employes be forever restrained and enjoined from at any time entering upon said premises, and from in any manner taking possession of, seizing or destroying or interfering with any of said personal porperty of this plaintiff, now situated within said building upon said premises, or any personal property that plaintiff may hereafter acquire and place or keep within said building," and for "such other further relief as may seem just and proper" together with plaintiff's costs, disbursements and attorneys' fees.

The plaintiff further prays that during the pendency of this action a temporary injunction be granted restraining the defendants and "each of them and their agents, servants and employes, from committing such acts until the decision of the court upon such application for a temporary injunction."

The injunctions were issued by United States Commissioner A. M. Crowell of this city.

Hauling Liquor Out.

Every available dray in town is busy hauling the liquor supply of the saloons not protected by the injunction to the depot. Each saloon keeper was instructed to ship his supply outside the restricted territory. It must go to St. Paul, Minneapolis, Superior or Ashland, according to Brents.

Since Tuesday morning Agent Brents has closed 115 saloons. In Brainerd, 26; Perham, 8; Klondike, 1; Nymore, 3; Grand Rapids, 16; Bovey, 22; Coleraine, 2; Taconite, 1; Holman, 5; Marble, 2; Cosack, 5; and Bemidji, 24.

"Every saloon in every town covered by the 1855 treaty is now closed," said Agent Brents. "Bemidji was the last to go and the first to bring the injunction blockade. I am glad to work in harmony with your men here. I expect the government to aid in a speedy untangling of the legal complications which have arisen here today."

Brents Soon to Quit.

With the closing at Bemidji, Agent Brents announced that he soon will retire from the subagency of the Indian bureau, of which he has been in charge for several weeks, returning to the Southwest to continue his work.

CHICAGO WINS SECOND GAME

Duluth All Star Hockey Team Defeated By Score of 5 to 0.

Chicago, Dec. 9.—Special to The Herald.)—The crack hockey team of the Illinois Athletic association last night defeated the All Stars of Duluth, winning the second game of the series by the score of 5 to 0 The contest was spectacular, the all round work of the Chicago forwards and the brilliant goal defense of Fenton being the bright particular features of the play.

Time and time again the puck was rushed down the ice, right up to the Duluth goal. The playing of Fenton, the Duluth goal keeper, saved the visitors from receiving a very bad beating. His net work was nothing short of brilliant and he blocked shots that seemed sure of net placement.

Cummings of the visitors also played a strong game, making some good runs with the puck. However, the Duluth team work was not such that allowed Cummings to accomplish much.

For Chicago, Krellwitz, Campbell, Bogan and Rompf played a fast and aggressive game. The team work of the Chicago boys was much superior to the work of the visitors, and this accounted for the defeat. The Chicago team started off with a rush, putting the Duluth players on the defensive from the opening signal of play.

The Duluth boys are not in the least discouraged over the showing made in the two games. They believe that with more practice and more team work they have the material for a fast team. Both games showed some classy individual play upon the part of the visiting players.

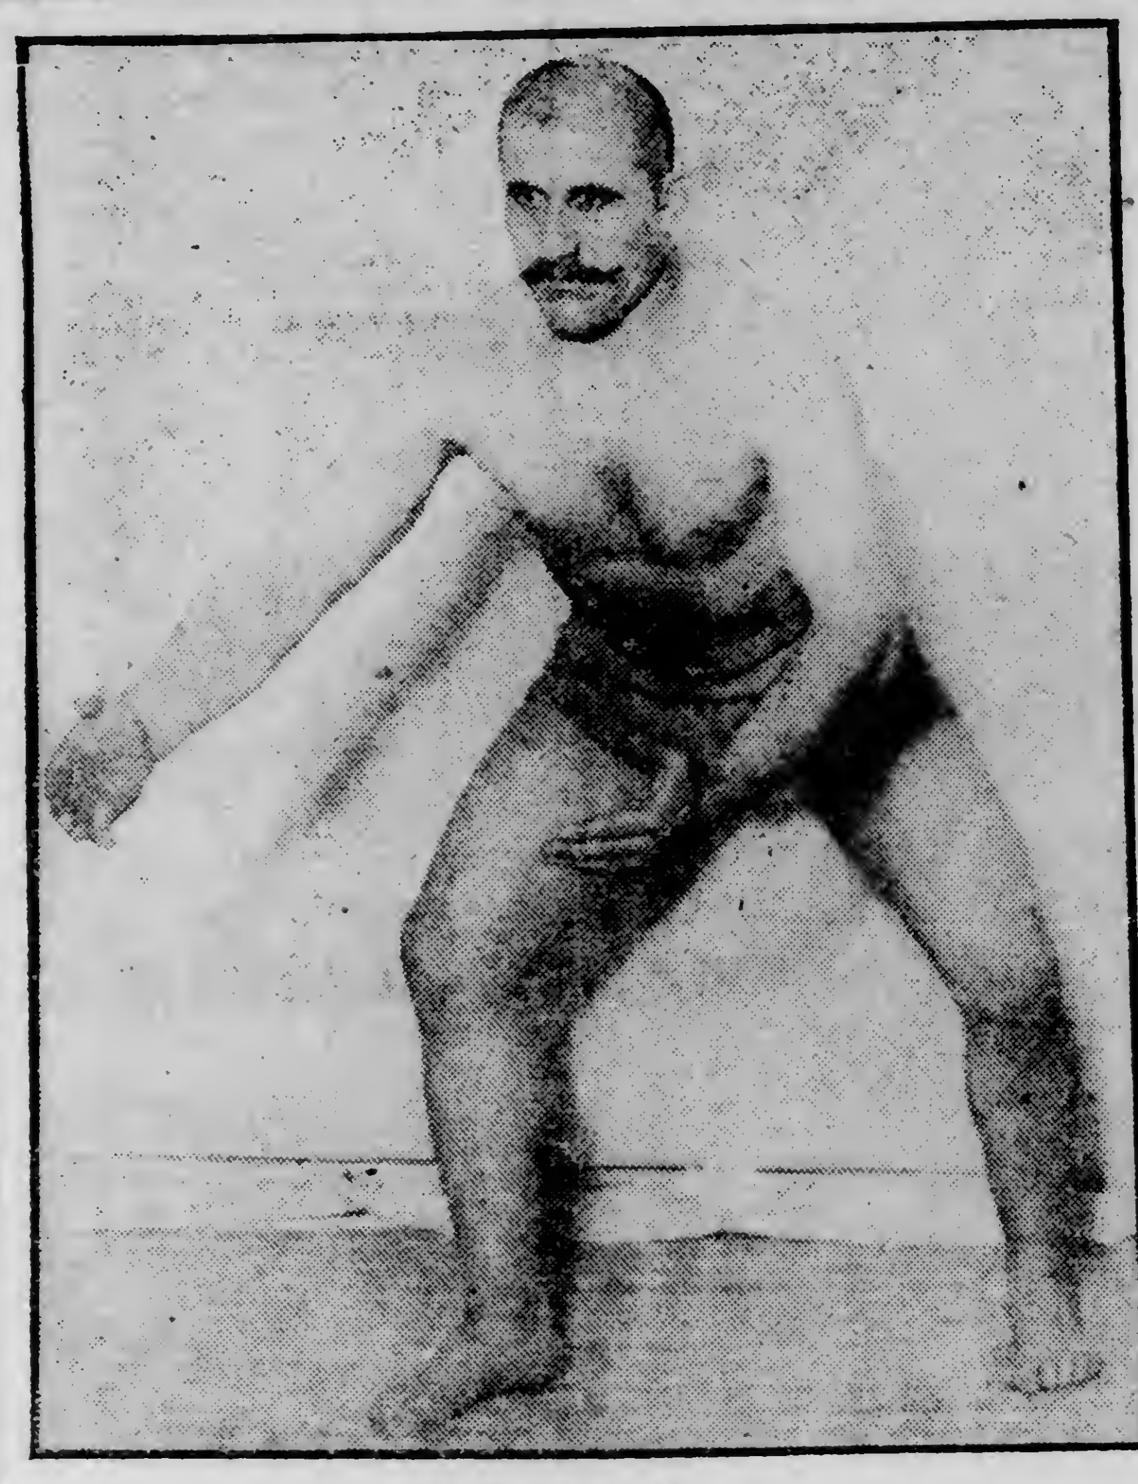
The Duluth players left for Cleveland this morning.

OPEN GOLF TOURNEY ON ATLANTA COURSE.

Atlanta, Ga., Dec. 9.—Medal play in the open golf tournament on the East Lake links of the Athletic club began at 10 o'clock this morning. More than usual interest attaches to the day's sport because all of the professionals present, except two or three never have played over the Atlanta course before. The morning round consisted of eighteen holes.

Among the players who started were Gilbert Nichols, Wilmington, Del.; W. C. Sherwood, Memphis; H. H. Barker, Garden City, N. J.; I. S. Mackie, Wilmington, N. C; Tom Mulgrew, Charleston, S C.; Cris Crosby, Macon, Ga., and Willie Robinson, Atlantic City.

YOUSIFF MAHMOUT CLAIMS TITLE RELINQUISHED BY FRANK GOTCH



YOUSIFF MAHMOUT.

Chicago, Dec. 9.—Yusiff Mahmout, the Bulgarian wrestler, through his manager, yesterday claimed the heavyweight catch-as-catch-can championship of the world, following the positive statement of Frank Gotch that he had retired from the mat for good and never would wresle again in public.

BATTLING NELSON DEAF; COULDN'T HEAR COUNT

Battling Nelson didn't hear himself counted out! News from San Francisco says that the Dane is so deaf that he is unable to hear ordinary conversation. The terrible beatings he has received around the head have impaired his hearing to such an extent that when Eyton counted the fatal ten, the first time the count has ever been taken for the iron man of Hedgewisch, the battler saw the motion of the hand but did not hear the count.

It was the proud boast of the Battler that he had never been counted out or was never even groggy. This boast has been taken away by the victory of Moran and the critics who witnessed the last fight of the Battler are of the opinion that he should retire before he is permanently injured in the ring.

The beating Gans gave Nelson at Goldfield will live long in the minds of the patrons of the ring. His kidneys were terribly pounded in that gruelling fight, and since that time Nelson has never possessed the remarkable vitality and recuperative powers of old, thought he defeated Gans twice after the Goldfield fight.

Just the other day the National Sporting club of London passing a resolution asking that the kidney punch be abolished in fights of the future. While there is nothing in the Marquis of Queensbury rules that prohibits the use of this punch, the more humane followers of the sport of boxing believe that it will be a good thing for the game if this blow was called a foul.

More fighters are permanently injured and made to retire from the ring by this blow than by any other. It has ended the ring days of Nelson and has started other fighters on the downward flight.

STAGG GREATLY PLEASED.

Conference Action Suits Fastidious Fancy of Midway Coach.

Chicago, Dec. 9.—Coach Stagg is much pleased with the results of the conference meeting of Saturday, and says it was the greatest meeting of big eight representatives since the famous reform session of 1906.

Chicago critics, however, are not impressed with the action in deciding to appoint a committee to investigate rugby football as it is played on the Pacific coast. Prof. Stagg is of the opinion that the American game is better than rugby, and he has no fears that the former will be supplanted by the variety imported from England.

The only basis for a change to the rugby game in the Middle West would be a conviction that the American game resulted in too many and too serious injuries. Coach Stagg holds with others that under the new rules the greater dangers of the American games have been eliminated.

The Maroon coach welcomes the clearer interpretation of the rules as to seven games in football schedules and as to the participation of special students. These rules are now new, but the form in which they now are expressed leaves no doubt of the intention of the conference.

RUSSIAN YELL PRACTICED.

Duluth Central high school students are practicing a war yell in Russian, which they will hurl at Hackenschmidt. The members of the entire squad will attend the theater on the night of the wrestling match as the guests of the Greater Duluth Athletic club. The football boys are planning to make a lot of noise, the Slav yell being the result of this determination.

CURLING CLUB TEAM MAY ENTER LEAGUE.

At the meeting of the city hockey league directors last evening, the resignation of the Hunter's park team was accepted and the Northerns were granted permission to change their name to the Kodaphas. The Big Duluths, the Adams, Fairmonts, Kodaphas and Park Pointers, which team was admitted to the league at the meeting last evening, now make up the city organization, which wants one more team.

It is possible that the Duluth Curling club team will enter the league, and in that event the city organization would be complete. The season will start about Dec. 30, though the schedule is not complete at the present time. The games will be played at the French club rink, Twenty-fifth avenue west and Second street.

FUND COMPLETED BEFORE EXPIRATION OF OPTION.

Asheville, N. C., Dec. 9.—A somewhat spectacular finish to a campaign for an eighteen-hole golf course in this city, was reached last evening when the sum of $500 was given to complete a $40,000 fund, five minutes before the option on the necessary lands, held by the Asheville Country club, expired.

REDMOND AND BROCK GO TWELVE ROUNDS TO DRAW.

Akron, Ohio, Dec. 9.—In a fast boxing bout here last night, Phil Brock of Cleveland and Jack Redmond of Milwaukee went twelve rounds to a draw. Redmond was the aggressor in nearly every round. He had the better of the earlier rounds, but Brock came on as the bout progressed and in the eleventh he sent Redmond to the floor twice. Redmond jumped up instantly each time and although for an instant dazed, fought gamely and finished strong.

"BATTLING" KELLY QUITS IN THE EIGHTH ROUND.

Joplin, Mo., Dec. 9.—Pete Shaughnessy of Oklahoma City, was given the decision over "Battling" Kelly of Buffalo in the eight round of a scheduled fifteen round bout here last night, when Kelly quit, claiming a foul. He was groggy as the result of a fearful beating. The men fought at 136 pounds.

Athletics Win in Cuba.

Havana, Dec. 9.—The baseball game between the Philadelphia Americans and the Almendares teams here yesterday resulted in a 2 to 1 victory for the Americans.

GOSSIP PICKED UP ALONG THE SPORTING HIGHWAY

Owen Moran Is Picked to Beat Wolgast—Ordemann and the Other "Rasslers"—Is Johnson Going Back? Ehler Went Too Far.

(BY BRUCE.)

THOSE WHO HAVE FOLLOWED THE FIGHT GAME WITH CLOSE AND absorbing interest are of the firm opinion that Owen Moran will douse the glims of one Adolph Wolgast, Cadillac, Michigan's most prominent citizen, the first time the pair entwine for a delsarte debate on a subject that was near and dear to the heart of the late Marquis of Queensbury.

Had it not been for the defeat of Nelson at the hands of Moran, it is quite likely that the Wolgast person might have stalled along more monotonous months on the reputation he gathered and cashed in at the expense of fading Nelson. He might have refused to fight Nelson the second stanza of the fight rhapsody on the ground that the Dane was all in and rolling speedily down the hill of oblivion.

Then rudely butted in the little Britisher and has raised the issue in such large type that Wolgast will hardly dare to refuse to come to terms and still claim that he is the lightweight champion of the world.

There is another fighter on the trail of the white monopolizer, and he is no other than the curly headed product of the Chicago stockyards district. Packey McFarland has yelled from the top of one of the abbatoirs that he can accomplish the 133-pound deed at three bells in the warm sunshine of the afternoon and still be as strong as a limberger cheese in the state of perfect health. If the Packey party can do all this, and still retain that degree of exuberance so necessary in the strenuous passage of fists, he should be considered one of the dangerous rock points in the pugilistic sea.

There is Freddy Welsh, too. The man from Wales is one of the grandest boxers the game has produced since the halcyon days of the wonderful Griffo. He might dent an egg with dexterous and persistent use of his fists, but there are many who will doubt that he could actually break it. He is a fine and fancy boxer and that seems to let Freddy out. It is hardly possible that he could go the 45-round route with some of the rude boys who are hot after the title held by the German.

Knockout Brown of Noo York is another who wants his name on the investigating committee. He is a rough and rugged youngster who has been beating them fast in New York fight clubs. His record entitles him to that passing consideration that fight promoters are wont to give to boys who are coming up the pugilistic corridor; and yet, everything viewed from back and front, it would seem that the public is most clamorous in the wistful wish to have Moran and the Wolgast lad fall upon each other's necks and settle this question of pugilistic caste.

They are both strong boys, so let them go and may the best man win. On their showings against the passing Nelson it would seem that Moran was the better boxer and also possesses in a more decided degree that punch that rocks rudely to the land of sorrowful sleep. Wolgast is not as popular as the late king of England, and for that rather specific reason there may be a rough guffaw go up from persons seated near the ring, should Ad go to sleep during the festivities.

Where Some One Calls for Action.

MISTER J. H. RICHIE, SPORTING editor of the Minneapolis Journal and dear and devoted friend of Henry Ordemann, the Minneapolis Norsk of large proportions, has loosed a loud yell because Karl Lehto has not seen fit to meet the Ordemann ox at the precise time agreeable to the aforementioned Mr. Richie.

One would imagine from the battle call of the Richie reviewer that Ordemann was the only "rassler" who has business or impending engagements in sight. Such is not the case, Johnathan. Lehto has his husky hands full the present season and he is getting along very nicely to date, though there is a dark shadow in the person of Hackenschmidt hovering along the progress path.

Mr. Ordemann may be served in due time, and so calm, we beseech thee, this rising peeve. As to Westergaard fearing the prowess of the Minneapolis "rassler," the records of the Westergaard boy would render doubtful the assertion or implication that there is any of the ochre stuff hidden in the carcass of the Des Moines grappler.

Because Henri has won the American championship, by virtue of his defeat of genial "Doc" Roller don't for one morose moment flaunt the idea that he is the unriddled cheese on the wrestling menu card. There are several others, so little Henri will have to wait his turn.

Who Is There to Fight Johnson?

THOSE WHO HAVE CAREFULLY looked over the heavyweight division can see but little in this division of the game. There is no one in sight to give Jack Johnson a run for his money, and with no competition the game has been allowed to run out.

At the present time the smoke has a sparring partner whom he is making much noise about. Sam Langford could probably rock the ebony head off the shoulders of this man. But Johnson has a too cordial dislike for Stubby Sam to give him the least chance to work his way into the position of world's champion.

It may be said in credit to the fighting ability of Johnson that there is no man in sight at the present time who can give the champion an argument of sufficient interest to draw a house. It is believed that Bill Delaney, who has shrewdness and understanding of fighters such as is possessed by few other men in this country, is nursing Al Kaufmann until that time when the black title holder has come to feel more acutely the effects of dissipation and also the years that do not sit any too lightly on his athletic career. Few realize it, but even at the present time Johnson is at the age when champions before him have begun to deteriorate.

When he fought Jeffries Johnson was in the prime of his athletic life. It is a blooming shame that he was not made to fight that day as the old Jeffries would have driven the negro. The world will probably never know just how great a fighter this clever negro is, for since he has been forging to the front it may be truly said that he has never met a man who has given him a battle.

But at that, if boxing is going to flourish in this country, Johnson will either have to retire or some boxer will have to burst upon the public with the ability to beat a boxer of the class of Johnson.

Little Ehler Seems To Have Gone Too Far.

THE WARM EXUBERANCE THAT came to Prof. Ehler on the floor of the conference and which excited him to that extent that he proposed the substitution of the Rugby game for the good old college game, seems to have taken the form of a roaring roorback. At the present time the posish of the Ehler purity promoter is about as comfortable as that of a floor walker at a silk bargain day sale.

Down at Madison the students are raising up and showing their teeth. The alumni have let this somewhat radical boy know just what they think of the plan to drive Wisconsin out of Western football, and it seems that some of the old grads are to take steps that will make the position of this opponent of the American game as embarassing as the position of the hired man who tried to play butler.

They want football at Wisconsin and the show of the students is the first spirited demonstration that has come from the Madison school for some time. Such moves as the recent spasm of Ehler may be a blessing in disguise, for it will at least let the students know whereat some of these learned instructors stand, and will also enable them to take the proper stand in the matter of saving the game.

WOLGAST CANNOT FIGHT BEFORE NEXT SPRING.

The break, a few inches above the wrist, is knitting fast, but not as fast as the champion wants it to.

When Jones emerged from the office he said: "Ad is not going to fight anyone before the latter part of March. That much is certain. Ten chances to one he will not fight before May. His arm is healing nicely, but the danger of another break is to be feared. We have got to lay down now, but when Ad's arm is better we will meet them all."

LEADERS FAR BEHIND RECORD

Five Teams Still Tied in Six-Day Bicycle Race.

New York, Dec. 9.—The opening of the next to the last day of the six-day bicycle race at Madison Square Garden found eight teams left in the race, five of them tied for first place, two others a lap behind and one team in a lone trail in the rear. This last was the new combination of Rutt and Clarke, formed late yesterday after McFarland and Stol had retired. Cameron and Halstead had been displaced from their run with the leaders by losing a lap in a sprint.

The pace this morning was slow, the leaders contenting themselves with dragging along, preserving their places and keeping in as good condition as possible for the final struggle. They were eighty-three miles behind the record for the 104th hour at 8 o'clock this morning, when the score stood:

Root-Moran, 1,931 miles 1 lap; Mitten-Thomas, 1,931 miles 1 lap; Fogler-Hill, 1,931 miles 1 lap; Collins-Drobach, 1,931 miles 1 lap; Hehir-Goullet, 1,931 miles 1 lap; Cameron-Halstead, 1,931 miles; West-Demara, 1,931 miles; Rutt-Clarke, 1,930 miles 9 laps.

The record is 2,014 miles and 3 laps, made by Miller and Waller in 1899.

Proctor Defeats Duluth.

Last night at Proctor the basket ball team of that city defeated the Brocklehurst team of Duluth by the score of 39 to 18. Mumma of the Proctor team secured eleven field baskets, while Frank, center of the Duluth team, played the star game for the Brockelhurst bunch.

THIRD LEAGUE BUGABOO LAID

Big Baseball Magnates Do Not Fear Fletcher's Activities.

New York, Dec. 9.—The gathering of the big baseball magnates for their annual meetings here next week is believed likely to develop the status of the "third league" baseball movement. From what can be learned in advance there seems to be less worry among the club presidents than there was a few weeks ago regarding the moves of D. A. Fletcher, promoter of the proposed rival organization.

If the reports of ground lost by Fletcher in his efforts to corral star players and secure other suppot for the so-called outlaw circuit are confirmed when the magnates get together there is said to be little likelihood of official cognizance being taken of the third league proposition.

HARLEY DAVIDSON HERE.

World's Champion Will Meet Frank Bryant at Lincoln Park.

Harley Davidson, the champion roller skater of the world, arrived in Duluth last evening and will tonight skate the first of the series of races with Frank Bryant of this city, who has made a brilliant record on the rollers. In addition to the races with Bryant, Davidson will pull off some fancy skating and will give his wonderful backward leap over seven chairs.

The world's champion has only recently returned from England, where he won the $1,000 championship belt, which he has with him. In speaking of the foreign skaters, Harley said today that they were awfully fast but did not know all the angles of the game with which the American speed merchants are familiar.

Davidson will skate three races with Bryant. He is the fastest man that the local lad has ever met, for Davidson has scored victories over Munch, whom patrons of the Lincoln Park rink thought one of the fastest men in the world. Harley has been skating and riding bicycles for years, and though a veteran in the years he has been before the public, he is today looked upon as the fastest man who ever strapped on a pair of rollers.

Bryant is stacking up against very fast game and has trained hard for the contests. If he makes a great showing in the races he will believe that there is some chance for him in the Western skating championships.

HARVARD AND PENN RENEW RELATIONS.

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 9.—The athletic committee of the University of Pennsylvania sanctioned the baseball game scheduled with Harvard, June 7. The game will be the first dual meeting between the teams representing the two universities in any sport since 1905 owing to a dispute over the eligibility of a Pennsylvania football player.

BOWLING SCORES

Massey and Lindgren played a fifteen-game match last evening at the Central alleys. Lindgren won the contest by the total score of 3,107 to 2,722. The games were played in a contest that the two men have started for 100 games. Some very good bowling was witnessed.

MODIFICATIONS TO NEW RULES EXPECTED.

New York, Dec. 9.—Football enthusiasts, particularly in the smaller colleges, are wondering what attitude toward the new game, in the light of the recent season's play, will be taken by the intercollegiate athletic association when it holds its annual meeting here on Dec. 29.

As a general proposition it is thought that the reformed game will be indorsed but modifications in some of the rules will undoubtedly be recommended.

Although the "Big Four" are not affiliated with the association, sixty-eight other colleges and universities owe allegiance to it.

Why This Peeve?

In a somewhat petulant peeve Frank Kendig writes from St. Paul regarding his abilities as a pool player and also a roller skater. All the things cannot be published—suffice it to say, that the pool professor is very, very angry.

With all the vocabulary at his command Mr. Kendig comes to his own defense and claims that he can not only beat all the "four flushing" pool players in this city, including the departed "Oklahoma Kid," but that he can also defeat Frank Bryant, the champion roller skater at the Head of the Lakes, and that he has money that speaks the American language.

NEW WRESTLER JOINS DULUTH MAT COLONY.

There is a new wrestler in town. His name has not been ascertained as yet. He hasn't sent in any challenges, but it is believed that in a few weeks he will be open to meet all comers. He is about four days old and is the son of Chris Person, known over the great reaches of the virgin West as a tough and enduring mat customer. The addition to the Person family arrived the present week and will begin taking his first lessons at the mat game when he becomes somewhat steadier on his legs. Chris Junior is welcomed to the local colony of wrestlers with all the courtesy of the profession.

PEORIA FIGHTER BREAKS HIS ARM AT TACOMA.

Tacoma, Wash., Dec. 9.—Jack Tippetts of Peoria, Ill., last night lost his match with Slick Merrill of Clealum, Wash., for the middleweight championship of the Northwest, when he broke his arm toward the end of the second round. Tippetts broke a bone in his forearm when Merrill blocked a swing with his elbow.

Here's The Story

Of a man and his hunt for a particular sort of a suit. He saw it on a friend, (MADE TO ORDER BY US).

The fit was right up to snuff. It was really a pleasure to see how beautifully the garment hung. The cloth, ALL-WOOL, OF COURSE, was as pretty a fabric as any man would want, simply stunning.

Said he, "It's up to my clothier to put me into a suit like that." But Mr. Clothier did not have the goods, neither did any other clothier. So he said to himself: (HE TOLD US THIS) I'll beat it to the GLASGOW WOOLEN MILLS and see if they can make good on their talk about fit and variety."

We showed him plenty of goods of exactly the sort he wanted.

We took his measure, made up the suit and fitted him to perfection in spite of the fact he was 6 feet, 3 inches and slender.

There's a moral to this—

When you want the particular sort of suit you have in mind, come to the Glasgow Woolen Mills first.

ST. PAUL YOUTH IN FATAL ACCIDENT

Woman Companion of B. C. Thompson Killed in Auto Wreck.

Stratford, Conn., Dec. 9.—An inquiry has been opened by the coroner into an automobile collision last night in which Jessica Saunders of Mystic was killed and Benjamin Casper Thompson of St. Paul, Minn., captain of the Yale Gun club, was injured.

The preliminary inquiry showed the automobile, which is owned and was driven at the time by Stuyvesant Peabody, Yale, '11, of Chicago, was run into by a trolley car, both vehicles having been headed in the same direction at the time. The statement has been made that the automobile was running close to the tracks to avoid the snow, and the trolley car, coming up behind, crashed into it.

Rear Lights Lighted.

The machine had its rear lights in use as required by law, according to a statement made by Peabody after the accident. When the trolley car struck the machine Miss Saunders was thrown out, and, falling across the tracks, was decapitated by the car. Thompson suffered a broken arm, and Peabody and Miss Lillian Foster of Milford were uninjured.

Miss Saunders wes a dressmaker in Mystic. She was divorced some years ago from Erastus Chezebro of that town, and resumed her maiden name.

GOVERNOR REJECTS CUPID AS ASSISTANT

Minot, N. D., Dec. 9.—The lecture course of the Y. M. C. A. which has been arranged this year is the finest that the people of Minot have ever had.

The next number will be given Dec. 30, by the Central Grand Opera company.

On Jan. 16, the Castle Square entertainers will give a vocal and instrumental performance.

Judge Ben Lindsey of Denver, the juvenile judge, will lecture on the "Misfortunes of Mickey." The date has not been fixed.

Douglas of Minneapolis.

BEFORE JUDGE REID.

Impartial and Broad-Minded Jurist to Try John Dietz.

Hayward, Wis., Dec. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Judge Reid of Merrill, who will try John Dietz, is declared to be a broad-minded and impartial judge, who will hold the scales of justice evenly balanced between the state and the famous defender of Cameron Dam, when the latter faces the jury.

Dietz takes very little stock in the message received from the defense committee to the effect that Clarence Darrow has been secured for the defense. His opinion is based on the fact that the message was not signed by any individual. Dietz does not appear to be very well posted on his attorney's actions, this being the principal reason for the break with Rubin.

Up to the time of Rubin's appearance in Hayward Monday noon Dietz had not heard a word for a week, and since then has appeared very much dissatisfied, and even now expresses himself as being willing to plead his own case.

The St. Joseph's hospital of Ashland has tendered a bill against Sawyer county of $1,000 for the care of Almyra Dietz during her nine weeks' stay at Ashland.

WARD COUNTY BANKS ARE ASSESSED MORE.

Minot, N. D., Dec. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Because the board of commissioners of Ward county made a comparison between the assessed valuations of the banks in the county with the official statements of those banks supplied in accordance with the call of the state banking department, the institution in question will contribute approximately $2,000 more per year toward the operating expenses of the county. In every instance but three increases were made in the assessments against the banks as a result of the comparison, it being shown that the valuation of the banks was generally higher than reported in the assessment books.

The assessed valuation of all banks prior to the raise was $131,196, and when the change was made, the new valuation was fixed at $172,002, making an increase of $40,806. This will make an actual difference in the payment of taxes of $2,316.

FARMERS SUE AGAINST DRAINAGE ASSESSMENT.

Devils Lake, N. D., Dec. 9.—Another drainage suit in which farmers against whom assessments for benefits derived by reason of the construction of county drains appear as plaintiffs, was heard in the district court of Ramsey county before Judge Templeton, involving a drain running from Irvine to Dry Lake. William Lemke et all., vs. the drainage board of Ramsey county is the title of the action, and the plaintiffs seek to show that the board was without power in causing the cammencement of construction work and the levying of assessments. In support of this contention it is claimed that the board failed to advertise for bids in the proper manner, and that the names of those against whom assessments would be levied were not published in accordance with law.

Record Inheritance Tax.

Eau Claire, Wis., Dec. 9.—The inheritance tax derived from the estate of Sigbald Qvale, who died at the age of 19, leaving $200,000, has been fixed by Judge Blum at $3,919.07, the record amount ever paid here.

Ardoch, N. D., Hotel Burns.

Grand Forks, N. D., Dec. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—One of the pioneer Red River valley hotels was destroyed at Ardoch when the Park hotel burned. An explosion of a lamp left in an upstairs room caused the conflagration. This hotel was constructed in 1882 by Mose Abbott who operated it for a great many years under the name of the Union hotel.

Calumet, Mich., Dec. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Peter Fitzgerald and Harry Rose of Cleveland and Minneapolis respectively, traveling men, charged in Justice Jackola's court with illegally voting at a recent special election held in the village of Red Jacket for the purpose of eecting a clerk to succeed N. F. Kaiser, were discharged from custody on the motion of Prosecuting Attorney W. J. MacDonald.

Both the defendants were reprimanded by the court and prosecuting attorney previous to being dismissed.

In asking that the proceedings be quashed, the prosecuting attorney stated that he failed to find anything in the statutes, after careful perusal, to hold the men any longer on the charge of illegal voting.

Woman Suicide Left Nothing.

Marinette, Wis., Dec. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—The claims filed against the estate of Jennie Moore, the mining stock promoter, who committed suicide last spring by throwing herself in front of a Chicago & Northwestern passenger train in Marinette, are worthless. The two policies carried by the dead woman amounted to $6,000. They both contained a suicide clause, so only the money paid on premiums could be collected. Claims amounting to $2,327.50 were filed against the estate.

ANOTHER MICHIGAN HUNTER GUN VICTIM.

You can eat anything your stomach craves without fear of Indigestion or Dyspepsia, or that your food will ferment or sour on your stomach, if you will take a little Diapepsin occasionally.

Your meals will taste good, and anything you eat will be digested; nothing can ferment or turn into acid or poison or stomach gas, which causes Belching, Dizziness, a feeling of fullness after eating, Nausea, Indigestion (like a lump of lead in stomach), Biliousness, Heartburn, Water Brash, Pain in stomach and intestines or other symptoms.

Headaches from the stomach are absolutely unknown where this effective remedy is used. Diapepsin really does all the work of a healthy stomach. It digests your meals when your stomach can't. A single dose will digest all the food you eat and leave nothing to ferment or sour and upset the stomach.

Get a large 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin from your druggist and start taking now, and in a little while you will actually brag about your healthy, strong Stomach, for you then can eat anything and everything you want without the slightest discomfort or misery, and every particle of impurity and Gas that is in your stomach and intestines is going to be carried away without the use of laxatives or any other assistance.

HEIRESS TO MILLIONS

Miss Barker, Who Is Fourteen, Is Richest Girl in America.

Bequeathed $30,000,000 By Her Father, His Entire Fortune.

Chicago, Dec. 9.—Young Miss Catherine Barker must be added to the galaxy of American heiresses, if, indeed, she is not the brightest gem in that array of beauty and wealth.

Her father, John H. Barker, who died Saturday, bequeathed $30,000,000, his entire fortune, to Miss Catherine, 14 years old. She is the richest girl or unmarried woman in the country probably and one of the wealthiest in the world.

Thirty million dollars is at least double the fortune of Miss Helen Gould of New York, three times that of Miss Jennie Crocker of San Francisco and fifteen times that of Miss Dorothy Whitney of New York.

A "Home Girl."

By the time Miss Barker comes of age, even of marriageable age, her wealth will have increased vastly. Her father's will made the First Trust & Savings bank her guardian and manager of her estate, and that institution is noted for its conservative administration. However, those who know Miss Barker best say money cannot "spoil her." One called her a "home girl" and added:

"She will remain Catherine; never will she become Katherine."

John H. Barker was a son of John Barker, who started the Haskell-Barker Car company at Michigan City, Ind. Dying, John Barker left the business to his sons, John H. and Wallace Barker. When his brother died, John H. Barker became sole owner of the concern, which builds everything on wheels, from a palace car to a narrow gauge dump car. While expanding the profitable business to the limit of its production, John H. Barker invested heavily in bank stocks and his wealth increased rapidly. He was charitable and generous, but left a Titanic fortune.

In Charge of Duenna.

Miss Catherine's mother died last June. Up to that time the girl attended a private school in Detroit. Since then a trusted friend of the Barker family has been Miss Catherine's guide, philosopher and duenna. Her education is being completed under governesses.

Her father, accustomed to having his own way, was always willing to pay to have it. His favorite niece, Anna Ogden Barker, Wallace Barker's daughter, was married to Nelson Ludington Barnes, a young broker of New York.

Mr. Barnes smoked cigarettes incessantly. Mr. Barker, who acquired an affection for him, despised cigarettes. Vainly he urged Mr. Barnes to give them up. At last he said:

"If you will throw away that cigarette and pledge me your word never to smoke another I will give you $50,000."

Mr. Barnes has never smoked another cigarette.

HELEN HAD HER "SNIFTERS"

And Carried a Bottle in Her Stocking, Says Sister.

New York, Dec. 9.—That she has seen her sister drink as much as a pint of whisky at one time, just as if it were so much water, was the amazing statement of Anna M. Sinclair, upon whose testimony a sheriff's jury filed a verdict with the county clerk, adjudging to be incompetent Mrs. Helen L. Gryson, a handsome young woman, who owns much valuable real estate at Flushing, L. I.

Miss Sinclair declared her sister eloped and was married when she was only 16 years old. Soon afterward, she said, Mrs. Gryson acquired the drinking habit and frequently came to Miss Sinclair's home, in Flushing, in an intoxicated condition. She added that Mrs. Gryson used to carry a bottle of whisky in her stocking.

One of the immediate causes that prompted the inquiry into Mrs. Gryson's mental condition was the discovery recently that she had borrowed $700 from money lenders, and had made two deeds to property she owned worth $50,000.

Don't Rub the Life Out of Your Clothes

Sprinkle a little GOLD DUST in the water, and let the GOLD DUST Twins do all the hard part of the task. GOLD DUST starts to dissolve and lather the moment it strikes the water; it starts to cleanse the moment it comes in contact with the garment. It instantly softens the hardest water, saves rubbing, saves wear and tear on clothes, and does most of the work without your assistance.

Use GOLD DUST next wash day, and have whiter, sweeter, cleaner clothes, with half the effort and in half the time.

Do not use Soap, Naphtha, Borax, Soda, Ammonia or Kerosene with Gold Dust. Gold Dust has all desirable cleansing qualities in a perfectly harmless and lasting form.

RECOVERS CHILD SHE GAVE AWAY

Mother Takes Baby She Lent to Carry Out Hoax.

New York, Dec. 9.—Supreme Court Justice Davis has dismissed a writ of habeas corpus obtained by Arthur W. Warren to get possession of Walter Wellington Warren, the 10-months-old son of Mrs. Maude M. Campbell, on the basis that the child's mother had agreed to permit Warren and his wife Dora to claim the child as their own by blood and did permit them to assert such claim to their friends and relatives for eight monahs, when she took the child away from them.

Warren said in his petition, upon which he got an order directing Mrs. Campbell to produce the child in court, that prior to Feb. 15 last Mrs. Campbell resided with himself and his wife. They greatly desired a child, he said, and Mrs. Campbell was about to become the mother of one.

Deceived Outsiders.

Accordingly they made an agreement, Warren said, by which Mrs. Warren was to claim the child as her own, and as soon as it was born and had been placed in her custody she was to appear to become ill and a physician was to be called to treat her. This was to be done for the purpose of making outsiders believe that the child was Mrs. Warren's.

Warren says the child was born on Feb. 15 and that all the details of the plan were carried out, even to the extent of calling a physician to attend Mrs. Warren for six days, although she was not ill and the physician did nothing. The boy was named Walter Wellington Warren for the petitioner's uncle, he said, and all their friends and relatives congratulated them. The child was treated as their own, Warren said, and Mrs. Campbell acknowledged it to be the child of Mr. and Mrs. Warren and disclaimed all relationship.

Showed Sudden Affection.

The petitioner declares that he supplied all the child's wants and bought it necessaries until Oct. 28, when Mrs. Campbell came to their home on Staten Island and took the child away with her. Previously she had shown no affection for the child and didn't even want to carry it in her arms when she was in the Warren's home.

After she took the child she put it in the charge of a person who knew so little about the care of an infant that this person fed the baby crackers and it became so ill it had to be sent to a hospital. While in the care of himself and wife the child was never ill, Warren said.

Mrs. Campbell did not bring the child into court, but she filed an answer to the writ of habeas corpus, in which she said that the child's real name was Campbell and said she was detaining it "through the natural and legal right of a mother." She admits all the allegations of the petition, but says:

"They constitute a fraud and render the entire transaction as specified, illegal and against public policy."

The court upheld Mrs. Campbell's contention.

HILL WRITES OF CANADIAN TRADE

Declares the Two Countries Have Missed Golden Opportunities.

New York, Dec. 9.—"The political platform of the party which represents the protective principle in this country, the doctrine announced by President Taft and accepted by Republican leaders today, if literally acted upon would dismantle every custom house along the inetrnational border," said James J. Hill in a speech read at the Canadian society's dinner last night by Dr. George D. Stewart, Mr. Hill's physician. Mr. Hill himself was unable to attend.

"If we are to levy only such imposts," the address continued, "as will equalize the cost of production here and elsewhere—and that is now the universal slogan—then there would be free trade between the United States and Canada immediately."

In support of this statement Mr. Hill contended that there was practically no difference in wages or cost of raw materials, with few exceptions, in the two countries.

Have Lost Opportunities.

"Canada and the United States have failed to improve the opportunity plainly awaiting them," he said. "It is possible that should the countries fail again, as they have failed so many times in the past since 1866, to listen to real statesmanship as embodied in the reciprocity policy, the voice of opportunity may be silenced forever by the changing circumstances that alter permanently the outlook of nations as well as the fortunes of man. In both nations today a thousand interests are calling for a closer and more definite commercial compact."

POULTRY SHOW TO BE BEST EVER

Members Are Already Making Plans for Exhibition in February.

At a meeting held last night by the members of the Duluth Poultry association, plans were discussed for the coming annual event There were thirty-two members of the association present, showing that there is a keen interest in the show and the affairs of the association.

The show will be held during the first week of February, it was planned. A site has not as yet been secured but it will be somewhere in the central part of the city.

It was decided to engage the services of Judge Holden of Owatonna, Minn., as judge. He has acted in that capacity before at local shows and his work has been above reproach.

It is planned to make the 1911 show the best ever held in the city. It will be the largest as many are going to enter a larger number of birds this year. The premium list will be the best yet offered.

The committee on attractions has planned to secure a display of pheasants as an extra attraction.

About 5,000 birds will be on exhibition at the show.

W. R. BENNETT TO SPEAK AT Y. M. C. A.

"Singing Orator" Will Talk to Men on "Fight With Octopus."

William Rainey Bennett of Marion, Ind., has been secured by the Y. M. C. A. as speaker for the regular weekly men's meeting, which will take place in the gymnasium at 3 p. m., next Sunday afternoon.

Mr. Bennett is another of the attractions sent out by the Redpath Lyceum bureau. He is said to be an entertaining speaker and the Y. M. C. A. officials are congratulating themselves on being able to secure him. He will speak on "The Fight With the Octopus."

Mr. Bennett possesses a rich tenor voice and he will sing during the course of the afternoon. He is called by some "the great singing orator."

One enthusiast speaks of him as follows:

"In his combination work of singing and speaking, he has no peer on the platform of today. He has the happy faculty of mingling music with word pictures, so that one embellishes the other, and in many instances producing very dramatic effects.

"But Mr. Bennett is not a reed shaken by the wind. He strikes a note of no uncertain sound. He feels the 'Spirit in the Air' and believes in the larger morals of clean citizenship. He has the Folk-La Follette-Hughes fibre, and is not afraid.

"Mingled with all his enthusiasm for a higher social and civic life, Mr. Bennett is the embodiment of a splendid optimism. He is so full of health and happiness that his very personality inspires an audience. His entertainment is a series of song, story and solid substance, woven together with the touch of a master."

"To Them That Hath"

A SHORT SERMON TO FAT FOLKS

"To them that hath shall be given" is a sentence that applies to fat people very neatly. It is common knowledge that once a human being begins to fatten up, to what they have already is added more than they want until finally a stage is reached where reduction must be made or decided disadvantage results.

Then comes forward the ages-old query: "Reduce — but how?" To the uninformed nothing suggests itself but the (to them) twin evils—less eating—more activity. They contemplate a more or less lengthy siege of dieting and exercising. So it may be said safely that every man or woman in the land now undergoing the fattening-up process has his or her mental eye fixed dubiously on that not far distant day when he or she will have to don the "ashes and sackcloth of reduction."

This is not an enlivening prospect, and so it is with considerable satisfaction that we announce the emancipation of the fat. Nowadays one may reduce much or little, a pound a day if desired, or hold their fat in check, absolutely stationary, without doing a tap of exercise, missing a single meal, doing a particle of harm or causing a solitary wrinkle. All that's required, as hundreds testify, is the taking after meals and at bedtime of one Marmola Prescription Tablet, which tablets are sold by the Marmola Co., 491 Farmer Bldg., Detroit, Mich., or any good druggist, at the uniform price of 75 cents, this sum being accepted for a case of tablets so well and generously filled that even one produces desirable results.

WHEEL TAX MUST BE PAID

First Arrest Is Made for Violation of the Ordinance.

Others Will Be Arrested Unless the Tax Is Paid.

The first arrest in the campaign to enforce the wheelage tax ordinance was made this morning when the proprietor of the West Duluth & Duluth Transfer company was arraigned in police court. He entered a plea of guilty and sentence was suspended when it was stated that he had taken out the required tags at the office of the city clerk. Police Prosecutor Walter F. Dacey stated, however, that he will ask heavy penalties in the future upon convictions for non-payment of the license fee.

The authorities mean business and will continue to make arrests until every vehicle in the city has been paid for. The money has been coming in altogether too slowly, only about $414 being paid in last month, bringing the total paid to approximately $3,500, whereas five times that amount should be credited to that fund by this time.

The order to make arrests was given to Chief Troyer by Mayor Cullum several days ago and Detective Frank Schulte is busy gathering the evidence. Several other warrants have been sworn out and will be served as soon as possible.

RAILROADS

SUPERINTENDENT ONCE BRAKEMAN

Twelve Years After F. D. Kelsey Began "Braking" He Gets Nice Promotion.

Grand Forks, N. D., Dec. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—F. D. Kelsey, superintendent of the Dakota division of the Great Northern railroad, who twelve years ago commenced at the bottom as freight brakeman, has been promoted to the position of superintendent of the Montana division with headquarters in Havre. T. F. Lowry, formerly superintendent of the northern division at Crookston, has resigned and it is understood that he is slated for a good berth with the Southern Pacific railroad.

Sept. Kelsey has always been on the Dakota division since he took a position with the company twelve years ago, and step by step was raised until, a year and a half ago, he became superintendent of the division.

Further changes of an important nature are slated to be made in the local offices shortly. Mr. Kelsey's successor has not been named.

GREAT NORTHERN SILK TRAIN MADE A RECORD.

St. Paul, Minn., Dec. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—A new record for hauling a silk train across the continent has been established by the Great Northern, in conjunction with the Burlington and the Erie roads.

Five big cars containing 1,616 packages of raw silk, valued at more than $1,000,000 made the journey from Seattle to New York in 102 hours and five minutes, actual running time.

Changes in B. & O.

Baltimore, Md., Dec. 9.—Important changes in the operating department of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad were announced after the meeting yesterday of the board of directors in this city. George L. Potter, third vice president, at his own request, tl was stated, was not re-elected. A. W. Thompson, chief engineer of the system, was appointed general manager of the company's lines.

BUYS TWAIN MANUSCRIPTS.

J. Pierpont Morgan Secures Originals of Two of Humorist's Works.

New York, Dec. 9.—Announcement has been made that a large number of manuscripts of Mark Twain, who died on April 21 last, are to be sold at public auction next January. It also became known that the originals of some of his famous works are missing. The pages on which he penned "Innocence Abroad," "Tom Sawyer," and "Roughing It," the books of his earlier fame, can not be found.

J. Pierpont Morgan has quietly purchased the manuscripts of two books of the great humorist, and it is believed that a representative of the financier's will seek to bid in all the others that are offered at public sale. The two already in Mr. Morgan's possession are those of 'Pudd'n' Head Wilson" and "Life on the Mississippi."

A friend of the banker said that Mr. Morgan felt that it would be a "national sacrilege to permit the originals of Mark Twain's works to be scattered to the winds."

TIRED OF PAROLE.

Aged Prisoner Wants to Be Taken Back to "Pen."

East Chicago, Ind., Dec. 9.—To be permitted to end his days within the grim walls of the state prison at Michigan City is the one ambition of James Rollo, aged 63, paroled two months ago, after having served two years of a three-year sentence.

Patrol Officer Lorimer, of that institution, came to East Chicago this week and took the paroled prisoner back to Michigan City, with the promise that his wish was to be gratified. Rollo has been following his old occupation of stationary engineer.

The loss of a part of one of his feet made the work irksome, however, and he wished for the comforts he had enjoyed during his prison life at Michigan City.

Rollo was sentenced to a term of three years for stealing a farmer's scythe. He received employment at his trade, looking after the engine in the electric plant that supplies light and power for the prison. He proved an excellent engineer and a model prisoner, and was paroled by the pardon board at the expiration of two years of his term.

GIRLS OF PASADENA

Refuse to Meet Officers of Visiting Japanese Fleet.

Pasadena, Cal., Dec. 9.—The leading society girls of this city decline to mingle with Japanese naval men of high rank, even to meeting them on the ballroom floor, and as a result the Nipponese-American relations in Southern California are severely strained. The Japanese training squadron, Admiral Yashiro and all his officers are apparently insulted and resent the indignity.

Upon the arrival of the Japanese squadron at San Pedro, a few days ago, the Hotel Maryland management arranged to give a swell ball in honor of the commander and his officers. The hotel people learned that society girls would have nothing to do with the function. It was found necessary to call off the ball on short notice to the admiral.

In the meantime he had sent out exquisitely engraved invitations for a return dance on his flagship yesterday. These were not delivered, but were left in the key boxes. Wherefore it seems nobody showed up for the admiral's ball. When the school children of Long Beach were all ready to take cars for San Pedro, a telegram from Admiral Yashiro informed them they could not be accommodated.

"JAPAN MUST PREPARE FOR WAR WITH AMERICA."

Victoria, B. C., Dec. 9.—That Japan must prepare for war with the United States is the text of an article published by the Tokio Nippon received by the steamer Namba Maru.

"Japan must ask herself," says the Nippon, "what object an element of United States citizens have in view when they advocate the expenditure of enormous sums in furnishing the Pacific with a big fleet; of creating a powerful army on the Pacific slope; of building a huge coal depot and naval station in Hawaii and of fortifying the Philippines, Hawaii and Panama."

MURDERS FATHER TO PROTECT HIS MOTHER.

Omaha, Dec. 9.—Henry Walther, Jr., 16 years old, last night shot and killed his father, Henry Walther, Sr., following an attempt by the latter, according to the boy, to assault Mrs. Walther. According to the young man, Walther came home intoxicated and after abusing his wife, struck her. The young man fired five shots at his father, four of which entered his body and death was almost instantaneous.

WEALTH HID IN STOVEPIPE.

Securities Worth $80,000 Found in New Jersey Woman's Home.

New York, Dec. 9.—Bank books and bonds representing a total value of $80,000 and beonging to Miss Emily Williams, whose body was found in her home near Milford, N. J., Sunday, several days after her death, were discovered yesterday hid in a stovpipe. Miss William's will was also found in the same hiding place.

In other rooms where Miss Williams, who was past 70 years of age, lived alone was found a bridal trousseau of fine quality. The gowns and lingerie puzzled the searching party until it was learned that they belonged to Mrs. Hubbell, a widowed sister of Miss Williams, who died six years ago and who had been engaged to be married a second time. Medical Examiner F. E. King found yesterday that Miss Williams had died of heart disease.

Beauty Causes Divorce.

Kansas City, Mo., Dec. 9.—Mrs. Lizzie Boswell on Tuesday filed suit for divorce from Z. F. Boswell because, she aleges, that he praised her beauty too much. Besides, she says, her beauty was the cause of arousing her husband's jealousy, and she alleges he accused her of "making eyes" at other men.

DONALD A. McKENZIE ARRESTED IN WASHINGTON.

Washington, Dec. 9.—Donald A. McKenzie, who was indicted by a federal grand jury at Spokane, Wash., with four other men on charges of conspiracy to defraud the government of more than 20,000 acres of Alaskan coal lands, was arrested here last night. He was admitted to bail.

Mr. McKenzie figured prominently in the Ballinger-Pinchot inquiry. Louis R. Glavis said McKenzie informed him that the reason James R. Garfield was not retained in the cabinet was because of his antagonism to Alaskan coal claimants.

CLAIMS HE GAVE THE STOLEN FUNDS AWAY.

Jacksonville, Ill., Dec. 9.—William M. Morrissey, former attorney for the city of Jacksonville, under indictment for alleged shortages of $48,000 has arrived here from McCook, Neb. He will ask a continuance on the ground of inability to properly present his case at this term of court and because of ill health. Morrissey acknowledges he is short, but will claim he took the money and turned it over to others.

Whistles For the Blind.

Cleveland, Dec. 9.—Blind people in Cleveland are to be supplied with whistles to summon policemen at street crossings. The whistles will be especially constructed so as to be easily recognized by the police.

Better Than Charcoal.

A new process has been devised called the Lowo process, that will convert any carbonaceous material, particularly crude oils, bituminous coals and woods, into two most essential products, a definite fixed combustible gas and a hard carbon or coke. People with weak stomachs should drink Golden Grain Belt beer. It rebuilds the worn-out cells, and is easily and quickly assimilated by the entire system—making rich, red blood and giving new life to one's vital organs. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by the Duluth branch Minneapolis Brewing company.

MILWAUKEE PAPER IS BARRED FROM GERMANY.

Berlin, Dec. 9.—Chancellor Bethmann-Hollweg has issued an order forbidding the sale or circulation in Germany of the Kuryer Polski, a Polish paper, published in Milwaukee. The order, which is based on a decree of the provincial court of Posen, is presumably connected with the recent efforts for the suppression of the Polish agitation in East Prussia.

La Crosse Robbers Confess.

La Crosse, Wis., Dec. 9.—The police have captured the gang which has been robbing schoolhouses and churches the past week. The prisoners were captured attempting to rob the state normal school, and confessed to ten church and school robberies. The prisoners are students, who say they are trying to get money for their education in this way.

SAN DIEGO MAYOR PRAISES THE COMMISSION PLAN

Says It Has Proved Unqualified Success in California City.

Explains the Benefits That Have Resulted From the Change.

Grant Conrad, mayor of San Diego, Cal., is an ardent and forceful advocate of the commission form of government for cities.

The plan has been in operation in San Diego since January, 1909, and has proved an unqualified success there. The commission has five members, who are heads of departments, and a mayor, not a member of the commission, but possessing the veto power and exercising general supervision over all the departments. The San Diego charter is framed on the Des Moines model.

San Diego has a population of about 50,000 and the fact that it is a thriving town is shown by the value of building permits issued from Jan. 1 to date this year, the total being $3,678,405.

Realizing the inefficiency of the old form of government, which in that city was controlled by a political boss, the citizens of San Diego sought to cure the defects, most obviously manifested in the slowness of the municipal rulers to act and the expensiveness of the system.

Discussing San Diego's experience in this new municipal enterprise, Mayor Conrad said:

"The results that have been attained here are important and well worth while. Members of the council are now paid a salary of $2,000 each, per year and they attend to business. The result is that the city has a more economical government, the laws are better enforced and public business is more efficiently transacted. The council meets at least once a week and frequently several times a week, and business is promptly attended to. Under the old system the council met once a month and at night. All meetings now are held in the light of day. Members of the council under the old system were unpaid, but our government was expensive none the less.

"There is some sentiment in favor of a return to the old system, but it comes from the public service corporations, which are opposed to the present system.

"The chief merits of the commission plan as I have observed it are these:

"First: The nominations of all candidates for council are made at nonpartisan primaries and they are finally selected at a non-partisan election at large, thus putting the political bosses out of business.

"Second: Responsibility is fixed by placing each member of the council at the head of a department and holding him responsible for that department.

"Third: The abolition of the ward system makes each member of the council a representative of the entire city instead of a part of the city only.

"Fourth: The initiative, referendum and recall keeps the power in the hands of the people."

"I have always believed that the government of a city is a business proposition and that the most business-like government is by commission," said P. E. Dowling, real estate agent, this morning. Mr. Dowling was mayor of the city of Eveleth for one term and, with a council of substantial business men, his administration proved the success of his theories by wiping out a deficit and leaving the city with a surplus after accomplishing much during the term.

"There are a number of matters to consider in adopting the commission form of government and one of the most important, to my mind, is the salary of the commissioners," Mr. Dowling said. "The position of mayor will be the most important, of course, but what applies to the salary of the mayor applies to that of the other commissioners also. In order to get men who will devote all of their time and attention to the offices and who have the welfare of the city at heart, there will have to be salary attached commensurate with the services and sufficient to attract the right kind of men.

"If Duluth is to have a commission form of government—which it certainly should have—it should provide most cautiously to insure the competency of the officers and the absolute segregation of all other interests and offices from that of commissioner.

"As commissioners, Duluth should have men who are progressive, intelligent men with advanced ideas — men who have the interest of the city really and truly at heart. They should have backbone to do what they think best for the city regardless of outside interests. I do not mean that the commission should be entirely radical. It should be well balanced, with one or two conservative members to act as a balance wheel for the progressive whole.

"Above all, the commissioners should be men who have made a success in the business world, not men who are going to try to make a success or to experiment at the expense of the city. I have always believed that politics is business—be it municipal, county, state or national — and should be in the hands of men who have been successful in the business world in order to get the best results.

"I am opposed to party designations of any kind in municipal elections and we cannot have true commission government, of course, without the initiative, referendum and recall."

FIRE IN WASHINGTON CAUSES $100,000 LOSS.

Washington, Dec. 9.—By one of the most stubborn blazes in the annals of the District fire department, the furniture establishment of Jackson Brothers was entirely wiped out early this morning and the People's drug store, in an adjoining building, was damaged to the extent of $20,000. The loss will aggregate $100,000. The origin of the fire is unknown.

COPPERS ADVANCE; TREND ERRATIC

The copper market opened fairly strong, declined, rallied and advanced to higher levels than yesterday's close, then lost most of the ground at the close which was slightly above yesterday's final quotations.

The output of the Phelps, Dodge & Co. properties during November was 200,000 pounds more than in October, or 10,867,950 pounds. The output for the eleven months of the calendar year was 128,272,872 pounds.

Henry Crumb, consulting engineer of the Inspiration Copper company, has made a favorable report on the condition of the property. He estimates the ore reserves on Oct. 20 at 12,396,000 tons of developed ore assaying 2.03 per cent, and 5,604,100 tons partially developed, the total of about 18,000,000 tons averaging 2 per cent copper. According to dispatches received from the property, the developed tonnage had been increased to 14,983,000 tons Dec. 1, and partially developed ore is now estimated at 3,502,000, making a total of 18,485,000 tons.

TOLD BY COURT TO MAKE GOOD

Paul Tredo Given a Chance to Quit Drink and Reform.

Because his parents refused to take him and his family under their roof Paul Tredo proceeded to get drunk yesterday and went to their home last night in a frenzy. He smashed windows and made a great deal of noise. It seems that he has been in the habit of drinking and it appeared that his wife has had to work in order to meet living expenses.

"You can't hit the booze and be a sport drinking whiskey under the circumstances in which you are placed," said Judge Windom to him after he had pleaded guilty in police court this morning to being drunk. "Your salary is too small and you have a big responsibility upon your shoulders. I don't think that it would be the best thing to send you to jail, or impose a fine, so I will continue your case thirty days to give you a chance to show that you can do what is right."

Tredo hasn't been working for some time, it is stated. His relatives said that he doesn't want to work and that his parents didn't want to keep him.

FARMERS' INSTITUTE AT WINTER TO BE DEC. 15.

Couderay, Wis., Dec. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—A farmers' institute, conducted by the state, will be held at Winter, Wis., this year on Dec. 15 and 16. This will be the only farmers' institute held in Southern Sawyer county this season, and the Winter people are making extensive preparations for the success of the institute.

NORTHERN PACIFIC LOSES

In Its Effort to Reduce Superior Switching Charged.

Madison, Wis., Dec. 9.—The Wisconsin rate commission yesterday denied a petition by the Northern Pacific railroad asking for the nolling of the commission's order that switching charges at Superior be reduced from $5 to $2.50.

The railroad pleaded that the switching is interstate commerce. This was denied by the commission.

PAYS $200 FINE FOR SELLING LIQUOR IN CAR.

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 9.—In the first case of its kind in Illinois, the Chicago, Cincinnati, Cleveland & St. Louis railroad at Shelbyville has submitted to a judgment for $200 and costs on account of the sale of intoxicating liquors by a porter of a Pullman car as the car stood on the tracks of the defendant railroad in Shelbyville, while that city was anti-saloon territory. A similar suit filed against the Pullman company was dismissed.

HARMON LIKES LOOKS OF THE WHITE HOUSE.

Washington, Dec. 9.—Governor Judson Harmon of Ohio called at the White House yesterday to pay his respects to President Taft. He stopped only a few moments, but he and the president seemed to enjoy the visit. Governor Harmon was greeted most cordially.

When Governor Harmon visited the White House during the last year he was asked if he liked the looks of the place. His reply at that time was that a man should always consult his wife before taking a lease on any place of abode. The governor said yesterday the nice white paint and the subdued green walls of the executive office were quite attractive.

"I never saw the president looking finer or in better spirits," he said. "It is always a pleasure to have a chat with him."

Had a Bad Fall.

Andrew Anderson, a woodsman who was intoxicated, climbed on the iron fence of the Soo road on Michigan street yesterday afternoon, and fell over, a distance of nearly twenty feet. He was badly bruised, but no bones were broken.

COMMISSION FORM OF MUNICIPAL GOVERNMENT

Greatest Advance Made in Modern Civics—What New Plan Has Accomplished for Des Moines, Houston, Dallas and Galveston. ∴ ∴ ∴ ∴

Montgomery, Ala., Dec. 9.—In an address which aroused unbounded enthusiasm, J. R. Hornaday of Birmingham, associate editor of the Brimingham News, developed before the All-Alabama Business conference the advantages of the commission form of municipal government.

He treated the problem of good government, as a cold-blooded business problem. A municipality, said he, in its last analysis is a big corporation, in which the citizens and tax payers are stockholders.

The average citizen is much more vitally interested in the doings of the mayor and council of his home city than in either the state or national government, he said.

Having recently completed a tour of the country, in which he visited the various cities which have adopted the commission idea, Mr. Hornaday assured his hearers that everywhere it had met with success. Graft had been eliminated; in several promising municipalities an overwhelming burden of debt had been lifted and the city placed on the road to funding its debt advantageously. Birmingham has recently adopted the commission plan.

Taxpayers Entitled to Dividends.

The people who pay their money into the city treasury for fire and police protection, health protection, schools, streets and waterworks, are entitled to have that money as judiciously expended as if they invested in any other corporation.

In discussing the present erroneous attitude of the people in many cities toward municipal government, he said:

"If the people of the United States invested all their money with the same careless disregard for results that characterized their investments in municipal government, we would be a nation of bankrupts.

"The national attitude is to look upon the cash we are forced to dump into the municipal treasury as so much tribute money, rather than as an investment upon which we are entitled to a fair return."

The campaign of education has changed this attitude of mind in many communities, he said, and congratulated the gathering of Alabama business men on giving serious consideration to the subject.

Bad Government Retards Growth.

"Good government is not the least of the attractions to be set before the prospective investor and homeseeker," he said, amid applause. He continued:

"We know that moral cowardice is largely responsible for bad government. What we have to learn is that minimum growth is the penalty. We must get hold of the fact that the efficiency of the scheme of government in operation in a community is intimately related to its growth.

"Putting money into a community is a cold-blooded business proposition with the investor, and it should be a cold-blooded business proposition with us when we come to invest in the municipal government whose efficiency or inefficiency is going to attract or repel those who must come among us if our population is to grow and values are to increase.

"The commission plan of government has solved the problem of efficiency in scores of progressive American cities, and its amazing popularity is founded upon the fact that it gets results.

What the People Pay For.

In discussing what the people have a right to expect in exchange for their tax payments, he said:

"Good streets, adequate fire protection, efficient schools, wise provisions for the protection of the public health, minimum taxes and the prompt and efficient discharge of public duties are some of the things the people pay for, and community growth is going to be retarded or accelerated as they receive or are denied these things.

"The lands in your community may be as rich as those in the valley of the Nile and your hills may be bursting with coal and iron and marble, but you will find it difficult to induce men to locate among you or invest their money if your streets are full of holes, your schoolhouses are antiquated, your public debt is excessive and your tax rate is unreasonably high.

"Yet, the lowest tax rate does not always prove the highest bid for new enterprises. There is an ever-growing disposition upon the part of investors to ask what they get for the money and to be guided by the size of the returns rather than by the amount invested."

Municipality Closest to People.

Insisting that the average citizen is in more immediate vital contact with his city government than with that of state or nation, he said:

"In its importance to the individual, municipal government overshadows that of the state and nation as the man overshadows the child. It has to do with questions and issues that protect themselves not only into the place of business, but into that holy of holies we call the home.

"It is to our municipal government that we look for protection from the burglar and the assassin; from disease and the ravages of fire. It is upon it that we depend for the education of our children, and it is to it that we look for the streets, the sewers and the other public improvements that add to our comfort and convenience, and make or unmake values as they relate to property and enterprises in which our money is invested. Far more vital are these issues than the open door in the Far East or the attitude of our nation toward Nicaragua."

He spoke of the opposition the commission plan of government had encountered from professional politicians and those who had a personal interest in retaining the old form style, and said it was not unnatural that a movement so revolutionary should have encountered opposition, but that the greatest tribute to the worth of the movement was the progress made, despite the opposition of selfish interests.

More Privileges for People.

Answering the charge that the new system is "undemocratic," he said that not only did it possess all the advantages of the aldermanic plan, but reserved to the people additional privileges, which he discussed as follows:

"In addition to giving you all that the aldermanic plan affords, the commission plan, in its highest state of development, gives you the right to legislate, to repeal, to veto and to discharge. In brief, it restores to the people all the rights they have been led to surrender under the theory that they are too busy to attend to their own affairs.

"The initiative, the referendum and the recall—these are the salient features of the commission plan. Through the initiative the people have the right to adopt any ordinance which seems wise to them. Through the referendum they have the right to reject any ordinance passed by the commissioners when its wisdom or expediency is not clear. Through the recall they are vested with authority to discharge public servants who prove unworthy of public trust.

"I submit to you that in the matter of pure democracy there can be no comparison between the two systems. Under one, the servants are supreme; under the other the people are supreme.

"Thus, to my mind, the gravest indictment brought against the commission system proves one of the best arguments in its favor when the subject is analyzed.

Why Old System Fails.

"Where the people elect all of their officials, occupants of subordinate positions are responsible only to the people, and this fact accounts in a measure for the failure of the ancient system. The commissioners have the authority to enforce their orders, and thus insubordination and friction disappear. The administration becomes a business machine, the sole purpose of which is to get results for the stockholders in the municipal corporation.

"Again, it is not difficult for the people to locate trouble if it arises. The committee, that scape-goat of the aldermanic system—is conspicuous by its absence. Each commissioner is solely and entirely responsible for his department, and if he goes wrong he cannot evade exposure or the penalty of conviction if the people are disposed to impose it."

In conclusion, he showed how the new system had restored Galveston, Tex., put bankrupt Houston on its feet financially, created a sinking fund for Dallas and wiped out its municipal deficit; did the same for Des Moines, Iowa, and revived a building boom as though by magic, making it a "City of Certainties," and giving it a municipal government that is an asset instead of a liability. In conclusion, he said:

"Our duty is to keep the fires of civic pride burning, and if we do this it will not be difficult to smoke out the incompetents or to maintain a system of government that will shine in no uncertain manner among the assets of the community."

TRICKS OF THE SMUGGLERS.

Ingenuity Used to Avoid Paying Duty on Imports at New York.

Tricks in all trades, but the trickiest of all trades is that of smuggling, say the customs men. A correspondent of The Sun recently described some of the ingenious contrivances confiscated by the French customs. American customs officers have seen all these and a whole lot more.

Among them are tobacco ropes on sailing craft, demijohns with oil inside but brandy in compartments just surrounding it; jewels, liquors, teas and laces stuffed in copies of Mrs. Jarley's Wax Works; pearls in bicycle tires, diamonds in pieces of soap, in the sawdust stuffing of a child's doll, between a lady's toes, and many times when suspicion has been strong customs officers have, as employers do at the Kimberley mines, detained persons in hospitals till it has been proved that they have not swallowed gems.

Special information from spies abroad last year caused the bestowal of particular attention upon an incoming Austrian, says a writer in Everybody's. He would have rubies. A dozen red stones hidden in his cravat gave the inspectors visions of high "moiety." On test it was found that they were not real rubies. Sadly the inspectors let him go.

Excited news came by cable. Searching him once more at his hotel signs were seen that he had lately worn a porous plaster. An intricate pattern of pink dents indicated where things with sharp corners recently had been snugly concealed between the plaster and the smuggler.

Jewelers have pretended to be breeders of fancy fowl and have declared the fowls as tools of trade, but when the crops of their fancy fowls were made to yield their contents they were found to be full of diamonds instead of corn.

Huge profits are made through the ignorance of the inspectors in regard to paintings. Bogus Corots are sent over by a dealer just to have them passed and assessed as genuine. The customs officers went merely by the signature "Corot," which helped the dealer far beyond the duty levied. Reversing the process—give a good work an unknown signature—and the dealer would still win.

For instance, a painting is consigned to an American dealer. It is by an artist who commands great prices. Over the real signature is placed an indistinguishable label with another and less valuable name. Over that is placed one of no consequence.

Comes a mysterious letter to New York customs: "Rub off the signature on these and you will find the painter's name." The top signature is rubbed off; the canvases are entered at the ruling rate for the name disclosed. Underneath that and not discovered at all is the name that gives the picture a value a hundredfold higher.

Mails, too, have to be closely watched. The New York postoffice yearly collects about $250,000 in duty assessed. Books conceal much contraband. One postal examiner from experience determined that he would specialize on two titles: Every "Book of Common Prayer" and every "Imitation of Christ" he scrupulously turned the leaves of. Edward VI. always stood for him as the patron of glove smugglers, and Thomas a Kempis became to him the patron of lace smugglers.

"But nowadays," an inspector declared, "we who serve at the port of New York don't see the great smuggling. That goes on along the Canadian border. Think of that long line from the St. Croix river to the Strait of Juan de Fuca, and no patrol—3,000 miles and customs stations a day's journey apart.

"Canada's border indeed is the last remaining smugglers' paradise. Customs agents could not hope to cover it. Only 7 per cent of all duties are collected there.

"A man may be out shooting prairie chickens, yet have in his game bag several pounds of opium which he can leave on the American side of the line at an inn where he stops for a drink. Many inns straddle the line. If an inspector appears, he has simply to hand the contraband to a confederate over the threshold of the next room, and instantly it is not contraband, for the holder of it is in Canada. Owing to that facility, the customs service is urging an understanding with Canada that the line, for customs purposes, shall be fifty feet wide.

"Have you perhaps heard of the woman who went back and forth between Buffalo and Montreal so frequently that she was thought to be subject to some mania for motion? She was a motherly sort—always carried, in fact, an infant. A model babe! Never hungry, never felt pains, never cried.

"Its invariable stillness and quiet induced suspicion. Examination revealed that it was made of tin and filled with—whisky! Quiet, indeed, yet full of spirit.

"Then there was the man fishing in the St. Lawrence one summer day who broke two lines on some unknown obstacle off Prescott, Ont. Diving down he discovered his hooks fast to a barnacle on a slim lead tube. That tube had been conveying contraband liquors under the river from a Canadian distillery to the American side eighteen months."

It takes serious labor and steady patience to get the evidence which will convict. "We have had to shadow many a professional smuggler for months, even years," a secret agent said. "I remember a man we followed from Paris to Geneva, Geneva to Milan, Milan to Naples and back home again several trips.

"He used to jest about it with us in great assurance and good nature. He reminded me of the banditti in Italy who with a price on their capture dead or alive would amuse themselves by appearing at masked balls, dance with noble ladies, and then at dawn be back at their rendezvous to hold up some sleepy guest on his way home.

"One night we surrounded a little old cottage on Washington Heights and captured a trunkload of merchandise, but the smuggler escaped. At last we began to trail the official customs trailers we sent after him. By that means we got him, but had to make the charge bribery and collusion."

THE BIG GAME COUNTRY.

In the big game country out West everything is big, the game, the mountains, the valleys and the people. The deer country of Colorado or the big sheep country is from 9,000 to 13,000 feet above sea level. The air is clear and crisp, with immense stretches of wild open country lying like a picture at your feet.

A reconnoitering point will sometimes reveal a view of almost 100 miles. Across a gulch of twenty miles or so the distant buttresses of red sandstone rock are painted with slashes of golden copper. The sombre pines straggle almost to the top, interwoven with the delicate tracery of the quaking asps. At our feet nestles a park (as the valleys are called), and possibly a silvery thread of water winds in and out.

The Rocky mountain sheep are by far the most majestic and dignified of the animals of this locality, says a writer in St. Nicholas. They are fond of the rock studded mountain sides, and often a huge sentinel ram silhouetted against the sky will reveal the feeding place of a group of ewes and lambs. The task now, if you are fortunate enough to be to the windward of him, is after tethering your horse to work slowly and carefully to within range, usually from 200 to 400 yards. Distances out there are most deceptive owing to the clear, rarefied air, and an object that seems to be a few hundred yards distant may prove to be almost a mile.

Antelope surpass both sheep and elk for timidity. They are extremely wary and possibly the most difficult of all game to get within range. They are found in the lower and open country.

Underlying all the hopes and expectations in the hunter's mind is the thought of bear, and of course first of these stands the grizzly. These are getting scarcer every year.

There is no special country for them. As a rule in the summer and fall they come down in the low parks to feast on the berries. Toward winter they are more likely to be found higher up the slopes. After the first snow an occasional raid on the highest and loneliest ranches is looked upon by bruin as the thing.

At one of the ranches nestling at the foot of Mount Evans in Colorado miles away from any other habitation a rancher put a cow bell on each of his horses when turned loose, thinking to frighten the bears. Bruin had a penchant for the frisky little colts gamboling about the mountainside and thought it quite neighborly to chase the whole herd down to the ranch. It was quite common for the rancher to be arousing at night by the clanging of bells and the clatter of hoofs as the horses scampered into the corral.

Sheep, elk and bear all go above the timber line. The height of this line varies in different sections, 10,000 to 10,500 feet is an average.

LONE SKIPPERS.

Captains Who Have Been All Hands and the Cook.

Capt. Parker J. Hall of Duxbury, Mass., generally recognized as the king of lone navigators, will tell you that a crew is only a nuisance aboard his 93-ton schooner Angler and that he has no use whatever for such an encumerance of his decks.

Year in and year out he has coasted single handed from Calais to New York, rarely with an accident worth recording, but with his trim schooner always deeply laden with lumber, coal, brick, oyster shells, or any other freight which business may offer. Capt. Hall has worn out one vessel, the Robert P. King, of 119 tons, and bids fair to outlast the Angler, which, although some fifty-seven years old, is as sound as a nut.

He himself is a marvel of physical development, as might be inferred from the fact that he habitually hoists sails and anchors without help. Having followed the sea since the age of 19, says the Youth's Companion, Capt. Hall also has the distinction of never having sailed other than as master of his own vessel.

He comes naturally enough by his distrust of crews, for some years ago a murderous trio of negroes treacherously attacked him as his vessel lay at anchor in a Long Island harbor. They took his freight money, which he had just received, and left him for dead.

The lone navigator has had his troubles, however. Some time ago, when coming to the westward with a load of lumber, he got caught off the coast in a furious norther, and tried to make Portland harbor. The gale, however, blew the Angler offshore repeatedly, and foiled attempts to make it, as well as Portsmouth and Salem harbors. She finally reached Vineyard Haven, Capt Hall having stood a trick at the wheel which would have knocked out three ordinary men.

The forty-three ton schooner Myrtle Camp might be supposed to carry two two or three men at least, but Capt. Daniel Davis of Mount Sinai, L. I., is a kingdom of his own and has only to obey his own orders. He also has the art of making money in the coasting trade at his finger tips. Finding much to be desired in the Long Island sound trade he took his vessel to Chesapeake bay, where she has been engaged for several years past. In order to avoid pilot dues in the bay he has caused the Myrtle Camp to hail from Baltimore, and she is now as much at home there as a myriad other white painted pungies, bugeyes and coasters of various sorts.

The fact that he has reached his three-score years and does not deter Capt. Candage of the sixty-ton schooner New Boxer of Southwest Harbor from navigating his vessel alone. The New Boxer was originally the Boxer, and was built at Wells, Me., in 1845 and rebuilt at Ellsworth in 1883. In spite of her age she is tight as a cup, so her skipper is spared the labor of working the pumps. The New Boxer is engaged in carrying lumber from Bangor to ports in Penobscot bay.

A short time ago the schooner Hiram of Calais, built in 1819 at Biddeford, and of sixty-seven tons register, was sailed alone by her captain, Charles Greenlaw, for a number of trips. What is more she was taken round dreaded Cape Cod with lumber to Providence. She is one of the oldest coasters afloat.

Capt. William Nutter of the Sarah, hailing from Mount Desert Ferry, is another skipper who finds a crew superfluous. His craft is only a forty-four tonner, but that is forty-four tons more than many would care to navigate alone.

Two other brothers have also achieved renown in the same direction. Capt. Leander Nutter has sailed the Monticello, of seventy-one tons, single-handed, and Capt. Fred Nutter comprised the entire ship's company of the Abby Morse of thirty-four tons. Capt. Fred accumulated enough to buy another schooner, but had the hard luck to lose them both in the same storm two years ago near Steuben, their home port. Capt. Nutter arirved once in Portland Harbor having stood at the wheel continuously for fifty-eight hours. Several other Nutter brothers are shipmasters, all being engaged in the Eastern coasting trade.

The old schooner Loella of sixty-six tons, a former West India trader and with a record of seventy-seven hours from Deer Isle to Bermuda to her credit, was sailed for some time single-handed and for a long period with only his wife as company, by Capt. Thomas R. Amee of Kittery Point. For years she was engaged in carrying lumber from Bangor to Boston and Portsmouth, but is now lying hopelessly out of repair in a creek near her owner's house.

Capt. Amee commanded the Loella for over forty years and has been to sea in subordinate capacities for twenty more. Twice only in his career has he been ship wrecked and that strangely enough, in his own harbor each time, in 1845 as a boy in the schooner Paragon, and in 1856 in the Frances, of which he was master. Both vessels dragged ashore during gales in precisely the same spot.

SNOWFALL IN UNITED STATES

Nearly One-Half of Area of Country Is Under Cover.

According to the snow and ice bulletin published by authority of the secretary of agriculture, nearly one-half of the area of the United States at the present time is covered by snow.

The snow is from 6 inches to 19 inches deep. In the Copper country they had the heaviest fall of snow, there being 19 inches. Down within a few miles of the south boundary line of Arkansas there is 6 inches. The area from the Atlantic seaboard to the Rocky Mountains as far south as Little Rock to the Canadian boundary with the exception of a part of Colorado, is under snow.

In the Lake Superior district, which includes all the northern part of Minnesota, there is 15 inches of "the beautiful." In Winnipeg there is 9 inches.

The report says that:

"More than the usual amounts of snow have occured over the Northern Rocky Mountain region, and there has been a considerable fall in the mountain regions of Arizona, but in the Middle Rocky mountain and plateau districts there has been less snow than usual.

"Compared with the same date last year there are large areas in the Ohio valley and Middle Atlantic states now covered, which were then bare, but over the central valleys and Middle Rocky mountain and plateau districts there is now decidedly less snow than at the same period in 1909.

"The general cold wave that overspread the districts east of the Rocky mountains during the past week caused the formation of considerable ice in the Upper Missouri river and its tributaries, in the Red river of the North, and in the Upper Mississippi river. The greatest thickness reported was 5.5 inches at Bismarck, 10 inches at Moorhead, and 4 inches at St. Paul.

"In the extreme western end of Lake Superior ice 6 inches in thickness was reported, but elsewhere in the lake region the harbors are generally free of any appreciable amount of ice."

PLAN TO TEST THE DRY ORDER

Case Will Be Taken Up at St. Paul at an Early Date.

St. Paul, Minn., Dec. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Negotiations will be opened tomorrow in the office of United States District Attorney C. C. Houpt looking toward the submission at an early date of a test case to determine the question of the applicability of the Indian treaties under which Secretary Ballinger, through his aides and agents, in clapping the liquor "lid" on all that territory covered by the treaties made with the Sioux and Chippewa Indians during the early history of Minnesota.

WATERWAY MEN CLOSE MEETING

Ransdell Is Re-Elected President of National Body.

Washington, Dec. 9.—With the adoption of resolutions clearly outlinging its attitude on the improvement of waterways, and the re-election of Representative Joseph E. Ransdell of Louisiana as president, and Capt. J. E. Ellison as secretary-treasurer, the National Rivers and Harbors congress brought to a close today its seventh annual congress, which has been characterized from start to finish by complete harmony.

The resolutions commend the attitude of President Taft and urge the annual appropriation of $50,000,000 by congress for the improvement of waterways to be paid out of current revenues where possible, otherwise by the issuance and sale of bonds.

It is declared however, that the congress favors such bond issues only for permanent improvements and that the amount of any issue shall be limited to the requirements of the year of issue. It is urged also that the United States corps of engineers be increased, and that the powers of the interstate commerce commission be enlarged to give that body effectual authority to regulate competing land and water carriers.

FIGHT TO KEEP TREATY IN FORCE

Reform Bureau Hopes to Keep the Indian Lands Dry.

Washington, Dec. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Dr. Wilbur F. Crafts, superintendent of the International Reform bureau, has announced that it is the purpose of that organization to oppose any effort that may be made to abrogate or amend the treaties under which Secretary Ballinger is enforcing prohibition of the liquor traffic in the Indian country of Minnesota.

"We do not propose to let up any prohibited territory," said Mr. Crafts. "The law on this case is plain, and it is being enforced. We will protest to the president against any change in the present policy and we will fight any bills that may be offered in congress with a view to abrogation of the treaty law that applies to this situation."

Mr. Crafts recently visited Minnesota and held a conference with W. E. Johnson, whom he eulogizes.

"Johnson is a wonderful man," said Dr. Crafts. "He believes in the cause and is accomplishing results."

The bureau represented by Dr. Crafts is composed of organizations interested in reform legislation pending in congress and the state legislatures. It has the backing of anti-saloon leaders. Dr. Crafts has been a well known figure in Washington for many years.

Milwaukee, Wis., Dec. 9.—Mayor Seidel has asked for the resignation of Chief of Police John T. Janssen on the alleged ground that the chief will not work in harmony with the city administration.

If Mayor Seidel's forthcoming charges are not sustained by the majority of the commissioners, Chief Janssen cannot be removed.

DIETZ LOSES IN SUPREME COURT

State's Motions Are Sustained By Wisconsin Tribunal.

Madison, Wis., Dec. 9.—The supreme court this afternoon granted the motion of the state to quash the writ of habeas corpus; denied the plea for a reduction in bail, and also refused to order the immediate service of all warrants against John F. Dietz, who has been held in jail at Hayward on many charges.

GEN. RANDOLPH KILLS HIMSELF

Former Head of Coast Artillery Takes His Own Life.

Washington, Dec. 9.—Maj. Gen. Wallace F. Randolph, retired, former late chief of the coast artillery corps, committed suicide at his residence in this city today. Gen. Randolph shot himself through the head. No reason is known for the suicide and the only plausible explanation is that he was suffering intense agony from an attack of kidney trouble.

Gen. Randolph was the first chief of the coast artillery corps. He was mainly instrumental in the development of the present system of field artillery and for several years was in charge of the artillery post at Fort Riley, Kan.

During the Spanish-American war he commanded the field artillery with Gen. Shafter's army in Cuba. Upon the establishment of the coast artillery corps in April, 1901, the president appointed him to the chieftainship of the corps, in which capacity he served until January, 1904, when he was retired as a major-general. He was a native of Pennsylvania and was 69 years old.

Washington, Dec. 9.—The results of a concerted movement amongst women's clubs of the United States to lessen the danger of disease from dairy products has become apparent in petitions pouring into congress this week. Petitions have been received from Minnesota, California, Wyoming, Washington, New Hampshire, Maine, Michigan, North Dakota and other states, urging an investigation and the enactment of laws to prevent spread of disease by this means.

Congress is urged to take immediate action looking toward a thorough investigation of the facts and to enact whatever legislation may be found necessary to eliminate the danger to public health.

UP TO RAILROADS.

They Are Responsible for Passengers' Conduct in Minnesota.

St. Paul, Minn., Dec. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Railway companies are responsible for the conduct of passengers on their trains, according to a ruling of the Minnesota supreme court made today. The court held the railroads are bound to properly police their trains and protect the passengers from each other.

The ruling was made in the case of Rev. W. B. O. Jansen of Minneapolis, who sued the Minneapolis & St. Louis Railway company for damages.

Mr. Jansen, while riding on the train, came in contact with another passenger who said things which were not pleasant to the priest. He appealed to the conductor, who excused the other passenger on the excuse that the man was drunk.

FIVE CANDIDATES ARE LIABLE UNDER LAW.

They were candidates for secretary of state, state auditor, state treasurer and attorney general. J. D. Engle, candidate for lieutenant-governor on the Prohibition ticket, is also in this class.

The offense comes through their failure to file expense accounts. The last day for filing was yesterday.

The best advertised store in this or in any city wouldn't change places with the second best advertised store for any consideration whatever!

CATCHING WILD ANIMALS.

The Asian: Leopards were caught in nooses made of cat or monkey gut. The tiger, the leopard and the panther have all the cat's habit of sharpening and cleaning their claws on tree trunks, but whether it is true that preferably they will use a tree that bears previous claw marks I cannot say.

It would be interesting to have the opinion of some one experienced on the subject. However, the pursuers are believed to have selected such a tree and round and about the trunk of it set their strong gut snares; and sometimes the cheetah remained secured by the leg. Sure it is that some snare is used for these beasts, for they are still to be found in the native states of Rajputana, and probably elsewhere, kept for hunting purposes.

A leopard secured for hunting must be caught when he is full grown, and accomplished in his knack of pulling down game, otherwise, however much he were trained, he would never acquire the quickness and perception as in the wild state when he has to secure for himself each and every meal he partakes of.

I have seen these cheetahs tied to ordinary charpoys and taking quite a place of their own among their keepers' families, who seem to fear them not at all. They are carted to the scene of action with hoods on, which are removed when the animal is shown the object of his required exertions.

I have been told that they are always rewarded for a successful chase with a cupful of fresh, warm blood from the victim, and some even say the liver, cut out then and there, is given them. To take possession of these creatures when only noosed to a tree by one leg, must need great courage and dexterity, though it seems an easy enough matter to tame them once they are captured.

Monkeys can sometimes be secured by the absurdly simple method of putting some grain in a heavy but small mouthed chatty or gharrah. As soon as Jacko knows what is inside he pops in his fist and fills it full. The object is to have the opening too small to allow his doubled up full fist to be withdrawn. He has not the sense and cunningness that is generally attribute to him evidently, for it does not occur to him in this instance to empty his hand of grain and so get free, for he wil go on struggling ineffectively without doing so as often as not, proving his own undoing.

MODERN CORPORATIONS.

National Magazine: The corporation in business is no modern institution The Romans formed ecclesiastical corporations, and the idea was carried to England, where the instrument which created the corporation was originally granted by the king. Later it was granted by acts of parliament, a separate act for each charter.

In America the state Constitutions require that in all possible cases the legislative body pass general acts whereby, by simply filing a prescribed instrument, persons may form a corporation without applying to the legislature for permission. The state creates the corporation, which possesses powers only such as the state permits.

The Dutch East India company, organized in 1602, was the first great joint stock company whose shares were bought and sold. The first record of a corporation in America was in the Colonial times, when the colony of Connecticut of 1721 chartered the London Society for Trade and Commerce. In 1795 the Connecticut Land company was organized and dissolved in 1809.

The formation of corporations was not popular until the middle of the nineteenth century; in fact but few were organized until fifty years ago. The modern corporation having stock and stockholders came into general prominence since the days of Blackstone and Kent and can only be governed by modern laws. Today the corporation is an absolutely necessary form of business organization, and its use is constantly increasing and extending.

There are but two forms of business combinations available for the conduct of a commercial enterprise, namely, partnership and a corporation. The one is easily entered into and as easily dissolved; the other is formal and permanent.

FRICTION UNAVOIDABLE.

Los Angeles Times: Oscar Hammerstein, in the smoke room of the Lusitania, praised America by contrast with Europe. "They have to admit in the old world," said the patriotic impressario, "that we've got them beaten on every count. Talk to them about the matter, and they can only quibble.

"'Oh, yes,' said an English banker to me the other day, 'you've got a great country, the greatest country in the world—there's no denying that.'

"Then he gave a nasty laugh.

"'But look at your fires,' he said. 'Your terrible fires are a disgrace to mankind.'

"'Oh, our fires,' said I, 'are due to the friction caused by our rapid growth.'"

There are never "dead stocks" in a store that does "live advertising."

STRANGE FERNS.

Walking and Climbing Varieties, and Others Shaped Like Tongues.

The fronds of the walking fern are severely plain and usually not more than eight to twelve inches long. Some of them are short and blunt; others are prolonged into a long, slender tip, which bends over to the ground, and at this point if conditions are favorable a tiny plant begins to form.

After a time, as the young plant grows larger, it becomes detached from the parent, though sometimes the connections remain through two or three generations.

It is in this sense, says St. Nicholas, that the walking fern "walks," though its steps are short and not often taken. It grows in rocky woods, chiefly in limestone regions, forming dense mats.

The climbing fern has long, vine-like stems too weak to hold themselves erect, and therefore has developed a twining habit, depending on neighboring objects for support. The frondlets much resemble a small hand with chubby fingers and are arranged in pairs.

The spore-bearing part is borne at the tip of the stem in a sort of branching cluster. This fern grows throughout the eastern part of the United States, chiefly near the coast. It is sometimes called the Hartford fern, named for the capital of Connecticut, and a law was passed making it a misdemeanor to pull or uproot a plant in that state.

The adder's tongue fern has a single stem, usually less than one foot in height, with the spore-bearing portion at the tip and a single, undivided, elliptical leaf about midway. It grows in wet, boggy places and is considered a particularly interesting find by fern collectors.

Closely related to the adder's tongue are the grape ferns and the rare moonwort. Most of these plants are too small and inconspicuous to be noticed by the average person, but they are of unusual interest and a source of perplexity to the botanist because of their tendency to produce many different forms.

The moonwort is seldom found south of the Canadian border. In more superstitious days it was believed to have miraculous powers. An old-time botanist wrote of it: "Moonwort is a herb which they say will open locks and unshoe such horses as tread upon it."

Vying with the adder's tongue in point of simple unaffectedness is the curly grass, another small and unassuming species of fern, so utterly devoid of the usual fernlike characters as to be hardly worth the name. The unbotanical person would place it among the grasses. The sterile fronds are grasslike and are but one or two inches long. Above these rise several erect stalks, three to five inches in height, with the spore-bearing portion at the top. In this country the only stations known for this plant are in certain boggy lands of New Jersey.

The rarest of the tongue ferns is the hart's tongue, found in shaded ravines in the states of New York and Tennessee. The fronts are from six inches to two feet in length, somewhat heart shaped at the base and undivided. While there is little in their general appearance to suggest a fern, the spore-bearing organs on the backs of the fronds show at once their true relationship.

HE SANG BASS.

Chicago News: "I see," observed Mrs. Wagstaff, "that Sallie Foxworthy is keeping company with young Mr. Solong."

"Yes, and it's a shame," cried Mrs. Cumback. "I think it's somebody's duty to go to Mrs. Foxworthy and tell her what that young man is like, but you know how she is. She'd be likely to show you the door and tell you to mind your own business. She's too independent and self-satisfied for anything. I went over to her house one day, in a neighborly way, to tell her that the milkman she was patronizing had been arrested several times, charged with diluting his milk, and she looked at me in such a frozen way that the mercury went down a 100 deg., and when I went out of the house I felt as though I had been caught pocketing the spoons. I learned afterward that the milkman is her brother-in-law. But if she is an old iceberg, her daughter Sallie is a nice sort of girl, and deserves a better young man than Aleck Solong."

"Why, I've never heard a word against him, Mrs. Cumback. He appears to be quite a good young man."

"Oh, he's good enough in a general way, I suppose, but I'm sure if I had a daughter named Sallie I wouldn't let her go with him. If a young man is industrious and reasonably honest and parts his hair in the middle and wears little patches of whiskers in front of his ears then everybody says he is a fine fellow, and some girl marries him, without ever considering his real character, particularly if she has a mother who reminds you of the twenty-seventh of January in Spitzbergen. You have to look deeper to find a man's merits and blemishes, Mrs. Wagstaff.

"Young girls are too frivolous to look deeper, so their mothers should do it for them. A young man may be industrious and honest and have little patches of whiskers in front of his ears, and still be a poor husband.

"You remember when my niece, Gladys, was visiting me? Well, one evening we had a little party at our house in her honor and Aleck Solong was there. Up to that night I had the greatest admiration and respect for that young man, but since then I have looked upon him with great disfavor.

"During the evening somebody asked him to sing and I guess he had been waiting for the invitation with feverish impatience, for he leaped over a chair to get to the piano in a hurry, saying that he played his own accompaniments. He thinks he has a wonderful bass voice. That's a common affliction with young men, Mrs. Wagstaff, and if I had a son named Aleck and he got the idea that he could sing bass I'd lock him in the coal cellar, where he couldn't disturb people.

"Well, young Solong sat at the piano and pounded the keys as though he had a grudge against the manufacturers, and began singing something about there being countless stores of the earth's red gold a hundred fathoms deep, and he growled and rumbled like a cirgus wagon going over a bridge for a half an hour, and when he was done with the countless stores and the hundred fathoms he switched over to 'The Sands of Dee' and I never was so tired of anything as I was of hearing him repeating, over and over again, in a hoarse roar, that the waves crept round and round the sand and o'er and o'er the sand and up and down the sand and across the send in every direction, and I really don't see anything to laugh at, Mrs. Wagstaff.

"When he had sung about the sand till we could taste sand he began on 'Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep' and I guess he'd have hung to it all night only my husband, who was trying to read upstairs, called down that I'd have to quit grinding coffee, as the noise disturbed him. So you see what sort of a young man that Aleck Solong is."

BURN DEAD YUMA'S MONEY.

Denver Times: Jos Escalate, a Yuma Indian, died a few days ago, and the members of his tribe, in accord with an old custom, burned with him all his belongings, including $2,000 in cash.

"It is one of the religious beliefs of the Yumas, this burning of all a man's possessions when he dies," said Chief Supervisor E. P. Holcombe of the Indian bureau. "We have made efforts to stop it, even appealing to federal attorneys in some cases for assistance. Injunctions against the practice have been sought, but with what success I don't know. Certainly something should be done to stop it or the whole tribe will become paupers in time. The destruction of all a man's property at his death is too great an inheritance tax for a people to stand up under.

"I don't know the origin of the custom, but the idea prevails that they believe the dead can enjoy their belongings after death. I have read somewhere:

"'What pleased him most in life may still give pleasure in the grave.'

"Opposed to this sentiment, however, is the description of her grandfather's death by Sarah Winnemucca Hopkins, an Indian girl who wrote 'Life Among the Piutes.' She says: 'Everything he had was put into the grave with him. His body was put into blankets when it was ready for burial, and after he was buried six of his horses were killed. Now, do not think that we do these things because the dead use what we destroy. It is simply the last respect we pay the dead.'

"But to return to the Yumas. Whatever the reason for their destruction of property, cremation of the dead is the chief of their religious beliefs. Their whole life centers around it, until they live seemingly only to be cremated. Old Chief Miguel sent his sons to the best Indian schools. One of them, now returned, is a writer in Los Angeles. He refuses, I have heard, to live with his people. Last winter he fell ill and his father was much concerned. The boy wrote Miguel not to worry, that he had arranged in case of death to have his body sent home for cremation. The old man's fears entirely disappeared on receipt of the letter.

"At a Yuma funeral last winter seventeen new blankets were bought and burned on one funeral pyre."

STEAM HEATING THE SOIL.

Events Which Led to the Discovery That It Increases the Fertility.

When the vineyards of Europe were overtaken by the phylloxera, a minute insect which lives upon the roots of the vine and eventually destroys it, it at first appeared as though no means could be found to combat the pestilence. Gradually various remedies have been discovered, of which the most widely applied has been the employment of American species of vine as the underground stocks, upon which the old varieties esteemed for making wine were then grafted.

The American vine is strong enough to resist the attack of the parasite; it even confers a new vigor and yielding power upon the more delicate vintage grape that it carries, so that by its help many of the old European vineyards have not only been regenerated but also made to produce more wine to the acre than before the advent of the phylloxera.

But the more famous vineyards, where are grown the grands crus that bear a name all the world over, have hesitated to use the American stock, fearing such a deterioration in the quality of the grape as would never be compensated for by any increase of quantity. The remedy against phylloxera on which they have chiefly relied has been the injection into the soil of small quantities of carbon disulphide, a volatile liquid giving rise to a heavy poisonous vapor. It was found that this vapor diffused through the soil and killed the phylloxera, while the root of the vine took no harm. In this way the phylloxera can be kept in check, if not actually stamped out, but the expense of the process limits its adoption except in the most valuable vineyards.

The point of this story, says Harper's Magazine, is that a certain Alsatian vine grower before 1894 made the observation that land which had thus been treated with carbon disulphide became more productive than it was before, even when the destruction of the phylloxera was left entirely out of the question. But this observation remained unappreciated, just like the similar records of the gain in fertility brought about by heating the soil to the temperature of boiling water.

However, confirmatory evidence gradually accrued, until such scientific men as concern themselves with the soil have within the last few years become convinced that there was a real and novel set of phenomena to be explained. Some of the United States station workers even began to advocate the steam heating of soil destined for the growth of plants in greenhouses; they maintained that not only was freedom from certain fungoid diseases and animal pests thus secured but that the productiveness of the soil was sufficiently raised to pay for the treatment.

"THE SYSTEM OF GHENT."

Belgian Scheme of Insurance Against Unemployment.

Louis Varlez, a Belgian statistician, has devised the most practical and sincere proposal to relieve unemployment among organized skilled and unskilled workers, says the Twentieth Century Magazine. The system is based upon the mutual insurance funds of the unions.

In times of prosperity the unions collect from their members certain dues which make up the unemployed benefit fund. From this fund, in times of unemployment, the unions pay out small sums to their unemployed members.

However, at periods of a severe crisis the funds of the unions are easily overdrawn. Here enters in Varlez's scheme. By a municipal allowance the unions are put in the position to increase their unemployed funds.

The city of Ghent, in Belgium, introduced this system in 1904. It worked so successfully that by now it is universally recognized as the most efficient measure against unemployment, and many states and municipalities have already introduced "The System of Ghent" or are discussing its immediate realization.

In France more than forty municipalities and several departments have adopted the system of Ghent. Since the law of 1905 the French state is authorized to aid the unions financially in case of unemployment.

Ten cities in Holland have lately introduced Varlez's scheme. The Norwegian state, conforming to the law of 1906, reimburses one-fourth and Denmark one-third of the sum paid out by the unions in unemployment benefits.

The salient features of the unemployed insurance statute of the city of Strassburg are the following:

"Every unemployed who belongs to a trade union or an association of employes that pays unemployed benefits gets an additional allowance.

"The city pays an allowance only in cases of involuntary unemployment. If unemployment is caused by strikes, lockouts or their consequences, by illness, accident or invalidity, the city is not obliged to pay.

"The aid of the city amounts to 50 per cent of the sum paid by above associations. In other words, if the person unemployed draws 50 cents from the trade union fund, the city adds 25 cents to this sum. However, the allowance of the city cannot exceed 25 cents a day.

"If the person unemployed is provided with suitable work the city stops the payments of the allowance. Unmarried people must accept work outside the town if special circumstances do not militate against it.

"Only such unions and associations have a claim upon the aid of the city which have an organized unemployed benefit service for their members and which ask the office of the mayor for the aid of the city and accept the statutes of this unemployment ordinance."

The results attained in Strassburg are so satisfying and encouraging that the unions of such a great industrial city as Berlin, where during the last industrial crisis more than 80,000 organized workers were without work, have unanimously directed their representatives to take steps for the realization of a similar institution in that city.

RAINBOW LAND.

"The West Highlands of Scotland may truly be called the home of the rainbow," says a writer in the Queen, "for here you will see them at any time of the year, and in no other part of the world can they be seen in more perfect form and hue.

"On a wild autumn day, with the west or southwest wind blowing the clouds up across the sun, I have seen one rainbow follow another in quick succession. A perfect arch of palpitating color becomes suddenly visible and frames the blue black mountains, which sit hunched at the top of the loch, gathering the storms round their great shoulders and hurling them down onto the foam white waters; at other times the bow shimmers across the sullen sky with both its ends resting on the water, a veritable gateway into faeryland.

"Even when the rainbows are not visible in this part of the world it seems as if they had spilled their colors on the woods and hills. When the clouds lift and the belated sun shines over mountain and loch the effect is almost as dazzling as the rainbow itself.

"In heather time the hills are wine colored on their lower slopes, while their tops are a deep indigo blue, standing out in strong contrast to the clear pale sky. Nearer at hand there is every shade of color from warm amethyst to the soft bloom of a purple plum.

"Later in the year the hills are checkered with the pale gold of the ripe grain, the red brown of the withered heather, the rusty glow of bracken, and the still vivid green of pasture fields, while the trees show every imaginable shade of hot color and seem to vie with each other in their efforts to defy the approaching gloom of winter.

"The waters of the sea lochs, which add so much to the beauty of rainbow land, are tinted with all the shades of blue, gray and green, and at sunset glow with colors which rival the hues of the rainbow. The leaves fall and spread their brightness on the ground remorsefully; the passionate autumn rains awaken the burns, which slept during the summer, and the air is filled with the hoarse cry of many waters.

"The dwellers in this rainbow land fall into the habit of looking up to see if the arch of color is visible, and even if it is not there the attitude of hope cannot fail to uplift, and the consciousness that the rainbow is not far off never quite leaves them."

WHY THEY FAILED TO GET WATER

Columbus Dispatch: Capt. Maynard, clerk of the house of representatives, has built a cottage at Indian lake. In his absence workmen tried to drive a well for water. They told him on a recent visit that they had gone down 200 feet without striking water.

When he investigated he found that the casing that had been sunk in the well had turned on a rock and had come up into the cottage. At the time that he found it, it was sticking up in the best room about six feet and the drill was working overtime.

EARLY BIRDS.

The Gentlewoman: An observant Frenchman who has been making notes of the habits of the feathered fraternity has just made a time table of the hours they wake of a morning.

The chaffinch heads the list with 1:30 a. m., at 2:30 the blackcap hails the morn, while at 3 the quail utters his quaint "Pay tes Dettes!" ("Pay thy debts!") The blackbird does not rise till 4 o'clock, while the tomtit, even more of a stay abed, does not commence his day till 4:30, while the restless sparrow considers the air not sufficiently warmed for his approval till 5:30 a. m.

BOY DIES OF HEART FAILURE

Was Apparently Fully Recovered From an Attack of Diphtheria.

Less than twenty-four hours after the quarantine had been raised from the home of Andrew Majeska of 6413 Petrie street, where his 12-year-old son, Walter, was confined with diphtheria, the boy died.

Dr. C. R. Keyes of West Duluth, who has been attending the case, says that the boy died of heart trouble.

Last week the lad passed the critical stage of the disease and since that time he apparently recovered rapidly. It is thought that other complications might have set in and a reaction affected the heart. Death came suddenly this morning.

The Majeska family is in destitute circumstances and the death of the boy will be a serious blow to the family. The health officers have referred the case to the poor commissioner.

According to Dr. Keyes, none of the three other children in the family contracted diphtheria.

FURNITURE FACTORY RESUMES OPERATIONS.

The Thompson Furniture company at New Duluth resumed full operations again this week after having been closed down since early in September, when the plant was partially destroyed by fire, thought to have been of incendiary origin.

A new three-story warehouse, 50 by 150 feet, replaces the burned structure. About fifty men were thrown out of employment at the time of the burning of the warehouse.

SCHOOL TERRITORY WILL BE REDISTRICTED.

Residents of Oneota are speculating as to the plans of the school board in redistricting the school territory, when the new Merritt school is erected at Fortieth avenue west and Sixth street next year.

Sentiment seems to favor dividing up the territory so that children living north of the Northern Pacific tracks, east of Forty-seventh and west of Thirty-fourth or Thirty-fifth avenues west may have access to the new school.

The new school will cost between $60,000 and $70,000 and will, if possible, be erected and ready for occupancy by the time that school opens next fall. There will be nine rooms in the building.

Friday, Dec. 2, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Johnson died and last evening a daughter also died. The children were twins. The funeral of the infant daughter was held this afternoon from the residence with interment at Oneota cemetery.

Funeral Saturday.

The funeral of Jacob Lindbeck of Two Harbors, who died of typhoid fever Wednesday at St. Luke's hospital will be held tomorrow at West Duluth. Services will be held at Bethany Norwegian-Danish M. E. church, Sixty-fifth avenue west and Polk street, at 3 o'clock. Rev. C. W. Schevenius, pastor of the church, will officiate and burial will be at Oneota cemetery.

Miss Susan Miller has gone to Merrill, Wis., on a few days' visit.

The funeral of Charles August Johnson, a boarder at 307 North Fifty-third avenue west, who died of typhoid fever at St. Luke's hospital Wednesday afternoon, was held this afternoon from the Richter undertaking rooms with burial at Oneota cemetery.

We wish to thank our friends and neighbors for their kindness during the illness and death of our beloved husband and father. Mrs. John Olson and family.

It has been erroneously stated that a chicken pie dinner will be held at Gilley's hall this evening by the Ladies' Aid Society of Asbury M. E. church. The affair will be held tomorrow evening instead.

The dust is decidedly disagreeable if the wind is blowing.

SOME SHORT WEIGHT STORIES

Only Commodity of Which People Seem to Get Full Peck Is Trouble.

The shortage in weights and measures is the one factor in the increased cost of living which can be removed; but it can be removed only through a thorough and systematic inspection of weights and measures and through the assistance of the housekeepers.

The housekeeper is necessarily the purchasing department and the receiving department of the household, and in this latter capacity she should have a kitchen test outfit to check the quantity of the commodities purchased.

There will be more and more of this household economy, says the American Magazine, as soon as it is fully realized that the value of the dollar will be increased from 5 to 15 per cent when the quantity received is what it purports to be.

How little the customer knows can be illustrated by an instance of a woman who was purchasing apples on the market in Buffalo. The particular dealer was apparently underselling his competitors by giving half a peck of apples at 25 per cent less than market value.

His method was simple. Using a narrow half peck measure he wedged three apples almost half way up in it, turning it upside down in his barrel. When a customer asked for half a peck of apples he would pick up the measure in his left hand and at the same time taking some apples with his right hand as he turned the measure would place them in it.

The customer of course would not see that there were apples already wedged in the measure. As an additional inducement the dealer would take one or two apples out of the barrel and put them into the woman's marketing basket, she being firm in the belief that she had not only received half a peck but had received some apples in addition. Upon being asked to be allowed to test the apples purchased she was indignant, stating that she had dealt with this man for years and had always received liberal measure.

This method of falsely useing apparatus is very common and is technically known as "stacking measures." Unless the market inspector is vigilant in almost any market can be found rows of measures already stacked in the early morning hours ready for the customer.

"I remember seeing onions, potatoes and various commodities of the kind stacked in quart, two quart and other measures in one of the markets in Columbus, Ohio," says the writer. "Though appearing to be excessively heaped, the contents of any one of them if shaken would have dropped far below the top rim of the measure.

"Another illustration of how the short weight artist injures the legitimate merchant is this: A pedler was offering apples at 35 cents a peck when the market value, the regular selling price in the prominent stores, was 70 cents a peck. A certain housekeeper was the wife of a weights and measures official, and immediately suspecting that something was wrong ordered a peck. Then she placed her own standard peck measure on the kitchen table. That pedler had to take three trips with his own peck measure roundly filled to give the housekeeper the legal heaping peck upon which she insisted, using her own correct measure as a standard.

"That one man, aside from defrauding the housekeepers with whom he dealt, was injuring every honest apple dealer in town. It is small wonder that some of the minor dealers would have to resort to the same tactics to compete with him.

"The above illustrations are of dry measures, and they must receive the grand prize for instruments of fraud because the bottom can be so easily raised or decreased in size and the sides relapped or false sides inserted. The customer rarely has an opportunity in a filled measure to see the inside, and with any sort of dexterity a crooked dealer can do the trick.

"The prevalence of false dry measures can be easily seen from the fact that two inspectors of the state department in New York counted over forty dry quart measures along Second avenue in New York City in three blocks all of which resulted in a shortage of over 50 per cent. Cranberry measures delivering 18 cubic inches instead of 67.2 have been very common; white lined graniteware liquid measures with an inch or two of white paraffin poured into the inside are very deceptive and by no means uncommon.

"One very prevalent form of weights and measures deception is to sell dry commodities by liquid measure instead of by dry measure. As a dry quart is 20 per cent larger than a liquid quart, the loss due to such practice is evident. Do not be deceived into imagining that because a person is using a small measure he is charging proportionately less, for that is far from being a fact. By far the most desirable method is to buy all commodities by weight, as is customary along the Pacific coast.

"Yet there are very many crooked scales. Many scales in stores have their dials turned toward the clerks instead of toward the customers, and that often means trouble. Even ragmen buying rags by weight sometimes use two scales, one to look at and the other to weigh with, the latter of the familiar sliding front type manipulated by the middle finger and thumb, with the weight shown determined purely by the conscience of the pedler himself.

"Aside from these cases of wilful dishonesty there are the cases of acquired dishonesty among dealers who, seeing that their competitors prosper by giving short weight and measure, acquire the same habit. Here is a case to illustrate this point:

"When cranberries were selling at 11 cents a quart, dry measure, and were so sold by all of the merchants in Rochester, an enterprising dealer advertised them for 10 cents a quart and gave a liquid quart, trying to undo the good work of the efficient sealer of that city. To meet this competition at least fifteen other dealers in that same neighborhood immediately dropped their prices to 10 cents and were using liquid measures. Of course 10 cents a quart liquid measure is considerably more expensive than 11 cents a quart dry measure.

"As the local sealer was known to the proprietor of the store, he could not very well secure the evidence, and so he called upon the state department of weights and measures. With a witness the state official entered the store and purchased some commodities, among them some cranberries. The evidence of fraud was easily secured and the proprietor convicted. Within three hours after conviction the other fifteen dealers returned to the honest and full measures."

A CUBAN MARTYR.

Our Dumb Animals: We take the story that follows from the beautiful tribute borne a saintly soul by one who knew her long and well. The circumstances connected with the funeral procession and the scene at the grave are voiceful with testimony to this rare and gracious spirit. Those familiar with the work in Havana, Cuba, may know the subject of this tribute quite as well by the endearing name by which the children of the Band of Mercy called her, "Lila." It is from Mrs. Jeanette Ryder that we quote in an article written by her for a Cuban paper:

Senora Brigida Cecilia Martinez Viuda de Arredonda was born in November, 1843, in Matanzas, Cuba. She received a classical education in a college in Matanzas, of which her mother was founder and principal.

When young she was one of Cuba's most beautiful daughters, but the loveliness of her youth could not have equaled the exquisite sweetness and grace of her mature years. Death had deprived her of mother, father, husband, children, brother, and sisters, only two nieces of her immediate family survive her. Her husband lost all of his large fortune in the war with Spain and died broken-hearted. But impoverished, ill, bereft of dear ones, advanced in years, still her mind was as active and clear, her eyes as beautiful, her heart as full of life and love and tenderness the day of her tragic death as in the time of her happy and sheltered youth.

How she had endeared herself to us by her sweetness, her compassion, her unselfishness we did not realize until she was gone from our midst.

When the Band of Mercy was organized in Cuba she was one of its first members and was made vice secretary. She proved a loyal and faithful member and officer. Nothing had power to weaken her interest and love for this society or the purpose for which it exists. Opposed, sneered at, misunderstood, criticised, and threatened, she kept courageously and steadily on doing what she could to advance its purpose and principles.

She was not discouraged into inaction by the appalling amount of work that it would never be possible to accomplish in the life time of the present generation, nor did she shirk the duty nearest at hand because of the immense number of cruel conditions existing which we could never hope to remedy during the few years allotted to us in which to work, but her heart and hand responded without counting the cost, to the appeal of any animal in need of protection or succor, wether an abandoned kitten, a lame mule, an overloaded horse, a goaded ox or a broken-winged butterfly—no act of mercy was too humble or too arduous for her to attempt.

She gave very efficient help to the Band of Mercy by her readiness and ability to attend to the Spanish correspondence. She never departed from instructions, but willingly, cheerfully, making no objections, she "carried the message to Garcia." We shall never see her like again. Her understanding was so perfect, her patience so great, her soul so free from jealousy and envy; she was so single-hearted in her purpose, so sincere, so loving and lovable! Every day we feel her loss more deeply, more poignantly, until it seems that we cannot go on without her. We had not realized the worth of her nuassuming acts of kindness, the heroism of her unpretentious life of sacrifice, the strength and beauty of her quiet courage, her boundless love for all that lives, until she was gone.

At 9 o'clock the morning of July 11, she brought to the office of the Band of Mercy a kitten that she had found lost and starving in the street; two hours later she was crushed to death by a wagon that a cartman backed against her while angry because she had reprimanded him for beating his mules and had demanded that he put off part of the load.

She had met life's sorrow's and disappointments bravely and nobly and had endeavored to heal her heartaches in service to our "little brothers;" she met death fearlessly defending helpless dumb creatures from cruelty and injustice. She died a martyr to the cause of humanity, but more than this, she had lived for it. And she is a living presence in the work for animals in Cuba today and will continue to be as long as our lives shall last.

The day the long funeral cortege followed her body to the grave it was a splendid prophecy, a glorious augury that the beautiful head of every horse in the line went free from the torturous checkrein that custom here decrees shall be especially high on such occasions. At the grave, almost filled to the top with flowers thrown into it by loving children's hands, and surrounded by children kneeling in prayer, our aching hearts received the assurance that though she rested from her labors her work would follow her through these little ones whose hearts had been opened to the beauty of justice and kindness to every living creature by the example of her noble life and martyrdom, and that her pure spirit would be with us to comfort and help us in the loneliness and discouragement of future endeavor to better the conditions for the helpless dumb beasts of burden in Cuba.

CONVINCING A SCEPTIC.

New York Sun: "I'm a sceptic," said the short fat man as he thumped the table, "a sceptic from Missouri, and you have got to show me."

The ethereal one in flowing robes, with a psychic look in her eyes, gazed at him sorrowfully. "Say not so," she whispered.

"I repeat it, I am a sceptic. Look here. I've tried all this new thought business, every bit of it. I have been through seances that would make your hair curl. I have tried palmistry, crystal gazing, mental sciences and plain fortune-telling with a pack of premium cards, and still I want to be shown."

"Your mental attitude depresses the sensitive soul of the inspired one," sighed the other.

"Mental tommyrot; and say, speaking of that, listen to this little tale: I went into one of these new thought huts out in Kalamazoo. I had been tackling roast beef sandwiches and sinkers between trains for the past week, and something from within warned me that I was near the wrecking stage.

"A chap with me suggested mental treatment. Mind you, thought treatment for Kalamazoo doughnuts! But I went to one of those new thinkists, who took my fevered brow between her velvety hands and looked into my eyes long and lovingly. 'Poor, wearied mentality,' she purred.

"That wasn't bad—it had a manicure or a barber skinned forty ways—so I began to sit up and take notice Then she told me the treament. She commanded me in a low and earnest whisper to sit upright in a straight backed chair at a certain time every day. When I had attained this physical attitude, which in time would be indicative of my mental one, I was to think aloud the following: 'Within my stomach is great white light and in the midst of the light the word peace is written thereon.' Just think of peace when I had consumed at least four dozen lumps of perfectly good leaden dough. That settled me."

The ethereal one sighed. "But have you ever tried psychometric force?"

"That's a new one," said the man, interested once more, "tell us about it."

"It is the power of touching articles and telling the former conditions to which they have been subjected; it is the power of taking an article worn or used by a person and from it gaining the future and the past of that person. I am somewhat of a dabbler in it myself. Give me any article and I will close my eyes and tell you what its surroundings have been."

The eyes of the fat man had a dangerous look as the psychic one closed her eyes and extended her intuitive fingers across the table. The fat man placed within them an article. The fingers stole over it lovingly. She began to shudder and then chanted:

"This article has seen many, many climes, likewise many, many dangerous times. It has drawn blood! It has travelled far and near, it speaks to me as if it were weary of the world, as if it longed for something higher; I cannot express it; a soul is imbedded within this inanimate article. It is a peculiar sensation and the one thought comes to me again and again—it—has—drawn—blood!"

The psychic one paused and the fat man grimly remarked. "Wonderful. O sage, wonderful and correct—for you hold in your hand my safety razor."

A PERENNIAL PERIL.

Lady's Pictorial: The crinoline of the '50s is believed to have been invented by one of three Frenchmen—a certain Joseph Thomas, who died a short time ago in the United States; a draper's assistant, who is nameless, or one Heindenrech, an executioner, who "flourished" during the Second empire. On what one might very well call circumstantial evidence I rather favor the executioner.

It is pointed out that the soft hoop which now encircles so many smart skirts might easily develop into something much more substantial and that from wearing bee-hive bonnets Dame Fashion might easily turn for variety to beehive petticoats. But I hope the No Crinoline League of 1893, if it is still in existence, has its corporate or secretarial eye on that hoop.

THE INK PLANT.

Knowledge: The ink of everyday life may be perhaps described as of mixed animal, vegetable and mineral origin. Sometimes, however, the juice of a plant can be used directly for writing. This is the case with the ink plant, which occurs in South America and New Zealand.

The juice of the plant is red, but it becomes rapidly black on exposure by oridization. It gives a permanent stain on paper and can be used as ink without further preparation. All the early documents in Spanish South America were written with the juice of the ink plant.

WHEAT DULL AND WEAK

Values Sag and Trading Is Light---Foreign News Favorable.

Cash Business Slim---Flax Declines in Narrow Market.

Duluth Board of Trade, Dec. 9.—The wheat market sagged today and closed lower. December lost ⅝c and May declined ⅝c. Cash wheat was 1½c over December. Oats gained ⅛c, rye and barley were unchanged. Durum lost 1½c.

Flaxseed was weak and trading was light. December lost 5½c and May 5½c. Buyers were few and on slim selling orders the market was offered down. Cash flax was on a parity with December.

The wheat market was dead today and values marked time after a weak opening. There was very little news to influence values either way and traders held aloof until some definite factor on one side or the other becomes apparent.

A Buenos Ayres cable said that harvesting has commenced in the North. The yield is about an average. Dry weather, said the report, is needed. Another cable told of hot winds in the province of Buenos Ayres which are said to be doing some damage. The news from Argentina was colorless and did not have any influence on the market.

Cables were lower. Offers of Manitoba wheat were heavier and prices were about 1 cent lower. Prospective purchasers backed away, however, and no business was reported. Bids were from three to four cents out of line. The situation in France is causing some apprehension. Rains have done considerable damage, said a cable.

World's shipments of wheat and flour this week exclusive of North America are estimated by Broomhall at 8,000,000 bu against 8,120,000 bu last week. Europe will take about 7,200,000 bu. Indian shipments this week are estimated at 680,000 bu against 856,000 bu last week and 88,000 bu a year ago. Argentine shipments this week are estimated at 504,000 bu, last week 952,000 bu and 200,000 bu a year ago.

Stocks of wheat at terminal points are large although they probably have been built up at the expense of invisible supplies and farm reserves. The wheat situation undoubtedly is technically bearish, but many people regard the situation as intrinsically bullish. The movement of wheat to terminals is exceedingly small, especially in the Northwest. If the late movement of winter wheat to markets is a criterion of farm reserves it is not improbable that there will ensue in the near future an active and persistent domestic demand, unaided by any foreign buying, upon stocks at terminal points sufficient to cause such a reduction in visible supplies as to produce a radical change from the long existent and pronounced bear sentiment. If such a condition materializes it should produce broader markets and a higher price plane.

On the other hand some people point out that the flour trade is slow and business does not give indications of improving materially. They look for lower prices as the supply of wheat in comparison with the demand becomes more impressed on the minds of traders and the bull factors, such as damage to winter and Argentine wheat, fall short of their purpose.

Chicago Paint and Varnish Record: That the railroads are alive to the situation as it now exists, and to the possibilities of the future, is shown by the bids they are making for the shipment of flaxseed from the receiving ports to the interior of the country. It was announced in the last issue of the Record that the Illinois Central road would put in a new rate of 13 cents from New Orleans to Chicago. This rate, however, will not become effective until Jan. 1, and not on Dec. 1, as was stated, by mistake. It is now authoritatively announced that the Eastern roads will follow the cut made by the Southern road and that on and after Jan. 10 the rate on seed from Philadelphia will be 14c per 100 lb, instead of the present rate of 22c, and that the rate from New York will be 16c, against the present rate of 22c per 100 lb. With these new freight charges in effect it is not unlikely that some of the seed which is bought abroad by the Western crushers, and especially those at Chicago, may come through the Eastern ports. When the railroad companies begin to cut their rates, and especially at a time like this, when they are asking the interstate commerce commission for permission to advance the general freight rates, it means that the companies are fighting for business and that the shrewd representatives see that there is a probability of liberal shipments. No one ever heard of the roads cutting their existing freight charges unless there was some business to be obtained by so doing. And the Eastern roads do not relish the idea of the Southern roads getting all the business on foreign seed to come West, as they undoubtedly would do if there continued to be a difference of 9c per 100 lb in favor of the Southern roads. This is merely one of the straws which show which way the wind is blowing, and indicates that the railroads are firmly of the opinion that the West is going to be far short of its seed requirements.

In commenting on a recent statement in this paper the Chicago Paint and Varnish Record says:

"The usually reliable Herald is in error in stating that Indian flaxseed is inferior to our Northwestern seed. Exactly the contrary is the rule. It is true that there may be a slightly larger percentage of impurities (other oleaginous seeds) in a given amount of Calcutta seed, under what is called by American crushers, "European terms," but the linseed itself has much greater oil-producing qualities than No. 1 Northwestern seed. The Calcutta seed now being crushed, or which recently has been crushed in Chicago, runs 20 to 21 pounds of oil to the bushel, while No. 1 Northwestern will not run over 19 pounds. Argentine seed runs less than No. 1 Northwestern — about 18 pounds. So fully is the superiority of Indian (or Calcutta) seed recognized that it always commands a premium over either Argentine or American seed in the European market."

The Herald stands corrected.

Chicago Record-Herald: First estimates of the winter wheat acreage and conditions as announced by the department of agriculture at Washington were susceptible of either bullish or bearish construction, according to the leaning of the reader of the report. The figures were not far from the popular expectation — low as to condition and high as to acreage. The acreage was the largest ever seeded to winter wheat in the United States, exceeding that reported a year ago by 1,002,000 acres, revised to 828,000 acres in yesterday's report, and all of the important winter wheat states showed big gains in areas. The condition of 82.5 was 13.3 points lower than a year ago and 8.8 points lower than the 10-year average. Except for the big states of the Pacific Northwest the condition was lower than a year ago in all of the important producing states. In fact, the report leaves the trade open to doubt, with the future of the winter wheat crop subject to vast possibilities either way. Favorable winter and spring weather would easily admit of the largest wheat crop ever raised, while further important lowering of the already low condition might easily spell disaster in wide areas. Figured on the basis of yesterday's acreage and condition the present prospect is for a winter wheat crop of 502,685,000 bu. This is about 10,000,000 bu larger than the record winter wheat crop of 492,000,000 bu raised in 1906.

"The Minneapolis flour output last week decreased 70,915 bbl," says the Northwestern Miller. "This made the output for week ending Dec. 3, 276,090 bbl, against 221,230 in 1909. The decrease in output last week was due to impaired water power. This week one and a half more mills are in operation, but it is doubtful if the production will exceed 300,000 bbl. With zero weather, the water power is worse, and most of the flour being made is turned out by steam. It was a pretty dull week with all Northwestern mills. Flour sales were materially less than the output. While the 2½@3c bu advance in wheat brought in some orders, usually mills reported the strength in the market as without any observable effect. Directions are fair to poor. Some of the Minneapolis mills with crippled water power would be embarrassed were directions to come any faster, other mills are not getting them fast enough. This latter particularly applies to the larger interior mills. Export business very light."

Chicago Paint and Varnish Record: At the present time there is no foreign flaxseed in Chicago, the recent consignments of Calcutta seed having been crushed and a part of the oil and all of the cake having been disposed of. There are other lots of Calcutta seed still to come, but like all importations their arrival is somewhat uncertain. Just how much Calcutta seed will be used in Chicago, on the present crop, is a hard matter to determine, but all of the crushers actively engaged in this city, and who have not also Eastern connections, will undoubtedly use much of the new crop Argentine seed, as liberal purchases already have been made, and others undoubtedly will follow. For the present, the Chicago crushers will rely upon the Northwestern seed which they now have on hand and which will come to them from time to time by rail from the Northwest. The difficulty in securing seed has made it likely that one of the big crushing interests with Eastern connections will close its Chicago mills within a short time, and will crush all of its imported seed in its Eastern factories.

A Chicago crusher has just given out what he claims is a fairly accurate est'mate of the size of the Argentine flax crop. This estimate is based on a supposition of an acreage of about 3,000,000 acres and yield of about 12 bushels to the acre, which would give a total production of 36,000,000 bushels. The estimate is made by one of the largest financial interests in the United States, one which is closely associated through its own business dealings with the flaxseed industry, and is made without intent to any idea of influencing seed values one way or the other. Of course, this is only a preliminary estimate and is subject to revision, which may be made within the next few days.

Chicago Record-Herald: J. A. Patten came back from New York yesterday and was talking bearish on wheat. "If the winter wheat reaches harvest with no improvement in its present condition, it means 500,000,000 bu," he said. "This of itself would be enough, but a little rain or a little snow would do a lot of repair work on condition. It only needs 300,000,000 bu spring wheat to make a very sizable crop of 800,000,000 bu, and this does not appear to me to be either remote or improbable. There is no scarcity of the old crop. The demand for it is poor and much of the wheat that is being shipped out now is simply being transferred to cheaper storage in mill warehouses and may result in a poor cash demand later. It is mostly hedged in the pit because of the attractive carrying charges. I told them in New York that if they were going to get any bull help in the wheat market it would have to come from the other side. If the situation in France is critical and they have another crop failure and if they buy a lot of wheat here and their market goes up it may be time to advance wheat here. Until then I can see no cause for worry."

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool: The wheat market opened with an easier undertone, although prices were ⅛d to ¼d lower. Pressure was the result of the lower American cables yesterday and larger Plate offers and a general poorer inquiry. Later there was some further pressure in March which month showed an additional decline of ¼d. Manitoba offers were larger and spot markets easy with Manitoba grade a penny lower. Just before midday there was some little covering by shorts and prices steadied slightly. This was attributed to continued rains in France and less favorable weather in Argentina. At this time the market was dull and ¼d lower than yesterday.

The corn market was practically unchanged and neglected. There was a holiday in the Buenos Ayres market yesterday.

Our agent cabled late yesterday that reports were being received at Buenos Ayres that hot winds in that section were veering northward.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Grain Prices Weaken and Large Houses Sell Wheat.

Chicago, Dec. 9.—After a hesitating start, all grain prices, this morning, inclined to the side of cheapness. Selling of wheat was chiefly by the larger houses and was apparently based on lower quotations at Liverpool. The British market reported demand there poor with larger offerings pressing from Manitoba and the Argentine. On the other hand, there were continued rains in France and the conditions for the winter crop in this country were unimproved. The opening was ⅛@¼c lower to a shade up. May started at 96c to 96¼c, covering the entire range of the market, touched 96¼@96⅜c, and declined to 96c.

Decreased shipments from Australia, India and the Argentine, led to a little advance, but on the whole the traders were simply marking time. The close was easy with May at 95¾@95⅞c, a net loss of ⅜c.

Corn felt the influence of big consignments on the way here. Argentine shipments were also reported heavy. May opened ⅛@¼c off to a shade higher at 47¼c to 47½c and settled around the lower level.

Talk about scarcity of cars caused a rally. The close was easy with May the same as last night at 47⅜@47½c.

Cash houses fed out all the oats the pit would take. May opened ⅛c higher to a shade lower at 34⅛@¼ to 34¼c and receded to 34c.

Provisions went sharply higher, scarcely any being on sale and commission houses competing to purchase. Higher prices for hogs formed an incentive for the advance. First sales were 5c to 32½c up with May at $17.45 to $17.62½ for pork; $9.82½ to $9.87½ for lard, and $9.50 to $9.57½ for ribs.

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Slightly Easier Tone Rules in Wheat—Price Range Narrow.

Minneapolis, Minn., Dec. 9.—A slightly easier tone ruled in wheat. The market was in very narrow range. Moderate selling just at the weakness. Local elevator stocks increased 260,000 bushels for the week, making in store in all regular and six private elevators, 12,088,000 bushels.

Minneapolis today received 290 cars of wheat against 103 a year ago; Duluth, 79 against 60 and Winnipeg 220 against 133. December wheat opened $1.01⅜, high $1.01½, low $1.00⅞, closed $1.00⅞; May opened $1.04⅜, high $1.04⅝, low $1.03⅞, closed $1.03⅞@1.04; July opened $1.05⅜, high $1.05⅜, low $1.04¾, closed $1.04¾.

Cotton Market.

New York, Dec. 9.—The cotton market opened steady at an advance of 2@6 points, in sympathy with better cables than expected and reports of a big trade demand in Liverpool, but there was heavy selling on the bulge, much of it coming from brokers supposed to be operating for leading bulls, and the market showed a very nervous undertone while waiting the government's estimate this afternoon. Prices sold off to about the closing figures of yesterday during the middle of the morning.

Futures closed firm; closing bids: December, 14.84; January, 14.87; February, 14.98; March, 15.14; April, 15.17; May, 15.30; June 15.28; July, 15.28; August, 14.98. Cotton, spot, closed steady, 30 points advance; middling uplands, 15.10; middling gulf, 15.35. Sales, 7,300 bales.

ADVANCES IN STOCKS

Decision in Temple Iron Company Case Has Favorable Effect.

Rise Is Well Maintained and Close Is Active and Strong.

New York, Dec. 9.—The decision of the United States circuit court in Pennsylvania in the case of Temple Iron company, declaring the corporation illegal, but otherwise sustaining the rights of the coal companies which control it, was evidently favorably construed in Wall street today. Opening prices, particularly of the coal carriers, showed various substanial advances, Lehigh Valley advancing 2¾ and Reading 2½ in the early trading. Elsewhere in the list, gains ranged from a point to material fractions on fairly heavy trading.

About a score of stocks including Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, Northern Pacific, New York Central, Rock Island, Erie, United States Steel and American Smelting, moved up 1 to 1½ before there was enough stock dumped on the market to drive prices back. St. Louis Southwestern preferred opened up 3 points despite the cut in the dividend, but Missouri Pacific was sold and lost 3. On the reaction Lehigh Valley lost 1½, Southern Pacific 1¼ and Reading and Union Pacific 1.

A close study of the points involved in the Temple Iron decision seemed to lead to the conclusion that the outcome was not wholly favorable to the railroads. Although it is true that the holding of these companies on the percentage basis of production are not affected, it is possible that so little ingenuity may have to be exercised to find some new method of coal distributions. The market became dull in the second hour but grew more active toward mid-day, and prices returned to near their earlier high level, but did not hold very well. Bonds were steady.

The market closed active and strong. The heaviness of the early afternoon gave way to general improvement in the final hour and prices hardened all around. Renewal of gold imports rumors probably was a factor in the advance. Trading became inactive again at the higher level, but advances were pretty well maintained to the close.

WASHINGTON TAKE NOTICE.

Queen: The municipal service of Paris is at present thinking of granting fewer permissions for the erection of statues in and about the city. Its first step toward this reform will be to demand that every proposed monument be first approved by a commission of artists. Hitherto the sculptor's design was not examined prior to acceptance of the proposed monument, and the space for it was granted without [illegible] if the person to be honored was considered worthy.

A municipal councilor whose opinion carries some weight has suggested that most of the ugly and very unnecessary modern statuary which fills all the gardens of Paris and crowds the population of the pavements in the streets and public squares be removed to the new gardens which are about to be laid out on the former fortifications, and the grounds, being designed with a view to holding them, will not be disfigured as are the Parc Monceau, the Luxembourg, the Place du Carrousel, the Champs Elysees, and the Cours la Reine, which were not planned for them.

FIRST AID TO NATIONS.

Some Instances Where the Powers Rule Countries That Can't Rule Themselves.

Answers: Liberia, the Black Republic on the west coast of Africa, has proved itself unable to manage its own affairs. The country is populated by freed slaves from America, and that is why the United States have offered to take entire charge of Liberian finances, and to put the country on the way to becoming prosperous.

It is not the first time that the Yankee has stepped in to straighten out the tangle in which a nation has become involved. The Spanish-American war was caused by the unsatisfactory condition of Cuba. Uncle Jonathan, after the fight was over, took charge of the Cuban "shop." He introduced sanitary methods throughout the island, and thereby lowered the death rate. Prisons were reformed, free schools were established and, in many practical ways, the route was prepared for self-government for Cuba. In 1902 the republic was established, and the Cubans are now on a fair way to becoming a model nation.

There have been many remarks made, in consequence of the failure of Liberia, that the negroes particularly can not look after themselves; but it is a wrong conclusion to draw. European races have proved themselves just as capable of becoming bankrupt. Russia, for instance, has more than once had to repudiate her debts, and many people think that her attempts at ruling are failures, even now.

Early in 1830 Greece was declared independent, after some years of fighting against Turkish rule. The Greeks tried to govern themselves by means of a national assembly, but failed in a very short time. Then they decided to become a monarchy, and asked Otho, the second son of Louis I., of Bavaria, to be their king. The powers stepped in, reorganized the state of affairs, guaranteed the loan of 2,500,000 pounds, and, generally speaking, "set up" the country.

Greece's troubles were, however, by no means, at an end. King Otho proved a despot, and in 1854 France and England were forced to stop him and his subjects from going to war with Russia against their old enemy, Turkey. Eight years later Otho was deposed. The Greeks called in Prince George, the son of the king of Denmark, to rule them. Since then their affairs have slowly improved, though the war that broke out with Turkey in 1897 showed how badly organized the whole country was.

If Greece had set a bad example to other nations, Egypt followed, and set a worse. In 1875 the public debt had reached the astounding total of $91,000,000, and before the dawn of another year the country was bankrupt. So hopelessly involved were Egyptian finances that England and France took charge, and proceeded to make things ship-shape.

ODD MASONIC LODGE ROOM.

The only natural lodge room in the world is on the summit of Owl's Head mountain at Lake Memphremagog, Canada, says the Masonic Bulletin. Here, in a great ravine, at an elevation of 2,480 feet above the level of the lake, situated due east and west and surrounded by massive rocks that afford perfect seclusion, is a lodge that seems as if hewn by the hand of nature for the use to which it is put.

The rocks offer suitable watch towers from which sentinels can readily observe the approach of eavesdroppers should any by rare chance pass that way.

In such a spot as this, with only the blue dome of heaven overhead and the impenetrable walls on both sides Masons of today imitate the habit of their ancient brethren, who, tradition says, met in just such places to perform the ceremonies of the craft.

The spot is not easy of access. The ascent is difficult and at all times hazardous, though at dangerous points, whenever a meeting of the brethren occurs, ropes are stretched for the climbers.

This unusual lodge room has been in use for half a century. Golden Rule Lodge No. 5, of Stanstead, Que., was in 1857 granted a dispensation to open and hold a lodge once in every year on this mountain top the first meeting being held July 24, 1857.

The original dispensation for this purpose was granted by William M. Wilson, the first Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Canada, and in 1869 the dispensation was indorsed and confirmed by John H. Graham, the first Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Quebec. It is the only lodge in existence, it is said, that has a warrant for holding regular meetings on a mountain top.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

POPULATION OF THE UNITED STATES AND ALL POSSESSIONS ACCORDING TO THIRTEENTH CENSUS IS ABOUT 101,100,000

PRICE PAID FOR HUMAN LIFE IS $536

Half Families Left Fatherless By Industrial Accidents Get Nothing.

8,583 Accidents in One Year, of Which 252 Were Fatal.

Interesting Report Is Compiled By the State Labor Bureau.

That the average price paid for a human life lost in the industries of Minnesota is $536, is the conclusion reached by Don D. Lescohier, special statistician for the state bureau of labor, who has been one of Labor Commissioner W. E. McEwen's ablest aides since he came to the department, early in Mr. McEwen's administration. He has compiled an extremely interesting and exhaustive report on industrial accidents and employers' liability.

Eight thousand five hundred and eighty-three accidents, 252 of which were fatal, were reported to the bureau of labor by Minnesota employers during the year Aug. 1, 1909, to July 31, 1910. Railroad accidents, except those occurring in railroad shops, were not required by law to be reported to the bureau of labor, but an examination of the Minnesota railroad commission's statistics for past years indicates that sixty fatal accidents and 3,400 non-fatal ones can be added to the bureau of labor figures to cover accidents in railroad transportation, maintenance of way and construction.

The fatal accidents were distributed among the industries of the state as follows: Mining, 83; railroads, 64; lumber and woodworking, 55; general contracting, 37; public utilities, 19; agriculture, 12; flour and feed, 9; metal manufacturers, 7; livery and draying, 7; chemical industries, 4; paper manufacturing, 3; mercantile, 4; printing, 2; meat packing, 1; shoe manufacturing, 1; paper bags, 1; janitor, 1; street sweeper, 1; watchman, 1 Total, 310.

HARLAN HOLDS AN ANNIVERSARY

Acting Chief Justice Has Been on Bench Thirty-Three Years.

Washington, Dec. 10.—John Marshall Harlan, presiding justice of the supreme court of the United States, today is doing what only three other men have done in the history of the court. He is celebrating the close of thirty-three years of service on that bench.

On Dec. 10, 1877, Justice Harlan became a member of the supreme court. He was then 44 years of age. Not only have all the men who were on the bench during the first years of his service passed away, but Justice Harlan's service is now twice as long as that of any other member of the present court. Of the sixty-two men who have sat on this bench, Justice Harlan has been an associate of twenty-six.

The three members of the court whose terms exceeded that of Justice Harlan were Chief Justice John Marshall, Justice Stephen J. Field and Justice Joseph Storey. Both Marshall and Field served more than thirty-four years.

Besides disposing of the business incumbent upon him as senior associate justice during the vacancy in the chief justiceship, Justice Harlan has written six of the thirty-three opinions announced by the court this term.

PRINCESS SUING FOR $8,000,000

Leopold's Daughter Claims Money From Late King's Estate.

Brussels, Dec. 10.—Attorneys for Princess Louise of Belgium have entered a formal suit for the recovery of $8,000,000 which had belonged to her father, the late King Leopold, and is now held by the Nieder Fullbach foundation. The Belgian government also claims the money on the ground that it came from the Belgian Congo and belongs to the state.

The princess also has summoned Leopold's valet and other members of his entourage to give an accounting of the contents of three trunks which were mysteriously turned over at Laeken palace to Baroness Vaughan, the morganatic wife of Leopold, who has since married Emanuel Durieux, a Frenchman. Louise alleges that the trunks were filled with securities and other valuables.

New York, Dec. 10.—William Lewis, formerly a waiter, is supposed to have murdered a man whose body was found in a trunk in New York. It is believed that the body of a man of that name exhumed in Rhode Island has been identified as that of William Lewis, the murder suspect.

GRANTS WRIT TO CHARLTON

Federal Judge Issues Habeas Corpus in Murder Case.

Knox Grants Italy's Demand for American's Extradition.

Trenton, N. J., Dec. 10.—Judge Rellstab in the United States circuit court today granted a writ of habeas corpus in the case of Porter Charlton, who is accused of having killed his wife, Mary Scott Castle Charlton in Italy. The court also granted a writ of certiorari for the bringing of the case before him on Dec. 19.

Extradition is Granted.

Washington, Dec. 10. — Secretary Knox late yesterday granted the request of Italy for the surrender of Porter Charlton, charged with the murder of his wife at Lake Como.

The secretary holds that the fact that Italy refuses to surrender her citizens to the United States for trial does not relieve this country of the obligation of the extradition treaty to surrender to Italy fugitives from justice from that country.

The question of the insanity of Charlton, it is suggested, is one for the courts and not for the department to determine.

Had Secretary Knox refrained from acting on this case for six days, Porter Charlton would have been a free man, as the statutes required final action in the case within sixty days from the date of his commitment.

A remark by the secretary carries the intimation that Charlton's attorney may have further recourse to the courts if they are disposed to raise the question of insanity.

Chicago, Dec. 10.—Charges that secrets of the federal grand jury room were being "tipped off" to interested parties, made before Judge Kenesaw M. OLD MINT IS TO BE ABANDONED

Is Monument to First Gold Field in the United States.

Washington, Dec. 10.—A monument to the first gold producing district in the United States will be wiped away if congress approves Secretary MacVeagh's plan to abandon the old assay office at Charlotte, N. C.

When the first gold was discovered in the United States in 1830, a branch mint was located at Charlotte, "in the heart of the treasure district." When the strikes of '49 came on and the great gold fields of the West developed, the Charlotte mint declined and finally reached the class of an assay office, which it still is, doing little or no business.

It is the intention of the treasury department, if congress authorizes, also to abandon the assay office at St. Louis, which the mint bureau considers no longer necessary. Other assay offices and even some of the mints may fall under the ax of economy if present plans become laws.

MOSLEMS AND HINDUS FIGHT

Fanatic Riots in Calcutta Are Broken Up By the Soldiers.

Calcutta, Dec. 10.—Serious fighting between rival religious factions which began last night was continued this morning. Several of the combatants were killed and many were injured. Troops were finally called out and a Maxim gun trained on the fighters, but the fanatics were not dismayed and were only routed after several charges by the soldiers.

The trouble began when the Hindus protested against the approaching Mohammedan festival, at which it is customary to sacrifice cows, animals sacred to the Hindu mind.

KIDNAPED GIRL IS RETURNED HOME

Father Finds Her Wrapped Up Like Bundle in Yard.

Redbank, N. J., Dec. 10.—Four-year-old Mary Petillo is at her home today after an extraordinary absence since Oct. 20 last. The child disappeared on that date. It was believed she was kidnaped.

Frank Petillo, the child's father, was entering the yard of his home early last night when he saw his daughter behind a fence. She was wrapped up like a bundle of clothes and appeared to be dead. She was found to be alive.

Petillo has received demands for money from the Black Hands.

WITHSTANDS 4,000 VOLTS

Lineman Gets Terrific Electric Shock But Recovers Almost Instantly.

Refuses to Allow Friends to Assist Him to Ground.

"Let the rope go; I can climb down," William Morgan, a lineman, called to his fellow workmen when he "came to" after a current of 4,000 volts had "jumped" through his body while he was working on a pole at First alley and Sixth avenue west about 11 o'clock this morning.

When Morgan "came to" he discovered that a rope had been tied around his body and he was about to be lowered from the pole. He refused to be treated as an inanimate body and his protests were successful. The rope was slackened and, with a fellow workman guarding him, Morgan climbed down from the pole, removed his equipment and started to walk home just as an ambulance pulled up.

Morgan, who was a member of a crew in the employ of the Duluth-Edison Electric company, had a decidedly narrow escape. He was up on the pole stringing wires when he caught a primary. There was a blinding flash and the other members of the crew saw Morgan's limp body hanging to a cross-tree. They hurried to his assistance, a rope was swung on the pole and they were preparing to lower him when he recovered. The current had "jumped" through him and, although weak, he was uninjured except for light burns on the hands and one on the head.

The shock of the heavy current had thrown Morgan's hands from the wire and the contact was only momentary, to which his escape is due.

HOLDUP ON CAR IN MINNEAPOLIS

Conductor Is Robbed of Eight Dollars and Bandit Escapes.

Minneapolis, Minn., Dec. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—Thrusting a revolver in the face of Frank Engstrom, a conductor on an Eighth and Emerson avenue street car, at 4:30 this morning, a bandit relieved the knight of the indicator of $8 in cash, hopped off the back platform and disappeared in the darkness. The holdup occurred at Thirty-sixth avenue north and Fremont street.

The bandit wore a leather hunting cap and the police suspect that he may have been the same man who killed Conductor Alexander at the end of the Grand avenue car line in St. Paul some time ago. This highwayman wore a cap and duck suit, which corresponded with the description given of Alexander's murderer.

The explosion was caused by poisonous gas.

The Bellevue mine is a heavy producer and employs Italians and Slavs. The accident is the worst that has happened since the explosion in Fernie mines seven years ago. Doctors and rescue parties worked all night.

BISHOP ROBERT McINTYRE SPEAKER AT REDEDICATION

REV. ROBERT H. MURRAY.

BISHOP ROBERT McINTYRE.

Bishop Robert McIntyre of St. Paul may be the principal speaker at the rededication of the newly remodeled Grace Methodist Episcopal church at Twenty-second avenue west and Third street, Sunday, Dec. 18.

Bishop Hamilton of Boston was asked to attend the affair, but as yet, the official board of the church has received no reply from him, and it is not probable that he will comply with the request.

Among the other speakers at the rededication will be Dr. Burns, district superintendent of the Minneapolis district of the M. E. churches and several of the local clergy. The program for the affair has not been completed.

The church has been remodeled at a cost of about $12,000. A gallery has been added, the floors covered with a heavy cork carpet, new pews installed, pulpit and platform rearranged, a modern heating plant put in, and a pastor's study and choir room provided. In the basement the social features have not been neglected. The ladies have a parlor and kitchen there and several new class rooms for the Sunday school have been included in the plans of the remodeled structure.

Last evening a reception was tendered by the congregation in honor of the new pastor, Rev. John H. Murray, until recently of Silver City, N. Mex., and Mrs. Murray. Several of the local clergy were present and spoke and a musical program was given.

Tomorrow, Rev. Mr. Murray will preach at both services at 10:30 o'clock in the morning, and at 7:30 p. m. "The Program of Christ" is the morning theme and in the evening he will speak on "The Two Brothers."

BROTHERHOOD ORGANIZED.

A Brotherhood has been organized among the men of the Second Presbyterian church, 1515 West Superior street. A meeting was held this week at the home of the pastor, Rev. W. B. O'Neill of 2019 West Third street and the Brotherhood was formed with eight charter members. It has since doubled in membership.

Meetings will be held twice a month, the first Tuesday and the third Thursday of every month, at the homes of the various members. The following are the officers: E. Hoyt, president; E. T. McManus, secretray, and Fred Jones, treasurer.

The young people of the Second Presbyterian church last evening held a rally at the church parlors. Rev. W. B. O'Neill, the pastor gave an address, Miss Dorris Mallet, recited, and Miss Jean Wanless was heard in a vocal solo. The church choir and male quartet also sang. Refreshments were served.

Weather—Partly cloudy and colder tonight with probably zero temperature by morning; Sunday fair and cold; brisk to high northerly winds.

COMMISSION PLAN FAVORED

Mayor and Alderman Wharton Speak Before West End Club.

Mayor M. B. Cullum told an audience of West end citizens last evening of the workings of the commission plan of municipal government and explained his views on this subject at some length. The meeting was held at Sloan's hall, under the auspices of the West End Commercial club.

The mayor stated that he believed that the affairs of the city could be better conducted under the commission form of government than under the present system and he answered all questions put to him in regard to the new plan.

Alderman Wharton of the First ward, who also favors a change to the commission form spoke in support of the new plan. He brought out the fact that partisanship in municipal affairs would be eliminated under the new system, and also remarked that the centralization of responsibility for city affairs was another commendable feature.

Alderman Bernard of the Seventh ward also spoke in favor of the new system. He said that he thought it would be a good thing for Duluth, if once it were inaugurated. Capt. D. E. Stevens also took a part in the discussion of the evening. He pointed out several of the advantages to be gained by making a change and said that he believes that a more economical administration would result from the new plan.

S. W. Hill, president of the West End Commercial club, was chairman of the meeting.

STRICKEN ON THE STREET

West End Man Dies Following Sudden Attack of Paralysis.

Death was due to a paralytic stroke and is not attributed to the fall which he received.

He is survived by a wife, four sons, Oscar, Norman, Martin and George, all of Duluth, and one daughter, Mrs. Archie Gagne, also of the same address. The funeral will be held Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the residence with interment at Park Hill cemetery. Rev. Edward Erickson, pastor of the First Norwegian Danish M. Happy Hour Bill.

The bill at the Happy Hour this week will be an exceptionally strong one. For four days only the feature will be "Hayco, the Jail Breaker." This is the man who goes by the name of Kruger and who has a signal code that will revolutionize the signal service now in use. Ask any officer what they witnessed at the police station. Hayco was handcuffed and tied, but nothing would hold him. The handcuffs are not made that will hold him. See him at the Happy Hour, also Clark and Tanner, the funny people, and Billy Floyd, the English comedian. Duluth's sweetest singer will sing "By the Moonlight." Three thousand feet of the latest film.

JAMES K. HACKETT IN A NEW PLAY

James K. Hackett appeared before a small, but very friendly audience at the Lyceum theater last night in a satirical comedy, "The King," by George Brackett Seitz. Mr. Hackett and his capable company will repeat the performance tonight. A matinee was given this afternoon.

It is possible that ten years ago "The King" would have been an adequate vehicle for James K. Hackett. At the present period in Mr. Hackett's career he should have something more worthy of his serious consideration. His talents and his ability should be so devoted to the exposition of his art, that the fullness and the maturity of its development would not be collared, laced and hobbled by artificialty. Mr. Hackett should not permit any playwright to put him under a bushel basket, and yet "The King," is not without interest, as was evidenced by the genuine enthusiasm last evening.

Just why some really good actors think it necessary to preserve about them the athmosphere of their original successes is not clear. A few years ago we saw Mr. Hackett in "The Prisoner of Zenda." Since then it has appeared necessary for Mr. Hackett to don occasionally gilded trappings and polished boots to make us think he is an actor. We know that Mr. Hackett is an accomplished artist without having thrust upon us obtrusively the Hackett nose, the Hackett chin, the Hackett brow, the Hackett mouth, and (it can still be said) the Hackett hair. Not only are we permitted to see all of these distinguishing characteristics in single and grouped performances, but the whole picture must be framed by a uniform that would drive a provincial drum major to despair. This sort of concoction may have served Mr. Hackett when he was the idol of the chocolate eclair sorority, but he should have outgrown his swaddling clothes by now.

But there are those who would have Hackett appear only in heroic roles, remembering his "Prisoner of Zenda," and "The King" is evidently a compromise. He assumes the heroic role again, but under protest, as it were, clothing the king in a cloak of satire.

Mr. Seitz is not amateurish in his use of theatrical makeshifts. He utilizes every form of trick, every bit of chicanery, every device that playwrights know to create what are termed "situations." Mr. Seitz takes delight in turning the switch every now and then and shunting his audience off the main line of "satirical comedy" on to a side track where is happening some astonishing episode.

The king, Mr. Hackett, learns of a plot to blow him up as he passes through a street. He enters the house of the conspirators after the arch-anarch has been captured. There he finds Katherine Dardinilis, daughter of Sergius Oardinilis, the Baron Von Trump. This lady wants to see the king obliterated and she points a revolver at him while he throws what she thinks is a bomb into the street where the leading anarch, in kingly disguise, is passing. Nobody is hurt because the king substitutes a box of candy for the bomb. When the baron, Ludwig Eberhardt, an anarch, and Pasquali, an Italian fanatic, have the king at bay later he escapes by threatening to explode the bomb which he still carries in his coat although the anarchs have had him so thoroughly at their mercy that they could have searched him a dozen times.

The anarchs are not sure of the king's identity until it is time for everybody to go home. Ludwig tries to shoot the king through a keyhole although he had plenty of chances to take a pot shot at the king in the open. The king overcomes Pasquali and the baron, whose wife was stolen by the king's father, peeving the baron considerably, by his wit although for the benefit of the obtuse two or three revolvers are being flashed almost continually.

The girl, of course falls in love with the king, and she tells him about it. Katherine, and by Katherine is not meant Miss Beckley, did not show any qualities that would endear her to a man seeking a comrade in a woman his equal, intellectually; his superior, morally; his peer in refinement. Katherine was a silly little girl who should have been spanked and sent to bed. But then there is no telling with what sort of a woman a man will love.

So the king, after putting across that shop worn remark, "This is so sudden," accepted Katherine's love and they went out into the night, in the pale blue moonlight which one could see streaming through the window. A little chills-and-fever music, professor. Thank you.

Mr. Hackett was most capably supported. Arthur Hoopes was a designing anarchist of courage and intense purpose. Charles C. Brandt was convincing as the baron who sought revenge for an old wrong. Robert Lawler handled the part of Pasquali intelligently and cleverly. Miss Beatrice Beckley was adequate as Katherine Dardinilis.

SUPERIOR

BOND ISSUE IS TURNED DOWN

Superior voters decisively declared against bonding the city for $90,000 for the construction of a steel bridge over the Nemadji river at the special election held yesterday. The vote was 320 for and 1,049 against.

The vote was light, less than half of the voting population of the city turning out. In the Tenth ward, the part of the city to be benefited most by the passage of the measure, the vote was 121 for and 29 against.

Those who fought the bond issue before election, seem to favor a fill because it would be less expensive and will answer the purpose as well. Others favor a wooden bridge.

SOCIAL WORKER TELLS OF PLANS FOR YEAR.

Miss Florence Two, newly appointed social worker for Superior, arrived yesterday from Madison and last evening was present at the meeting of the executive committee of the local anti-tuberculosis society. She outlined to the committee the plan of her work in Superior.

LIFE IS WHAT YOU MAKE IT

HOW TO SUCCEED

Of the myriads of men who flit across the stage of life, who are the successful ones? Who raise high the standard of attainments and achieve a marked success? Such men stand out in bold relief like the majestic oak on the hill top, or some bright particular star, suddenly emerging from the horizon, full-orbed and radiant, increasing in size and brilliancy, sending its beams of light to the remotest regions.

Success is not the result of accident, luck, unusual mental endowment, nor aid of friends, but rather the legitimate and necessary sequence of industry, perseverance, grit, energy, clearness of perception and strength of will, backed by an abundance of good health.

Health is often the pivot which decides whether the young man of today will be classed as a success or a failure. Vigorous manhood is a stepping stone to success in life. The man who has preserved the vitality given him by nature, or, having lost it, has regained it by securing proper treatment in time is enabled to shove aside the barriers which impede his progress, both commercially and socially.

The specialists of the Progressive Medical Institute treat men, and cure them promptly, safely and thoroughly by the latest and best methods, and at the lowest cost for skillful services and successful treatment. Write, if you cannot call. Office hours, 8 a. m. to 8 p. m., Sundays, 10 to 1 only.

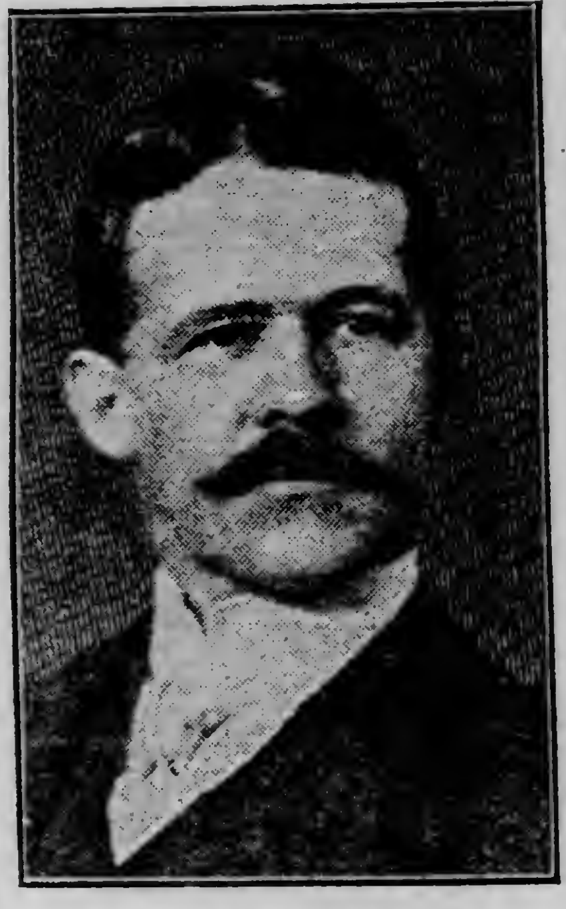
Leaves Morgan & Co. and Will Work on Industrial Plans.

Profit-Sharing and Other Principles to Take His Attention.

New York, Dec. 10.—George W. Perkins announces his retirement from the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co., to devote his time to extending the principles of profit-sharing and other benefit plans for solving the conflict between capital and labor. The announcement follows:

"On Jan. 1, I will have been with the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co., ten years and engaged in business activities over thirty years. I am withdrawing to devote my time to corporation work and work of a public nature in which I am deeply interested.

"In continuing my relations with the industrial and other business organizations with which I am connected, I hope to find further opportunity for extending the principles of profit-sharing and other benefit plans which, experience has shown, offer a practical solution of some of the difficulties existing between capital and labor.



GEORGE W. PERKINS.

Matters of Consequence.

"At Columbia university two years ago and at Harvard university last spring, I spoke of the importance of solving the new problems at present facing the country, and which have followed the organization of the great co-operative combination of capital and it is my hope that the experience I have had may enable me to contribute something toward the adjustment of these matters, which seem to me to be of the largest consequence to the country."

Mr. Perkins was the originator of the profit-sharing plan of the United States Steel corporation and International Harvester company and desires to adapt those methods to other organizations.

Before he entered J. P. Morgan & Co., Mr. Perkins was vice president and general manager of the New York Life Insurance company

nesota sustained a fearful loss of labor power by industrial accidents. Three hundred and ten men killed, at least nineteen totally disabled, hundreds maimed and crippled, and hunreds more out of service for months at a time—and this repeated year after year—means a financial loss that no state can afford. Each year that these conditions continue the number of the widowed and orphaned, and the army of the crippled increases. One can hardly be an hour upon the street in any industrial center without seeing the empty sleeve or the crutch, the blind eye or the crippled hand, mute witnesses—five times out of ten—of dangerous industrial processes.

All but fifty of the injured were males; 45 per cent were married; 83.78 per cent between 17 and 40 years of age; 60.38 per cent Americans or North Europeans. At least as large a proportion as of the state's entire body of wage earners were paid above $2.50 a day.

Inexperience, callousness to danger, fatigue and speeding up, and youth are enumerated as causes of accidents. To inexperience are charged 31 per cent; to callousness nearly 13 per cent; to youth more than 17 per cent, and it is noted that in the middle of the working period, when men have lost the freshness gained from sleep, the largest number of accidents happened.

Hazards of Industry.

The employers were required by the accident report law to express their opinion upon whether anyone's fault caused the accident, and if so whose, or whether it was due to the hazard of the industry.

The following table shows that they attributed the accidents solely to the hazard of the industry in 61 per cent of the cases and partly to the hazard of the industry in over 10 per cent more.

	Cases.	Per cent.
Hazard of the industry....	2,488	61.00
Hazard and contributory negligence	429	10.50
Contributory negligence...	845	20.70
Pure negligence of injured.	149	3.60
Negligence of injured and of fellow workmen......	42	1.00
Negligence of injured and fellow servant	127	3.10
Negligence of injured employer	4	.10

The report makes a close analysis of the various forms of negligence that contribute to the causes of accidents and of what industrial hazards are, contributing the first analysis of these questions made on a state-wide basis in this country.

Ten chapters of the report are devoted to a close analysis of accidents and their causes in the various industries, the effort being made to show which accidents are preventable and how many of them. Suggestions for legislation are made in connection with the study of the individual industries.

The following facts about the mine accidents are illustrative:

Four thousand five hundred and seven mine accidents were reported during the year. Eighty-three were fatal, 7 total disablements and 17 serious permanent disablements (such as the loss of a leg, arm or eye). Two men had both legs broken, 32 one leg, 3 their skulls fractured, 16 arms fractured, 15 feet, hands, ankles, etc., fractured. One man lost 3 fingers, 9 were terribly cut, bruised and burned by blasts, 4 suffered internal injuries, and 10 others bad crushes or lacerations of their arms, feet, bodies or eyes. Approximately 1,500, or about one-third of the mine accidents, were fatal, serious or severe.

A Comparison.

A comparison of the fatal accidents for each 1,000 men employed in the Minnesota mines, with the same figures for other states and countries, showed that the Minnesota mines kill 4 men for every 1 killed in France or Belgium, more than 3 for 1 in Holland or the United Kingdom, more than 2 for 1 in Germany, Japan, Australia or the British Empire, and more than 1 killed in any other American mining field. But the fatal accident rate in Minnesota has nevertheless decreased considerably during the past five years, falling from 7.25 per 1,000 men in 1906 to 4.05 in 1910.

Inexperience at mine work, youth and inability to speak the English language, seem to be the most prominent personal elements in the causes of mine accidents in Minnesota. Every authority who has studied the Minnesota situation has emphasized this point. The demand for labor on the Minnesota iron ranges is so keen that large numbers of South Europeans and young men from various portions of this country who are inexperienced around mines go there seeking employment.

In the study of the physical causes of mine accidents the report makes analysis of the methods and processes of iron mining used in Minnesota, describing the "open-pit," "underground" and "milling" systems of mining in considerable detail.

In the study of mine accidents in Minnesota, the fatal and serious mine accidents reported during the last five years by the mine inspectors are tabulated and analyzed, and an effort was made to discover in each case both the natural and human elements in the cause of the accident. Much attention is paid to the subject of accident prevention.

Chapter 12 is a close analysis of the law of employers' liability. It first exposes the fundamental fallacies and injustice of the law and then the financial costs and social evils that result from its practical operation.

The last chapter, "Employers' Liability and the Workingman," is one of the most important in the report. It covers a thorough investigation made by special agents of the bureau of labor and a study of 122 employers' liability cases in the Minnesota supreme court.

To summarize, 50 per cent of the families received no compensation for the loss of their bread winner, 24.20 per cent $1,000 or less; 14.80 per cent $1,000 to $2,000; and 11 per cent $2,000 to $6,352. In other words, 50 per cent of all the families were left by the industry with nothing to depend on, 24 per cent with less than $1,000 and 14 per cent with less than $2,000. In only 11 per cent of the cases were the compensations worthy of serious consideration.

The total excess receipts of the twenty-seven families who obtained more from the industry than was sufficient to pay the funeral and medical expenses exceeded those expenses by $34,335.90. The average excess was $1,271.00. The total deficit of the families who received less than enough to pay the funeral expenses was $2,573.15, and the average $158. Subtracting the deficit in the seventeen cases from the excess in the twenty-seven cases, we find that the average excess of receipts over expenses in the fifty-four cases was $536.00.

Average Price of Lift.

Five hundred and thirty-six dollars and funeral expenses seems, therefore, (judging from these fifty-four cases) to be the average price paid for a human life by the industries of Minnesota—hardly one year's wages of an unskilled laborer.

Fortunately the families of the deceased workmen were not entirely dependent for future support upon the industries in which their bread winners were killed. Twenty-five of the families carried some form of insurance and four received aid from charity. (Many more will fall upon charity for support sooner or later).

In seven cases the insurance did not exceed $500. Such an insurance is of course, utterly inadequate for the needs of the situation. In ten cases it was $1,000, in four $1,100 to $1,500, and in four, $2,000 to $3,500. Only two families had more than $3,000 insurance.

But even insurances does not erase the dark spot. Only nine of the twenty-seven families who failed to obtain compensation from the industry carried insurance. Ten of the eighteen whose heirs received neither any compensation no any insurance were men with families. Twenty-six women and children were dependent upon them. These families were left to face the world without breadwinners and without means. And in only one case of the ten was the deceased in any way to blame for his untimely death.

The average compensation, above medical and legal expenses and wage losses, in the nine Minnesota cases in which decisions have been made in favor of workmen in two years was $123.22. Three of the men injured also received small sums from trade unions and fraternal societies. One of the men who received $2,500 by a suit was supported four and a half months by his married brother, pending the settlement of the case.

Six men lost a hand or its use. Two of these received nothing (except in one case medical expenses) and incurred medical and wage losses of $405 and $673. The compensations in the other four cases were $500, $850, $4,000 and $4,200; total, $9,550. The average net compensation was $1,110.75. The total receipts of the six workmen were $9,550, the total expenses $6,205, the average compensation, $557.50.

The report includes a very complete classified bibliography on industrial accidents, employers' liability and workmen's compensation that calls attention to all the principal publications on the subject in the English language.

GRAND JURY ROOM LEAKS

superintendent of the bureau of investigation of the department of justice.

The accusation was made by John F. Brown, counsel for Mrs. Aileen Christopher, a witness against the alleged paving brick trust. She was in court to show why she had refused to bring certain evidence and documents before the grand jury, as requested by the United States district attorney.

Afraid of Leak.

Her answer by her attorney was that she feared the evidence would be exposed to the persons interested, and Dewoody was the man she accused through her counsel.

Judge Landis questioned Mrs. Christopher. She testified that Mr. Dewoody came to her at Portage, Wis., to get certain information, and while there, that he told her of the secret information the grand jury had obtained which later resulted in the indictment of Former Cashier Fitzgerald of the federal sub-treasury on charges of the theft of $1,173,000.

Champ Clark Boom Started.

Washington, Dec. 10.—The first state delegation boom for Champ Clark of Missouri, the minority leader, for the speakership of the next congress, was launched today, when Kentucky Democrats formally endorsed him for the office. Friends of Mr. Clark say that his election to the speakership of the next house is assured.

DICKINSON KEEN OVER AEROPLANES

Secretary of War in His Report Says Army Needs Some.

Asks Congress for Money for the Year and Tells of Work.

Recommendations Are Included Regarding Legislation.

Washington, Dec. 10.—As might have been expected after his personal flights in aeroplanes in France, Secretary of War Dickinson comes out in his annual report with a strong indorsement of the flying machines and with a recommendation to congress for an appropriation to provide the signal corps with a reasonable number of the better type of machine for instruction purposes and field work.

The United States' aeronautical equipment at present consists of one small dirigible balloon, one Wright aeroplane, and three small captive balloons, and its trained personnel at present consists of one signal corps lieutenant and nine enlisted men. There is only one officer who is a licensed pilot for free balloons.

The secretary says that so far as guns alone are concerned, the sea coast defenses at all home ports are in a very satisfactory state, but much remains to be done in providing such auxiliaries as search lights and in developing the fire control system, which will require about $4,000,000 of expenditure.

For Canal Defenses.

Congress is asked to authorize an expenditure of $19,546,843 for the fortification of the termini of the Panama canal, including the construction of posts for the permanent garrison, and $7,000,000 of this sum should be made available immediately in order to complete the project within three years. The additional sum of $2,000,000 is also wanted immediately to be applied toward the creation of naval establishments in the canal zone as a necessary part of the defense of the canal.

Fewer Desertions Reported.

The secretary notes with gratification a reduction by 30.6 per cent in the number of desertions last year compared with the preceding year. Altogether there were 3,464 desertions or a percentage of 3.66 of the strength of the army, which was less than any fiscal year since 1899. The decrease was most marked in the engineers, field artillery and cavalry.

Death Rate Low.

The death rate in the army last year was the lowest that has ever occurred, the total number being 370, of which 228 were from disease and 142 from injuries, six of the latter being killed by hostile Moros in action or while on sentry duty. Tuberculosis claimed the greatest number of victims, numbering 43 and there were 51 deaths from gunshot wounds. There were 33 suicides and 15 homicides.

A remarkable fact is that no deaths occurred from sun stroke or snake bite among the troops in the tropics nor from cold among the troops in Alaska and along the northern frontier. Alaska, as in former years, had the best health record.

Wants More Officers.

The secretary urges the adoption of a provision of law, similar to that governing the navy, for the elimination of inefficient officers. There is pressing need for efficient officers to replace those detailed from their regiments on necessary staff and miscellaneous duty, and the secretary makes a strong plea for the passage of the pending bill providing for the addition of 612 officers of various grades Last June every officer on detached duty who could possibly be relieved was ordered to join his proper command but the net result was disappointing as few of these officers could be spared from the important details to which they have been assigned.

Lack of Ammunition.

The most serious feature of the present military situation and one that should be corrected immediately, in the opinion of Secretary Dickinson, is the shortage of field artillery material. The chief of ordnance already has called attention to the fact that much time is required to manufacture this material and it would be impossible to obtain enough to supply the army in time of war, unless provision were made accumulating the stock far in advance.

Touching the progress of the work of uncovering the wreck of the Maine in Havana harbor, the secretary says the appropriation of $300,000 already made will accomplish all of the preliminary work contemplated at present, but the actual removal of the wreck and the restoration of the harbor to its original condition will require a further appropriation.

For Volunteer Army.

The secretary says that a comprehensive act providing for the organization of a volunteer army only after congress has made a declaration of war would be of inestimable value if the country ever again is confronted with a foreign war. Such legislation would permit of the preparation in time of peace of all the necessary plans for the organization, equipment and supply of a volunteer army and the selection of places for mobilization, thus avoiding delays that might be almost fatal to defense.

Estimate for the Year.

The total estimates for military purposes for the next year aggregates $139,674,278, which is $3,257,904 less than the appropriations for the current fiscal year.

The report conculdes with a strong recommendation based upon personal observation and the reports of the chiefs of all the bureaus in the war department, that some provision be made for the retirement on annuities of employes who have become superannuated in the service, thus following the practice which many railroads and other large business enterprises have found it advisable to adopt.

WILL INTERVIEW THE LAWMAKERS

Trades Assembly Committee Will Call on Members of State Legislature.

At the meeting of the Duluth Trades and Labor assembly held last night at the Kalamazoo hall, a committee was appointed whose duty it will be to find out the sentiment of the representatives and senators from this district in regard to bills which favor union labor.

A committee composed of Richard Jones, S. S. McDonald and James Walsh was appointed. This committee will call on the representatives and interview them on the subject.

The committee will also inform them that the local assembly is heartily in favor of an initiative, referendum and a recall bill.

The city council was commended for the steps taken to secure legislation for an act which will enable the city to bond itself for the building of an electric plant. Several members of the assembly stated that the present price of light is too high.

An active campaign will soon be begun to increase the attendance at future meetings. Assistance to create more union labor sentiment in Duluth among working people, will be asked of the state federation. The Duluth assembly will ask that a live organizer be sent to this city at once.

Before adjourning the assembly voted to give its support to the sale of the Christmas seals which are for the aid of the fight against tuberculosis.

BANKERS WILL TALK CLEARING HOUSE METHODS.

New York, Dec. 10.—The clearing house section of the American Bankers' association has called a meeting of transit managers of banks to be held in Chicago on Dec. 1. Its object is the discussion of the question of symbols to be used on checks and drafts in line with a system devised by the clearing house section some two years ago, whereby cities are designated by letters and clearing house banks by their clearing house numbers. This is a labor saving device for transit departments. The state of Texas and the following cities will be represented: New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Boston, Pittsburg, St. Louis, New Orleans, Minneapolis, St. Paul, Cleveland and Denver.

INDUSTRIAL WORKERS MOBBED IN FRESNO.

Fresno, Cal., Dec. 10.—A mob last night burned the headquarters of the Industrial Workers of the World, severely beat members of the organization in the streets and surrounded the county jail, while other members were held.

The rioting was the culmination of a crusade against the Industrial Workers. Members of the organization began a "free speech" campaign several weeks ago. Many were arrested for making speeches in the street without police permits, but later it was discovered that there was no provision in the city ordinance prohibiting speech-making in the streets.

Goes Back to Wet Side.

Lynchburg, Va., Dec. 10.—Lynchburg has voted for the return of saloons which were ousted in March, 1908. The "wet" majority was 85 in a total vote of 2,653.

CLOQUET Y. M. C. A. BOYS' CAMPAIGN

Saturday Last Day and It Is Expected Membership Will Reach 100.

Cloquet, Minn., Dec. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—This is the last day of the campaign for new members in the boys' department of the Y. M. C. A. Two months ago the campaign for membership began, and at that time the number of members was in the fifties. Last night the clock in the boys' reading room, the hands of which are moved every time a member is secured, registered eighty-six. By tonight it is expected to register 100. E. W. Peck, state secretary of the Y. M. C. A., is here today, and will remain over Sunday in the special interest of this department. He spoke to the boys today and will talk to them again tomorrow.

The first meeting of the Gophers took place Thursday night. Harry Costigan was elected president. Open house for the box factory and paper mill boys was a big success, and the rooms at the Y. M. C. A. echoed with the merriest crowd that has been within their doors for a long time.

Since the completion of the big addition to the Y. M. C. A. building, which is alloted entirely to boys, enthusiasm among the youngsters has grown. The department is way ahead of many of the larger cities. There is an assembly hall, a reading room, a manual training room, superintendent's quarters, bath rooms, lockers for the boys, the use of the main gymnasium, and a gallery overlooking the same, pool tables, bowling and all the games that boys play. Mr. Gross, the manager, confidently expects his 100 boys tonight.

Virginia, Minn., Dec. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—The jury in the case of L. Winer against Alex Hareja, in which the former sued for the recovery of a cow alleged to be owned by him, returned a verdict in favor of the defendant. Both parties to the action reside in Eveleth.

After hearing all the testimony in the case of Abbie A. Shea against W. P. At the close of this case court adjourned to meet at Hibbing next Monday morning, when a number of criminal and civil cases will be tried. The court has been in session here since the 25th day of October.

TEACHERS TALK OF THEIR WORK

Educators of Gilbert District Hold Regular Monthly Meet.

Gilbert, Minn., Dec. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—The last regular monthly meeting of the teachers of this district was well attended and profitable. The teachers responded to roll call with educational maxims and events of recent occurrence upon matters of educational interest. These were well selected and well rendered.

Miss Anna Anderson's pupils gave an interesting exercie in reading that was very creditable to the teacher, the pupils and to the supervisor of primary work. So excellent was the work that many assumed that the class had read the lesson before.

Principal C. E. Bell of McKinley-Elba school, outlined a plan for helping students who did not do their work successfully each month. He suggested that the pupil that does the best work during the month, be appointed for the week or month to coach the others. Give plenty of time for review work. Put drills on the board and drill until thoroughly mastered. Give easy lessons. Use drills, cards, etc., in history to fix epochs and dates.

Superintendent's Suggestion.

Suggestions were offered by Supt. Newberry for better methods of solving difficult questions of discipline. Some explanations were offered concerning the system of phonics and the use of diacritical marks above the third grade. Diacritical marks should be studied and used in connection with the dictionary from the fourth grade up to and throughout the high school.

The superintendent also recommended that pupils be permitted to finish their recitation before being corrected, and that the children be encouraged to talk freely in reciting. More freehand sketching with pencil and charcoal was urged, and that less color work and copying be given in the drawing outlines. In the work in music, it was urged that children be taught to love music and express through it, what there was of thought and feeling in the verse and notes. The rendition of America and other familiar songs was criticised on account of the lack of appreciation of what the words and music really intended to call forth. Suggestions were offered concerning the teachers' duty in the direction of songs used in schools and in their holiday programs.

After the close of the general session, the primary teachers met with Miss Ny, primary supervisor, and outlines of the work for the ensuing month were given out and explained and illustrated. Teachers were urged to read carefully their instructions as to the work outlined and materials to be used. Semi-annual examinations were announced for February. The schools will close on Dec. 16 for a two weeks' recess, convening again on Jan. 2, for the winter term.

H. W. RICHARDSON,
Local Forecaster.

Warmer weather and a light snow last night were a relief after the intense cold of the early part of the week. Today is one of those gray days with a tendency toward softness. Tonight will be colder and tomorrow fair and cold, the weather man predicts.

A cold snap was breaking up a year ago today.

The sun rose this morning at 7:43 and it will set at 4:19 this evening, giving eight hours and thirty-six minutes of sunlight.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"A slight disturbance that has moved from Saskatchewan to Western Ontario has caused light snow in the Upper Mississippi valley and Western Lake region and snow or rain over the Lower Ohio valley, during the last twenty-four hours, besides much warmer weather over the Western Lake region, Lower Missouri and Mississippi valleys. Another depression off the Pacific coast has caused rain over Northern California, Nevada and Idaho. Areas of high barometric pressure overlie the upper St. Lawrence valley and Atlantic coast and Montana and Saskatchewan, the one in the Northwest being attended by decidedly colder weather. This drop in temperature includes British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan, Idaho, Montana, the Western Dakotas, Wyoming and Colorado and will doubtless reach the Head of the Lakes during tonight. Zero temperatures prevail in Saskatchewan."

General Forecasts.

Chicago, Dec. 10.—Forecasts for twenty-four hours ending at 7 p. m. Sunday:

Upper Michigan—Snow tonight and Sunday; colder Sunday and in west and central portions tonight.

C. E. KELLY FOUND LOTS OF VICTIMS

Suspect Under Arrest in Manitoba Alleged to Have Given Bad Checks.

Lakota, N. D., Dec. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—C. E. Kelly, under arrest at Brandon, Man., who will be extradited, is alleged to have made about $1,000 in Lakota and Michigan City. Kelly proposes to put up a stiff fight against extradition.

For about a year Kelly was a resident of Doyon, Ramsey county, making frequent visits to Lakota and Michigan City, having formerly resided in both of these places while engaged in the restaurant business. On these trips he made purchases of a larger or lesser amount, tendering checks in payment, and these checks were always accepted by the banks, Kelly's account being in good standing.

About ten days ago when Kelly decided to leave North Dakota, he withdrew his deposit in the Doyon bank and then came on to Lakota. In this city he made some purchases, while in Michigan City he also made some extensive purchases, tendering checks. The fact that these checks had always been good in the past, resulted in no query being raised until three or four days later when they were returned, marked "no account."

In Michigan City a jeweler was worked for a $350 diamond, while other merchants in both cities also fell for the game.

When arrested at Brandon about $1,000 in American bills were found on Kelly's person. He denies being the man wanted, but from all information received here there appears very little question that the Canadian suspect and C. E. Kelly of Doyon are the same.

INDIAN BILL PAST HOUSE

Charges of Irregularity Made By Burke During Its Consideration.

River and Harbor Bill Also Reported By the Committee.

Washington, Dec. 10.—The house of representatives has passed the Indian appropriation bill. It carries a total of $8,277,985, being $97,000 more than the bill carried when it came from the committee. The rivers and harbors bill was introduced.

Charges of irregularity in connection with the allotment of certain Indian lands in Oklahoma were made in connection with the discussion and passage of the Indian bill.

Chairman Burke of the Indian affairs committee said that misrepresentations to the committee at the last session by certain members of the house had led to the passage of an act for the enrollment on the Kiowa tribe of Indians and the allotment of 100 acres of land to James F. Rowell, when he was not entitled to either.

Is Connecticut Yankee.

Rowell, a white man, from Connecticut, who had married an Indian woman, it developed, had been allotted land near the town of Lawton, Okla., which a United States inspector for the interior department declared to be worth from $75,000 to $100,000. The committee had been informed, Mr. Burke said, that the land which Rowell was to receive was no more valuable than that usually given to members of the tribe in which he sought enrollment. It was finally decided to let the question of his right to citizenship in the Indian tribe go to the courts, where the matter is now pending, to determine Rowell's right to an allotment. Representative Cooper of Wisconsin dubbed Rowell a "Connecticut Yankee who had gone West and as expeditiously as possible acquired an Indian wife and family of four children" with the right to an allotment for each member of the family.

Rivers and Harbors Bill.

A total of $21,894,861 in cash for 1912 appropriations and $9,154,363 for contracts authorized for the years subsequent to 1912 is carried in the rivers and harbors bill as reported to the house by the committee.

It is expected that the sundry civil bill will carry several millions additional for similar purposes, and that when the bill reaches the senate one of the amendments will provide for a survey of the harbor at Montauk Point, L. I., the plan for which was placed before the committee, as it states, too late for insertion in the bill. Montauk Point is the location of an old project for a sweeping change to meet the congestion of docking at New York, the idea being to make it a port for European liners and a big railroad terminal.

Some Larger Items.

Some of the larger items in the bill as reported are:

Locks and dams on the Ohio river, $2,000,000 cash and $3,000,000 in contracts authorized for subsequent years, and $5,500,000 cash for the Mississippi river. The Mississippi appropriation is divided to give $3,000,000 to the head of the passes to the mouth of the Ohio, $1,000,000 between the Ohio and Missouri rivers, $1,250,000 between the Missouri river and St. Paul and $250,000 thence to Minneapolis. Detroit river $375,000 cash.

Chinese Vermilion Makers Hold Secret of Ages.

The manufacture of vermilion, which is one of the foremost industries of Hongkong and entirely in the hands of the Chinese, is very ancient. They made artificial cinnabar long before Europe was a civilized country and some of the granite stones between which the pulverized ore is ground are almost prehistoric. The secret of good health is in keeping the body built up with a good malt tonic, such as Golden Grain Belt beer. It revitalizes the blood and rebuilds the muscles and nerve tissues. MANUEL OF PORTUGAL IS SAID TO BE BROKE.

Rome, Dec. 10.—The Tribuna prints an interview with a Portuguese personage whose name is not mentioned, but who is said to be a prominent royalist, concerning Manuel II, the exiled king of Portugal.

Manuel, he says, is poverty-stricken and unable to choose a place of residence. Owing to lack of money the dethroned king has been compelled to accept the hospitality of the duke of Orleans at Wood Norton, Eversham, England. For three months he has not had means wherewith to pay his servants.

Manuel, according to the interview, hopes that he will be resored to power, insisting that a republic in Portugal cannot exist. His friends predict that a congress of the powers will settle Portugal's affairs and say that otherwise the Royalists are ready to fight for the restoration of the monarchy.

REUNION OF THE "CHINS"

Mrs. Yuen Shee Gin and Daughters Arrive From China.

Chin Fong Ying Sees Father for the First Time.

Mrs. Yuen Shee Gin is the latest arrival in the Duluth Chinese colony.

And incidental to the arrival of Mrs. Yuen Shee Gin, or Mrs. Chin Ah Gin, for that is the name of her husband the proprietor of the Oregon restaurant, though the girls in the place call him by the curb name of "Mike," is the arrival of Chin Fong Ying, aged six months, and Chin Fong Kay, aged about eight years. These are the daughters of Mrs. Yuen Shee Gin.

Chin Fong Ying was born in China and when she reached Duluth yesterday her large and innocent slant eyes gazed with apprehension upon her father for the first time. Now Chin Ah Gin and little Chin Fong Ying are reported to be the best of friends.

Chin Ah Gin went to China more than a year ago and arranged to bring his family to Duluth. The present trip is the first time "the Missus" has been in this country. She met some of the elite of the San Francisco and Los Angeles Chinese colony, staying for a month or so in California before her departure for Duluth.

Chin Ah Gin stated today that his wife was going to like Duluth. "I like it," and with an Oriental finality in the words, he gave you the impression that that contributed one of the big factors in the why and wherefore of his wife liking our fair city.

In addition to the two girls, there is also Chin Yuen Tuck, who is a boy. He came to this country with his father and had not seen his mother for something like three long years. You can imagine the joyful reunion there was in the abode of Chin Ah Gin, or "Mike" to be very American.

Others of the Chinese joined in the celebration, which has been one of the affairs of local Chinatown. In fact, the arrival of "the Missus and the kids" has been quite the event of Chinese social circles, for it is reported that Chin Ah Gin moves in the best of social circles.

COPPERS ADVANCE; UNDERTONE FIRMER

Market Walks Forward and Pressure Is Absent--- No Features.

The copper market was stronger today and there was a lack of pressure which changed the complexion of the market completely. The London market was higher and the bull pool started to buying stocks on this side from the jump. The report that the New York Central will place an order for 165,000 tons of steel rails in the near future helped to better the market's undertone. Sentiment in the business world, according to Dunn's review, is cautious and conservative.

The net earnings of the United States Steel corporation may show less than $30,00,000 for the current quarter compared with $40,982,746 for the corresponding quarter of 1909. The report on unfilled tonnage today while not as bearish as some people expected was far from favorable.

Amalgamated sold at $64, $63.75 and $64.62½, Butte-Ballaklava at $7.50, $7.62½ to $7.50, Calumet Arizona at $48 to $50 to $49.75, Greene was $6.87½ bid, Giroux sold at $6.75, North Butte at $30 to $30.25, Superior & Pittsburg at $13.62½ to $14.

The Boston Fianancial News says: "The decrease of 8,872,845 pounds in the copper surplus during November makes a total decrease of 40,252,009 pounds in the total surplus in the past four months, thus reducing the stocks on hand from approximately 170,000,000 to 130,000,000 pounds representing a percentage decrease of 23.5 per cent. The surplus now stands at a figure lower than it was last April so that by averaging there has been a steady falling off in the surplus copper since the early spring. Perhaps the most interesting feature of today's statement is that the production of 119,353,000 pounds is smaller by over 7,000,000 pounds than it was for the previous month although November contained one day less than October. Yet it was the smaller production which was the main factor in reducing the surplus as domestic deliveries were 7,000,000 pounds smaller."

It is now figured that Giroux will begin the hoisting of ore through its big Alpha shaft in January. The tenth level of the Alpha (which caved a few years ago, closing that portion of its mine,) has been reopened and connected with the new big shaft, and it is showing well in copper. The twelfth level is now being connected. It is in about 530 feet and has about 350 feet to go to reach the ore bearing territory. It is understood that the Giroux company will observe vertical lines—through agreement—in mining its ores, thereby avoiding any future litigation over apex rights.

PAUPER HAS THE VICTORIA CROSS

George Smith Claims to Be Survivor of Balaklava Charge.

Oakland, Cal., Dec. 10.—George Smith, one of the immortal six hundred that rode in the charge of the Light Brigade at the battle of Balaklava is now, at the age of 84, seeking charity from the Oakland board of supervisors. He is asking for sufficient funds to carry him and his daughter to British soil in order that he may revive his claim to a pension from the British government.

Until recently Smith had earned his living as a wood cutter, but age and an old wound compelled him to abandon work.

For bravery in the Indian mutiny he was awarded the Victoria Cross and received a personal gift of twenty sovereigns from Queen Victoria.

After the Indian mutiny Smith came to America, later becoming a citizen.

JAPAN IS TRYING ALLEGED PLOTTERS

Twenty-Six Are Accused of Plotting Death of the Mikado.

Tokio, Dec. 10.—The public trial of Denjoro Kotoku and twenty-five associates, including his wife, was opened in the supreme court today. The special court which first examined the prisoners found all of them guilty of plotting against the life of the emperor, and recommended capital punishment. The alleged conspiracy was unconvered in September.

Kotoku, asserted to be the leader of the plotters, was formerly connected with a Tokio newspaper and at one time lived in America, where it is said he was associated with a political organization with headquarters in San Francisco. All of the accused are described by the police as anarchists.

Only Nominally Public.

Though the present proceedings are nominally public, those not directly concerned with the trial were admitted only during the formal questioning of the defendants. This over, the court room was cleared and the trial proceeded in camera.

It is expected that death sentences will be returned, though there is a possibility of commutation.

The present is the first trial in Japan in which the accusation has been plotting against the life of the emperor, and it is considered of great importance. The chief judge sitting is Joichiro Tsuru, and with him are Judges Shikata, Tsurumi, Suiyehiro, Okuro, Tsunematsu and Endo. Matsutaro Itakura, procurator of the court of Cassation, and Attorney General Matsumuro, with specially appointed assistants, are conducting the prosecution. For such of the defendants as could not secure counsel at their own expense, the authorities have appointed attorneys.

DANBURY HAT CASE ARGUED IN COAST

Anti-Boycott Injunction Is Sought By the Manufacturers.

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 10.—Dietrich, Loewe & Co. of Danbury, Conn., has appeared in court here to ask a permanent injunction to restrain the California Federation of Labor from boycotting the hat made by the company in Danbury. A preliminary injunction had been issued several months ago. The attorneys for the union argued that the federal courts had no jurisdiction in the matter, but the opposing counsel contended that the influence of the California Federation of Labor extended outside the state and made an interstate issue of the boycott question. Briefs are to be filed on the legal points.

The Loewe company obtained a permanent injunction in Connecticut against the Journeymen Hatters of Danbury and a judgment for $24,000 against the members of the union.

JAIL BREAKER RETURNED.

Man Is Alleged to Have Broken From Ashland Bastile.

Ashland, Wis., Dec. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—F. O. Olson, alias Charles Sparks, alleged to have led a jail break here June 3, who was arrested in Saskatoon, Can., has been brought back for trial. Olson was brought before Judge Garvin yesterday, waived the reading of the charge against him, that of aiding in a jail delivery, and his examination was set for Dec. 22. He asked for a delay until Jan. 10, claiming that he wants time to get his witnesses together. The judge informed him that if he can show any good reason on the 22nd, why the case should be further adjourned he will grant further delay. His bonds were fixed at $500.

The man who "gave Olson away" is believed to be A. T. Coper, Olson's own brother-in-law. He worked for Olson in Saskatoon, where he received $6 per day wages as a steam fitter. Coper resided at Saskatoon, and it was for this reason that Olson decided to locate there.

ANOTHER BOY RECOVERED.

New York Police Are Breaking Up Kidnaping Gang.

New York, Dec. 10. — Another kidnaped boy has been recovered in the person of Michael Rizzo, 6 years old, a playmate of Giuseppi Longo, 8 years old, who was recovered Thursday. Both boys lived in Brooklyn. They disappeared on the same day. Giuseppi was taken from a locked room in an East side Manhattan tenament. Michael was found wandering the Harlem streets tonight, half dazed, but tagged with his name and address.

Although Giuseppi is the first kidnapped child ever re-taken by the police, Michael makes the fourth returned to his parents within the week. The police believe that they have made a beginning a tup-rooting the blackmailers who have bled respectable Italians of the city for years.

Eleven prisoners are held in $10,000 bail each, charged with kidnaping Longo. The police believe that the same gang was at work in both cases.

SENATE FIGHT BEGUN.

Woodrow Wilson Opposes the Candidacy of James Smith, Jr.

Newark, N. J., Dec. 10.—Governor-elect Woodrow Wilson has taken up the cudgels against James Smith, Jr., who wishes to return to the senate as successor to John Kern, telling him he must abide by the selection of James E. Martine, the winner in the Democratic primary. Dr. Wilson says he will fight out the issue even if it causes a party breach.

Dr. Wilson says the vote at the primaries shows the people do not want Mr. Smith to represent them, and their vote should be condusive for every member of the legislature.

Mr. Smith, in a statement issued last night, says that Dr. Wilson's statement "is a gratuitous attack on one who has befriended him, but whose candidacy has not been announced, and it is an unwarranted attempt to coerce the legislature."

ONE REPUBLICAN SIGNS ARIZONA CONSTITUTION.

Phoenix, Ariz., Dec. 10.—The constitutional convention has adjourned after adopting a constitution designated by the majority members as the most progressive ever framed. It is said by the Republican minority to be the most Socialistic one ever compiled.

Only one Republican, John Langdon of Globe, signed the document. One Democrat, Ellingwood of Bisbee, declined to sign, explaining that he voted with the opposition because he believed the recall as applied to the judiciary would destroy the independence of state courts and invite the disapproval of President Taft. The final vote was 40 to 12.

Souvenir hunters looted the convention hall during the noon recess and the gavel of President Hunt was taken. He announced that he would not sign the payroll of employes of the convention until the gavel was returned.

The campaign for the ratification of the constitution by the people at the election on Feb. 9, will begin immediately.

DIES ON HER RETURN TRIP

Wife of Former West Duluthian Expires at Superior Railway Station.

Wish to Spend Her Last Days at Home Not Granted.

Cheated by the grim reaper of her oft-repeated desire of spending her last days with her family, instead of at a health resort, Mrs. Mary Day, 37 years old, whose husband, Michael H. Day, is a former West Duluth man, died yesterday at Superior, en route from Mt. Clemens, Mich., to Chisholm. The body was brought to the Fillatrault undertaking rooms at West Duluth last evening.

Death occurred soon after the train had reached the union station, Superior, and before an ambulance could convey the sick woman to St. Mary's hospital. Dropsy of the heart, according to the death certificate, was the cause of death. Mrs Day was an invalid for six months and six weeks ago was taken to Mt. Clemens, Mich. On her return trip, she was accompanied by her husband.

The woman's maiden name was Mary Schlatter and she formerly lived at Swanton, Ohio. This evening the body will be sent to Ohio on the Omaha train, where her relatives will have charge of the funeral arrangements.

Mr. Day, who moved to Chisholm six years ago, is well known at West Duluth. At the West end, he has a number of relatives living on Twenty-ninth avenue west. Mrs. Day was also known in the western part of the city.

A private funeral under the direction of the board of health was held this afternoon, with burial at Oneota cemetery.

PAYS HIGH COMPLIMENT TO SPALDING HOTEL.

"The Chocolate Soldier" company has departed from Duluth and its members took with them pleasant memories of the Zenith City, which they said had been a delightful host, and Charles A. Moore, the company's manager, took occasion before leaving the city to pay a high compliment to the Spalding hotel, its cuisine and its management.

Mr. Moore has traveled over the old S. Willard and William H. Crane, and he knows whereof he speaks when he talks of hotels and hotel accommodations. Mr. Moore said that under the management of Edwin H. Lee, the managing director, this hotel ranks with the best to be found anywhere. The geniality of the staff, the pleasant environment enjoyed in the hostelry and the multiple comforts of cafes and apartments won his unqualified approval. GAINING ON SUPERIOR

Duluth Increases Its Lead Over Rival Wisconsin City.

Now Leads Its Principal Suburb By 38,080 People.

Duluth has made a substantial gain over Superior in the past ten years, as shown by the 1910 census figures.

Superior's population is 40,384, while Duluth has 78,466 people, a difference of 38,080 or 94.3 per cent. In 1900, Superior's population was 31,091, while Duluth had 52,969 people, a difference of 70.8 per cent.

Duluth's growth in the past ten years was 48.1 per cent, while Superior grew but 29.9 per cent and the comparison is naturally pleasing to loyal Duluthians. They are content to see Superior grow into a large city, but they are anxious that Duluth keep well in the lead.

The growth of Duluth over Superior has been gradual and certain. In 1900, there were 21,878 more people in Duluth than in Superior. In 1905, Duluth had 28,391 more than the city across the bay, according to the state census figures, and now Duluth shows up with 38,080 more than the Wisconsin town.

While as far as the outside world is concerned, Duluth and Superior stand together as one under the title of the Head of the Lakes, the intercity rivalry is intense and Duluthians are well pleased with the growth which allowed the Zenith City to leave its rival in the rear.

At the same time, there is gratification in the fact that Superior made a substantial growth and that the two cities combined now have 118,850 people, where there were but 84,060 in 1900, a growth for the combined cities of 41.5 per cent in ten years.

TAKE LIQUOR CASE TO SUPREME COURT

Bemidji Injunctions Are to Be Used to Test Indian Land Drouth.

St. Paul, Minn., Dec. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—It was decided at the conference held here this afternoon between Judge M. A. Spooner, E. E. McDonald of Bemidji, and Special Agents Thomas C. Brents and H. E. Coggeshall, with United States District Attorney C. C. Houpt, that the Bemidji saloon cases will be put up to the United States supreme court as soon as possible.

It was decided that the twelve Bemidji saloon keepers should be made complainants in an action in the federal court against Federal Officers Brents, Johnson and Coggeshall, in which efforts will be made to get a restraining order and then a temporary injunction prohibiting the officers from interfering with the saloon business or destroying the property. The case will then be appealed to the United States supreme court and final interpretation of the treaty of 1855 obtained.

The case will apply only to Bemidji and a small area around it. This section, it is claimed by Attorney McDonald, has been construed as not in the "Indian country" by treaties passed since 1855. All parties interested in the case will meet here Dec. 20 and file the suit. It is believed it can be heard by the federal court within thirty days and that when taken to the United States supreme court on appeal can be advanced upon the docket.

FINE PLANT SUPPLIES HEAT, LIGHT AND POWER FOR TWO LARGEST SCHOOL BUILDINGS IN DULUTH

In this day of advanced methods in sanitation, the heating and ventilation of a building is which public gathings are held are of the utmost importance. Great strides have been made in the past few years in the scientific heating and lighting of public buildings and in no class of buildings has the progress been greater than in the schools.

The days when heating was by direct radiation and ventilating by the opening of windows and doors have passed. Instead the closing of windows and doors is advised when mechanical ventilating apparatus is in operation and direct radiation is unknown in thoroughly modern school buildings, on account of the difficulty in heating all sections of a room to the same temperature.

A building in which children are gathered for five hours a day for study must necessarily be well heated and well ventilated. The temperature must be kept even and at a degree at which the rooms will be comfortable without being oppressively warm. The air must be clean and fresh and must be changed often during the day. To accomplish those results, intricate and expensive apparatus is necessary and the most careful construction is required to make the apparatus effective.

The central plant in the Central high school building is the finest heating and ventilating plant in the city and one of the finest in the Northwest for school purposes. It is located in the Central high school building and serves that building and the Washington grade and manual training building. The machinery is the most up-to-date obtainable and is almost perfectly adapted for the work it is called upon to perform.

Heat Through Tunnel.

The plant consists of two boilers, 84 inches by 20 feet in size, equipped with mechanical stokers, economizers and induced draft apparatus; one steam-driven 100-kilowatt generator, one steam-driven 50-kilowatt generator, one motor-driven 100-kilowatt generator, together with pumps, fans and other apparatus required in distributing heat and air through the two buildings. The heat and power are conveyed to the Washington building through a tunnel under the street.

The plant heats, lights and ventilates the two buildings. The Washington building is equipped with the most modern system. The heating is by hot air blasts from chambers over coils, passing to the rooms through ducts. Thermostats regulate the proportions of cold and warm air and maintain an even temperature. The ventilating is by an elaborate system of fans which accomplish excellent results in keeping the rooms filled with fresh air and free of all contamination.

The heating system in the Central high school is by direct radiation tempered by fan-driven air.

In addition to the heating and ventilating, the plant furnishes power for the electric lighting in the two buildings and after the opening of the new manual training school, twenty-eight or thirty driven lathes will also be attached.

The plant is equipped with city power so that one generator may be driven by a motor if anything should happen to the steam machinery or if the steam in the boilers should be required entirely for heating.

The system in the Washington school is the same as that installed in the new Salter school and it will also be installed in the new Merritt school. It is in quite general use all over the country and is regarded as a great improvement on the old system.

L. A. LARSON,
Chief Engineer of Duluth Schools.

The new plant was designed by Louis A. Larson, chief engineer of the board, and is operated under his direction. Mr. Larson has been with the board a number of years and has charge of all the engineering work in the schools of the city.

DIRECTORS TALK ON THE SEED PROBLEM.

Directors of the Duluth Co-operative Market association met at the Commercial club today. The chief item of interest to come up for their consideration was seed. Seed is what the crops come from and what potentially sways Wall street, so necessarily the association directors are intensely interested in the subject.

It was proposed that the association members pool their interests and buy seed in common, importing certain varieties from Europe. In this way the best results can be achieved at the least cost, and it is the hope of the directors that all members will take the fullest advantage of the opportunity presented by this proposed method of procedure.

Other subjects of importance were discussed and the directors continued their consideration of affairs relating to the work of the association at luncheon. It was one of the most profitable sessions the board has held.

CONFETTI THROWING AT WEDDINGS.

London Daily Mail: The Rev. R. W. Hunt, vicar of St. Giles's, Reading, in this month's parochial magazine expresses himself forcibly concerning the throwing of confetti at weddings, which he describes as silly, vulgar and irreverent.

"The old custom of throwing a few grains of rice," he says, "though a foolish one, was more or less harmless and it was probably viewed with favor at least by the birds of the air. But the throwing of thousands of small paper disks has nothing whatever to commend it. If there are people who really feel compelled to cover themselves and their friends with colored bits of paper by all means let them do so in their own homes, where they will be subjected to the wholesome discipline of themselves brushing up the mess they have made; but God's house is not the place for this kind of thing."

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

The senior class held a special meeting Monday.

The class decided to postpone the midyear banquet, which was to take place before the Christmas dance, on the last day before the vacation. This decision arose from the fact that the kitchen and lunch room have been discontinued at the high school and there is no suitable place to prepare the banquet.

If the high school opens its new lunch room in the Washington school, it is the plan of the class to hold its banquet later in the year.

Arrangements are already well under way for the dance. All the classes are invited to attend and the committee is planning to give the alumni who return to Duluth for their Christmas vacations, a cordial reception. The lower hall of the high school, which will be used as a dancing floor, will be decorated with the Christmas evergreens and the senior class colors. La Brosse's orchestra will furnish the music for the evening.

A committee of ten was appointed to distribute the advertising material and sell tickets for the Two Harbors' debate. A second committee was formed to select the design for a pin and to purchase a banner for the society.

The Forum was aroused to the fact that there was a rival society in school when a banner of the Anonia, the girls' literary club, was presented at the auction. The boys are now trying to even up the score by selecting a pin before the girls.

The Forum will hold the much-talked-of mock trial next week. This affair promises to be a great success judging from the time spent on the work by the participants. It also promises to play an important part in the progress of the society, as an increased membership is expected after the trial.

From the present outlook the debating team promises to play an important part in the high school activity the present year. Two teams have been chosen. Roger E. Lerch, Jr., Frederick H. Weinberg and Jesse L. Cohen compose one of the teams, and the other team members are Rolf Hovde, Norman A. Cook and Lawrence Wylie. Mr. Brackett is again coaching the teams and is spending a considerable amount of time with the boys.

The first debate of any importance will be a practical debate with the Y. M. C. A. and the boys are anxious to know what kind of a showing they will have against the young attorneys. This contest will take place on Dec. 16.

On Dec. 22, the first interscholastic debate will be held with Two Harbors, on the question which is of such vital importance to the citizens of Duluth at the present time. The subject for the debate is, "Resolved, That the Cities of Minnesota Should Adopt a Commission Form of Government." The boys are working hard and it is hoped that there will be a large attendance. Dates will also be arranged with Cloquet, Irving and the Superior teams.

Preparations are under way for a banquet at which all students interested in debating as well as the visiting team from Two Harbors will be invited.

The Anonian society held a special meeting Friday, at which the members decided to choose a pin, and to form a debating team, which should challenge the Forum team to a debate.

The report cards will be out again Monday and then the home stretch before final examinations will begin.

Wood Mantel Men Elect.

BETTER LATE THAN NEVER.

Sam F. Fullerton, who is traveling with the Minnesota exhibition car of the Great Northern through Illinois and adjacent states, has written a letter to a Duluth man in which he says that the car is attracting much attention. He writes that thousands of people are passing through it and that they are greatly impressed by what they see. He states that Minnesota has been late in advertising her resources and expresses the opinion that had this been done sooner, this state would have secured many of the thousands of settlers who have gone to Canada or other states further west.

GOOD BASIS FOR INDUSTRIAL GROWTH

New York, Dec. 10.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade today says:

The year now drawing to a close will be notable for its harvests, the money value of its farm products being computed at close to $9,000,000,000—a record figure. This fact forms the best possible basis for industrial advance next year. There is, however, little change in financial and business sentiment, which remains conservative and cautious. The holiday trade is, nevertheless, opening up well and in certain important centers the jobbing trade in staple merchandise is reported as improving. The colder weather has been beneficial to most merchants and the heavy fall of snow is most seasonable.

Continued restriction of output has not prevented steady accumulation of pig iron stocks, and the movement to curtail operations is expected to be carried still further. Existing conditions in the pig iron market reflect increased dullness and sellers are offering concessions in some instances in order to stimulate business. In structural lines, however, prospects are quite encouraging as new construction work will call for a substantial tonnage of material, especially at the West. Rail orders constantly appear, yet purchases are usually in moderate amounts.

In the drygoods markets the holiday trade is shaping up well and reorders for merchandise are going into jobbing houses steadily.

While there has been some improvement in the shoe trade business is considerably below normal for this season of the year. The leather trade continues dull and prices on most varieties are easy.

NEWS AND VIEWS OF LEGISLATORS AND POLITICIANS

H. H. Dunn Cinches His Claim to the Speakership—What He Says About His Attitude Toward Certain Measures—Whalen Expected to Be Walsh's Successor—Wirth-Handlan Senatorial Contest Is Dropped.

Dunn Has Speakership Sure

The speakership fight is over, apparently. It has been generally believed for some days that there is no further doubt about the election of H. H. Dunn of Albert Lea, who has conducted a clean, aggressive fight for the honor the place confers. Besides the honor, there is the power, second only to that of the governor. The use to which that power may be put is what is of chief interest, now that Dunn is known to be the man who will exercise it.

L. C. Spooner of Morris, who was a candidate for the honor, concedes that Dunn will be elected, saying:

"It is my best judgment that the speakership contest is over; that Dunn will be the speaker of the next house of representatives; that to continue the contest will be productive of no good to the party or to the people, and will be likely to be harmful to the party.

"Dunn was not my choice, but is an able, and, I believe, sincere man, and will make a good presiding officer; and if given the united and loyal support of the party, will give us a successful legislative administration."

Mr. Dunn's attention was called yesterday to the charges that have been brought against him by his opponents in this fight, including allegations that he is in fact an opponent of reapportionment and an active agent of the brewery interests. As to the reapportionment, he said:

"I stand on that question just as I told the people in my district," said Mr. Dunn. "I am in favor of a fair and just reapportionment of the state on the basis of population. As to the time for it to take effect, the constitution requires that it shall take effect at the next election, and there is no other way to make it."

Asked if he would appoint a temperance committee with a chairman and enough other members favorable to county option to form a majority to receive a county option bill, he said:

"I can hardly agree to define the membership of the temperance committee to that extent. I have said that I will appoint a county option chairman, and he will be a man who will command universal respect and approval when his name is announced. The other members of the committee will be pledged to report the bill on its merits, so it will be disposed of on the floor of the house. I want to make the representation on that committee as even and fair as I can, and I could not afford to do anything else. To say that I would name a majority of county option men or anti-county option men, would lay me open to criticism on the charge of stacking the committee, but now that the fight is over, I can say that I feel sure every fair, reasonable county optionist will be satisfied with the membership of that committee."

Mr. Dunn denied that his campaign expenses were borne by the brewery companies, saying that charge was made and refuted in his campaign for election to the house, adding:

"The people of Freeborn county know it to be false. I am a man of comfortable means, and I pay my own campaign expenses. Not a dollar of the money spent to nominate and elect me came from the brewing interest or any other interest, directly or indirectly. I wear no collar and I am under no obligation except to the membership of the house and the people of the state."

The attitude of the St. Louis county delegation was voiced by Representative C. T. Knapp of Chisholm.

"I am firmly convinced that Dunn will be elected speaker," said Mr. Knapp. "To continue the speakership fight might possibly endanger some important legislation which will be brought to the attention of the legislature at the next session. While Dunn was not my personal choice I feel that he will be a fair and impartial presiding officer and I deem it advisable to assist in eliminating factional differences that might arise from a prolonged speakership fight and possibly react on important legislation.

"Speaking for the St. Louis county delegation, consisting of four members, including myself, as it seems evident that Burnquist is eliminated, I go on record for H. H. Dunn."

At the windup of the speakership fight there seems to be a disposition to stampede to Dunn. Burnquist's support is dissolving despite its dryness, and with Spooner conceding the election of the Albert Lea man "there's nothing to it." Fifty-six votes are claimed by the Dunn leaders, and they seem to have them, but P. J. Youngdahl, true to his reputation of being a fighter of bulldog tenacity, shouts that the optionists have the votes and that Dunn will be defeated. But it sounds more like the rousing cry of a revivalist than the triumphant yell of a victorious politician.

Whalen Picked to Succeed Walsh.

It seems to be the general expectation that "Eddie" Whalen will be Capt. James Walsh's successor as state free employment agent in Duluth. A good many people have wished that Capt. Walsh be kept in the place, but the fortunes of war are not to be avoided and the warriors are not be be denied the spoils of victory. It was said that Mr Whalen was to be appointed deputy oil inspector to succeed M. J. Lynch, but that seems to have been only a feeler and now the story is told circumstantially that he has the employment agency cinched.

Capt. Walsh has been an excellent man in that place. He is fitted for the work, not only by his experience of years with the laboring people, but also by reason of his unfailing kindliness and generosity of heart. If he is to be displaced, it will require of his successor an exceptional measure of effort and attention to the duties of the office to reach the standard established by the captain.

Some of the best known men of the city, irrespective of party affiliations, would be pleased to see Capt Walsh kept in charge of the state agency, but there is no chance of that.

Wirth-Handlan Contest Dropped Suddenly.

Dr. Carl Wirth has dropped his contest against James Handlan, senator-elect from the Thirty-fourth district, which is in St. Paul. Handlan, the winning Democratic candidate, was a member of the house two years ago. He beat Senator McColl in the primaries and defeated Wirth in the general election by a plurality of 434. The ballots of three precincas had been counted when Dr. Wirth's attorney threw up his hands. Wirth's gain in these recounted precincts was only two votes.

Three interesting senatorial contests remain to be decided by the senate. A. D. Stephens asks that the election of John Saugstad be set aside in his own favor, on the ground that there were gross irregularities in the election of Saugstad by the sticker method; S. D. Works is confronted with the task of proving that B. C. Taylor is wrong in contending that his election is illegal, and John J. Ahmann has the same situation to face, his opponent being Henry Emmel.

Works is a Democrat, Taylor a Republican, Ahmann and Emmel are Democrats and Saugstad and Stephens are Republicans.

Five Candidates Are Remiss.

Four Democratic candidates for state office have made themselves liable to penalties for gross misdemeanor by failing to file statements of their campaign expenses. They are Fred W. Johnson, candidate for secretary of state; Thomas Meighn, candidate for state auditor; Charles F. Ladner, candidate for state treasurer, and John M. Freeman, candidate for attorney general. The statute says that those who do not file such statements shall be deprived of their offices, but as they have none that penalty cannot be imposed. It is true that they may be fined, but it's hardly likely that any one will be so inconsiderate as to rub it in by prosecuting them.

J. D. Engle, Prohibition candidate for lieutenant governor, also has failed to give the state an accounting of his own money.

The St. Paul Dispatch, discussing this election sequel, says:

"In general, it seems to be held that the act violates the Constitution, which provided the qualifications for an officeseeker, filing of an expanse account not being one of them. The opinion is prevalent that there should be such an act, but many feel that the only way to get it into force would be by a Constitutional amendment. This raises the question John Lind brought up last summer when he said he was not eligible for the governorship because he was a member of the board of regents. There is no hesitancy on the part of many of the state's lawyers in saying that act is unconstitutional.

"The act applicable in this case is section 379 of the general election laws, which says that failure to file the expense account is a gross misdemeanor.

"In chapter 6, section 349, code of 1905, the penalty for a gross misdemeanor is set down as imprisonment for a year or a $1,000 fine. But this same section uses the words 'for his nomination' without the slightest reference to the 'election.' This is a point which must in time be decided."

"MALT SHOPS" WILL SECURE LICENSES

Deerwood Council to Issue Them Until Indian Controversy Is Settled.

Deerwood, Minn., Dec. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—The council passed an ordinance providing that "malt shops" be allowed to pay their license monthly until the Indian treaty controversy is settled.

The Commercial club appointed the following committee. Charles G. Osterlund, C. J. Rathvon and Emil Carlson, to confer with Supt. K. M. Nicoles regarding a new depot and freight shed.

D. M. Stoner of Bemidji is making rapid progress in the construction of his electric light plant. The brick walls are up above the first story.

The First National Bank building is being plastered and will soon be ready for occupancy.

The fire hall and jail are about completed. The jail is of modern concrete and brick construction and has two up-to-date steel cells.

Street lamps similar to Brainerd may be installed as soon as the village gets electricity.

PICKPOCKET GETS $366

Alex Martell, a saloon keeper at 709 West Superior street, reported to the police this afternoon that his pocket had been picked of $366 in the doorway of the American Exchange National bank shortly before noon today. Martell said that he had cashed a number of checks, getting the money in $5 and $10 bills, which he placed in an inside pocket when he left the bank. In the doorway he got into a crowd and was jostled about, he said, and when he returned to his place of business, the money was missing.

OMAHA RAILROAD GATHERING LOGS

Picking Up Timber Along Right-of-Way and Will Saw Them.

Couderay, Wis., Dec. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Omaha Railroad company has a steam log loader and crew here picking up all the logs on the right-of-way. This crew expects to cover the whole Northern district of the Wisconsin division of the road, picking up all the logs along the track that have fallen off cars that the lumber companies have shipped over this road in the last few years.

If the logs are not removed by the lumber companies within a certain length of time the railroad company cliam them. Logs are being shipped to Spooner, where the company will put up nearly 1,000,000 feet in this way. This will give them a good supply of all grades of lumber and building material for the bridge and building department for many years to come. This experiment is the first on this road and something new, but looks as a very wise move and is another step in economizing.

MASS MEETING OF SOCIALISTS

The Socialists of Duluth will hold a general mass meeting at Odd Fellows hall, 18 Lake avenue north, Sunday afternoon at 2:30.

The meeting will be open to the public and everyone is invited to attend. All Public Ownership candidates will be present and will make short talks.

Government by the commission form and from the Public Ownership point of view will be discussed. Anyone may take part in the discussion.

The platform for the coming campaign will be outlined and adopted. The meeting is absolutely free and women are especially invited.

There will be music by the Normanna chorus and the Svea Glee club.

At the coming election several candidates have filed on the Public Ownership ticket, and the party plans to get behind its candidates and conduct a most energetic campaign.

POTS PLACED ON STREET

Salvation Army Collecting Money With Which to Buy Christmas Dinners.

Pots Complete the Christmas Aspect of Duluth's Shopping District.

The Salvation Army this morning placed its pots on the streets and the nickles, dimes and quarters began to clink as passers by contributed toward the Christmas dinner of the poor families of the city.

The pots on the principal street corners make Superior street look more like Christmas time, for the practice has been in vogue for a number of years and it does not seem as though Christmas is really near until the pots make their appearance.

Some of them are watched by the male members of the Army and others by women. It has been noticeable in other years that the pots guarded by the women were the more popular.

Five pots were placed on the streets this morning and as the crowds in the shopping districts become larger with the approach of Christmas, more will be added.

The Salvation Army has published an attractive advertising blotter which is being distributed throughout the city. It asks that help be extended the Army that the poor can be made happy Christmas day.

Besides giving dinners this year the Army wants to do more and is extremely anxious that enough money to carry out its plans be raised on the street or turned in at the Army headquarters on Fourth avenue west. They intend to add this year a Christmas entertainment at which the children will be given small presents.

The blotter shows in colors one of the baskets that are given out each year. It contains a chicken or turkey, bread, butter, vegetables or several different kinds, cranberries, celery, coffee, sugar, a small packet of flour, and a copy of the War Cry, the publication of the Army.

As the Salvation Army reaches some people that others do not reach, and as it has been proven in Duluth in years gone by that particularly at this time of the year they do a great deal of good, their work is generously supported by Duluthians.

Last year they provided nearly 200 dinners. They were all good dinners, too, and they went into homes that would have been without a Christmas dinner had not the Salvation Army provided it.

Adj. and Mrs. Martin, the head of the local Army are working hard to make this the biggest Christmas in the history of the local work and the other members are digging in with a will.

Few realize how hard these people labor at this time of the year to make Christmas a joyous period in the lives of those who have been unfortunate.

At the time the baskets are prepared it often happens that they work day and night. During the day they watch the pots and after the religious services at night they go to work on the baskets.

It is a big undertaking to collect the money, buy the groceries and prepare them for delivery in addition to attending the street and hall meetings held each day.

Last year the hall was located on East Second street but this year better although smaller quarters are occupied by the Army on Fourth avenue west between Superior and First street.

The dinners will be given out and the annual Christmas entertainment will be held on Christmas eve.

MAY OPEN A BRANCH HERE

Canadian Dredging Concern Likely to Invade Duluth in Spring.

James Whalen of Port Arthur, head of the Canadian Dredging & Wrecking company, who is in Duluth today, refuses to confirm a rumor that his concern is to establish a branch in Duluth.

Mr. Whalen not only refuses to discuss the possibility of his firm coming here, but stubbornly abstains from talking of anything that might remotely relate to that subject, but in a moment of comparative loquacity he did say that it is possible a branch will be established here next spring.

Members of Mr. Whalen's party volunteered the information that Duluth might expect to see three dredges of the Canadian company in the bay here in the spring, which was naturally interpreted to mean that plans already are under way for the opening of work here on a large scale.

Mr. Whalen withheld confirmation of the statements made by his friends.

ASA WALLACE WILL BE STATE LIBRARIAN.

Governor Eberhart will announce next Tuesday, the appointment of Asa Wallace as state librarian, to succeed John E. King, who was appointed by Governor Johnson. Strong pressure has been brought to bear on the governor in behalf of Elias J. Lien, the chief assistant librarian, but it appears that the governor will ignore the pleas made for Mr. Lien by the supreme court justices, and many others, and will appoint Mr. Wallace because of his political services. Mr. Wallace is an editor.

JOINT COUNTY BRIDGE.

Brainerd, Minn., Dec. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—Crow Wing and Morrison counties will join in building a $1,500 bridges at Fort Ripley. The county commissioners of Crow Wing county authorized the auditor to advertise for bids for a 60-foot steel bridge across the Nokay Sebie river at Daggett Brook, deeming a new bridge better than the continual repairing of the old wooden structure. The $5,700 in the county ditch fund was used to cancel Drainage Bonds Nos. 6, 7 and 8, held by the Farmers & Mechanics Savings Bank of Minneapolis and some held by the state of Minnesota.

MUNICIPAL LIGHT PLANT

Watson S. Moore Argues for City Ownership of Electric System.

Says Dividends Are Now Being Paid on Over-Capitalization.

The necessity of legislation which will allow the city of Duluth to own and operate a municipal lighting system was the theme of discussion at the meeting of the Lakeside club last night. Watson S. Moore made a strong argument in favor of a municipal electric light system, contending that it would give the people cheaper light and enable the city to light every dark street and avenue from Lester Park to Fond du Lac at less cost than that of the lights now in use. Harry W. Cheadle, senator-elect from the Fifty-first district, also expressed himself in favor of needed legislation so that the city may enter the new municipal ownership venture.

Mr. Moore recalled the numerous contests the Duluth legislators have had in the legislature over the bill, which is needed to allow the city to own an electric lighting system. As in the case of the water and light plant, it would be necessary to issue bonds in excess of the limit of bonded indebtedness. A bill would be necessary to allow the city to issue bonds being a specific lien on the property of the plant and a general charge against the city, they being in excess of the charter limitation. There would be no danger to the credit of the city in such a venture, he said, but every bill giving the city power to take such action had been stubbornly opposed in the legislature, he claimed.

Mr. Moore pointed out that the water and light department has in the last ten years earned $700,000 above operating expenses and interest charges and has saved in water rates a million and a quarter of dollars and in gas rates a million dollars by reductions.

Over-Capitalization.

He said the city is not well lighted now, especially in the suburbs, because rates are so much higher than they would be if the electric light plant were not over-capitalized. Mr. Moore drew a comparison between the water and gas system and the lectric light system. He specified the assets of the water and light department, including the expensive plant at Lakewood, the numerous reservoirs, the many miles of mains and the booster plants. Against those assets, there is a charge of $3,125,000 in bonds. He then pointed out that the only assets of the electric light company are the poles and wires, $60,000 worth of conduits and a small plant. Against those assets, there is a charge in stocks and bonds of about $2,625,000, earning from 5 to 6 per cent a year, he claimed.

According to the city engineer's estimate, Mr. Moore said, the electric lighting system in Duluth could be duplicated for $400,000, while the most conservative estimates run under $750,000. The capitalization is nearly four times the real value of the plant, he said, at a most conservative estimate. If Duluth should own and operate an electric lighting system, the city would get light at nearly one-fourth the cost, carrying out the same system of figuring, he said, and there would be lights enough to illuminate every dark street and avenue.

During his talk, Mr. Moore referred to the project for municipal docks and said the city should acquire the dock property owned by the state.

In his speech, Mr. Cheadle made a strong expression in favor of the initiative and referendum. He said he is also greatly interested in the subject of a soil survey and believes that such action would aid greatly in the development of this part of the state.

Log Rolling in Legislature.

Mr. Wilson talked on the subject of "log rolling," and decried the tendency of legislators to trade votes. He said that legislators would gain much more respect for themselves and be able to do more for their districts in the end if they would stand up staunchly for their rights and decline to enter into petty political bickerings, trading off their convictions for the accomplishment of desired results.

C. S. Mitchell also discussed "log-rolling," and said that the day of trading votes in legislative bodies is passing. Legislators will continue such methods as long as the people want them, he said, and no longer. He pointed to the case of Congressman Lindbergh, who was indorsed by his district, despite the fact that he was unable to swing any patronage.

Alderman W. B. Getchell of the Eighth ward expressed his opposition to the commission form of government.

D. A. Reed spoke of "log rolling" in the city council and said the only way to eliminate it would be by the election of legislators from the city at large.

Oil on London Road.

The club adopted a resolution calling upon the board of public works to discontinue the sprinkling of London road with water and the substitution of oil, calcium chloride or some other substance that would lay the dust and still not damage the road. D. A. Reed, H. R. Spencer and G. A. Everest were appointed on a committee to take the matter before the board.

The committee on the mail service reported that no better service can be obtained until after the 1st of July of next year. The committee on street car service also reported inability to obtain results, but the committee was continued and will work on the proposition until the next meeting, at least.

CONSULTATIONS ON THE INCREASE

Many People Visited Free Dispensary During the Last Month.

At a meeting of the St. Louis County Sanitarium commission held this morning at Dr. Hart's office in the courthouse, the doctor read his regular monthly report, which showed that the work of the free dispensary is on the increase.

So much is the dispensary used by the public that it was found necessary a few weeks ago to put on an assistant to Dr. Hart Dr. Ignatius Murphy is now helping regularly with the work. Dr. J. M. Robinson is still attending to the nose and throat departments.

Last month there were seventy-eight consultations. This was a gain of 21 per cent over the number of consultations of the month previous. The number last month exceeded the number of the first two weeks.

Work on the site of the new St. Louis county sanitarium will begin at once with the clearing. A road is being constructed from the main road to the site of the buildings.

Outside the report but little outside the routine business was transacted. Commissioners Grey, Twohy and Getty were present at the meeting.

WOULD STOP SUNDAY WORK

Postoffice Employes Believe Sunday Distribution of Mail Is Unnecessary.

Move to Eliminate All But Most Essential Handling of Mail.

Clerks and carriers of the Duluth postoffice have begun a systematic campaign to obtain public approbation for a movement to eliminate as much Sunday work as possible in the postoffice and give the government employes a day of rest with people engaged in other employment. Carriers are taking cards out to the people whom they serve and patrons of the office will be asked to express an opinion of the movement. If public sentiment is with the employes, the new Sunday rule will be put in effect.

The officials of the postoffice department and the employes also are anxious to give good service, but they believe that much of the Sunday work is not necessary. Few people in business require their mail on Sunday, for they cannot attend to it if they get it. Idle curiosity draws many people to the carriers' windows every Sunday and the inconvenience that would come to those required to wait until Monday morning for their mail, would be slight.

At present one-half of the postoffice force works every Sunday from 7 o'clock until 10:30 in the morning, the men alternating. The carriers' windows are open from 9:30 until 10:30. In the afternoon, seven men collect mail from the boxes, one in the business district and six in the residence districts.

The employes claim that if one man were to cullect mail in the business district and hotels and the outgoing mail, including letters deposited at the postoffice, were given attention, all of the other work could be eliminated. Collections in the residence districts on Sunday are unnecessary, they claim, and the distribution of mail at the postoffice is not essential.

A similar movement is in force in many cities throughout the country. In Detroit, Mich., 25,000 cards were sent out to patrons of the postoffice and only twenty-five people expressed themselves against the cessation of Snuday work at the postoffice. In St. Paul, the sentiment was overwhelming in favor of the move, and it is expected that Duluth people will be no less reasonable. The postoffice employes do not intend to shirk any necessary work, but they think that much of the work they perform on Sunday is unnecessary and they believe the public will back them up.

ADDITIONAL SPORTS

DULUTH WILL PLAY DETROIT

Hockey Players Have Two More Games on Present Trip.

A telegram from the members of the Duluth hockey team, through Ed Furni, who is managing the All-Star aggregation on the present trip, states that a game has been arranged for Detroit for Monday evening. That will conclude the trip of the team.

The message also states that the members of the Chicago team were for the most part professional players. The Duluth players are not kicking about the defeats sustained at Chicago, but merely wish the home guard to know the facts in the case. Most of the members of the Chicago seven are former Copper country players, and the Duluth boys were in no shape to go against them without any preliminary practice whatever.

Another game will be played with Cleveland this evening. On the showing made last evening at the Forest City, it is hoped that the Duluth boys may win the game, as the success of the touring aggregation will boom the game in this part of the country. The boys are much elated over the victory last night.

POLICE ARE PLAYING SANTA

"Hello, is this Santa Claus?" is a salutation which is coming to the police operators at headquarters frequently these days.

Numerous children from many parts of the city are turning in their wishes for Christmas presents which they would like from the sturdy old man of the Northland. They cover the entire catalog of children's toys and many other things, which often surprise the man at the other end of the line.

Always they get the most pleasant of receptions. The officers listen to their wants and assure them that they will be looked after to the best of Santa's ability. Sometimes the mother of a child will call the police station and ask if Santa is present, stating that her son or daughter wants to talk to him. Again the youngsters will ask central to give them Santa Claus and she obliges them by turning them over to the police department if their 'phones are not busy. Even if they had time the young ladies at the switch board would have difficulty disguising their voices to meet a child's conception of Santa Claus, and at the station they know that a man will always answer the call with a deep bass that thrills the "kids'" hearts.

RUN AS A BUSINESS, NOT AS A DEBATING SOCIETY

Mayor Wooldridge of Austin Praises the Commission Plan.

Says Tax Rate Is Lower and Floating Debt Is Paid.

The city is run as a business corporation and not as a debating society under the commission plan, according to Mayor A. P. Wooldridge of Austin, Tex., a progressive city of 30,000 people.

Mayor Wooldridge declares that the best of results have been secured as a result of the change from the old to the new form, explaining that the present charter was adopted because that formerly in force was expensive and inefficient.

Since the adoption of the commission plan in March, 1909, less than two years ago, he says that the tax rate has been reduced 24 cents on the $100; that a floating debt of $24,702 has been paid; that $29,000 in bonds have been redeemed, and that more municipal improvements have been made than in any other similar period of the city's history. He adds that the assessed valuation of the city is less than $19,000,000, making the accomplishments notable.

The Austin charter was modeled after those of Des Moines and Galveston, differing only in minor details. Its framers endeavored to get a combination of the excellencies of both, favoring that of Des Moines.

"I would suggest that the recall feature be carefully guarded, says Mayor Wooldridge. "With us, the recall calls for a petition signed by 25 per cent of the vote cast at the next preceding general election. That might, with propriety, be increased to 33 1-3 per cent of the vote, for sometimes at the general election the number of voters voting is small, and a recall ought not to be made too easy of accomplishment; otherwise good men will be deterred from running for office."

He asserts that the new form has brought about concentration of authority and responsibility and adds that there is no sentiment in favor of a return to the old form.

The opinion of Duluth business and professional men is that the Zenith City long ago should have adopted a form of the commission plan of government. That is the conclusion reached as a result of extensive and careful inquiry and it is borne out by the opinion of E. P. Towne, who said today:

"It is undoubtedly true that Duluth, perhaps more than any other city, needs just such a medium of reform as is afforded by the commission form of municipal government. There is now altogether too much discussion of authority and responsibility. We have tried to secure the accomplishment of a needed reform here in the abolition of the board of public works, uniting in one individual the powers and responsibilities of that department of municipal administration, but all the efforts of the public affairs committee of the Commercial club in that direction resulted in failure. that department of municipal administration, but all the efforts of the public affairs committee of the Commercial club in that direction resulted in failure.

"I believe that the sooner Duluth adopts the commission form of government, the better off the city will be, and it is beyond question that this is the time to discuss and inquire into the phases of this municipal project, to the end that the city will be able to deal intelligently with it when it is presented in concrete form."

Jesse Norton is one of those advocates of the adoption by Duluth of the commission form of government, who have but lately given attention to what is offered in that system for the correction of existing handicaps.

"There is no question in my mind as to the desirability of adopting the commission form," he said. "So far as studying the proposition is concerned, that should have been done long ago, and it would have been largely to the advantage of Duluth if the new system had been inaugurated here years ago. As it is now, under the old system, there is such a diffussion of authority that one can't get anything done. It is possible for the officials of a city to pass on this and that responsibility, with the result that nothing is accomplished. I've been under the weather of late or I would have made it my business to take a more active interest in this movement. I want to see something of a constructive nature done on this proposition. It is good and we need the benefits it will confer. I have no doubt but that when the people get a chance to vote on it they will vote for it. I will."

BRAINERD ALDERMAN FOR MUNICIPAL SKATING RINK.

Brainerd, Minn., Dec. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—At a recent council session Alderman R. A. Henning, Socialist, broached the proposition of a municipal skating rink. Something like this would not cost the city much money and would provide innocent amusement and be free from the usual dangers of skating on ice not proven safe. The council took no action on the matter but Alderman Henning gave notice he would bring it up again for consideration.

At night she could not retain the kidney secretions and during the day this trouble was almost as bad. If the secretions were left standing, they deposited sediment. Two years ago we were successful in finding the right treatment for her. A relative recommended Doan's Kidney Pills to us and we tried them. The child soon received great benefit. Doan's Kidney Pills not only acted as represented in this case, but were used with success by a young man who was staying with us at that time. NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

IS CENTER OF COUNTRY

Rural School, Social Meeting Place of Its Respective Community.

The Northwestern Minnesota Teachers' Association Addressed on Education.

East Grand Forks, N. D., Dec. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—That the rural school should be the social center of the community in which it is located, was the thought of an address delivered today before the Northwestern Minnesota Educational association in this city by Dean J. H. Shepperd of the North Dakota Agricultural college.

"The rural school should be, can be, and is largely the center of community interests," said Dean Shepperd. "It is the only public assembly hall in the neighborhood. The smaller villages have their town hall and churches, many of them have one or more lodge rooms and other assembly places of a public or semi-public nature, but the rural community has but one hall for all purposes, religious, political, social and educational. It offers a splendid point of contact for extention among the residents of the farming community. It can easily be made the meeting place, farmers' club, a night school, seed corn contest center and other pleasant and profitable features of rivalry.

"Scores of lessons can be taught and illustrated in this rural center if the school is provided with a suitable leader in the person of the teacher.

"Long ago we were cautioned against setting the blind to lead the blind lest both fall into the ditch, and here we are face to face with that problem.

Need Social Entertainment.

"The rural school is surrounded by a neighborhood of people who have abundant time to think, who need social entertainment, who can take time to attend public meetings during the five months of the winter season and who would greatly profit by, and appreciate the services of a good leader. It is indeed a great field for education and I feel that we can say in the language of scripture that the harvest is ripe indeed. But that the competent teachers are few and at present the means for the compensating of the teacher is too meager to expect to command the service of one who can do the work."

He closed his address by making a plea for the securing of a good, wide-awake, competent teacher.

Prof. E. G. Quigley of the department of education of the University of Minnesota gave a splendid address yesterday on the trained teacher. The trained teacher at a salary of from $75 to $80 a month is far more preferable than the untrained teacher at a salary of from $40 to $50 a month.

Rural Life Opportunities.

Supt. C. G. Selvig of the Crookston school of agriculture dealt with the opportunities of rural life. He pointed to the fact that despite the recent census has disclosed a change in Minnesota in favor of the cities, that a smaller percentage of the people were living in the country than in the city. The rural school and the improvement of its work, Supt. Selvig said, would do a great deal toward increasing the charm of rural life. Industrial education as it is being developed at the present time should have a tendency toward keeping the child on the farm.

Another speaker yesterday was State Supt. C. G. Shultz, who spoke of the mutual obligations of the board and the teacher. John Clemenson of Euclid also gave an address, telling of his experience as a schol director and of the opportunities present for increasing the efficiency of the work.

DUNN COUNTY IS BEING CHANGED

Greatest of North Dakota Counties Rapidly Being Settled Up.

Manning, N. D., Dec. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—Thousands upon thousands of acres of Dunn county's virgin soil will be given over to the agriculturist next year and the last county in the state to be claimed by the farmer will be wrested from the ranchman and turned to the production of grains.

Dunn county, located in the heart of Western North Dakota, has experienced an influx of homesteaders bent upon building homes for themselves and who have, by reason of their previous agricultural experience and because they have found that farming pays in this section, come to realize that their salvation is the tilling of the soil.

Dunn county, the scene of Gen. Sully's most notable battle in his campaign against the Indians, that of the Kildeer mountains, has assumed a greatly different appearance than it presented years ago when he was here. The ranchman who held sway for so many years unmolested has been crowded back; he has been taught to use conservation methods and is getting more out of the land than before, while the farmer has at the same time rapidly encroached, and during the last two years especially, have broken over 80,000 acres of virgin soil and put it to crops of small grains.

Comprising an area of 1,057,330 acres, of which about 250,000 acres are in the Fort Berthold reservation, which is to be opened for settlement next year, Dunn holds a unique position in North Dakota today, the last available reports on its area under cultivation showing that only 40,000 acres of land were so used. Since that report the acreage has about trebled.

START CO-OPERATIVE STORE.

Farmers Around Badger, Minn., Are Going Into Business.

Badger, Minn., Dec. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—A farmers' co-operative store, to be known as the Badger Co-operative company, has been organized here. The company has a capital stock of $15,000, in 150 shares of $100 each, of which 102 shares have already been sold.

No stockholder is allowed to hold more than three shares. The stock and fixtures of Anderson & Frycklund have been purchased at appraised value and they intend to be ready to have their share of the Christmas rush. The following were elected directors to hold office until the annual meeting: Ben Setran, B. L. Sundal, B. C. Sater, Jalmer Wellin, Peter Eklund. The officers are as follows: Ben Setran, president; B. L. Sundal, vice president; Jalmer Wellin, secretary; and B. C. Sater, treasurer.

THREE MEN HAVE VERY CLOSE CALL

Septic Tank at Rainy River Collapses and They Barely Escape.

Rainy River, Minn., Dec. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—The roof of one of the sceptic tanks here caved in and three people who were working in it, nearly lost their lives. They barely had time to get under the more heavily braced part. The hat of one was taken off by the uprushing current of air and carried out through a man-hole.

The loss is about $2,000. The cause of the disaster seems to be due to a fault in the original plans. There was a span 100 feet long by 13 feet wide with no adequate support for the great weight of cement and earth on top of it.

FOUGHT AT GETTYSBURG.

Another Member of Famous First Minnesota Regiment Called.

Minneapolis, Minn., Dec. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—Charles Malcolm Hoag, one of the few remaining veterans, who participated in the charge of the First Minnesota regiment at Gettysburg, died this week at his home here. Mr. Hoag was 75 years old and was well known in Grand Army circles. He leaves a son, Henry Hoag; three daughters, Mrs. Ida McKay of Minneapolis, Marie and Louise Hoag, and a brother, Fred Hoag, all of Minneapolis. Members of the Grand Army acted as pallbearers and the interment was in the Soldiers' lot at Lakewood.

MYTH OR MIRACLE

Is Professor's Theory of the Star of Bethlehem.

Minneapolis, Minn., Dec. 10.—The story of the Star of Bethlehem is characterized as either a myth or a miracle by Prof. Francis P. Leavenworth, head of the department of astronomy at the state university.

"It is not in keeping with science," he said, "to think that a star would move ahead of the three men and then stop in one place, as the legend tells us. Some say it was Venus, others a combination of Venus and Jupiter. I doubt both. According to the story as given us, without any attempt at interpretation, it is hardly a scientific phenomenon, and it may be characterized as either a miracle or a myth."

NEGAUNEE MAN KILLED.

Struck By Chunk of Ore in Mary Charlotte Mine.

Negaunee, Mich., Dec. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—As the result of the falling of a chunk of ore in the Mary Charlotte mine, Charles Long of Negaunee was instantly killed Thursday.

Long and his partner, a Frenchman, were drilling holes when a large chunk of ore fell, piercing Long's brain and fracturing his leg. The Frenchman was very slightly injured.

The deceased was a carpenter by trade and had been working in the mines only a few months. He was 32 years of age.

KNOWN IN MENOMINEE.

Sumner Prescott, Who Married Nan Patterson, Figured in Tragedy.

Menominee, Mich., Dec. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—Sumner Prescott, formerly secretary and treasurer of the Prescott company, who married Annie Martin (Nan Patternson in St. Paul, Oct. 24, was at one time one of the most prominent society men of the Twin Cities and he has had rather a sensational career. He was at the wheel in an automobile accident two years ago in which Lieut. Brent of Marinette was killed. He disappeared suddenly from this section just before the Prescott company was reorganized, leaving the accounts of the company, of which he was secretary and treasurer, it is alleged, confused.

He was not included in the reorganized company and it is understood that he was employed, on leaving here, by the Regal Packing company of New York. He has severed his connection with this concern and is now said to be with the Vulcan Iron company of Tacoma.

It is said that Nan Patterson visited the Twin Cities in October. She is represented as being a very beautiful woman and since the Young tragedy has left the stage and has been leading a retired life.

CHURCH CONVENTION.

Held at Argyle This Week By Scandinavian Young People.

Thief River Falls, Minn., Dec. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—The young people's societies of the Scandinavian churches of the Red River valley, which are affiliated with the Baptist church, held a convention this week at argyle. A large attendance was present and addresses were delivered by Rev. M. Berglund, state Sunday school missionary; Rev. Nels Ekstrom of Thief River Falls, Martin Loeger of Lancaster, and several other speakers. Special music was rendered by select choirs.

Mrs. Christina Johnson, wife of Severt Johnson, residing near Liner postoffice southeast of this city, was brought here Tuesday for examination as to her mental condition. The cause of her insanity is attributed to overwork and worry over religious matters.

DOCTOR'S BEST FORMULA

Breaks Severest Cold in a Day and Cures Any Curable Cough.

This has been published here for several winters and has proven the quickest and most reliable formula obtainable for coughs and colds. "Get two ounces of Glycerine and half an ounce of Concentrated Pine compound. Then get half a pint of good whiskey and put the other two ingredients into it. Take a teaspoonful to a tablespoonful of this mixture after each meal and at bed time. Smaller doses to children according to age. Shake the bottle well each time." Be sure to get only the genuine Concentrated Pine. Each half ounce bottle comes in a tin screw-top case. Any druggist has it on hand or will quickly get it from his wholesale house. Any one can mix it. Many other pine extracts are impure and cause nausea.

PHONE EXCHANGE FIRE.

Northwestern Telephone Company Has Loss at Fergus Falls.

Fergus Falls, Minn., Dec. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fire started at noon yesterday in the switchboard of the new Northwestern Telephone exchange here, and destroyed the new switchboard and badly injured the entire inside of the new exchange building.

The Northwestern Telephone Exchange company has been rebuilding their entire exchange system in Fergus Falls, erecting a fine new brick building of their own, putting their wires in cables, and these in underground conduits over the entire business section.

It was expected that the new system would be ready for use in a few weeks, but this fire has set the date off for an indefinite time, as a new switchboard will have to be made for the system.

The cause of the fire is unknown, but the loss is very heavy. The estimated loss from the fire is $15,000.

TEACHERS TO ORGANIZE.

Instructors in Butte, Mont., Are Forming a Union.

Butte, Mont., Dec. 10.—The school teachers of Butte and Silver Bow county are planning to organize a union and obtain a charter from the Montana State Federation of Labor. The teachers believe conditions in Butte make it necessary for them to protect themselves. A committee visited a representative of the Silver Bow Trades and Labor council a few days ago and was informed that the council would do everything in its power to secure the teachers a charter in the federation.

INDICT ST. CLOUD DOCTOR.

Alleged to Have Set Fire to Automobile for Insurance.

St. Cloud, Minn., Dec. 10.—A sensation was sprung in the district court when the grand jury of Stearns county returned an indictment for arson in the second degree against Dr. J. C. Boehm, a prominent physician of this city. It is alleged in the indictment that Dr. Boehm set fire to an automobile belonging to him in order to collect $800 insurance on the machine.

A bench warrant was sworn out and the prisoner was arraigned before Judge M. D. Taylor. Bail was fixed at $1,000, which was furnished.

HINCKLEY CONCERN HAS CHANGED HANDS.

Hinckley, Minn., Dec. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Hinckley Flour & Grain company's business changed owners this week, the North Branch Milling company buying out the Pine City Milling & Electric company. The business will be conducted as in the past and Charles Williams remains as manager but whether the name of the company will be changed or not could not be learned.

The subscribers of the Farmers' Co-operative Telephone company have been paying in their subscription for stock and for material furnished and for tolls and the company is now in excellent shape financially. Messrs. Wallick and Opsahl have been out this week looking over the line to anticipate any trouble to come during the winter and prevent it as much as possible.

ALLEGED MAYBRAY GANG MEMBER IS ARRESTED.

Billings, Mont., Dec. 10.—Charged with being a member of the famous Maybray gang, convicted of swindling operations in the line of sporting events, Frank Meyers was taken into custody by the sheriff in this city. According to the officers, Meyers is wanted in Minneapolis and when apprehended he admitted that his father-in-law is a liveryman of that city and that his name is Ronan. When questioned further he admitted that his arrest was no surprise, in fact, that he was expecting it. Other than that, he refused to talk.

It is understood that Meyers was pointed out to the officers who knew hi m and when taken he was engaged in posting bills for the "Honeymoon Trail" company.

DAKOTA COUNTY SHERIFF IS REMOVED BY GOVERNOR.

St. Paul, Minn., Dec. 10.—James McDevitt, sheriff of Dakota county is ordered by Governor Eberhart removed from office for neglect of duty in not stopping a steer-killing contest, which took place at Premo Park, West St. Paul, Sept. 18. The removal is effective at once, and the county board will have the election of a successor. McDevitt's term would have expired Jan. 1, as he was defeated for renomination at the primaries held two days after the famous contest.

The charges against McDevitt were made by officers of the humane society, who contended that the sheriff failed to do his duty in not stopping the contest, which was declared to be a brutal affair and not a proper exhibition to which to admit the public.

ALLEGED HORSE-POISONERS ARE GRANTED NEW TRIALS.

Minot, N. D., Dec. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—Alleged horse poisoners, three in number, convicted in the district court of Ward county, will be given new trials because of errors made in the original trial. That is the effect of a decision handed down by the supreme court, Maxim Hakon, Zenko Hakon and Lodmere Rodak being the men implicated.

These three men were found guilty of maliciously poisoning horses, and among the errors cited by the supreme court is that of sustaining an objection made to the cross-questioning of a complaining witness on the subject of whether or not he had offered a bribe to a person to appear as a witness against a defendant in court. The court also holds that it is not permissible to prove another and independent offense against the defendants on the ground that it shows a motive for the commission of the crime charged, unless such proof fairly and reasonably tends to show such motive.

TWO MINNESOTA MEN ARE GIVEN PENSIONS.

Washington, Dec. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—In the omnibus private pension bill passed by the house, George Campbell, a resident of Volstead's district, was placed on the pension roll at $36 per month.

John A. Reamer, a resident of Linbergh's district, gets on the roll at $12.

DAVIDSON IS WINNER

Defeats Bryant in Spectacular Race at Lincoln Park Pavilion.

Champion Shows Wonderful Speed and Agility on the Rollers.

Last night at the Lincoln Park skating rink, Harley Davidson showed, before a large crowd, that he is one of the fastest, if not the fastest, man in the world on the rollers. In a mile race he won handily from Frank Bryant, and every inch of the way the veteran skated with the ease and beautiful stroke that stamps the champion. There is no mistake about this Davidson boy; he is the clear goods and bears the hall mark of world championship form.

At the crack of the gun Bryant got away in the lead. For sixteen laps he was ahead of Davidson, though it could be seen that the champion was not exerting himself, but was simply flying around the track with a long and beautiful machine-like stroke.

When the bell rang for the last two laps, Harley passed Bryant on the inside corner and skated home to a victory. The Duluth youngster claimed a foul on the ground that Davidson had touched him in going by. The protest of Bryant was not allowed by the officials. The sprint that took the world's champion by the flying Bryant was one of the most wonderful exhibitions of speed ever witnessed on a local track.

Before the race Davidson gave an exhibition of fancy skating that was superior to anything ever witnessed in this city. When Davidson circled the rink on one leg, the other twisted behind his foot forcing himself along by motions of his body, the audience gave him a great ovation. Every feat he performed last night was marked with the ease and finish of an artist.

Rolls, dances, revolutions, swinging stunts and some very difficult tricks were accomplished with an ease that made them look simple. Those who have seen every performer who has ever made this city, stated after the Davidson exhibition that the St. Paul man has it on them all.

Davidson caps his performance with a sensational jump over chairs placed in the center of the rink. He even makes this feat look easy by the ease with which he accomplishes it. Davidson is a master of the rollers, and it is very doubtful if this country has ever produced his equal.

The medals won by Davidson are on exhibition at Klein's window on Superior street. The world's championship medal, won by Davidson at the London Olympia, with which there was a purse of $2,000, is in the collection. Many of the champion's medals were destroyed in the San Francisco earthquake, as Harley was skating at the Mechanics' pavilion at the time of the destruction of the greater part of San Francisco.

Davidson and Bryant will race Sunday afternoon and evening. The style will be the Australian pursuit race, the contestants starting from the opposite sides of the rink. Davidson will also give two more exhibitions of his skill in the fancy skating line.

LEHTO MATCHED WITH ORDEMANN

Finn and Norwegian Will Wrestle for American Heavyweight Championship.

Arrangements were closed yesterday for a finish match in this city between Henry Ordemann, the big Minneapolis Norwegian and holder of the American wrestling championship, and Karl Lehto, holder of the Finnish title, which will be for the American championship.

For over a year negotiations have been carried on for a match between these two great mat stars. The Copper country has made several bids for the match, recent negotiations having been carried on to land the big contest for Calumet.

Ordemann is better known in this town than any of the big stars. He came to this city once to work, and for a while rowed on one of the crews of the Duluth Boat club. He is a Minneapolis boy, a former pupil of Frank Gotch, and recognized today as the greatest of the American school, with Champion Gotch out of the game.

If Lehto makes a good showing in his match with Hackenschmidt Tuesday evening, he will go into the Ordemann match with the confidence of his many countrymen behind him. The match will be staged next month.

The Most Popular Football Player—Wise Move By High School Authorities—"Who's Looney Now?"—Tommy Burns and His $19 Debt—Old Stars as Umpires.

(BY BRUCE.)

WHO IS THE MOST POPULAR FOOTBALL PLAYER IN THE COUNTRY?

If you had asked that question last season, there would have been the unanimity chorus working overtime to get in the bright name of Ted Coy. The Yale captain and fullback was the most popular and widely known warrior of the age.

But, getting down to figures, you will find that Kilpatrick, the great Yale end, and also an athlete skillful in almost any old athletic game that is played, has been chosen on every one of thirty All-American or All-Eastern teams that have been selected the present season. Going further back, it will be found that last season this really remarkable player was chosen on twenty-nine mythical teams, only one of the critics failing to place the Yale star.

Judging from these figures, it would seem that Kilpatrick is the most popular in the gridiron world today. It was his playing that enabled the sons of Eli to triumph over the Princeton Tiger, and it was also largely due to his playing that the sons of John Harvard were unable to defeat the sturdy boys in blue.

Kilpatrick is a wonderful athlete; one of the greatest that Yale's system has turned out, and for years they have been moulding the greatest college athletes of the country. It is very difficult for any one to determine the most popular baseball or football player, and the best rule to follow is choosing the best.

When practically every critic of the East selects this player for his All-American or All-Eastern team, this is pretty certain evidence of the abilities of the athlete. Walter Camp has not announced his famous All-American team as yet, but there are very few who doubt but that the dean of American football will place Kilpatrick on his mind machine. This will be the cinch in the girth binding public opinion to the ability and popularity of Kilpatrick, among the critics of the country at least.

High School Officials Are on Right Track.

FACULTY REPRESENTATIVES OF the Central high school, who have charge of the athletes of the school, announce that hereafter all students trying for any of the athletic teams, will have to secure a doctor's certificate showing good health and absence of organic weakness.

If this plan had been followed in high school and college athletics throughout the country for the past fifteen years or so, there would have been fewer deaths and serious accidents resulting from the game that at the present time is the subject of so much harsh criticism.

Not to compare prize fighting in the least with scholastic or collegiate sports, but merely citing this branch of athletics as an example of the need of thorough medical supervision, it might be stated that had promoters in the past secured this professional opinion of the fitness of two men to engage in a contest, there would have been fewer fatalities in the ring and naturally much less agitation against the sport from all sections of the country.

The Duluth Central high school officials have exercised a clear bit of judgment. Instead of frowning on the game—as have many less broad-minded men in charge of other schools, these officials have chosen rather to exercise sane and sensible methods of safeguarding the players. In this action there is a lesson for some of the collegiate authorities who have failed to use common sense, in an imitation of an effort to help the game.

Jack Has Another Amusing Diversion.

WHO'S LOONEY NOW? THAT IS what Jack Johnson wants to know. Someone, a doctor of something, examined the funny shaped head of the champion and stated that he was dippy. That statement got the cranial angora of the big black. He ran for help.

Down in Chicago he had them put the X-ray machine on his dome of higher reason and psychic research. The medical man glued his intelligent orb on the white ray of light tube and gaped with expanding interest at the contents of the skull of the champ. After several long and scrutinizing looks at the brain area, he informed the champion that he was not crazy.

Since the experiment with the little interior investigator the big black is as tickled as a kid with a new toy. He wants to gaze at the palpitating brains of others, and gazes with growing satisfaction at the photograph of what the X-ray machine showed in his own case. When we find a man so easily satisfied as the holder of the heavyweight title, we are reminded of the days when men carved toys and trinkets out of stone and were vastly and highly amused at the results of their own efforts.

Johnson has the mind of a child, seeking simple pleasures. When one thinks of this strutting negro, with his flashing of $1,000 bills and his speeches before police magistrates, his attempt to break into the limelight upon every possible occasion, it is to laugh—not one of those simple laughs, but a loud guffaw of derision.

Perhaps Tommy Burns Is Through Forever.

YESTERDAY CURLEY ULRICH read with interest that Tommy Burns was through with the ring for good and all. He looked somewhat reminiscent and pondered for a moment. Then he burst forth—"That guy owes me $19 and if I ever see him I am going to ask him for the money."

As Tommy Burns has something in the shape of $100,000 or so, it is mighty ungrateful of him not to pay attention to the debts contracted in the days when the sun shone with less radiance.

"I was rubbing at Harry Gilmore's Chicago bath house and fighting in some of the semi-windups down there, when the Burns boy broke into the game," continued Curley. "There were very few of us at that time who imagined for one shining moment that this rough chap from Detroit would ever be the world's heavyweight champion. He was tough and willing to fight and that is about all you could say for him in those days. Noah Brusso was his name at that time, and he was just one of the bunch, fighting for meal money and glad to go on in a curtain raiser.

"I gave him several rubs—in fact, $19 worth—and I have never seen a cent of the money. I would like to see him, just once more, in order to renew old times—and to buck in for that $19.

"Burns was a well developed, thick-chested youth, and even in those days was fond of the dollar. I think he won the world's championship easier than any other fighter, unless that fighter was Jack Johnson. His gameness in the fight with Johnson gave him a lot of standing with the fight fans, for though he was beaten by the negro his gameness showed that he possessed the fighter's heart, and that is what the people admire."

Old Stars Can't Keep Away From the Game.

THE STORY OF THE APPLICATIONS of Fred Tenney, one of the greatest first basemen that ever hovered around the initial sack, Carl Lundgren, Kid Gleason, Heinie Peitz and Jack Doyle for the position of umpires, brings to mind the familiar story of the old star's inability to keep away from the glare of the game.

Sometimes we wonder why a prize fighter does not retire when everyone in the world knows he is all through and every time he starts he is due for a good licking. Sometimes we wonder why a business man does not quit the game of accumulating money after he has got his millions. The excitement of the game is in their blood; it is as meat and drink to them. The blare, the excitement, the call of the wild, if you will, gets them through the years of work, and then you wonder why they can't retire.

The old ball player will stick to the game until he reaches the lowest rung of the baseball ladder. Battling Nelson won't retire, though he is all through. The veteran wants to be there, even if he is merely ground keeper, and it is not strange that the old stars would like to come back in the game in the role of umpires.

EMERGENCY TEAM GAINS TWO LAPS

In Sensational Sprint Rutt and Clarke Catch Leading Bike Riders.

New York, Dec. 10.—In one of the most exciting series of sprints in the history of Madison Square Garden cycle racing Rutt and Clarke, the emergency team formed in mid-week, early today gained the two laps that separated them from the leaders in the six-day race and were then on even terms with the Root-Moran, Hehir-Gouilet and Fogler-Hill combinations.

The Rutt-Clarke team was three laps in the rear at midnight last night but got back one lap before 2 a. m. Then at 5:30 Rutt shot out from the bunch and in a jiffy had put an extra lap to the credit of his team.

Then, three minutes later, Rutt and Clarke, relieving each other frequently, by some of the hardest and best riding on record and amidst a tremendous demonstration, drew away from the bunch inch by inch until a full lap was to their credit and they were up with the three teams which had been heading the procession.

A gained lap was claimed by Hehir at one time but the judges would not allow it because of the jockeying methods adopted by some of the riders. On this score fines of $25 each were imposed on Clarke, Moran and Hill. Cameron and Moran were mixed up in a tumble in one of the early sprints, but neither was badly hurt. Drobach earlier had broken his collarbone and the Collins-Drobach team was withdrawn.

After 6 o'clock the pace was steadier and at 8 o'clock the relative positions of the riders were unchanged, the score standing:

Hehir-Goullet, Fogler-Hill, Root-Moran and Rutt-Clarke, 2,321 miles, 7 laps; Mitten-Thomas, 2,321 miles, 6 laps; West-Demara, 2,321 miles, 5 laps; Cameron-Halstead, 2,321 miles, 4 laps.

The record is 2,469 miles, 9 laps, made by Demara and Hill in 1908.

ATHLETES MAY NOT COMPETE WITHOUT CERTIFICATE.

At a meeting of the high school boys, who are interested in basket ball, Mr. Shilling announced that a doctor's certificate and permission from the parents were necessary for all participants in any sort of athletics at the high school hereafter.

About thirty boys here handed in their names as candidates for the school team, and Mr. Shilling told the candidates to report for active practice next Monday.

IS JOHNSON NEARING END OF FIGHTING DAYS?

Black Champion Has Given Signs of Loss of Wonderful Health.

Other Great Colored Fighters Have Gone Back Because of Fast Pace.

(By W. W. Naughton.)

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 10.—So Jack Johnson, conqueror of Jim Jeffries and proud possessor of the championship of the world, has developed a case of nerves.

Too bad, isn't it? But while we offer our sympathy to the temporarily rattled ring hero we are wondering whether it is simply a passing jar—a little protest from overtaxed nature—or the beginning of the end, so far as Johnson, the fighter, is concerned.

Collapses Are Sudden.

It will take a little time to tell. The lives of other one-time celebrities in Johnson's line remind us that men of brawn and boxing ability collapse very suddenly sometimes. I have known them to go to pieces like a circlet of beads when the string is broken. And in such cases all the king's horses and all the king's men could not put them back where they were before their "nerves" gave out.

This thing of going to the woods for rest and recuperation—or going to the mountains—sounds very well and has a reassuring ring to some people, but as the young lady remarked when she heard a friend rhapsodizing over a gin guzzler who had reformed, "the fellow who does not have to reform is a safer proposition."

Choice Morsel For Gossip.

Johnson's breakdown, whether passing, partial or complete, is a choice morsel for the gossips just now. It causes a number of questions to arise and the first of these is "What is the matter with Johnson, anyhow?" Is it, as he says, too much work unmixed with relaxation since his triumph at Reno, or has the "pace that kills" claimed another victim?

The pages of pugilistic history make evident that the negro champions cannot assimilate the rewards of victory with as little damage to their systems as do the white kings of the ring. It is only necessary to recall the cases of Peter Jackson and George Dixon to make this argument stick, to say nothing of poor Joe Gans, who probably succumbed to the wear and tear of many training spells rather than to the effect of riotous living.

Negro Fighters Short Lived.

But whatever the cause, many dusky skinned fighters, whose records are still in print, have passed away while the men they fought are still on deck and likely to reach a green old age.

There is a report that fondness of champagne is one of the contributing causes to Johnson's attack of "nerves." I do not know if that is so, but I do know that Jack considered an occasional sip of the vintage. At least such was his claim when explaining the presence of a pint bottle of the "imprisoned laughter" on a table by his side one night at his ocean beach quarters while he was preparing for Jeff. And as other bottles were noticed there on other nights, Jack could claim to be consistent if not sincere.

Now it seems reasonable to suppose that a fellow who considers the blood of the grape beneficial as a training beverage, would so pin his faith to it when battling with the discomforts of one night stands, to say nothing of the difficulty in avoiding the seductive stuff when being dined and supped and paraded as the hope of the black race.

Will He Retire?

Here is another question. If Johnson becomes dubious about the condition of his nerves, what will it mean? Will he abstain from fighting entirely and in addition to enjoying the distinction of being the first negro to gain the heavyweight championship go down in history as the first champion of any complexion who went out of the game undefeated?

There is something in Johnson's attitude toward Sam Langford which suggests that Jack is not what might be called a reckless matchmaker, and a suspicion exists that if he feels he has endured a physical setback he will stay out of the ring and let the championship go by default. If he follows such a course he will be one man in 1,000, however. The champion who isn't imbued with the belief that he has "one more fight" left in him hasn't appeared on earth so far. Sullivan, Corbett, Fitzsimmons, Jeffries—not a one of them was licked until after he had been slowed down by long service and impaired nerve force, and Johnson, if the forging of the chain of destruction is to go on, is expected to test his ability to "come back" along with the rest of them.

Who Will Get the Plum?

If Johnson decides to retire, who will he designate as his successor?

He can't designate anybody, says Mr. Stickler for prize ring ethics, but such things have been done. Jim Corbett willed the title to Peter Maher and old Bob Fitzsimmons, when the opportunity presented itself, knocked Maher down and took it away from him.

It caused complications, of course, for when Fitzsimmons and Corbett met subsequently at Carson different opinions were held as to which man was attacking the championship and which was defending it.

Therefore, I ask again, no matter whether Johnson has a right to toss his laurel wreath to another fighter or not, who will he be likely to name in such a connection?

Doesn't Like Langford.

He does not like Sam Langford well enough to deck him out with any unearned peacock feathers, and if race pride was strong enough in Johnson to impel him to leave the title to a man of his own color, he would probably be beset with the fears that Langford would treat the man of his choice the way Fitzsimmons treated Maher.

It may be for that matter that Johnson would prove selfish enough to wish to be remembered as the only negro that held the heavyweight championship and that he would resign in favor of some pale face brother. Who can tell?

COLLAPSE CAUSES LITTLE SURPRISE

New York, Dec. 10.—News from Chicago of the reported collapse of D. A. Fletcher's "third league" movement caused little surprise and seemingly less regret in baseball circles here today. It was understood that Fletcher had reached some kind of an understanding with the leaders in control of organized baseball.

Discussion in this connection now chiefly centers on the status of the star players who signed optional contracts with the outlaw organizations promoter. One of these men is Russell Ford, the premier twirler of the Highlanders. Ford is said to have had a chance to sign a $4,800 contract with Owner Frank Farrell for 1911 but instead put his name to the $5,000 Fletcher option. There is considerable interest now in the terms the young slabman will make with the American league.

DE ORO HAS COME BACK

Cuban's Defeat of Keogh Shows Complete Reversal of Form.

Several Years Ago Present Pool Champion Looked Down and Out.

"Do they ever come back?" Well, Millicent, that depends. For instance, there's old "Doc Cook; he's not back, but he threatens to come back and spend the holidays in Brooklyn, which is our idea of a bad way to come back.

And Millicent, there's Alfredo de Oro, the greatest pool player that ever caressed a cue. He came back in New York with a vengeance, rewinning the continuous pool championship of the world from Jerome Keogh of Buffalo, N. Y., after quite a prolonged absence from the baise cloth.

And in rewinning his pool laurels, De Oro shattered his own old high run record, making 81, without a break as against 79, which was his former world's record.

From the press dispatches, De Oro exceeded his old spectacular self. Against Keogh he ran five straight frames and a part of the sixth, which is going much in pool.

The last block of 200 points in the 600-point match, started with Keogh 30 points ahead of De Oro, the score being Keogh 411, De Oro 381. But De Oro ran up 219 to Keogh's 59, making a total for the three nights' play of 600 to 470.

The Cuban marvel played in wonderful form. From the ninth to the sixteenth inning he played alone, establishing his new world's record. He rounded out the necessary 219 points in twenty innings, which gave him the match.

The victory marked the eleventh time that De Oro has won the world's championship at pool. He is also the three-cushion champion of the world.

De Oro has beaten Keogh several times beaten Tommy Hueston, Cowboy Weston, Frank Brumby, Frank Sherman, Billy Clearwater, Stofft of Cleveland, Johnny Kling, "Banker" Horgan, and every great pool player in the world.

The Cuban for years has been the greatest pool player in the world and it is very doubtful if the world ever saw his equal, or when he passes, will ever see another pool player with as much class as De Oro.

De Oro's life reads like a page from one of Dumas' books. Born in the purple and brought up on a silver spoon, the De Oro's, one of the old Loyalist families of Cuba, never expected Alfredo to turn pool player. They had it all planned out for young De Oro to become a sort of courtier or diplomat. The De Oro's stood well with the Royalists of Spain, and Alfredo was intended to do bright honors in the royal service.

De Oro's parents were among the wealthiest and most cultured of Cubans. They had great tobacco plantations in Manzanillo, Cuba.

Young Alfredo was bundled up and sent to a preparatory school in New York. It was later intended to send Alfredo to the university at Seville, but when De Oro had been in New York a few days he happened into a billiard parlor. He took up a cue, played a few frames and was so fascinated with the sport that he devoted his time to the game and gave up all idea of the other life his parents had intended for him. He had not been playing two years when he beat both Frey and Malone and became the title holder.

In the old days De Oro was a splendid type of the physical. He has always been a splendid type of the mental and moral. But while De Oro was yet in his prime serious illness necessitated several capital operations and it was thought that he could never play pool again.

De Oro's abdomen was cut so often that when he tried to play pool again he found it necessary to bolster himself up with great padded cushions. From an athletic man of 200 pounds he fell away to a puny invalid of slightly more than 100 pounds.

When they held the famous "World's Fair" tourney in St. Louis in 1904, De Oro attended that tournament, forcing himself from a cot in a New York hospital to Frank Benson's billiard hall. He was so far gone in health that he had to take stimulants to participate in the tournament, but he managed to play and play in such brilliant form that he won that tournament, and there were such great players as Keogh, Eby, Clearwater, Sherman, Weston, Hueston and Brumby in it. The tournament ended in a three-cornered tie between Hueston, Keogh and De Oro. De Oro beat Hueston and Keogh in the play-off. It was in the final game of this tourney that De Oro established his former world's record of 79 against Keogh.

Probably De Oro played the greatest game of pool ever played in the world in his final effort in the St. Louis tournament against Keogh. The Cuban had 84 points to go to win the final game, while Keogh had to pocket only four balls to make himself the champion.

By the greatest stroke of pool genius ever shown on a pool table, De Oro managed to gather his 84 points, while Keogh could not pocket a ball.

De Oro has always seemed to have Keogh "buffaloed." Somehow or other, Keogh can beat other great players, but De Oro always holds him safe, ties his hands and makes him look like a novice in the stretch runs for honors.

So brilliant was De Oro's playing against Keogh in the St. Louis tournament that several of the current magazines sent special representatives to write articles about the Cuban.

There have been plenty of crack pool players in the world, but the equal of De Oro has never been known. He's always been in a class by himself.

DULUTH WINS FROM CLEVELAND

Roy Deetz Scores Only Point of Game After Sensational Play.

Cleveland, Ohio, Dec. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—In the opening game of the series here last night, the Northern hockey team of Duluth defeated the Cleveland seven by the score of 1 to 0. The game was played in the Elysium, and was witnessed by an immense crowd.

The only score of the game came after five minutes of play in the second half. Getting the puck near the center of the rink, Deetz with good team assistance upon the part of Bartlett and Jones, took the rubber through the Cleveland defense and lifted it into the net. The play that resulted in the score was the feature of the game.

Until the very last minute the Cleveland players fought hard to stem the tide of defeat. Shot after shot was made, but clever blocking by Cummings and Deetz, and the great goal play of Fenton saved the day for the Northern visitors. The Duluth boys were elated over their victory, as they have only played a few games this season.

CURLING CLUB TEAM JOINS CITY LEAGUE.

Yesterday it was decided to enter the hockey team of the Duluth Curling club in the City Amateur league. The decision of the skating committee of the club means that there will be six rinks in the organization. The curling club seven, the Fairmonts, Big Duluths, Park Points, Adams and Kodaphas will make up the organization. The games of the Curling club team will be played on the club's rink. The entrance of the curling club team will strengthen the city league, will add more interest to hockey, and and in every way will assist materially in making the present season the most prosperous the game has ever known at the Head of the Lakes.

GAME IS DEAD, SAYS JOHN L.

Sullivan Says Crookedness and Johnson Supremacy Have Ruined Fighting.

Chicago, Dec. 9.—That old gladiator and landmark of the prize ring, John L. Sullivan, blew into Chicago yesterday from Kansas City and beginning next Monday will open a two weeks' theatrical engagement at West side theaters. Sullivan was accompanied by his bride of less than a year, who was a sweetheart of boyhood days. He talked freely of the fight situation while he sat in his room at the Congress hotel and pulled on a finely colored meerschaum pipe.

John L. is convinced that fighting is dead in this country, and said the only way it can be resurrected is to have some strong, young fellow of 22 or 23 years of age come along, wrest the title from Jack Johnson, and then fight on the square while he is in possession of the championship. Sullivan believes that crooked fighting has killed the game in America and that no fair minded person can blame the authorities for putting a stop to it.

Crooks Should Be Barred.

"In my mind, the persons who pull off three crooked deals in this country, no matter whether it be in fight, turf, baseball, or anything else, should be dealt with just as they are in France and England," said John L. "Over there, when the crooks are caught they are forbidden to mix any further in sports, and I think such a thing should exist in this country.

"Why, I can name over a hundred crooked fights in which the public has been fleeced, including the last big fight we had in this country. I mean the fiasco at Reno between Johnson and Jeffries. It was the biggest farce I ever saw or heard of in the history of the prize ring. Jeffries never wanted to fight the negro, and he was so scared when he crawled into the ring that a third or fourth rater woud have handed him the same dose as Johnson did. Jeffries was not knocked out, but he simply quit, and all the stories which have been printed to the effect that he was doped are erroneous. In my mind, Jeffries never was a game fighter, and I saw a number of his fights. Why, my wife saw the pictures of that fight, and she said it looked like a hugging match or the beginning of a waltz.

No Superior of Negro.

"We have no fighter known to the pugilistic world today who can beat Johnson, but time wil give us a man who will turn the trick. Since he beat Tommy Burns for the championship in Australia I am firmly convinced that Johnson is on the level, but I know he was not before. It was unfortunate for Jack that he was handled by persons who would tell him to let his opponents stay so long or he would not get anything. At that time things were not breaking the best for Johnson and he had to abide by their demands in order to live. This I know is true but I think Johnson will be on the level as long as he is independent."

"I was sorry to see Battling Nelson lose to Owen Moran for I believe the Battler was one of the gamest boys that ever stepped into the ring. He simply is an example of a fighter whose vitality had left him and he did not have the physical energy to carry out what the mind ordered. The heart was there, but the strength had flown. This period is sure to come to every man who takes part in any kind of sport and I am sorry Nelson did not quit the game when he lost his title to Wolgast.

Hopes to Meet Johnson.

"I am going to try to meet Johnson before I leave town and have a little talk with him for he certainly treated me with more respect than any member of the Jeffries camp when they were training at Reno."

HALLOCK BOYS HAVE FORMED HOCKEY TEAM.

Hallock, Minn., Dec. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—Local boys have organized a hockey team and the first clash will come next week when they play Warren. Chester Gunnarson, one of the players from the star team of two years ago, has been chosen captain, and C. I. Moore, manager. The following is the present lineup: Richard Rustad, right wing; Chester Fowler, left wing; Chester Gunnarson, center; Oscar Anderson, rover; Henry Lindegard, cover point; Alfred Pearson, point; Helge Olson, goal.

A league between the neighboring teams at Lancaster, St. Vincent, Emerson, Pembina and Warren has been talked of and the matter will be decided next week.

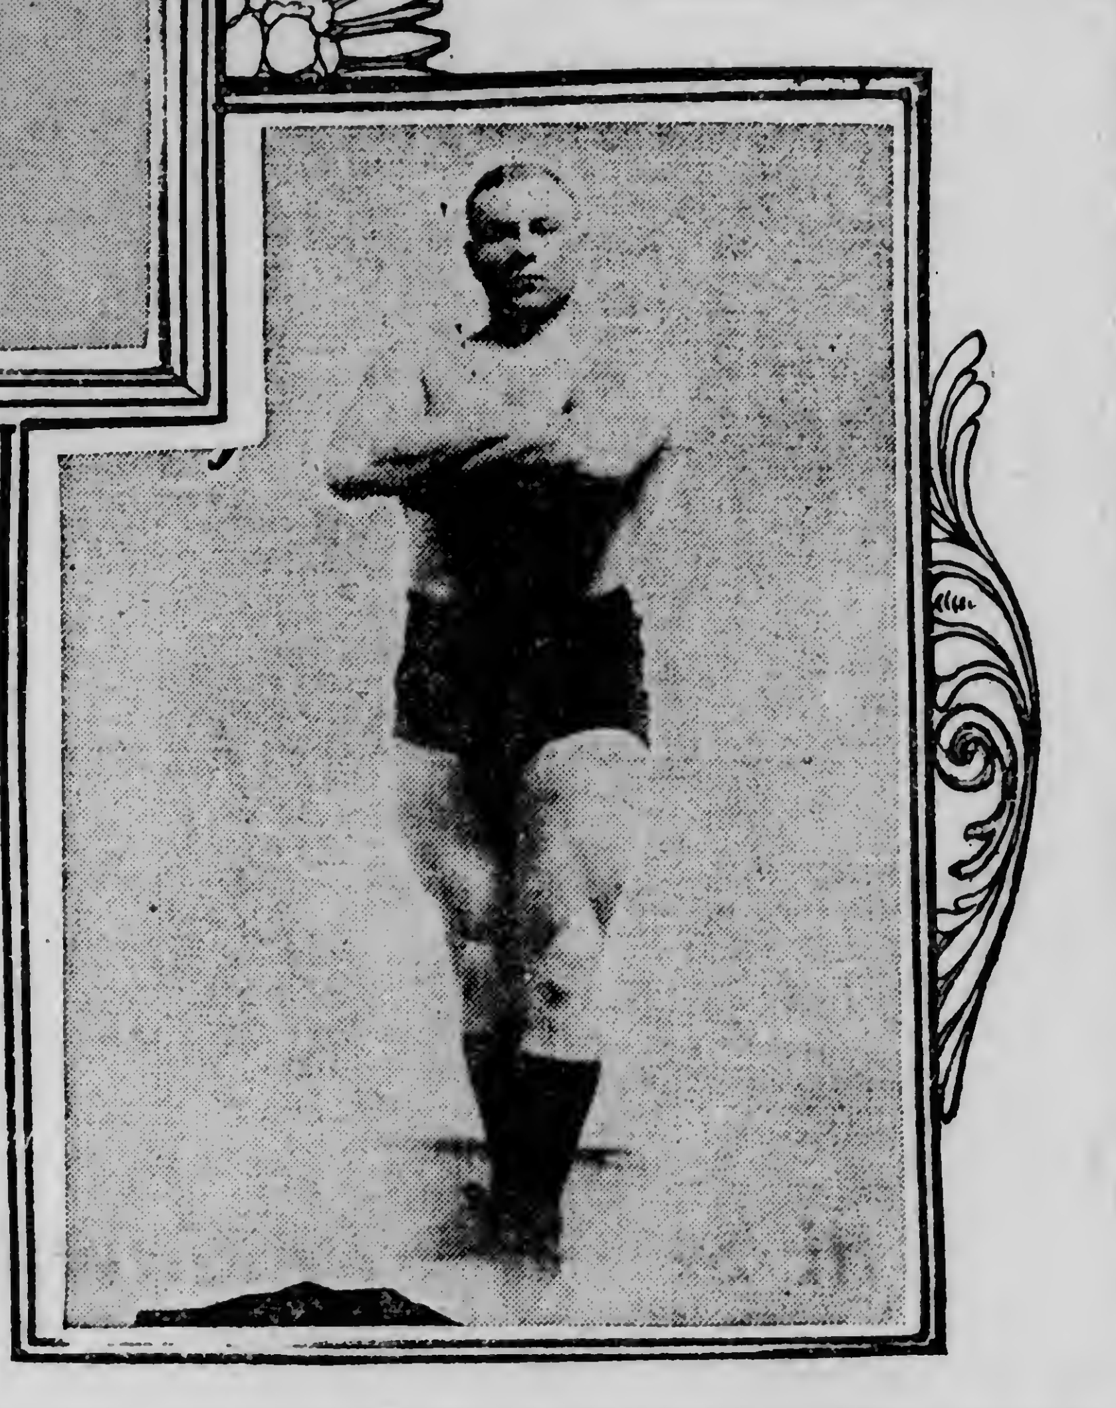
KARL LEHTO, THE FINNISH CHAMPION, AND TWO VIEWS OF GEORGE HACKENSCHMIDT, "THE RUSSIAN LION"



Tuesday evening George Hackenschmidt, the famus Russian Lion, who has defeated every wrestler of any fame in civilized Europe, will make his first appearance in this part of the country.

The big Russian, hailed as the strongest man in the world, will wrestle to a finish, Karl Lehto, the young Finnish giant who has gained so great a reputation in so short a space of time.

While even the most sanguine of the many Finnish friends of the young wrestler can hardly hold the hope of victory, it is believed here that Lehto will make a great showing against the man who has been making one grand triumph of his tour of the country.

As a physical man, there is no athlete in the world today who possesses the really marvelous development of the Russian Lion. His measurements have been the wonder of students of physical proportions, and yet with his immense development of limb and body, the Russian wrestler is said to be unlike the other giants produced by the wrestling game of Europe, in that he is surprisingly quick and active on his feet.

In Europe the name of Hackenschmidt has long been one that spelled absolute supermacy in the wrestling field. The students of the game on the other side have for some years believed the Russian simply invincible. Then came the sensational Chicago victory of Frank A. Gotch; a victory that surprised even the most loyal friends of the able Iowan. Since that time the American students of the grappling game have realized what a great master of the mat game America has in the person of the farmer from Humboldt, Iowa.

In meeting the European strong man, Lehto will be going up against the biggest game of his career. He has wrestled Zbyszko, one of the greatest wrestlers in the world today, even though he was defeated by Frank A. Gotch, but the Russian athlete is believed by the majority of close followers of the game to outclass the Pole.

In his physical makeup Hackenschmidt seems to have no weak parts. His mighty thews and sinews are awe-inspiring to the average man. He seems to represent that link of the past, when history tells us that man were mighty giants, performing miraculous feats of physical strength and endurance.

His proportions are greater than those of Gotch, and while not weighing as much as the giant Zbyszko, he is of finer athletic mould. He is one of the greatest modern examples of physical development, and we are told that much of his development has resulted from sysmtematic and intelligent exercise of every muscle of his body.

In addition to his wonderful skill and strength on the mat, Hackenschmidt is one of the greatest, if not the greatest weight lifter in the world. He holds several world's weight lifting records, and only recently offered to break any record that a committee should select.

That he has been able to develop such tremendous strength and at the same time possess athletic skill and speed—a combination strange indeed,—has been the wonder of students of physical development and athletics.

Since the retirement of Sandow this man has come to be looked upon as the most perfect man that this age has produced.

Hackenschmidt's victory over Jess Westergaard, the big Des Moines grappler, removes one more from the list of high class men the Russian is meeting with the hope of a match with Gotch, should the Iowan come out of retirement, which he says he won't. Ordemann and Cutler are about the only men who oppose the progress of Hackenschmidt, unless the promoters decide to take Mahmout back in their graces again.

Mahmout is one of the greatest wrestlers in the world. But he played crooked, and in line with the policy to purge the game of all wrestlers who engage in questionable practices, the Bulgarian has been barred for the time being. Therefore it would seem that "Hack" is one step nearer the throne of his ambition—a desire to wrestle Gotch.

By his remarkable string of sensational victories, that have extended from New York city to the heart of the West, Hackenschmidt is showing that he is a human horse for work. He has been showing the greatest form of his wonderful career on the mat; a career that has taken him to every large city in the civilized world, that enabled him to wrestle in private before the czar of Russia and has made him today the most talked of athlete and most marveled at wrestling champion in the world.

Negotiations are on at the present time for a meeting between Hackenschmidt and Henry Ordemann. This match will probably be held in Chicago or Minneapolis. If the big Russian throws the Minneapolis Norsk, who is placed at the head of the American school, he will have a clear title to the world's championship, barring the retired farmer.

When you come to think of it, Hackenschmidt is the only famous wrestler of the foreign stars whom Gotch has not flattened on the mat. The belief that he can defeat Hackenschmidt and show the wondering wrestling world that he is the absolute master of the strong man of Europe, would be the only consideration that could possibly induce Gotch to leave the fertile Iowa acres.

It is Hackenschmidt and Gotch, and Duluth will see in this wonderful man perhaps the highest development ever seen in wrestler, boxer, weight lifter or all-around strong man. He represents the highest type of physical development, a wonderful example of persistent and systematic exercise.

IN THE MOTOR WORLD

MANY ELECTRICS ARE BEING SOLD

This Class Has Featured Local Auto Market During the Week.

One surprising feature of the week in auto circles has been the large number of electrics sold. This shows that people are getting over the speed bug and are now looking for a quiet, easy-running, conveyance for use on the streets, to the theater, on shopping tours and the like.

Those who have not owned automobiles up to this time will not, of course, have anything but a gasoline car. They figure that any man with real blood in his veins wants a car that will get there and back again, quickly.

Those who have owned automobiles are the ones who are now buying the classy looking electrics. Some of them resemble the gasoline runabout, in fact, many of them are made to resemble the gasoline car purposely. Then there is the surrey and the enclosed, cab-like, aristocratic looking conveyance. All styles are popular.

Some gasoline cars are being sold too. They are mostly in the class that sells from $1,000 to $1,700. Duluth dealers report that prospects are good for 1911, much better, they say, than on the eve of the 1910 season.

Several new cars have lately been seen on the streets. New agencies are being established. Among the more noticeable of the new cars are the Locomobile and the Regal.

AUTO PRICES WILL BE LOWER

Manufacturers State That Profits Have Been Shaded to Minimum.

During the past two or three years many predictions have been made by persons both inside and outside of the trade to the effect that there will be a tremendous slump in automobile prices soon and this idea has become generally prevalent.

The December number of The Cycle and Automobile Trade Journal, an automobile publication, furnishes abundant evidence of the unlikeliness of a general reduction in automobile prices. This magazine devotes, in its current issue, considerable space to editorials and letters written by the leading men of the automobile industry upon the generally predicted fall in prices. These men present striking unanimity of opinion that prices are not going to be lowered. And more than an expression of opinion, good, clear, cogent reasons are given, facts of much interest to those who have given the subject even a passing thought. James Artman sums up the situation as follows:

"As with any industry, the first prices were high, and as methods and machinery became perfected the cost lowered. This attracted a lot of 'get rich quick' operators, who have found that it isn't as easy as they thought. The failure of some of these promoters has dumped some cars on the market at a low figure, as has been the policy of some short-sighted manufacturers in not taking into account the inevitable over-production of automobiles caused by the phenomenal growth of the business, and reducing their own output to avoid over-stocking. The necessity for moving this over-stock has placed many cars upon the market at low prices.

"Today the automobile manufacturer is giving far better value than could be obtained three years ago for the same price. That is, practically a reduction in price, is the only reduction the automobile trade will see, seems the inevitable conclusion."

BIG YEAR FOR CYCLE RACERS

Motor Racing in 1911 Promises to Be Very Popular.

Bigger and better things are promised for the motorcycle racing game next season. This promise is held out to followers of the sport in the constantly swelling ranks of professional motorcycle racers. Professionals are bobbing up in every state—amateurs and trade riders who have been tempted by the cash prizes hung up at various race meets.

With the increasing number of professional riders will come larger prizes, the ranks of the professionals growing in proportion to the prizes offered. Now that the ball has been started, it is expected to do some tall rolling before the end of next season, and that the summer of 1911 will find a great body of active professionals in competition for prizes that are really worth while.

This increase in professionalism is viewed with favor by officers of the Federation of American Motorcyclists. President Fred I. Willis of Indianapolis, having no hesitancy in giving the professional his aproval.

"It will not be long in my opinion," said President Willis, "before there will be a great number of professional riders in the F. A. M. ranks."

DAVID HUNT, JR., WILL BE MISSED

Was Well Versed in Every Branch of the Automobile Industry.

The tragic death in a hunting accident of David Hunt, Jr., manufacturing manager of the E. M. F. company of Detroit, removes from the automobile industry a man intimately versed in machine tools and their use in a plan of production.

Mr. Hunt, before his connection with the E. M. F. company and the automobile industry, was known to fame as a Harvard athlete of 'varsity attainments in football and baseball.

SHAW'S ESTATE FOUND TO BE $23,000,000.

Boston, Mass., Dec. 10.—That Quincy A. Shaw of Boston, late president of the Calumet & Hecla Mining company, left an estate of $23,000,000 instead of one of but $7,541,133, as indicated, in the inventory filed with the probate court after his death, disclosed by a bill in equity filed by the trustees of the estate in the supreme court. The bill asks the court to decide whether Boston is entitled to the entire tax on the property, or whether it should be divided among nearby cities and towns.

WOMEN SERVE ON JURY IN SAN FRANCISCO COURT.

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 10.—A jury of twelve women sat in a superior court yesterday, when Judge Graham summoned that number of fair spectators to pass on a modification of a decree of divorce whereby Mrs. Mary A. Black acquired the custody of her minor son from Owen A. Black.

There were fourteen women present and the two that failed to get in the jury box expressed much disappointment. Not being accustomed to jury service, the women failed to await instructions of the court and agreed on a verdict without leaving the box. The court order was entered in accordance with this verdict.

MINNESOTA UNIVERSITY

Dean Woods Wants $1,000,000 for the Agricultural Experiment Stations.

Forty-Five Students on Probation and Ten Dropped From Rolls.

Minneapolis, Minn., Dec. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—Dean Albert F. Woods of the agricultural department will ask the board of regents for an appropriation of $1,000,000 for the experimental stations at Crookston, Grand Rapids and Morris, and the fruit-breeding farm at Excelsior. He will also ask for two new dormitories, one for the men, the other for the girls. A new engineering building that will provide offices and laboratories as well as additional class room space, to be connected with the promised engineering shop is included in the proposal. To assure a unified plan the request provides for the services of an architect to design a great university farm as Cass Gilbert did the greater campus.

Rifle Team Practicing.

The Minnesota rifle team, which is to be entered in the intercollegiate league by Capt. Butts, is being coached by Charles Rydell, a sophomore medic. More than twenty men have been practicing every day with the guns. Rydell, who seems to be the best shot has prepared the guns and shows the men the proper positions and methods of loading and firing. He says it will take about four weeks of shooting to pick the best men.

Students on Probation.

Forty-five students have been put on probation until Christmas and ten have been dropped from the class rolls by the student work committee. Over half of these are sophomores and upper classmen, while the freshmen are showing a better average than usual this year. There are more men than women on the list and the apparent reason for failure in most cases is general carelessness.

Evangelistic Bands.

At the request of the state committee of the Y. M. C. A., the University Y. M. C. A. is making arrangements for the appointment of two evangelistic bands for work during the holidays. This plan has been followed in former years with great success. The intention is to have one band go to Buffalo, Minn., and the other to Lyon county in the lower part of the state. Several men have already volunteered their services.

The Campus Extension.

After more than five years of dreaming and planning on the part of University authorities, alumni and friends of the university, the extension of the campus promises to be a tangible reality in the very near future. The last payment for lot purchases was made last week and a complete report of all transactions relating to the matter has been submitted to the board of regents, showing that $876,087.20 has already been expended on the project.

The Summer School.

A recommendation for more advanced courses to be given during the summer season of the university has been made by Dean G. F. James of the college of education and head of the summer school courses in the colleges of medicine, engineering and agriculture are mentioned as offering subjects of value and interest to teachers of the state and as there is a demand from experienced teachers for advanced work in their chosen lines, Dean James urges that an opportunity be given them to take the work by extending the courses of the summer school. Separate courses are to be maintained at the agricultural college for those engaged in rural school training and for those candidates for teaching without experience, in order to avoid congestion on the main campus.

Course in Nursing.

With the completion of the new Elliott Memorial hospital in February, the course of training young women for nursing will be greatly augmented at the university. The department will be in charge of Miss Louise M. Powell, formerly superintendent of nurses at Columbia university. The course will take three years, the first four months being probatory. Only high school graduates over 20 years of age will be admitted to this course. They must first undergo a physical examination to determine their physical fitness for the work. Those passing the examinations will, in this new and fully equipped hospital have facilities for learning the most modern methods of nursing.

Girls' New Dormitory.

The girls' new dormitory at the agricultural school was completed last week and fifty girls have moved into the new hall. Besides the students' rooms the building contains a suite of three rooms for the matron and a hospital ward equipped with all modern appliances situated that it could be quarantined if necessary.

University Book Store.

Plans for a university book store to be operated by and for the students have been dropped for the present. The students who have been working on the plans, after detailed investigation, have found out that such stores in existence at many large universities are successful. There is no doubt but such a store would be a great success here, as the student body is very much in favor of the plan. But there would be very little compensation for those who gave their time and labor to the enterprise and consequently the idea has been dropped.

Smoking Among Students.

Investigations recently made by Dr. Cooke show that smoking among the students of universities is increasing. He says, "Statistics from Clark college show that 46 per cent of the students smoked and 26 per cent of the smokers wore athletics insignia, to 16 per cent of the non-smokers. But 18 per cent of the smokers won scholarship honors while 68 per cent of the non-smokers gained distinction in that field. Of 111 smokers 42 per cent belonged to fraternities, while of 108 non-smokers, but 15 per cent were members of Greek letter societies.

Conference Track Meet.

Minnesota is practically certain of landing the 1911 conference track meet for Northrop field. Members of the Chicago board said that the "Big Eight" colleges would in all probability accept the Gopher invitation for next spring and carry the big carnival to Minnesota.

Men's Fencing Class.

The forming of the men's fencing class early this fall has resulted in a live agitation among the girls for a similar class. A club of ten girls has already been formed for the purpose of encouraging fencing among their sex. The class will be instructed one hour a week by M. La Rue, who has charge of the men's class.

George G. Ainslee, '08, has resigned his position as assistant professor of entomology at Clemenson college, S. C., and has returned to government work with the United States bureau of entomology.

"The suggestion that a male chorus be organized at Minnesota is a good one, provided it could be worked out," said Frank Goodman, president of the Glee club. "In theory the proposition sounds good, but I doubt if it could be made a success in the light of conditions existing on the campus today. Organizations are too numerous already and whether enough men musically inclined could be interested in such a project is questionable."

FROM THE MINES AND THE SMELTERS

BUILDS BINS FOR MIAMI ORE

Greene-Cananea Has Installed Extra Equipment to Handle Concentrates Expected to Arrive After New Year—Moctezuma Tonnage Smaller.

Cananea, Mex., Dec. 10.—Ore bins of 500 tons capacity are being built by the Cananea Consolidated Copper company, Greene-Cananea, to receive Miami concentrates. Deliveries under the contract recently made with the Miami Copper company for the smelting of concentrates at Cananea are expected to start about Jan. 1.

A favorable contract for fuel oil has been made with a California concern, and hereafter Cananea Consolidated will use the California instead of the Texas product. The company has a concession from the Mexican government for the free importation of fuel oil. The present consumption is about 800 barrels daily, and with the completion of the new reverberatory and the additions to the power plant, this will be materially increased.

Nacozari, Mex., Dec. 10.—It is estimated that the total of ore handled this year at the big concentrator of the Moctezuma Copper company (Phelps-Dodge) will not exceed 450,000 tons, or about 60,000 tons less than in 1909. Due to scarcity of water at the end of the long dry season this year, the concentrator was operated at half capacity for some time. So far this year the Pilares ore has averaged a little better than 3 per cent copper.

Two aerial tramways to carry the tailings to new storage grounds will be in operation before the end of the year. Up to this time the tailings have been dumped in the bed of the Nacozari river, just below the concentrator. The tailings average about ½ per cent copper.

Mexico City, Mex., Dec. 10.—The American Smelters Securities company is adding a 500-ton furnace to the smelting plant at Matehuala, state of San Luis Potosi, purchased early this year from the National Metallurgical company of Denver. The purchase also included a number of mines in the Matehuala district, hydro-electric plants and a valuable water system. The new furnace will give the Guggenheim concern a smelting capacity at Matehuala of 800 tons daily.

The Dolores copper mines, one of the important properties in the Matehuala district, has been owned by the Guggenheim interests for a number of years. Prior to the purchase of the Matehuala plant, the high-grade ore was shipped to the Guggenheim smelter at Aguascalientes, and the low grade shipped to Matehuala. A great part of the supplies for the new smelter will be drawn from the Dolores.

ORE RESERVES ARE IMMENSE

Properties in Butte, Which Were Supposed to Be Worked Out, Now Have Larger Bodies of Pay Rock Than Ever.

Helena, Mont., Dec. 10.—The mineral production of Montana for the year ending Nov. 30 is estimated at $55,000,000, according to the annual report of State Mine Inspector William Walsh, submitted to Acting Governor W. R. Allen. The chief metal mined was copper. In the mining industry in Montana during the year, 14,500 men were engaged and the total number of fatal accidents was fifty-one, giving a ratio of fatal accidents per 1,000 men of 3.6.

Embodied in the report is the review of the Butte district by Deputy Inspector W. B. Orem. Mr. Orem says that despite the depression which has prevailed, the Butte mines have produced their usual output of former years. Development work was suspended by most of the new companies. The few exceptions have become producers during the year, thereby enlarging the district and encouraging other development companies operating in the same locality. The general condition in the district seems to be improving, and it is thought by him that many of the companies will resume in the near future. Many of them, he says, have reached the stage of development which, with an additional depth of 100 or 200 feet of shaft sinking, and the necessary drifting and cross-cutting, will probably put them in the producing class. Continuing, the deputy says that the year just closed has witnessed some wonderful developments in the large properties at the lower levels, showing a continuation of ore bodies, and the values still maintained. Consequently there is no question as to the future of the camp.

Mines which were supposed to be worked out have larger ore reserves than ever. Mines that were prospected until last year, but now numbered among the producers are the Black Rock, Davis-Daly, Tuolumne and Badger. With some of the new producers comes a new character of ore, containing most of its values in zinc. Large zinc deposits are being developed in the northern part of this district, and also in the southern. Some of the ore carries lead and iron, which is necessary for furnace treatment. W. A. Clark has installed a plant for the treatment of zinc ores in the Elm Orlu, giving good results. The general method of mining in the district is up to standard. He predicts a decided change soon for the better, respecting mine ventilation. He favors a shaft separate from the hoisting shaft as the best means of ventilation, and that every property should have its own air shaft.

COLORADO TUNNEL RESULTS

Newhouse Bore Offers Vast Wealth at Depth—With the Roosevelt Drainage Tube It May Open Up $500,000,000 in Gold.

Colorado Springs, Colo., Dec. 10.—The completion of the Newhouse tunnel has inaugurated a new era in Gilpin county mining fields. The length of the tunnel is 21,968 feet. It starts below Idaho Springs, crosses the mines of Russel Gulch, Quartz Hill and the Nevadaville section, cutting the veins at 1,500 to 1,800 feet below the surface, and is now draining those sections. The terminal of the tunnel is the property of the Tunnel Mining company within the limits of Central City. For months the tunnel force has been drifting on the main vein of this company toward the deep shaft, where connections will be made and the properties drained. Operation of the mines will then be carried on. The $125,000,000 of mineral production credited to that region in the last fifty years can be duplicated within the next twenty years because of the tunnel.

The combined wealth of mineral opened by the Roosevelt tunnel at Cripple Creek and the Newhouse tunnel is estimated by experts at approximately $500,000,000. It is probable that this much ore can be extracted from mines now flooded but being unwatered by the two tunnels, within the next twenty-five years.

Seattle parties have leased for three years the cyanide mill of the Isabella Mines company, Cripple Creek, and will treat dump and low grade mine ores. The Lee and other shafts are yielding seventy cars of $20 ore per month.

The Jack Pot properties, Cripple Creek, are being worked by eleven sets of lessees, nearly all of whom are shipping ore averaging $17.50 a ton. During the quarter ended Nov. 12, the production was 1,947 tons, netting the company $4,988.06 in royalties. The company is prospecting ground at the

STRIKE IN THE GOLDSMITH

Rich Showing at Walkerville, Mont., Property—Favorable Reports on Operations of Corbin-Metals Company Keating's Earnings Are Increasing.

Helena, Mont., Dec. 10.—One of the most important strikes in Silver Bow outside Butte in recent years has been made in the Goldsmith, a Walkerville property, adjoining the old Moulton. The highest grade of ore runs from 500 to 600 ounces of silver and about $150 in gold, with significant traces of copper. The second-class runs from 250 to 300 ounces of silver and $50 to $60 in gold, and the lower grade from fifty to sixty ounces of silver and about $6 in gold to the ton. The vein is approximately five feet wide and the ore extends almost entirely across its face. The depth at which ore is now being mined is 100 feet, although the vein was first encountered at sixty feet. The Goldsmith is by no means a new property; it is estimated that it has yielded $1,500,000 since 1885, when first located. The discovery of the new body in a supposedly worked-out property has created a new feeling respecting the district made famous by the Alice, Moulton and other properties. The mine is owned by C. W. Ellingwood of Butte.

Favorable reports are received here concerning the operations of the Corbin Metals company in the Corbin district. The company has entered into a contract with the Missouri River Power company of this city for power for five years. The ore body has been drifted on for 250 feet, insuring a practically unlimited supply of metal for the concentrator which is to be erected in the spring. The ore body is forty feet wide in places and a general assay shows $14 to the ton, as follows: Copper, 2 per cent; lead, 10 per cent, and silver, 6 ounces.

Articles of incorporation of the Davis Copper Company of Missoula have been filed by L. M. Davis, T. E. Booth and F. Davis; authorized capital, $100,000; properties are in Sanders county.

A body of exceptionally rich gold ore has been found on the Nevada creek side of Ogden mountain in the northern part of this county in a property being developed by Dr. J. S. Marshall of Durand, Mich. Another mining concern, composed of Helena and Helmsville residents, has let the contract for a ten-stamp mill to crush ore taken from an adjoining property on the same mountain. The mountain is said to have a number of well-defined gold leads. Marshall's company is to start its mill immediately. Other claim owners have resumed

TO DEEPEN TUOLUMNE SHAFT

Work of Sinking to 2,000 Feet Will Begin at Once—New Steel Gallows, Frame and Hoist Ordered—North Butte Development Work Continues to Be Gratifying.

Butte, Mont., Dec. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—The official announcement of the settlement of the dispute as to ground between the North Butte and Tuolumne Mining companies has been made, and it turns out to be, as predicted in these columns, the Tuolumne has been conceded a certain portion of the disputed ground, and an agreement has been signed by the representatives of both companies dismissing all actions pending or about to be brought. The result of the settlement is very satisfactory to all persons interested, and now places the Tuolumne company in a position where it can go ahead and develop its property on an extensive scale. After the agreement was made known in court and had been approved by the court, a meeting of the directors of the Tuolumne company was held and improvements involving many thousands of dollars ordered. It was decided to place an order immediately for a new steel gallows frame and hoist, new steel ore bins with a capacity of storing 1,500 tons of ore, and other equipment looking to the increasing of the output of the mine. The hoist to be installed will be a first motion and will have a capacity of sinking to 3,500 feet. The shaft, which is at present down 1,400 feet, will be lowered to 2,000 feet, and this work of sinking will be commenced at once. In addition to the improvements mentioned, work will be commenced at once on constructing a spur from the mine to the railway connection, thus doing away with the expense of paying 50 cents a ton for haulage from the mine to the railway and making a saving which will more than pay for the building of the spur in a very short time. It is estimated that it will take five months for the building of the new steel gallows frame and hoist, and in the meantime the company will go right along averaging about 6,000 tons of ore a month. Everything will be so arranged that the new equipment will be installed with only a few days' delay, and after everything is in working order it is expected the Tuolumne will increase its shipments to somewhere in the vicinity of 1,000 tons a month. President Hickey is very much elated over the settlement. "Everything is now settled," said the president, "and as we are free from all litigation of every kind we can go ahead and develop one of the very best mines in the whole West. I have no fear of the future." There has been some talk of the Tuolumne company declaring a dividend, but the question will not be considered until the annual meeting in June.

North Butte.

Reports of the development work in the North Butte mine continue to be of a most gratifying character. The company is shipping about 1,200 tons of ore per day and expending in the vicinity of $25,000 a month out of its earnings on new work. The company has adopted the means of paying for its development work by putting back into its treasury for that purpose 70 cents from every ton of ore shipped. A new strike was recently made on the 2,400-foot level and from all reports it is a very valuable one. On the 1,800 and 2,000-foot levels of the Croesus claim the ore runs about 25 per cent silver and 8 per cent copper to the ton. Some months ago, it will be remembered, it was reported that a rich body of ore had been struck through diamond drilling from the Diamond shaft of the Anaconda company, but this was positively denied at the time. Now comes a very positive statement that such is really a fact and that all reports in circulation at the time as to the value of the ore body encountered, are fully substantiated. The ore reserves are steadily increasing and when the time comes the North Butte can easily double its output.

Butte Central.

The sinking of the shaft of the Ophir mine of the Butte Central Copper company is proceeding along at a rapid rate and the development work proceeding on the upper levels of the property is giving such satisfaction that Supt. McConnell is very enthusiastic as to the future. He believes that it is only a question of a short time before the directors will see the necessity for the erection of a mill to treat the silver ore. The Boston officers of the company are being kept informed on the progress of the work.

Butte-Ballaklava.

The work of preparing for the hearing of the suit brought by the Anaconda company against the Butte-Ballaklava company has practically been completed, and according to Secretary Percival of the latter company evidence satisfactory to the company's side of the case has been secured. While the case has been set for the middle of this month it is not believed that the taking of testimony will proceed and it is just possible that it will be the last of the month or early in the new year before the hearing actually takes place, if at all.

Pilot Butte.

In a very short time it is expected that active mining operations will be taken up by the Pilot Butte Mining company, an organization effected some time ago to take over the Pilot mining claim owned by the Pilot Butte Copper Mining company, Thomas F. Murray and William F. Jahn, the former of St. Paul and the latter of Milwaukee, having been in the city in consultation with other directors with a view of making arrangements to start

AT THE LAKE COPPER MINES

Keweenaw County Lands to Be Developed By Calumet & Arizona Interests—Cherokee Locates Copper Ground—Lake Getting Better Results in North Territory—Hancock Preparing for Production.

Houghton, Mich., Dec. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—Interests closely identified with the Calumet & Arizona Mining company are planning a development company to exploit a tract of about 1,500 acres of mineral lands in the Gratiot lake district in Keweenaw county. These lands lie well in the eastern horizon of the Lake Superior mineral belt and on the eastern slope of the Bohemian range, along which a limited amount of exploratory work was done at this point in the earlier years. The new work will be carried on with the aid of diamond drills. The lands are held under option.

Calumet & Arizona.

There has been more or less talk recently of a proposed new holding company to be organized for the purpose of taking over all of the so-called Calumet & Hecla subsidiaries. That steps looking to this end have been undertaken or at least contemplated is officially denied by the Calumet & Hecla management. A prominent mining engineer has been in this district for several weeks past examining the Keweenaw county lands of the Calumet & Hecla company at the instance, it is believed, of a well known exploration and development company, which for some time has shown a desire to get into this district.

Cherokee.

The Cherokee Mining company, operating in the territory just north of the so-called Lake-Indiana district, has succeeded in locating copper ground in what is generally presumed to be the Winona lode. The drill core indicates a width of about thirty feet in this formation at this point, with more or less copper showing throughout. This is the first showing of commercial values obtained in these operations, and is important for that reason rather than for the character of the ground disclosed. Two diamond drills are in service working westward across the property.

Lake.

The Lake Copper company is getting better results in the development work in progress in the north territory, and at the moment is opening ground in that end of the workings comparing favorably with that developed in the south laterals, which have all along yielded much the best showings made in that mine. The improvement north is of particular importance as it is in that direction that the greater part of the company's territory lies. The crosscut from the shaft to the lode at the seventh level has passed through the formation disclosing a width of about 115 feet, the greater part of which is found to carry copper in commercial quantities. The shaft is sinking steadily and has reached the depth where the eighth level will be established. A new compressor house has been built to house the large air compressor recently delivered at the property, and with this in service better progress in development work will follow.

Adventure.

The Adventure Consolidated Copper company continues to center all activity in shaft sinking with the object of reaching the so-called No. 2 lode, apparently the most promising of the three revealed in the exploratory work of two years ago. The shaft has attained a depth of about 1,060 feet, or nearly 100 feet below the No. 1 lode, upon which drifting has not yet begun. The No. 2 lode is calculated to lie around 500 feet below the No. 1 lode and to reach it will require another six to eight months' time at the present rate of sinking.

Hancock.

The Hancock Consolidated Mining company is preparing for production which may be expected to begin soon after the first of the year. The rock output will be small at first, probably not in excess of 500 tons daily, and will be sent to the Centennial-Allouez mill for treatment. The Hancock mill will probably not be built for another year, present plans calling for an extended test at the Centennial mill, with the object of determining the proper method best suited for the treatment of Hancock rock. The results of these experiments will decide the arrangement of the new mill, the plans for which, beyond the interior arrangement, have already been worked out. Development work continues centered in the so-called No. 3 formation of the Hancock series of lodes, and a tonnage well ahead of immediate requirements has been blocked out, the amount of ground made ready for stoping probably reaching 1,000,000 tons. The big vertical shaft, through which this ground will be hoisted is connected

REDUCTION IN MINE OUTPUT

What Has Been Accomplished By the Curtailment of the Copper Output—New Producers of 1911 Will Not Increase the Supply More Than Five Per Cent.

Although the effect of the curtailment in copper production, which was inaugurated by several of the important producing mines last July, has not yet been seen in the monthly refinery reports of the copper producers' association, we figure that the reduction in mine output since July 1 last, has to date amounted to fully 60,000,000 pounds, says the Boston News Bureau.

Owing to the failure of some of the largest producers of the metal to make monthly reports of their production, it is not possible to determine with exactness the extent of the curtailment. The average monthly output for the year previous to July 1 last, was very close to 120,000,000 pounds. The producers of over two-thirds of this amount have, since that time, reported a reduction varying between 10 per cent and 15 per cent. While some of the larger properties are apparently shortening their production by 15 per cent, it is unfair to apply this percentage or anything like it to the total American production as at some important points no shrinkage in output has occurred.

Lake Superior.

At Lake Superior, for instance, there is little or nothing to indicate that the mines in that district are co-operating to any material extent in the restriction program. Many of the producing properties in that district are absolutely prohibited from curtailing by reason of the poverty of their ore bodies. The very low copper recovery now being obtained makes it imperative that the largest possible tonnage shall be treated if anything like a reasonable profit is to be shown on a 13-cent copper market.

Calumet & Hecla is probably contributing as much as all the other Michigan mines put together toward the good of the general copper situation. It is working independently, however, and while it has not agreed to any specific restriction, it is not pushing output, but is taking advantage of the times and the low copper market to make such improvements as its plant as will better enable it, when the price of copper improves, to push production to the limit.

The Shrinkage.

Figured in the rough, we estimate that the output of copper in this country and Mexico is being restricted to the extent of about 13,000,000 pounds per month, or 156,000,000 pounds per annum. A portion of this shrinkage is voluntary and, as in California, for instance, a considerable restriction is forced by reason of local conditions. The apportionment of this 13,000,000 pounds we present below (in pounds):

	Monthly curtailment.
Butte	3,500,000
Lake Superior	500,000
Arizona	2,500,000
Utah	1,500,000
Nevada	1,000,000
California	2,000,000
Miscellaneous	2,000,000
Total	13,000,000

Heavy in Butte.

Of the above 13,000,000 pounds, the Amalgamated Copper company interests, the Utah Copper and Nevada Consolidated companies, together with Phelps-Dodge & Co., are contributing the major portion; in fact, the mines at Butte and the producing porphyry properties are doing more than all the rest of the mines of this country put together to assist in keeping a burdensome surplus off the market.

The Butte mines of the Amalgamated Copper company in June produced over 26,000,000 pounds. The same properties four months later, in October, produced less than 23,000,000 pounds, a reduction of 13 per cent. Utah Copper and Nevada Consolidated each show a reduction of 15 per cent in a comparison of the same two months.

The following table of June and October outputs of the districts, from which monthly reports are available, although by no means embracing the entire production of the districts referred to, shows the percentage of reduction to average about 10 per cent. The table follows, in pounds:

	June.	October.	Per cent dec.
Butte	26,300,000	22,900,000	13.
Lake Sup.	18,800,000	18,500,000	....
Arizona	18,000,000	16,416,000	8.8
Nevada	6,100,000	5,100,000	15.
Utah	8,300,000	7,000,000	15.
Miscellaneous	18,000,000	16,000,000	11.
Totals	95,500,000	85,916,000	10.

New Supplies.

The next most important consideration is the extent of which supplies will be augmented next year by new copper production. Careful estimates have been made and the conclusion reached that the new porphyries, together with the additional output planned by the Utah Copper company, will not, in the aggregate, increase next year's refinery production by over 65,000,000 pounds, a sum equal to but 5 per cent of the American output.

The Utah Copper company, Chino, Ray and Miami, will all contribute to an increased supply of copper in 1911. The Utah Copper company in increasing its plant capacity will probably add 20,000,000 pounds. We tabulate the probable increases as follows:

Utah Copper	20,000,000
Chino	10,000,000
Ray	20,000,000
Miami	15,000,000
Total	65,000,000

Refined Copper.

It should not be understood that the above figures indicate mine output as it is quite possible that the mines of the four companies above mentioned will show an increase of 100,000,000 pounds next year, but the 65,000,000 pounds refers to the estimated amount of copper which it is expected will be put on the market in refined form. It has been recently demonstrated that it takes fully four months from the time it is shipped from the Eastern seaboard refinery in marketable shape.

Under normal conditions of trade an addition of 65,000,000 pounds to the annual output in any one year should not exert a depressing influence, but under conditions of unsatisfactory trade, even this additional output

AT BONANZA CIRCLE MINES

Production in November About Same as Previous Month—Sulphide Continues in the Junction Shaft at Depth of 1,750 Feet.

Bisbee, Ariz., Dec. 10.—The Calumet & Arizona and Superior & Pittsburg companies kept their production for the month of November to the same amount as for October. Forty-two thousand tons of ore was produced by the two companies and the copper output was 4,000,000 pounds. The working forces in all the mines of both companies was kept at the same number as during October.

At the Irish Mag shaft of the Calumet & Arizona mine the development of the body of oxide on the 750-foot level is very encouraging. At the Oliver, the principal work is being done on the 1,350-foot level where the ore body is opening up very satisfactorily. Considerable oxide ore is being opened up on the 900-foot level.

The Briggs and Hoatson are being operated as one mine. Low grade sulphide ore in the Briggs end is showing up very encouragingly, and a large tonnage of this material is being developed.

At the Junction, the sulphide continues in the shaft at a depth of 1,750 feet. The sulphide carries little or no copper at the lowest point. The big ore developments are in the bodies south of the shaft on the 1,300, 1,400 and 1,500-foot levels. The limits of these bodies have not been found and their extent cannot be estimated from the present development on the above mentioned levels.

On the 1,300 level, there is 400 feet of ore north and south opened up, which is the top and 400 feet so far developed on the 1,300-foot level. The north limits of the ore body have been determined, but drifts are still being run in ore on the southerly end.

Some of the ore found in the development work runs as high as 30 per cent copper. The ore in this body is all sulphide and the richest parts are bornite or peacock.

The water at the Junction is draining slowly and the pumps are handling a little less water each day. Two thousand four hundred gallons per minute is being handled from the Junction at this time. The company is planning to put electric pumps on the 1,800-foot level, but the details have not been decided on.

The new compressor for the Junction power house has arrived and the foundation is partly completed. This compressor will handle 5,975 feet of air per minute and will furnish compressed air for all the Superior & Pittsburg mines. At present there is a compressor in operation at the Hoatson and another at the Junction. The new compressor is the second biggest air compressor in the district, the Copper Queen having one slightly larger.

At the Denn mine, the pumps are steadily lowering the water and it has been reduced a little more than 100 feet in the shaft since all the pumps were started that are now working on it. The water is now down about the 1,500-foot level. The Shattuck is steadily developing its ore bodies and the shipments for November were kept up to the same tonnage as during October.

MINES COMPANY OF AMERICA

Expected Dividend Will Be Declared in January, Though Amount Seems Still Undecided By the Management—Earnings Keep Up Well.

New York, Dec. 10.—The Mining Age says: The new Mines Company of America merger, representing the El Rayo mines of America, Dolores and La Dura consolidation, will, it is generally understood, declare a dividend the coming January, but no one has any idea yet as to the size of the disbursement. Some of the directors favor paying 3 per cent quarterly, or 12 per cent annually on par, while others prefer starting on a more conservative basis, at the rate of 2½ per cent quarterly, or 10 per cent for the year.

At the Mines Company of America property at Minas Prietas, where the property has been treating approximately 9,000 tons per month, a contract has been made with the Butter's mill for an increase in treatment of 7,000 tons, bringing the total up to 16,000 tons, or nearly to double its original capacity. At the new La Dura property, which is the mine recently bought, shipments of ore are being made and the company is contributing to the earnings of the Mines company. The plans for the new concentrator, which is soon to be erected, have been drawn up and it is expected that the mill will be in

ALASKA STILL SENDS GOLD

Banks Arrange for Overland Gold Express From Nome via the Iditarod—Cliff Company Sends $1,000 Per Day From Valdez.

Seattle, Wash., Dec. 10.—Belated gold shipments continue to come, in despite the closing of navigation, and bullion will come more or less all winter even from such far away points as Nome, as the banks have arranged for an overland gold express from Nome via the Iditarod, and by this route some $300,000 is even now moving. The Humboldt brought $65,000 from the De Groff quartz mine on Chikagoff island, Southeastern Alaska. The Cliff continues to send better than $1,000 per day from Valdez. The new mills operated on the coast and interior quartz properties next season will add from 2,000,000 to $3,000,000 to the gold output of the territory, which from all indications will make 1911 Alaska's record year. The Koyukuk yielded $350,000 this season, the winter dumps washed during the past season turning out $200,000. The deep channels of Nolan creek contain the phenomenal pay, but it is expensive mining. Chino's custom stamp mill started Nov. 1. Bath, Fairbanks and Chino made it the occasion for a public holiday and celebration.

A new strike has been made at the mouth of Goring creek, a tributary of the Klondike, where four Australians who have been working there some time have opened a pay streak known to be ninety feet wide, and growing wider as they continue to cross it. The gravel is three to five feet thick

MINING IN THE BLACK HILLS

Falling Off of Nearly $2,000,000 in the Production of Gold and Silver This Year, Owing to Labor Troubles.

Deadwood, S. D., Dec. 10.—The annual report of the state mine inspector, Nicholas Treweek, Sr., of Lead, shows a falling off of nearly $2,000,000 in the production of gold and silver in the Black Hills for 1910. This is explained by labor troubles, which caused suspension of nearly all the principal properties for several months. The Homestake, the chief company, was idle until the latter part of January and not working up to full capacity until the middle of March. Others were idle more than half the year; one or two have not yet resumed. The highest figure ever produced in the Hills was about $7,500,000 in 1908.

The total production for the year was $4,921,304, produced by six companies. The Homestake contributed $4,650,000. There were 1,438,408 tons of ore mined and milled and there were 3,150 men employed on the properties, of which the Homestake had 2,900.

There were four fatal accidents and thirteen serious ones.

One of the biggest individual increases was shown in the production of the Westinghouse mica mines near Custer, where the total was 1,856,409 pounds of mica.

After the Homestake, the largest contributors were the Golden Reward and Mogul. The Wasp No. 2, usually a producer, was mill building and had almost no production. The North Homestake and Minnesota Mines company, among last year's producers, also had almost no production on account of improvements.

The Wasp No. 2 Mining company's new cyanide mill on Yellow creek, south of this city, is now in operation. The company lost its former mill by fire nearly a year ago. The new mill has a capacity of about 300 tons daily.

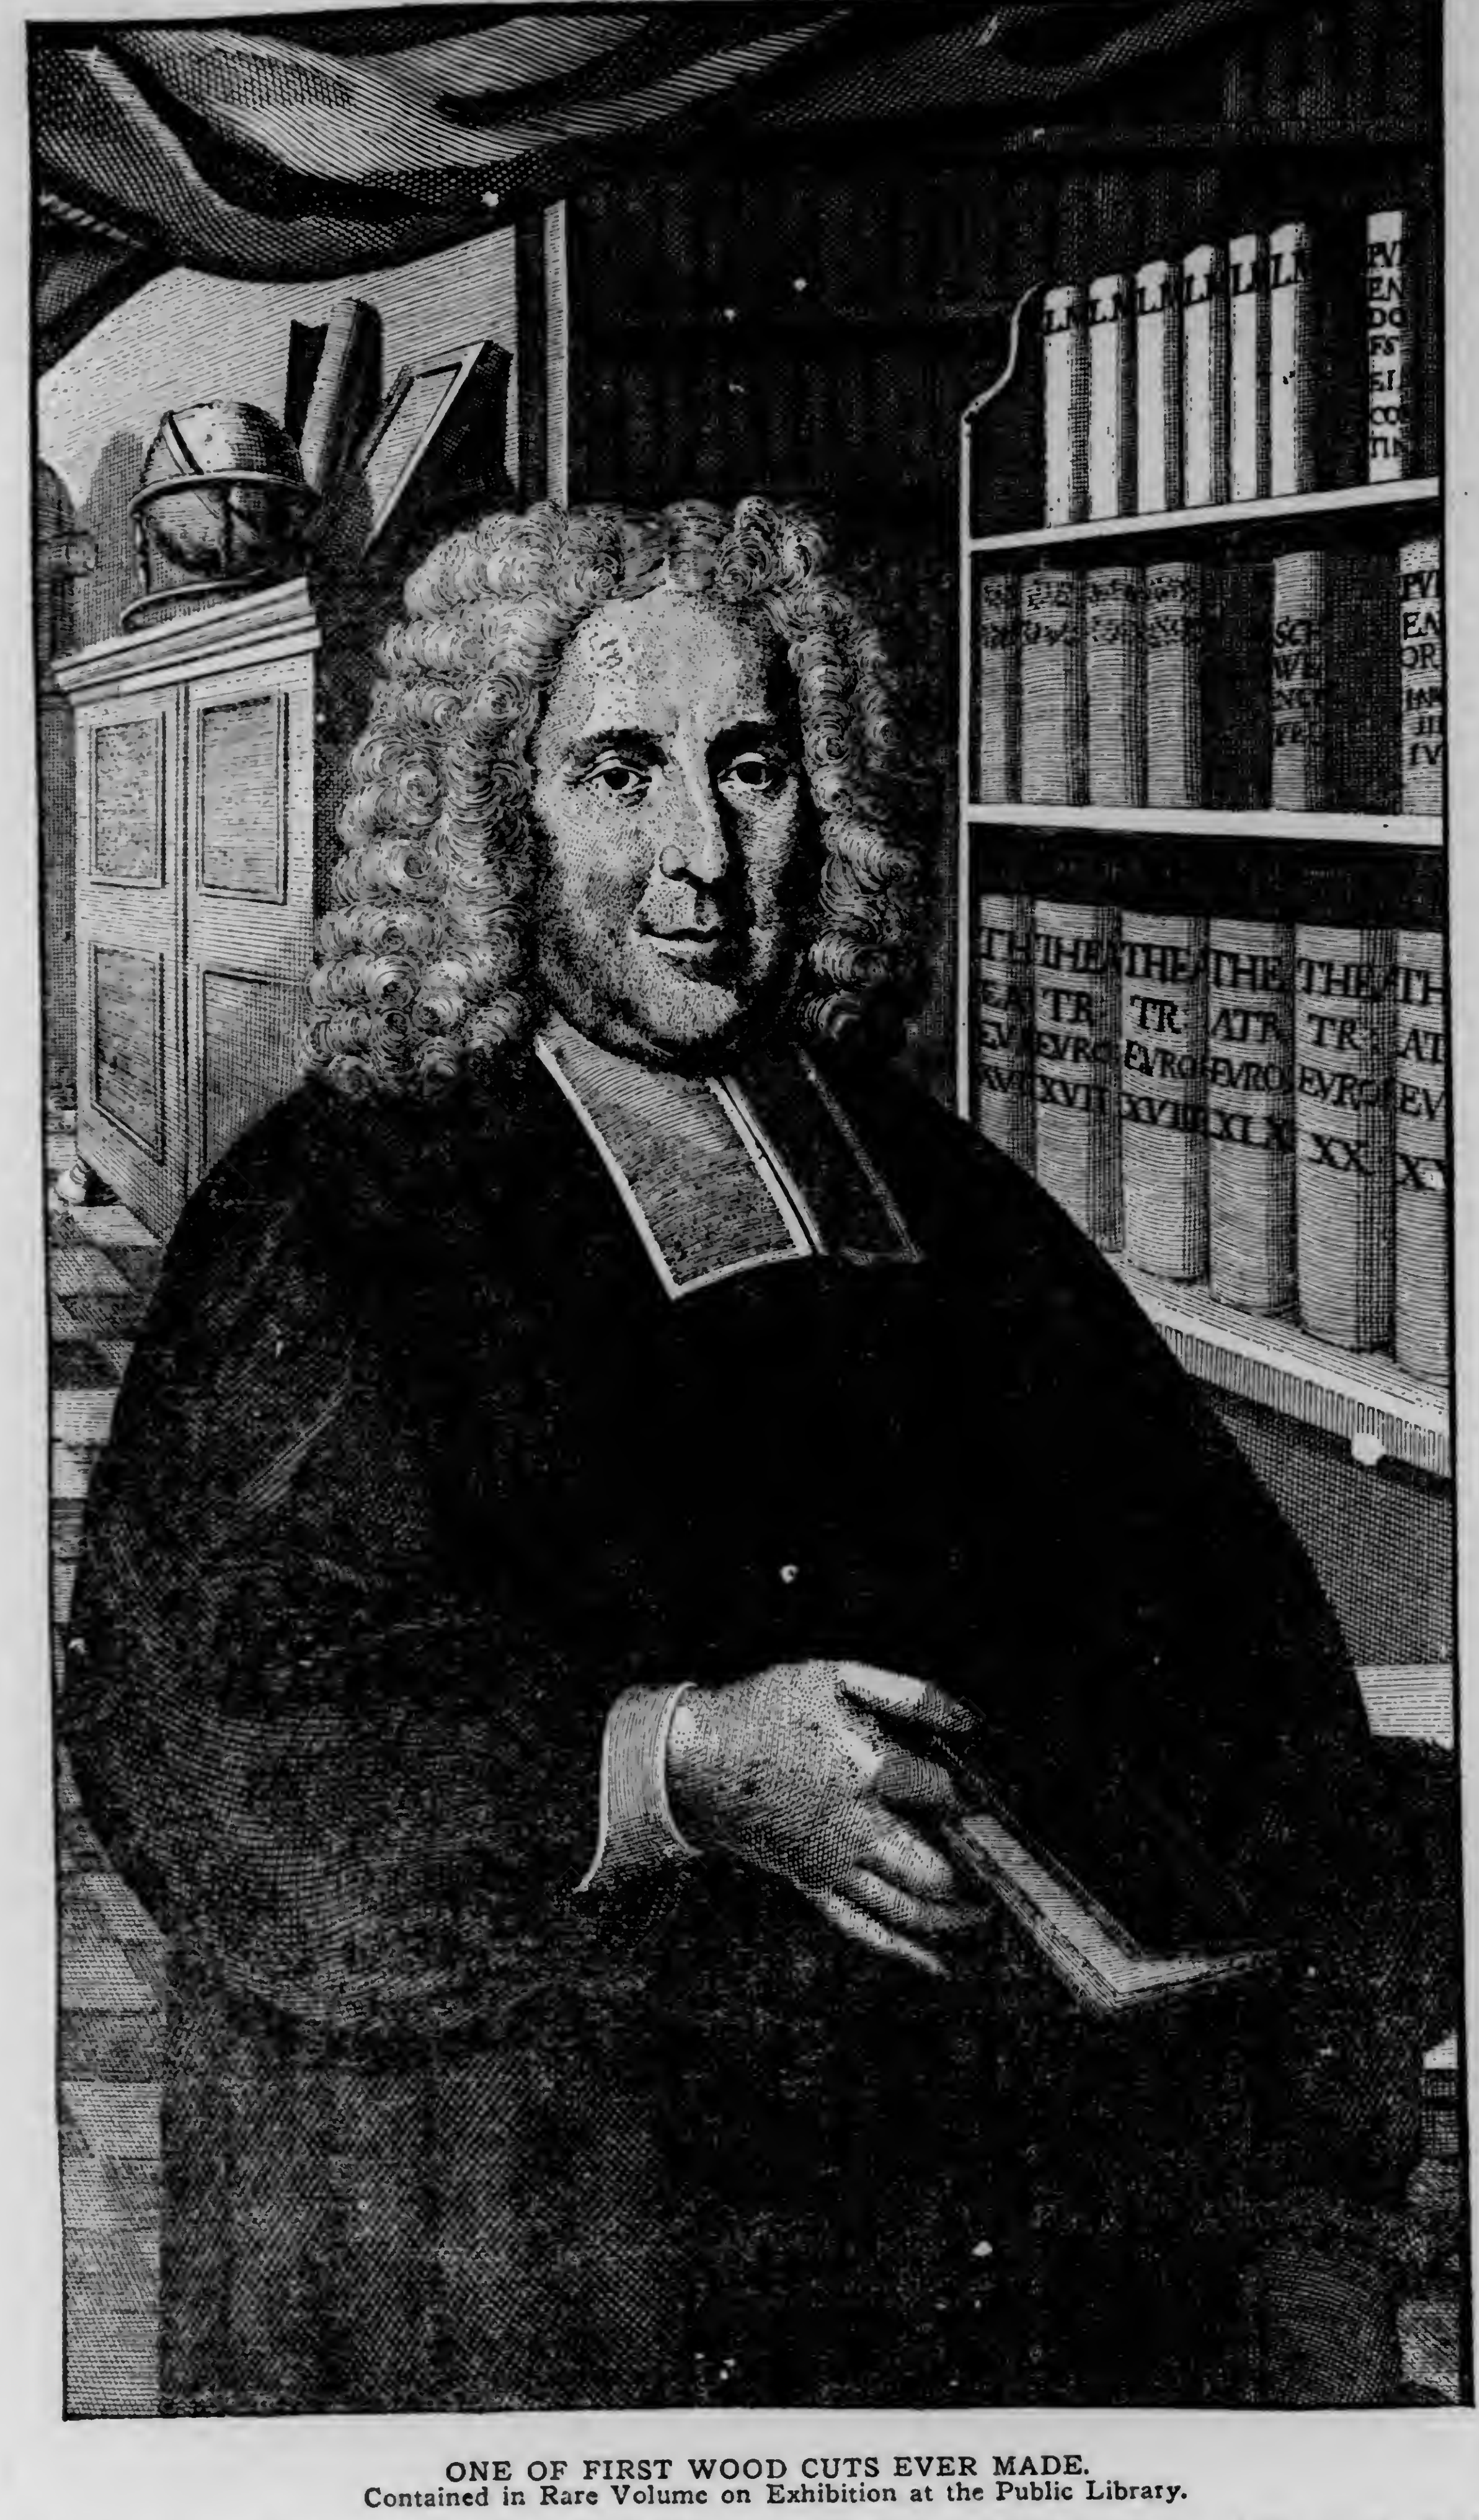
Supt. John McGoffin of the Altia Mining company is in Kansas City conferring with President Snow on plans for a resumption on the property in Strawberry gulch, near Deadwood.

Dean Perisho of the state university at Vermillion, who is also state geologist, is compiling a report on the coal and mineral resources of Harding and Perkins counties, where he explored this summer.

Operations now in progress by the Castle Creek Hydraulic Placer Mining company, near Mystic, in Pennington county, are attracting some attention for the reason that this is the first instance where dredge work has been done in Black Hills placers. A force is now setting up a dredge, which will be operated by electric power. It is hoped to have it ready by early spring. The property lies along Castle creek and takes in nearly 400 acres. The dredge, which is costing about $100,000, will have a capacity of 70,000 cubic yards a month, the bedrock being found at an average depth of thirty feet.

In the Caliboga district, George Hughes is obtaining some fine ore from the Yellow Jacket claim. His shaft is down fifty feet and he is working a quartz gouge that yields $160 a ton in gold, silver and lead, the principal value being in gold.

SOME RARE AND INTERESTING OLD BOOKS ON EXHIBITION AT THE LIBRARY



ONE OF FIRST WOOD CUTS EVER MADE.
Contained in Rare Volume on Exhibition at the Public Library.

Some interesting old books have been loaned the public library and they will be on exhibition there for a time, and patrons of the library and any one interested is invited to see them. The books will be shown in the art room and those interested will be directed to this room if they make inquiries at the desk.

To the average person, the most intresting of the group is a "General Bible Lexicon," which is published in two volumes. Each book is about a foot and a half long, a foot wide and about five inches thick. They are bound in parchment and were printed in 1728. The accompanying cut is from a wood cut in the front of the first volume of this Lexicon and is an exquisite example of the wood cutter's art. The fat gentleman shown is according to the inscription underneath, "Daniel Schneider, Uratislovia Silesius P. P. Eccle siae Laubacensis Ecclesiarum et Schholarum ejusden Comitatus Inspector et Consistoru Assessor, Vocatus Ecclesiarum Erbacensium Superintendens" and the modest list of titles ends with "etc, etc."

Daniel, etc's conection with the book is as the collector of the facts contained therein and the making of them into a book.

The Lexicon is in German and the title page has been translated as follows:

"Universal Biblical Dictionary, which contains besides the names the nature of things so far as same is mentioned in Holy Writ, the titles and orders of the angels, the life deeds, accidents, circumstances of the patriarchs, judges, kings, high priests, prophets, evangelists, apostles, bishops, elders, church servants, male and female teachers, artists, of noble and God-fearing women, false prophets, seducers and evil persons, all with proper annotations of time; also tables of genealogy. Further approved or rejected sectarian and worldly customs, also the various kinds of officers, honors and orders arrangement of the politcal and eclectical state, as also of the government of the divine service of the crafts and arts, civic discussions, our religious and philosophical sects, also of false gods and various ilods. Further, the places countries, towns, hamlets, villages, oceans, seas, rivers, wells.

"Above this, lastly, the natural things in heaven, below heaven, on earth and underneath the earth, in the ocean and other waters, animals, minerals, plants in their natural and symbolical meaning in alphabetical order, recorded according to the most celebrated authors of our own and ancient times, taken from books written in various languages as well as in our own German language for the better understanding of Holy Scripture with reference to the places from which each was taken, carefully arranged and annotated with serviceable copper plates, so that it may be used in place of a library and can at the same time be a key to it: With a preface by George Prit, doctor of Holy Writ, our senior of the Ministorj at Frankfurt-on-the-Main, gathered together by Daniel Schneider, pastor in Laubach, inspector and assessor of the consistory of the county of Laubach with the privilege of the Royal Polish and Saxon gracious government."

Which is quite thoroughgoing German when it is considered that all of this is contained on the title page. It is small wonder that it took two large volumes to tell all that is promised.

Another smaller volume contains the "Report of the Council of Trent in four parts," which was reprinted in Frankfurt in 1707, in Latin. The author is Martin Chemnitz and his dedication has been translated by a local student of Latin as follows: "To His most high and powerful prince, our lord, Charles XII, the most exalted king of Swedes, Goths, and Vandals, the grand duke of Finland, duke of Scania, Esthonia, Livonia, Carelia, Brennen, Verdex, Stetlin Pommeranian, Cassubia and Vandalia, duke of Rugen, lord of Ingria and Vismur, as also Count Palatinus of the Rhine, Bavaria, Cleve and duke of Berg, to my exceedingly gracious lord," after which the author feels free to go on with his story.

A third book is a Bible Concordance published at Leipzig in 1718, and is printed in German, Hebrew and Greek in three parallel columns. The introduction is by M. Christiano Reineccio and the author is Freidrich Landisch. Ten volumes of church history of more modern times completes the little collection.

The librarians will be happy to show the books to all interested in old and rare volumes.

COLORADO TUNNEL RESULTS

seventh level of the main working shaft. At the 545-foot level of the Davenport shaft lessees are driving a crosscut toward the south end of the Ingham claim. The Lucky Corner mine is the most active producer.

The Roosevelt deep drainage tunnel, now 15,524 feet in from the portal, may be extended 200 feet additional at $28 a foot cost. A. E. Carlton, contractor, or the tunnel company itself, will do the work. The original plan to extend it 5,000 feet will be carried out if results should not continue satisfactory. El Paso mine is now dry and the Beacon Hill watercourses have been successfully tapped. Of $550,000 contributed to the tunnel fund $23,000 remains in the treasury.

The Elkton Consolidated Gold Mining company is preparing to double its output. The Roosevelt tunnel has unwatered the lower levels. It is hoped that a second great vein parallels the main vein, which has already produced $1,000,000. It was discovered before the mine was flooded.

The C. K. & N. property on Beacon Hill, Cripple Creek, will be restarted as soon as the water leaves the lower levels through the Roosevelt tunnel. The property has been closed for years.

operations because of the strikes. The Ogden hill is a high mountain that stands far above the surrounding peaks in the Big Blackfoot district.

A deal is pending here whereby an Eastern syndicate will take over the East Pacific mine at Winston, twenty miles east.

The Radersburg gold mines, forty miles east of here, are proving to be all that was predicted of them when deep mining was inaugurated and shipments of sulphide ores began. The Keating Gold Minng company has issued a circular letter to stockholders which shows that the mine is yielding an average of 100 tons a day, averaging $19 a ton. The company earned $5,000 net in October and this month it will triple that sum. The new shaft is now hoisting from the 500-foot level and has been driven to the 600. Drifting is just starting there, the vein having been found in place as expected. The 400-foot drill is now 1,000 feet north of the shaft and in ore all the way. The Black Friday, Ohio-Keating and other properties are also engaged in profitable operations.

operation by next summer. At the Dolores some of the Mexican miners took part in the recent uprising, but this in no way interfered with operations.

In a review of the property by David Stuart of New York, the point is made that the company has today in quick assets and in the cash surplus in the treasury and in the net value of its ore reserves, about $5 per share, so that the stock selling at this figure does not include any speculative possibilities in estimating its value. The same authority, in describing the property, says the market in the stock at the moment is narrow, though it is believed that as soon as dividends are resumed a considerable increase in its price will be recorded on the market.

The Dolores and El Rayo are both new properties with good earning capacity, and the La Dura will prove a satisfactory purchase. The first month of La Dura's operation under new management gave the Mines company treasury $10,000 net. The company is preparing to make La Dura produce on a larger scale and within the next four or five months the earnings will be increased to $20,000 net or more, so that during the first year La Dura will produce at least $150,000 net. The last statement of the earnings of Dolores, El Rayo and Mines Company of America show these three properties to be earning better than $1,000,000 per year, which is 11 per cent on par.

REPUBLIC CAMP PICKING UP

Raise Shows That Ore Body of Missoula Copper Grows From Two Feet to Fifteen Feet of Good Smelting Rock.

Spokane, Wash., Dec. 10.—"The town and camp of Republic, Wash., northwest of Spokane, never were in more prosperous condition than they are now," said J. L. Harper, general manager of the Republic Mines corporation, the Imperator-Quilp company and the North Washington Power & Reduction company, in Spokane a few days ago. "Homes for incoming families are so badly needed that if 50 to 100 new dwellings were started they would all be rented before completion.

"The way the old-timers are flocking back to the camp is the most encouraging aspect of the new immigration. It shows that they always have had faith in the district, and as soon as they heard that it was coming to the front once more, they were glad to return to it.

"My associates have every reason to be pleased with the results of our November operations. The month has rounded out with the usual tonnage production by the Republic Mines corporation from the Lone Pine-Surprise group. The ton value of the ore shipped is somewhat larger than for any previous month and the gross value of the ore sent to the smelters approximates $100,000.

"The first level from the new main working shaft on the Surprise has been started toward the bonanza ore shoot. It will have to be driven 120 feet and will cut the ore body 100 feet below the Jim Clark tunnel level, where we are now working.

"The Quilp mine shipped fifteen cars during the month. The restoration work in this property has proved to be much heavier than I anticipated, owing to the long idleness of the mine. The 500-foot level has not been unwatered entirely yet, as it was found necessary to retimber the station and the winze."

The high-grade shoot struck in the property of the Missoula Copper Mining company in the Mullan section of the Coeur d'Alenes, northeast of Spokane, has widened steadily under development until it shows bonanza proportions, according to recent reports. From a streak two feet wide, having a cupric content of smelting quality, the ore body was expanded to fifteen feet of the same grade. This transformation came in raising twenty feet from the tunnel level at a vertical depth of 700 feet. It is estimated that there is 1,000 feet of stoping possibilities on the dip of the vein between the tunnel level and top of the hill. The 15-foot streak varies in quality from 15 to 25 per cent, it is estimated. Bornite is one of its elements. This expansion was revealed in the course of cutting a station last week. Ore of strong promise occupied the floor of the drift. A winze was sunk for a few feet with good results. Ascent and descent on the course of the shoot will proceed. At the same time the drift, which has opened this part of the body for a short distance, will be continued. Forty men are employed on the property.

ALASKA STILL SENDS GOLD

and across the whole face averages 3 cents to the pan. The ground is ninety feet deep. It is on what is known as 26 below discovery. The claim is below the jaws of the creek and where it extends on the Klondike flat. Evidently the pay has come from benches along the creek. The gold is coarse and of high-grade.

Nine quartz locations in the Bonnet Plume country and twenty-five from Twelve-Mile were received by the recorder's office at Dawson during the week.

After cleaning up 20,000 feet of bedrock on seventy-nine, below on Sulphur the miners awoke the other morning to find that an underground stream had broken into their workings and filled drifts and shaft with water.

Latest advices from the Iditarod are that the weather was still open and mining going on up to Oct. 1.

Jack Le Samis, discoverer of the Squirrel River diggings, the most northerly in the world, and one companion, with only hand implements, washed out $13,000 on his discovery claim in nine days.

The Yukon Gold company is dismantling Dredge No. 2 of its fleet now situated on lower Bonanza, near the mouth. The big craft is to be moved up Bonanza, possibly in the thirties. The greater part of the hauling probably will be done on the snow. No. 2 is one of the largest and best dredges in the company's fleet. It has been working ever since its construction in between Ogilvie bridge and its present position. Dredge No. 1, which was constructed close to No. 2, remains on the lower end of the creek.

with these workings by crosscuts at the thirteenth and eighteenth levels, and at the twenty-seventh level passes through the formation from which production will be made. At a depth of about 3,500 feet, or nearly 800 feet below the present bottom, this shaft should enter the underlay of the Quincy-Pewabic lode, which is expected to give the company another mine. It will probably take the greater part of a year to bring the shaft to this depth. The shaft has been permanently equipped with two large hoists, and a modern steel shaft rockhouse, with capacity to handle upwards of 4,000 tons of rock daily. It is, and for the time being, will remain the sole avenue of production in this property. The older shaft sunk on the incline of the formation is bottomed at the fourteenth level and will be used for the handling of men and materials.

operations. The pilot claim has been considerably developed and the three compartment shaft is 530 feet deep. Mining men familiar with the property are satisfied that in time it will become one of the producing mines of the district. It is surrounded by the Badger State of the Anaconda company, the Elm Orlu and Poser of the W. A. Clark interests, the Butte and Superior company property and the Berlin group of the North Butte company. P. H. Nelson of Duluth, president of the Tuolumne company, is vice president, and J. A. Percival, secretary of the Butte-Ballaklava company is secretary. Patrick Sheehan, superintendent of the Tuolumne company is to be in charge of the mining operations.

Butte & Superior.

So far as known in this city the bond issue of the Butte & Superior company still remains unsubscribed as a whole, although there is no doubt the property is making good money. It is stated that a number of outsiders are willing to subscribe for a large share of the issue, but the management is not desirous of having the securities held by outside parties, if it is at all possible to raise the necessary money within the present holders of stock. While the returns are not complete for November, there is every reason to believe that the earnings will exceed those of October by several thousands of dollars. The unsatisfactory management in the past is attributed as the cause for the failure of stockholders to take up all bonds allotted to them.

Anaconda Shaft.

The retimbering of the Anaconda mine shaft is proceeding along with as much rapidity as possible and in the course of another ten days it is expected the 1,100-foot level will be reached. From this down the shaft is filled with the debris from the cavein of the shaft some time ago. Under this pile of dirt somewhere are the remains of a miner who lost his life in the mine on Nov. 8 by the giving away of a pile of dirt on which he was standing in the shaft. Owing to the condition of the shaft it would have been impossible to make any effort to secure the man's body until the retimbering was completed so for this reason the work of retimbering has been rushed with as much speed as possible.

The St. Lawrence.

The retimbering of the St. Lawrence mine shaft is getting along as speedily as men can do the work, but the contemplated sinking of the shaft 300 feet has not yet been commenced and will not be until after the first of the year. It will be two or three months before the St. Lawrence mine is in a position to resume active mining operations again.

Installing Electric Plant.

The preparations for the installing of the electric plant on Anaconda hill is going on, and unless something unforseen happens it is hoped to have the hoisting apparatus in readiness for use early in January.

REDUCTION IN MINE OUTPUT

might develop into a factor of considerable importance.

It is plainly apparent that unless trade conditions materially improve, the price level of copper can only be sustained in the face of forthcoming additional supplies—by a continuance of the policy of restricted output.

THE COMMISSION PLAN.

No. 23.—What It Did in Cedar Rapids.

Yesterday The Herald told how Port Huron, the newest of commission-governed cities, had just proved one of the cardinal arguments for the new scheme by electing as members of its commission the old mayor, because he had made good, and four of the leading business men of the city.

In Cedar Rapids about the same sort of thing happened, and here are some of the results:

Bonds were retired and interest paid thereon to the amount of $61,980—a pretty good sum for a town of the size of Cedar Rapids, and a great deal more than the old government would have done if it had kept on at its old gait for a generation.

Extensive improvements were made in the parks, and additional park property was acquired.

An island in the Cedar river, which had been a dumping ground, an eye sore and the abode of iniquity and squalor, was bought by the city and turned into a beautiful civic center, as a home for the municipality.

The services of a civic improvement expert were secured and, following his advice, streets were extended, street signs were erected, waste paper receptacles provided, etc.

Public work of all kinds was done on a large scale, and well done.

The receipts from the police court increased from $75 to about $700 per month without increased arrests.

License taxes were impartially collected.

Milk and meat inspection laws were enforced.

Five patrolmen were added to the police force, an extension that had been needed long but that the city hadn't been able to afford before.

Gamblers were driven from the city, and the social evil was segregated and put under severe regulations.

Defective paving was rejected and contractors were made to stick to the specifications.

Cash discount was taken on all city bills—how many cities under the old plan discount their bills?

Interest was collected on city balances in banks—the old city government hadn't thought to do that.

The city's credit was established at the highest standard.

Business methods were introduced into all departments of the city government.

Complaints from citizens were given immediate attention.

The new facilities for control of their public affairs appealed to the people with the result that there was an immediate response of public spirit and civic pride. Public interest in all good works for the common good was greatly increased, and the greatly improved civic conditons were reflected in better business conditons. The city's growth and prosperity were largely accelerated.

Putting city business on a business basis, with close control by the people—this is the very ordinary magic which worked such results in these various cities.

TWO ABUSED STATESMEN.

With its customary vigor in erring, the Minneapolis Tribune says that the Nelson whitewash of Ballinger is literally true; that in no instance has Ballinger failed to do his duty as a public officer; that he has protected the public interest; that he has been "a sane and judicious friend of conservation of national resources."

Of his enemies, the Tribune says: "From the sorehead who laid the foundation as soon as he learned that he would not be reappointed secretary and the semi-lunatic forester who is honestly incapable of separating his vague but towering ambition from the duty of a public officer and private citizen, to the rag, tag and bobtail of daily and weekly papers, each has acted in accordance with his lights. That is the discouraging thing."

"The incident," continues the Tribune, "takes a larger interest from the likeness between the president's own position and Ballinger's. He, too, is an admirable public officer, for whom an honest investigator could find nothing but praise. Yet his fame is already dimmed and his future is menaced by the same vague and hysterical insinuation that 'his heart does not beat true to the people.'"

In spite of the Tribune's slighting quotation marks, it is not vague or hysterical to say of a high public official that "his heart does not beat true to the people." It is so far from vague that it is more definite than any charge could be, and so far from hysterical that with cool, calm sorrowful certainty it plumbs the depths of that official's capacity to be of service to the nation.

The only true thing in the Tribune's excited comment is its act of putting Taft and Ballinger in the same category.

President Taft—good man, fine character, faithful underling—stands convicted upon the record. No other proof than his last message is needed to condemn him. At a time when the people waited for a note of leadership, when his party waited for a clarion call that would summon its scattered forces to a common rallying ground, came a message that contained no hint of hope to the nation, no word of comfort for his sundered and disorganized party. Though a masterly review of administration details, there is in that message not a touch of the capacity of leadership, either of people or party, nor any evidence that he realizes the acute issues of the day.

Ballinger, whether or not actual charges of corruption are proved against him, stands convicted of being unfaithful in spirit to the will of the people. He is not a safe guardian of the people's natural resources, and in this day of conflict and of sharply drawn issues, none but friends of the people should be put on guard.

NEVERTHELESS—

Congress is in session—the same congress that passed the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill.

The president—the same president who signed it—has sent his message to congress.

The president has opposed any action on the tariff at this session, and congress more than willingly agrees with him.

So nothing whatever will be done about the tariff for at least a year.

Nevertheless—

Don't forget that that tariff bill is just as bad as anybody ever said it was—and worse.

Don't forget that its provisions harbor just as much of trickery, just as much of shameful special privilege, just as much of robbery, just as much capacity for despoiling the many for the enrichment of the few, as its worst enemies ever charged against it.

Yet nothing is to be done about it.

The president says so, and congress agrees with alacrity.

Do you see what that means?

It means that for another year, at least, the most shocking mass of robbery, corruption and trickery ever enacted by an American congress will continue its work uninterrupted.

It means that for another year, at least, every schedule of that infamous measure will remain unchanged—even those schedules, like the wool schedule—which not even the defenders of the bill as a whole have the face to justify.

It means that for another year, at least, this burden of oppression, created by the corruption and treachery of their public servants, will rest upon the overloaded backs of the American people.

For another year congress will drone its useless way, grinding out extravagant appropriation bills that help to maintain this enormous mass of hypocrisy and fraud, engaging in sham battles on matters of slender import, filling the Congressional Record with wordy speeches, making a great to-do about nothing, drawing its salaries from the people while delaying legislation needed by the people.

Meanwhile, at every custom house stand uniformed men collecting tariff taxes which are but a tiny part of the tariff taxes actually levied; while the treasury of every beneficiary of the tariff special privilege will continue to be fattened by the rich subsidy of the tariff.

And the people will pay every particular penny of these taxes and subsidies through the price charged them for every article they need to feed, clothe, warm and shelter themselves.

A FAR-SEEING FINANCIER.

It is to be hoped that the announcement that George W. Perkins will leave the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co. Jan. 1 does not mean the termination of his influence with the great corporations in the making and management of which he has been prominent.

More, perhaps, than any other,—publicly at least,—Mr. Perkins has typified the response in the world of big business to the demand for greater democracy in industry. He has labored for progressive measures in the corporations with which he is associated, and he has told his fellow corporation managers that control of big business by and for the people must come, and that they should meet it half way instead of fighting it. In so doing he has proved himself a good citizen, a patriot and a far-seeing business man. Conditions would be vastly improved if there were more like him.

A CRUCIAL ISSUE.

President Taft's attempts to bring the insurgent senators into the regular camp have developed a situation of very acute dissension, involving an issue of peculiar gravity.

The insurgent senators, it appears, want to know what kind of men the president proposes to put on the bench of the highest court of the land.

They want to know whether he is going to pack the bench with men favorable to the special interests, or whether he is willing to put on the bench men who can be trusted to decide great issues fairly in the interests of all the people.

In short, they want to know whether he is going to make a supreme court majority of property's men, or of people's men.

And a great many more people would like very much to know the same thing.

Says the Associated Press dispatch that tells the story: "The insurgent senators, it is said, have agreed among themelves that the new members of the supreme court must not be men of reactionary tendencies or temperament. They are said to be insisting that the new judges shall be men of sufficiently advanced ideas to decide questions of the day alone on broad lines, and not be bound by mere legal technicalities. The regular Republicans, on the other hand, are not willing that these new theories as to judgeship qualifications shall be the determining factors as to the fitness of candidates."

Perhaps nothing could illustrate more clearly than this the difference between the insurgents and the regulars—in both parties, for that matter—or the difference between the reactionaries and the spirit of the people. Beyond question the people will heartily approve the stand taken by the insurgents, and will hope that they will carry it far enough to block confirmation of appointments made in violation of their principles.

President Taft has the power to make all the decisions of the supreme court for the next dozen years. He will have the responsibility of appointing enough judges to determine the character of the court for years. Upon his decision depends the issue of whether the supreme court shall be reactionary or progressive.

It is not asked that he put on the bench fiery radicals with revolutionary ideas. He is asked merely to appoint men whose habits of thought are in tune with the spirit of today; not men whose minds accord with the spirit of the waning day in which property interests were sacrosanct and human interests ignored.

There is little chance of mistake in this matter. All men, these days, are on one side or the other, whatever their party labels. There are few men of great enough prominence to be considered for the supreme court who are not widely known either as progressives or reactionaries—as men who may be expected to decide for justice and free government or for property interests and industrial serfdom.

President Taft faces a duty of grave responsibility. The solution of vital questions of deep moment hinges on the make-up of the supreme court. The stability of free government, perhaps even the peace of society, depends on the attitude of that body toward those questions. He alone must determine that attitude by the character of his appointments. His is a responsibility that no one need envy.

THE TRAGEDY OF PEARY.

The announcement that Dr. Cook has confessed that he doesn't know whether he reached the North pole or not, and that he thinks the loneliness and hardship of the Arctic drove him mad, is no great surprise. One thing about it Dr. Cook appears not to have thought of, however. That is that if his announcement of the discovery of the pole was the product of a mind diseased, his earlier announcement that he had scaled Mount McKinley must have been the product of another touch of the same kind of madness.

But it isn't Cook that we think of now that it is finally made clear that Cook is a liar and a charlatan; it is Peary.

Peary hasn't had a fair deal, and probably never will get it—probably he never can get it.

Cook's fraud, if it did nothing else, took the bloom off Peary's real achievement, and like the bloom on the peach, it never will return.

Peary had spent a lifetime in the search for the pole. Perhaps the pole wasn't worth searching for. Very likely it is good for nothing now it is found. Polar exploration was a mere human habit—aimless, fruitless, a fearful waste of energy and valor. It grew out of the old search for a Northwest passage, which began with the earliest European explorations of the Western continent. Not one of the early discoverers ever learned what glory they had earned by their explorations in America. One and all they sought merely a sea passage to China and India, and they died disappointed because they didn't find it.

The search continued until, the milder coasts exhausted without effect, it entered venturesomely upon the frozen wilds of the north. It was the Northwest passage they sought for three hundred years, and not the pole. When the Northwest passage was no longer desirable, Peary and others, driven by mere human habit, continued to search the ice wastes, this time for the North pole.

But whether the discovery was worth while or not, Peary sought it with energy and courage and persistence; and finally he found it. Imagine the triumph that cheered his bitter hardships as he made the perilous journey back toward civilization! Imagine the expectation of universal praise that warmed his heart during those weary months of isolation and deprivation, as he carried back with him the news of his final success!

And when he reached civilization, he heard that the world believed that another had been before him! Part of the world was skeptical, and the number of skeptics grew. But instead of the storms of approval that he expected, Peary's reward for his success was the turmoil of a disgraceful Cook-Peary controversy. Angered, disappointed,—as who wouldn't be?—he sharply rebuked Cook as a faker. Though it was the natural and human thing to do, it helped not a whit, but on the contrary made Peary appear in a false light, especially before the many who believed Cook's story largely because they did not believe it possible that there was a human being so brazen and impudent as to perpetrate such a nasty hoax.

In short, Peary was robbed of the popular glory of his achievement, and by the time the public recognized him in his true light as the only discoverer of the North pole, public interest had declined so completely that it was a matter of utter indifference who discovered the North pole and who didn't.

If Cook is the greatest charlatan in history, Peary is pretty nearly the most tragically misused man in recent times.

SUPERIOR'S POPULATION.

The census bureau has announced that the population of Superior is 40,384, a gain of 9,293 or 29.9 per cent over ten years ago.

Doubtless, like most other hustling cities, Superior will be disappointed with these figures, but it needn't be. It is a very tidy gain, both in numbers and percentage. It is true that neither in numbers nor percentage is its gain so great as that of Duluth, but that was not to be expected.

Like Duluth, Superior has a bountiful future which it has not yet discounted. Like Duluth, Superior's growth in the next ten years will be the greatest in its history.

Superior is certain to be a good town. It took it a little longer to recover from the reaction following the disastrous boom twenty years ago than it took Duluth, but it is building new and more solid foundations that will endure. It will get its share of the impulse that is to come from the creation of an iron and steel manufacturing center in Duluth, and its suitability for terminal sites will insure it a fair share of all the growth that comes to Duluth. Duluth cannot prosper without prospering Superior, and in a lesser measure it is also true that Superior cannot prosper without prospering Duluth.

THE OPEN COURT.

The Open Court was established on this page of The Herald for the benefit of the people. It is their editorial column, and it is as free as daylight to all who have views to express, providing they heed certain necessary rules that are printed at its head. The need of calling attention to those rules is emphasized by the fact that The Herald has received a communication which violates two of them, and therefore will not be published: it is written on both sides of the paper and is not accompanied by the name and address of the writer.

THE OPEN COURT.

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their ideas about the topics of general interest. Letters should not exceed 300 words—the shorter the better. They must be written on one side of the paper only, and they must be accompanied in every case by the name and address of the writer, though these need not be published. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

CONSTANT KICKING WILL BRING RESULTS.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Whether the poor quality of the milk served by the restauranteurs reflects upon Duluth milk dealers or not, it is a fact for the former to be ashamed of that out of twenty-five inspected, fifteen were below standard, two barely came up to requirements and two more kept two kinds of milk.

When we realize that those places where the milk was found wanting are the most patronized, we must sympathize with the unfortunates who must eat down-town or go hungry.

Because I am one of those few blessed with a home myself I would say this to my fellowmen:

Kick if you would have pure milk to drink, eggs that are fresh, pie that hasn' soured, butter that hasn't been served, etc. There are any number of married men who will complain to their wives because the biscuits are hard, the soup cold, or the coffee too strong, who accept their noonday lunch down-town, meekly, just as it is handed out to them. To these and to those who must patronize the restaurants three times daily, raise a holler all of you and keep it up as long as the eggs served you have a stale odor, the milk thin, etc. Keep it up until you see results. Yours very truly.

A SUFFERER.

A MOMENT WITH THE WITS.

Tit Bits: Jacobs—Tuwed's second wife started going in for spiritualism, but he soon cured her.

Jackson—How?

Jacobs—He went with her and started receiving messages from his first wife.

Louisville Courier-Journal: "I'll never offer any more friendly advice."

"Wouldn't he listen to you?"

"He listened to me carefully, and then struck me for $2. Of course I had to cough up."

Detroit Free Press: "What are you going to do this summer, Hiram?" asked Mrs. Farmer.

"Well, I guess we'll send our two girls to Europe so as to be able to accommodate a few unfortunate city boarders who must have fresh air," replied Hiram.

Washington Star: "Infant prodigies are hard to understand, said the man who is easily impressed.

"I dont think so, replied Miss Cayenne. "As a rule they are simply young people with highly imaginative parents.

The Tatler: She—Do you prefer an ugly woman with brains, or a pretty woman without any?

He—Madam, I prefer present company to either. (And she is still wondering exactly what he meant).

New York Sun: Knicker—Does he also speak?

Bocker—No, he says in part.

Boston Transcript: Diner—Walter, this knife is blunt and the steak is like leather.

Walter—Yes, sir; do nicely for stropping the knife on, sir.

Philadelphia Record: "Silence is golden," quoted the Wise Guy.

"Not when you shake your pocket," added the Simple Mug.

Chicago Daily News: Mrs. De Style—And were you ever anxious about your descent, my dear? z

Mrs. Justrich—Yes, once when I went up in a balloon.

Filegende Blaetter: Rich Banker (to his daughter's suitor)—Don't talk so much of love; you know what really attracts you is the 80,000 marks that my daughter will get when she marries.

Suitor—What? No more than that?

Louisville Courier-Journal: "I cannot live but a week longer wizout you."

"Foolish talk, duke. How can you fix on a specific length of time?"

"Ze landlord fix on it, miss, not I."

Advertising of Cities.

Christian Science Monitor: The campaign being carried on at present by San Francisco and New Orleans, in behalf of their respective claims for recognition by the national government in relation to the proposed Panama exposition, is serving to call attention to the fact that communities as well as corporations, firms and individuals in these days are learning more and more of the value of publicity. There is a vast difference, of course, between publicity in the proper sense and notoriety in any sense, and it is due as much to a better and higher understanding of advertising as to any other cause that communities are now engaged, through the medium of publicity bureaus, etc., in making liberal use of printer's ink.

Hand in hand with a desire to be known for their special advantages and attractions, whatever these may be, cities are becoming more and more sensitive with regard to the circumstances under which they are brought to public attention in the newspapers. It is an evidence of improved public taste, certainly, and of growing civic pride, that the average resident of the average community does not take kindly to the association of the name of his town or city with stories of scandal, calamity or crime. People everywhere are learning rapidly to understand that there must be a great deal of good in those communities whose names are commonly associated with what is reprehensible in the news dispatches. And this growth of knowledge along right lines gives immense weight to the protests of those who demand that their home towns or home cities shall not be constantly referred to, either seriously or jocosely, in connection with political turmoil or corruption, social disorder, rioting or lawlessness in any form. Towns and cities, like individuals, have too often been unjustly given "bad names," and not a few communities have suffered immeasurable material losses, to say nothing of what they have suffered morally, from the constant imputing to them of vices or weaknesses of which as a whole they were entirely guiltless.

The charge that has come about in this respect, like other charges welcome and beneficent in the attitude and atmosphere of communities, and especially the large cities, is due in great part to the growing sense of individual responsibility in public affairs. With the sense of individual responsibility comes a sense of individual influence and strength. Every citizen should share the concern of the mass. He should feel personally interested in everything that affects for good or ill the community of which he is a part. If he be a good citizen he will not attempt to avoid the responsibilities which his citizenship entails. He will not only "stand up" for his city on every necessary occasion, but he will do his utmost toward making it a city worth standing up for.

A Deck of Cards.

A deck of card has many hearts,
But never falls in love;
It has, I'm told, at times, cold hands
That never wear a glove;
Although the deck is often cut,
You never hear it squeal;
It ne'er complains whene'er it gets
A downright shameful deal.
To draw a card, a pencil you
Will never need at all;
A hand of cards don't visit, though
It sometimes gets a call;
To hold one's temper in a game
Is very little use,
For if you pick a two-spot up,
You're sure to raise the deuce.
—Smart Set.

THE RIGHT IDEA FOR CITIES.

The Outlook: The "new municipal idea" was the dominant note of the Buffalo meeting of the National Municipal league. It was defined by the secretary, Clinton Rogers Woodruff, to be the placing of the emphasis on the welfare of the city, rather than on the interest of a party or a candidate. It requires that city affairs be given a due consideration on their merits, without regard to irrelevant questions, such as state or national politics. It insists upon directness of nomination, election and responsibility after election; demands simplicity of electoral and governmental machinery, the short ballot and responsiveness to the public will, and therefore, encourages easy and intelligent voting, checks partisan and factional domination, giving voters control, if they wish to exercise it. Through publicity it insures effective control; demands that efficiency and merit shall be the sole basis of all appointments in a democracy, and demands concentration of authority and responsibility.

The Hon. William Dudley Foulke, who succeeds Former Attorney General Bonaparte as president of the league, further elaborated this view in his inaugural address on "The Conservation of Our Municipal Resources." He pointed out that every city, every township, every county, in America is the possessor of property of great value. The streets, the roads, the parks, and many of the public buildings, if they were in the hands of private individuals, could be made to produce an enormous income; "while no one will say that they ought to be made productive to the same extent or in the same way in the hands of a municipal government, yet they ought to be made far more productive than they ever have been, and their economical management in the future, in spite of all of the waste in the past, can still result in a substantial reduction of all municipal budgets."

In Germany no fewer than 1,500 towns and villages own so much common land and so wisely manage it, that their inhabitants pay neither rates nor taxes. Much of their income is derived from communal forest land. After reviewing various municipal undertakings, such as electric lighting, street railways and water power, Mr. Foulke said: "These are legitimate municipal enterprises. They depend for success upon the same principles which lead our ablest financiers to seek investments in the water power of the nation, which it will be the work of national conservation to keep for the benefit of our whole people. Our cities are now beginning to show the requisite business sagacity in the development of these public service enterprises. It is a phase in that evolution which will ultimately make of our municipalities business corporations which may well rival the most prosperous and profitable of the municipalities of Europe."

"Beautiful Snow."

(Printed by request.)

Oh! the snow, the beautiful snow,
Filling the sky and the earth below;
Over the housetops, over the street,
Dancing, flirting, skimming along.
Beautiful snow, it can do nothing wrong;
Flying to kiss a fair lady's cheek,
Clinging to lips in a frolicksome freak;
Beautiful snow, from the heavens above,
Pure as an angel, and fickle as love.

Oh! the snow, the beautiful snow,
How the flakes gather and laugh as they go
Whirling about in their maddening fun,
It plays in its glee with every one—
Chasing, laughing, hurrying by,
It lights up the face and it sparkles the eye,
And even the dogs, with a bark and a bound,
Snap at the crystals that eddy around—
The town is alive and its heart is aglow
To welcome the coming of the beautiful snow.

How the wild crowd goes swaying along,
Hailing each other with humor and song;
How the gay sledges like meteors flash by,
Bright for a moment, then lost to the eye!
Ringing, swinging, dashing they go
Over the crust of the beautiful snow—
Snow so pure when it falls from the sky,
To be trampled in mud by the crowd rushing by—
To be trampled and tracked by the thousands of feet.
Till it blends with the filth in the horrible street.

Once I was pure as the snow—but I fell,
Fell, like the snowflakes, from heaven to hell;
Fell, to be tramped as the filth in the street;
Fell, to be scoffed, to be spit on, and beat.
Pleading, cursing, dreading to die,
Selling my soul to whoever would buy;
Dealing in shame for a morsel of bread,
Hating the living and fearing the dead.
Merciful God! have I fallen so low?
And yet I was once like this beautiful snow!

Once I was fair as the beautiful snow,
With an eye like its crystal, a heart like its glow;
Once I was loved for my innocent grace—
Flattered and sought for the charm of my face;
Father, mother, sister and all,
God, and myself, I have lost by my fall;
The veriest wretch that goes shivering by,
Will make a wide sweep lest I wander too nigh;
For all that is on or above me I know
There's nothing that's pure but the beautiful snow.

How strange it should be that this beautiful snow
Should fall on a sinner with nowhere to go!
How strange it would be, when the night comes again,
If the snow and the ice struck my desperate brain!
Fainting, freezing, dying alone,
Too wicked for prayer, too weak for a moan
To be heard in the crash of the crazy town,
Gone mad in the joy of the snow coming down;
To lie and to die in my terrible woe,
With a bed and a shroud of the beautiful snow.
—John W. Watson.

Good Hunting.

Youth's Companion: It was at St. Andrews in Scotland, the home of golf, where the links stretch away over the moors by the sea, and dear, quiet Aunt Mary had gone up from London to visit a golfing family of nephews and nieces. At tea the first afternoon some one managed to stop talking golf long enough to ask, "Well, Aunt Mary, and how did you spend the morning?"

"Oh, I enjoyed myself immensely, my dear. I went for a walk on the moor. "A good many people seemed to be about, and some of them called out to me in a most eccentric manner. But I didn't take any notice of them. And, oh, my dear, I found such a number of curious little round things! I brought them home to ask you what they are."

Hereupon Aunt Mary opened her work bag, and produced twenty-four golf balls.

Business Acumen.

National Monthly: Ikey Spinsky's motor car was speeding along the crowded thoroughfare. Something went wrong with the car and the chauffeur became helpless.

"Do something, do something," said Ikey.

"I've done everything I can," said the chauffeur.

"Then you've lost control of it?" Ikey anxiously inquired.

"Yes, sir," said the chauffeur.

"Are you absolutely sure that you cannot stop it?"

"Yes, sir."

Ikey lay back and closed his eyes. "Then run it into something cheap," he sa'd.

SATURDAY NIGHT TALK

The Fine Art of Coming Back.

From the dictionary of the street, "come back," a popular phrase, meaning a successful return to the struggle after being worsted, as for example "the Yale team came back yesterday in royal shape" or "Maj. Magnificent after being thought done for by his enemies has re-entered politics and is again the leading man in his state."

Colloquial though it is and of course not to be commended for constant use in young ladies' boarding schools, current slang, now and then, holds the germ of a valuable moral lesson. This talk in the arena of athletics and politics about coming back, suggests recovery and retrieval of life after one is supposed to be down and out, or the bettering of a distinctly bad situation, and why not, pray?

Fallen opportunities may be restored. We have had one popular president of the United States in recent years, who, after middle life, retrieved himself financially, shouldering and discharging debts that might have staggered a man less determined and conscientious. More than one man in the ranks, also, has failed, only to grit his teeth for the next tussle with the cold, hard world—ready to learn from his mistakes, eager to regain a position of independence, ingenious in discovering new paths to success, willing to invest every ounce of energy in the effort.

Such men have gotten square again with their creditors and solved the bread and butter problem for themselves and their dear ones. Here in America particularly, one should not despair even though he has suffered serious reverses. The mineral and agricultural resources of the country are by no means exhausted. New industries must spring up to meet the constantly developing wants of mankind, and really good men, that is, industrious, honest, persevering, good tempered, capable men are not too plentiful in any line of work.

The rebuilding of friendship is another glorious possibility. One of your keenest sorrows is due to the fact that you have broken with one whose companionship once enriched your daily life, whose welfare was your constant concern. Oh, yes, it may be the other party's fault, and you yourself may be the victim of misunderstanding and injustice; but aren't your own friendly instincts great enough to do everything in your power to re-establish the relationship? It is the hour for the display of magnanimity, of forgiveness. The other party may be waiting for the olive branch, and it may be your privilege to extend it first. How glad you will be when the sweet, dear ties are of binding force once more, that you did have the courage and grace to take the initiative.

The moral life, if it amounts to anything, is a series of retrievals. We all slip away from the moorings which once held up; we all drop below the level of our moments of vision and consecration. We must get back over and over again, if not to the innocency of childhood at least to its trustfulness. We must all get back to the point where we were before we yielded to that overmastering temptation. "Is the battle lost?" said the commanding officer to the captain of a fleeing company. "Yes," was his reply, as he hurried along with the rest. But the great general seized his sword and rallied those about him with the cry. "This battle may be lost, but there is yet time to win another." That is the message of each new day to us—"Never mind about yesterday, today affords the chance to win."

These three essential steps in any coming back process are: Confession, right about face, and immediate entrance upon the straight, hard path that leads to the place where we were.

"And while he was yet a great way off, his father saw him."

THE PARSON.

Not an Inspiriting Document.

New York Evening Post: It is a disappointing form which President Taft has given his annual message to congress. In the first place, it is inordinately long. It can be neither generally read, nor even printed. The Evening Post surrenders more than two pages of space to it, but that is less than two-thirds of the whole! The parts omitted, moreover, are mostly in the nature of routine reports from the departments, which can be spared without a pang. But the second criticism which must be made of the message is more serious. It is not inspiring; it gives no positive lead. This will be the more depressing to the president's party, because in the hour of defeat and in a time of great confusion, it would have welcomed a vigorous initiative, would have hailed a new watch-word. But instead of issuing a call to action, Mr. Taft has written a tedious judicial review. There are excellent positions taken in it, and many sound principles are laid down; but it is not the production of a born leader, scanning the political field and seeing where broken ranks can be formed again and fresh heart put into discouraged men. Republicans were looking to the president to give them an inspiriting ode in time of hesitation. Instead, they get a large wet blanket.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: A girl understands men so well because she pretends not to.

The greatest of mistakes is thinking you can't make them.

Some men can cook up excuses for themselves even for being in politics.

When a woman can keep from talking in a card game it's a sign she will never play.

When a girl gets so along in years she has got to cut down her age the strongest believer in her figures is her mother.

Pointed Paragraphs.

Chicago News: Occasionally a baldheaded man has a hairbreadth escape.

Men who are rolling in wealth should find a better use for it.

The man who is unable to appreciate wisdom has none of his own.

Every man knows what he would do—until the time arrives for doing it.

And a woman never believes she is too fat until things begin to slide off her lap.

When two souls have but a single thought the thought is to the effect that they are affinities.

The bachelor who marries an old flame need not expect her to get up and kindle the kitchen fire.

Never ask a girl to name the prettiest of her sex present at any given place. It is awfully embarrassing for a modest maid.

Perpetual motion seems to be an impossibility, but you can't make the father of strenuous twins believe it.

And it frequently happens that a widow is firmly convinced that she is a living example of the survival of the fittest.

A Litany for the Holidays.

From Behind the Counter.

Oh, weary days of ceaseless clamor!
Oh, drudgery devoid of glamour!
Good people, think!
Oh, hordes of wild belated shoppers,
Of bustling Ma's and flippant Poppers,
Good people, think!
Of haughty dames and lofty lasses,
Of leering dudes and flirting asses,
Good people, think!
Of fussy folks and cranky buyers,
Of stupid lunks and fluent liars,
Good people, think!
Of angry words and ugly scowling,
Of children's shrieks and baby howling,
Good people, think!
Of fetid air and headache splitting,
Of standing, standing, never sitting,
Good people, think!
Of fainting spells and dizzy reelings,
Of broken health and wounded feelings,
Good people, think!
Of ills that threaten to surmount her,
The girl that stands behind the counter,
Good people, stop and think!

A DEPOSED KING

No. 1.

By SAVOYARD.

The Democratic tidal wave of 1910 means several things.

First, tariff graft has gone far enough and the Payne-Aldrich bill is in big degree responsible for the extortionate high cost of living.

Second, the people respect the judiciary, and will have none of this odious imperialism that comes under the guise of "new nationalism."

Third, what Washington declined, and what was denied to Grant, Col. Roosevelt shall not have, and the question of a third term in 1912, or other time during this generation, was emphatically pronounced against and irrevocably determined adversely in 1910.

Fourth, not even is Theodore Roosevelt big enough man to be all things to all men, one thing at the East, another at the West, one thing at the North and another at the South.

If Col. Roosevelt had any dignity, had he conducted himself in retirement as did Grover Cleveland or Ben Harrison, to go no further back, he would have remained not only the first citizen of the republic, but he would have been the most influential personality of our hemisphere. Instead he itched for his former power, and I have no respect for the veracity or intelligence of any man who is not willing to say that the campaign Theodore Roosevelt made in 1910 was with a view to a third term in 1912. No wonder the result made him speechless.

As a Southern man, and speaking from a Southern standpoint, I have no hesitancy in saying that William Howard Taft is the best president his party ever gave the country, though I have no doubt that had the Southern born and Southern blooded Lincoln lived he would have proved the best friend the South ever had, and saved that section 10,000 cruel and felon stabs. Taft is a splendid man. The pity is that he was bred to the bar rather than to the forum. He had read Blackstone and not Adam Smith He had studied John Marshall and Roger B. Taney, and not Alexander Hamilton and Thomas Jefferson. He was a lawyer, and a great one, and pity 'tis, that as a practical politician he is a poor one. But President Taft is a great man, a broad man, and what is better to the point, he is a good man, and as much president of the South as he is of the North, something Lincoln did not have opportunity to be, and something no other Republican president ever was. All honor to William H. Taft—he is a man who, made to see the right, will do the right as resolutely as Grover Cleveland himself.

Well, the colonel got back from hunting some varmints and snakes and things in Africa. He had made Taft president because he feared that he could not make Root president, though it were an easy task to have landed the great trust-builder in that office, in view of Mr. Bryan's czarship in the other camp. As when Napoleon Bonaparte got back from his hunt and slaughter of men in Africa, more than a century earlier, Col. Roosevelt was not only taciturn, but mysterious. Was he a standpatter, as had been all the ninety months he was president, or had he shifted his flag and got to be an insurgent? The whole country stood with open mouth to catch the drippings of original virtue, as it percolated from that inexhaustible and never-failing fount of patriotism and infallibility.

The colonel was not only taciturn and mysterious, but he was interesting. Insurgents made pilgrimages to Oyster Bay and came away smiling. Standpatters penetrated to his sacred presence, and they too came away smiling. Weeks and weeks passed and not a word came from that garrulous tongue to encourage the Taft administration that had been assailed so cruelly, and, I believe, so unjustly—all but the tariff part of it—and if William Howard Taft shall ever grasp the true iniquity of the dogma of protection he will smash it. For that sort of job I would not give him for a regiment of Roosevelts. Soon it became understood by everybody with sense enough to herd a flock of geese or manipulate a panel of drawbars that the colonel was for himself and agin the administration.

Unadvisedy, as I believe, though the results seem and perhaps does challenge my view, the Taft administration handed the New York State Republican convention over to Roosevelt and he eat it up blood raw. Here is what William R. Nelson said of it in his Kansas City Star, by the way, about as good a newspaper as you ever saw:

"Advices from Saratoga are to the effect that Col. Roosevelt met and adjourned."

And so he did. He routed the "Old Guard," he got possession of the machine, and he had not a doubt that he would sweep the state by 200,000 majority. Hearst, whom he had commissioned Elihu Root to denounce as responsible for the murder of McKinley, now engaged with Roosevelt "as thick as Brindle with Cherry," and the circumstances recalls the figure of Edmund Burke of the trundle bed, which I am sorry to say is too coarse to print in politer times, it fits so well and so appropriately.

It was the dirtiest campaign since 1884, and the colonel threw more mud than any one else. Everybody who disagreed with him was "a d——d jackass and a crook." That was his own language. It would take the pen of a Swift, or a Voltaire, or a Pope, to describe that campaign. The colonel went out to Ossawatomie to eulogize John Brown, who would have put the knife to the throats of 6,000,000 whites, mostly women and children, and the torch to their roofs, to free a single negro slave. But the colonel didn't "eulogize" that old lunatic much. He was exceeding perfunctory. Can it be that he was looking for Southern delegates and Southern votes in 1912? Perhaps. John S. Wise might be able to help in Virginia.

But the colonel is a politician of all colors. Jefferson Davis, whatever one may think of his political conduct, was as perfect and elegant a gentleman in his social walk as mankind has produced. In a magazine, or book, or other publication, written by Roosevelt, Mr. Davis discovered a glaring error touching himself. A gentleman from skin to marrow, and from marrow to skin, Mr. Davis supposed he was doing the young man a kindness to call his attention to the mistake and refer him to authentic documents, the scrutiny of which would set him right.

With the insolence of the ruffian, the reply came back to that venerable gentleman, old enough to be his grandfather:

Hold, there is a sequel to the episode. That was Jefferson Davis living; but Jefferson Davis dead, Theodore Roosevelt made a pilgrimage to Vicksburg to eulogize him! Think of it, you Southron.

Had not such popes of Rome granted indulgences to commit sin nobody would have heard of Martin Luther. Apparently, Theodore Roosevelt thinks he has indulgence to be all things political. Col. Nelson, his ablest and his most powerful defender and his most eloquent and enthusiastic eulogist, says Roosevelt was the Saratoga convention of 1910. That convention indorsed the Payne-Aldrich tariff. Why?

I'll tell you. It was for boodle. It was an attempt to "fry the fat" out of the manufacturers, as had been done a score of times before. Roosevelt knows the Republicans have not carried the country since 1872 except with the strongest cash-box. The presidency was bought for Garfield in 1880. It was bought for Harrison in 1888. It was bought twice—once certainly—bought for McKinley, and in 1904 Cortelyou had at command one of the most opulent boodle funds boss ever handled, or monopoly ever contributed. That is history.

Is it not a natural as well as a curious series of circumstances that as soon as Mr. Bryan was supposed to abdicate the czarship of the Democratic party, victory perched on that banner? Mr. Garber, Bryan's man in Ohio, issued a manifesto that meant that "the Peerless One and the Matchless" was agin Harmon. What was Ohio's response? Read it in the 108,000 majority Ohio gave Harmon for re-election as governor.

Bryan says that Roosevelt stole Bryan's principles, as he calls them, and as the Populists forged them. What is the result? Democratic Maine, Democratic Massachusetts, Democratic Connecticut, Democratic New York, Democratic New Jersey, Democratic West Virginia, Democratic Ohio, Democratic Indiana, and Democratic everything "except hell and Vermont," as my dear murdered friend Ed Carmack put it.

That was not accidental. This is an Anglo-Saxon nation. We are not France. We have laws; that is, we have fundamental principles of liberty, and if we are to remain a Republic we know we must worship in temples reared by our fathers, hold on to the altars erected therein by our fathers, and drink deep and copious from the wells dug by our fathers.

Teddy has now descended to the level of the mere agitator, along with Bryan. He is that and only that, and soon he will cast a very short shadow.

$1,000,000 FOR FIGHT AGAINST TUBERCULOSIS IS THE AIM

1910

"A million for tuberculosis from Red Cross seals" is the aim of the National Anti-Tuberculosis association this year. That is hardly more than one seal for every man, woman and child in the United States. Last year 25,000,000 were sold. This year, everything is in favor of a huge sale and all prospects point toward 100,000,000 before New Year's day, 1911.

In order that this large number of Red Cross seals may be sold, however, the co-operation of all sorts of groups of people has been and is being asked. Women's clubs have joined hands with regular anti-tuberculosis societies and committees, while lodges, labor unions, civic and social bodies of all kinds have offered to help. Department stores and merchants' associations are doing all that they can to push the sale of Christmas seals, and newspapers are most liberal in the amount of space they are giving for the description and free advertisement of the campaign. The large national magazines, too, are granting free space for the advertising of the sale, while many corporations, banks, and other business concerns have bought thousands of seals and are helping in every way. The school boys and girls are selling seals in many parts of the country. There is, therefore, a chance for everybody both to sell and to buy Red Cross seals. Every penny added helps toward a million, and it is only by these little additions that the big sum will be realized.

In Duluth every one of these agencies is at work and it is expected that during this holiday season, this city will most emphatically place its approval and support in the nation wide movement. The women's clubs of the city have given their support to the movement and this evening at the Civic banquet at the Spalding, Mrs. Florence Lee, the visiting nurse for the Duluth branch of the society will be one of the speakers. She will make vivid to all her hearers the value and need of the work that is being done in the city for the prevention of tuberculosis.

The Christmas seals are for sale in every department store of the city; the local theaters and moving picture houses have given their most cordial support; and business firms throughout Duluth have been most generous in their support. But the boys and girls of Duluth are perhaps the most active individual workers and just among the schools of the city more than 70,000 seals have been distributed.

The Duluth society hopes especially to secure funds enough to add another visiting nurse to the one, now in the employ of the society.

THE AMERICAN COMMONWEALTH. By James Bryce. New and completely revised edition in two volumes. New York: The Macmillan company. $4 net.

For more than twenty years Bryce's American Commonwealth has been the standard work on the American system of government, not only in this country, but throughout the world. Now it appears anew, revised, brought up to date and corrected—though, in a large way, it is true that no correction was needed except as recent history has revised the spirit of American political institutions. The revision—which is nearly a rewriting—has been done from the vantage point of residence in this country, where the author has been for several years as British Ambassador.

Mr. Bryce brings to this work the same broad vision, the same warm sympathy with preliminary democracy, the same unerring penetration and the same lucid power of conveying facts that characterized the first edition—all broadened and deepened by riper experience. It is a book that should be in the home of every American citizen who wishes a solid foundation of understanding of American institutions on which to build his citizenship.

Though nothing he has ever said has brought a harsh response, Mr. Bryce did not spare criticism in his first edition, nor does he spare it now. Yet, hopeful as he was before of the future of American democracy, he is more hopeful now. "It was with some anxiety," he says, "that I entered on this revision, fearing lest the hopeful spirit with which my observation of American institutions from 1870 to 1894 had inspired me might be dampened by a close re-examination of their most recent phases. But all I have seen and heard during the last few years makes me more hopeful for the future of popular government. The forces working for good seem stronger today than they have been for the last three generations."

James Bryce is beyond all question the most competent, the most fair and the most sincere critic of American institutions who ever has written his impressions of this country. John Graham Brooks, in his splendid volume "As Others See Us," an entertaining and comprehensive review of European criticism of America, rightly declares that Bryce is superior even to Tocqueville, and that he is "clearly our greatest critic."

A new and revised edition of his work, in which something of the new spirit of popular government has been caught, is, therefore, a real and important event.

Mr. Bryce's notes of 1910 are especially interesting, as where he reports an improvement in state legislation, and a tendency toward more active and vigilant control of legislative bodies by public opinion; and where he notes with keen interest a growing tendency on the part of the people to take the power of legislation into their own hands through the initiative and the referendum.

It is worthy of note, too, that this is the only authorized and accurate edition published. When the book first appeared it was before the days of the international copyright, and it was, therefore, only partially protected in the United States. It was natural that so important a work should appeal to the pirates, and many garbled and incomplete editions have been placed on the market without indication of their misleading character. These editions do not even contain the highly important changes of the 1910 edition, which even includes statistics from the 1910 census, so far as they were available when the revision was completed.

TWENTY YEARS AT HULL HOUSE. With autobiographical notes. By Jane Addams. New York: The Macmillan company. $2.50 net.

This is the noble story of a noble life, though its purpose is merely to give the story of Hull House and a modest glimpse of the personality that made it. It is interesting as a story of the establishment of this first American settlement, and of its early trials. It is more interesting still from the human viewpoint as the life story of the splendid woman who has given her life to humanity and has made it so well worth while by her service at Hull House and elsewhere.

It is curious that Miss Addams as a child of 7, should have declared that when she grew up she was going to have a large house, not among other large houses but "right in the midst of horrid little houses" like those of the squalid poor, with whose lives she then first became acquainted. Her recollections of the childhood of this little, crook-backed, introspective child are very tender and very charming.

Now that settlement work has become so fixed an institution in American life—tragic though it is that it should still be needed—it is interesting indeed to have Miss Addams tell of her pioneering in that work, and of the struggles and failures, disappointments and triumphs, that befell. It is interesting, too, to know so intimately the splendid personality that is so largely the protagonist of this work, and to avail one's self of this insight thus afforded into the character of the individual who was directed into this fine service to disinherited humanity.

Hull House was begun in 1889 by Miss Addams and Ellen Gates Starr. The story of its beginnings, its growth, its activities, its contact with big problems of sociology, politics and economics, together with Miss Addams' poignant observations on poverty, Socialism, trades unionism and other allied subjects, is intensely interesting. A chapter of peculiar interest and timeliness is that which describes Miss Addams' visit to Tolstoi, who fingered her wide sleeves—much wider sleeves being then in vogue—and demanded to know how she could square such frippery with her knowledge of the needs of the poor.

BACON IS SHAKESPEARE. By Sir Edwin Durning-Lawrence, Bt. Together with a Reprint of Bacon's Promus of Formularies and Elegances. New York: The John McBride company.

Sir Edwin is a thorough-going cryptogrammarian. He can quote figures and find significances that will make the average reader dizzy, and then will throw in a few more, apparently just for good measure. And after every series of mystic enumerations he raises his trumpet and blares forth an unqualified assertion that he has "proved once more" that Bacon is Shakespeare. It must be confessed that his cryptograms are interesting, and if one is disposed to believe in that kind of evidence they undoubtedly would prove convincing. But unless one is so disposed the portions of Sir Edwin's book that deal with simpler matters are much more convincing than are the chapters of near-mathematics. Of one thing Sir Edwin makes himself sure, and that is that "the unlettered rustic of Stratford, never able to read a single line of print," did not write the plays that bear his name. But he does not stop with that, and his account of the life and work of Francis Bacon goes far toward at least furnishing ground for suspicions that the famous jurist may have been their author. In his attack on Shakespeare he reproduces pictures of the original monument at Stratford, showing the subject with a wool-sack or money-bag hugged to his stomach and contrasts it with the newer monument in which the subject is dignified with a pen and paper. He shows the peculiar construction of the portrait in the folio of 1623, which is made up of "two left arms and a mask," and would have us believe that the mask is meant to hide the face of Bacon. With this he quotes the lines ascribed to Ben Jonson—"Look not on his picture, but his book," and finds other significances in the same stanza of introduction.

Sir Edwin's arguments to show that the Stratfordian could not have written the plays are but a variation of those furnished in Mark Twain's "Is Shakespeare Dead?" and he quotes Mark Twain, Lord Palmerston, Richard Monckton Milnes, Ralph Waldo Emerson, John Greenleaf Whittier, Dr. William Furness, Prince Bismarck, and John Bright, the last named of whom wrote that "any man that believes that William Shakespeare of Stratford wrote Hamlet or Lear is a fool."

But when Sir Edwin gets off from the argument based on known facts and gets to work with his cryptograms and his interpretation of honorificabilitudinitatibus (the long word found in "Love's Labor's Lost" on page 136 of the folio edition of 1623), he gets into a realm in which the layman may find some difficulty in following him. The long word, he interprets as meaning "Hi ludi F. Baconis nati tuiti orbi—There plays, Francis Bacon's production, are preserved to the world." To owners of copies of the 1623 folio it will be interesting to learn that Sir Edwin holds it to be a corrected edition of the plays, compiled and edited by Francis Bacon himself.

All told, Sir Edwin makes a strong case for his proposition that the Stratford man, who he declares "could not so much as manage to scrawl his own name," could not have written the plays. His efforts to prove that Bacon wrote them are less convincing, though he makes it plain that that is a possible solution of the question of their authorship. The book is generously illustrated with plates and engravings.

THE SHERIFF OF DYKE HOLE. By Ridgwell Cullum, Philadelphia: George W. Jacobs & Co. $1.50.

An old time cowboy made a confession the other day that was good for his soul and edifying to those folk who get an occasional thrill from the tales of the West when it was wild and woolly, as published by the Eastern magazines. He said the average cowboy was a rough, uncouth person who swore ungrammatically, had little or no respect for the weak, regarded superior strength as the only law, liked to shoot up a town and threaten the innocent bystander, bully the proverbial tenderfoot and cringe and fawn like any beaten man when forced to take his own medicine.

These facts concerning this phase of the so-called West, while of course overdrawn, are well known to those people familiar with the West, its history, its trials, its achievements and its hopes. These people catch the romance and the mystery of the West, but they do not put a veneer on it so that it will appeal to the East. The New England morality and the New England conscience retain their forms of two centuries ago. The New England conception of the West has not changed since the days of Bleeding Kansas or the pilgrimage of the Forty-niners.

The East must have its West although no West exists in the sense of personalities, forms and habits characteristically Western, for Western people boss the East, Western people are cosmopolitan, Western people buy an occasional gown in Paris, read the Outlook and subscribe for the Atlantic Monthly. But the East must have its Jack-in-the-box so Ridgwell Cullum undertakes to gratify what our cub reporter designates as a "longfelt want."

Mr. Cullum writes amateurishly. His work lacks polish and is wanting in originality.

The story begins in London and probably to the Londoner it will be of absorbing interest. The theme concerns Dick Roydon, who falls heir to a fortune on condition that he shall hunt and find his foster father's wife and daughter. He seeks them out, going to Montana for the purpose. He has enough stirring adventures in Montana to make the hair of the most highly barbered Londoner rise from its plastered horizontalism. The Western sheriff, usually a politician "in right," is "a blunt, bluff, honest Westerner. He is the type of man that children instinctively love, that women go to in trouble, that brave men admire, and evil doers avoid. The quoted comment is from the publishers' criticism

"The Sheriff of Dyke Hole" will not cause a stir in the West but it is likely to interest those whose preconceived notions of the old West it squares with.

MADEMOISELLE CELESTE. By Adele Ferguson Knight. Philadelphia: George W. Jacobs & Co. $1.50.

The French revolution has been the theme of many tales and it probably will be utilized as the basis for stories by many authors living and unborn. Adele Ferguson Knight finds a plot in an incident of the revolution and she weaves an interesting romance out of it. She makes no pretense of revealing the intimate life of any of the prominent personages of that sanguinary period in the history of the French. Her story is a fabric of romanticism interestingly woven from bright colored though well worn material. The fact that there have been other exciting romances dealing with love in France and revolution in Paris does not rob the book of its charm or interest.

Franz de Beaurepeua is a Republican and a member of the National Guard. He loves Mademoiselle Celeste, Countess de Lavarolle, an aristocrat. Her parents die on the scaffold of the guillotine and she is doomed to death but is saved at the steps of the instrument of death by Franz.

A strong man, physically and mentally, whom Mademoiselle knows as Victor, is a friend of Franz. Without questioning his friend's motives he escorts Mademoiselle across France to the coast. He and the young woman have exciting adventures and the countess falls in love with her guide. He wins the lady when Franz goes back to fight for his country, relinquishing his sweetheart to his friend.

Victor is a duke in disguise. He does not fight any duels or vanquish a standing army, but overcomes his enemies by his wits and a well directed blow with his fist now and then where it will do the most good. "Mademoiselle Celeste" is a pleasant evening's reading.

THE BOY AVIATORS' POLAR DASH. By Capt. Wilbur Lawton. New York: Hurst & Co. 50 cents.

Here we have another of Capt. Lawton's thrilling stories of the adventures of Harry and Frank Chester in their famous aeroplane, the Golden Eagle. This time they go with Capt. Robert Hazzard, a young army officer, on a government expedition to the South pole. While the actual attainment of the pole was the main object of the dash southward, the expedition was likewise to do all in its power to add to the slender stock of the world's knowledge concerning the great silences south of the 80th parallel. The trip was made to the Southern seas in a stanch bark-rigged whaler, the Southern Cross, purchased for uses of the expedition. Facing death in the Antarctic is the book's sub-title, and readers of Capt. Lawton's former stories can readily imagine that here is a field that affords him the fullest opportunity.

THE AEROPLANE EXPRESS. By Ashton Lamar. Chicago. The Reilly & Britton company. 60 cents.

Roy Osborn, the "live wire" of "The Aeroplane Express," one of a new series of four books by Ashton Lamar, certainly knew the knock of opportunity when he heard the noise at his door. The American Aeroplane company took an order from a Western miner for a flying machine, with the understanding that a first-class operator must be sent along to run it. It was to be used as a means of communication and transportation of emergency supplies between a group of mines located in Arizona's most inaccessible regions. Young Osborn seized his opportunity with a running jump. The idea of being the first person in all the world to bring the aeroplane into commercial utility was a promise of fame not to be lost. Then, too, the opportunity for adventure in the wild spots of a rugged country held a charm hardly less important. A character of importance in the story is "Sink Weston," a supposedly half-witted frontiersman, as interesting as he is rough and faithful. He becomes the guide for the young aviator and with his assistance Roy's adventures begin and they do not end until he has seen the last surviving representatives of the "lost tribe" of Indians, and solved the mystery of the "White God of the Sink Hole." Incidentally he admirably succeeds in establishing the projected Aeroplane express and also in proving that Weston is sane enough to win fame and fortune, not only for himself, but for the young aviator as well.

Among the Magazines.

The December number of the North American Review, with a notable table of contents, appears in a new and enlarged form. The type is large, the paper fine, and the whole appearance thorughly in keeping with the dignity of the periodical. "Some Lessons of the Election," by Edward G. Lowry, is a fair analysis of the political situation as the result of Election day. The article on "Lyof N. Tolstoy," by W. D. Howells, the master American critic of the great Russian, is reprinted from the December, 1908, number of the Review. Charles M. Harger makes a valuable contribution in his "The Land Movement and Western Finance." "The Clew to Modern Italy," by William Roscoe Thayer, is a scholarly resume written with authority and by a lover of Italy. An essay of exceptional literary charm appears under the title "Darkeners of Counsel" by Beulah B. Amram. The Rev. Philip S. Moxom, D.D., writes on "The Child and Social Reform." An article which will be valuable for reference is that on "Popular Election of United States Senators." The data compiled in historical form is the work of John W. Perrin of Case Library, Cleveland. "The International Fame of Mark Twain" is an agreeable appreciation by Archibald Henderson.

Among the strong adventure stories in the December month-end issue of the twice-a-month Popular Magazine, which was on sale Nov. 25, are: "His Heritage," a complete novel, by W. B. M. Ferguson; "Milady's Muff," a tragic tale of the North, by Bertrand W. Sinclair; "Beriberi," a mystery novelette, by Arthur Train; "The Pride of Getaway," an intimate study of a criminal, by Frederick R. Bechdolt; "Adventure," a stirring serial of the Solomons, by Jack London; "His Last Gamble," a short story, by H. R. Durant; "Shanley's Luck," a railroad story, by Frank L. Packard; "South Mountain Wireless" the story of a quick-thinking young dispatcher, by Paul Crissey, and "The Grapes of Wrath," a novel of the South, by Emerson Hough. In lighter vein are: "Sandy Sawyes, Sophomore," a breezy college story, by Ralph D. Paine; "A Hoodooed Drummer," the amusing narrative of a salesman's experiences, by Max Marcin; "Big Dividends," a tale of the too-ready friend in need, by Charles R. Barnes.

O. Henry's last story, an unfinished Christmas tale, is the biggest thing in the January issue of Short Stories. It tells of sordid-respectable New York "roomers," and is full of those qualities that made O. Henry the greatest modern short story writer—his vivid picturing and imagery, his whimsical humor and never-bitter irony, his poignant sympathy with the men and women who toil. The issue is in all respects a notable one. The cover is a striking piece of color by Lejaren Hiller, two winsome dancers under a "spot" light. The collection of stories is the best yet offered—the first installment of a new series by Alfred Williams, "The Devil Machine;" Adolph Bennauer's latest fascinating tale, "The Man Who Might Have Been;" and some delightful humor by Harry Allyn, Edward F. Mason and R. Bigelow Lockwood. The many who watch for C. Hapsburg Liebe's work will appreciate his "Hearts of Two Mountains."

The Christmas spirit is still apparent in the Delineator for January. There are beautiful Christmas illustrations in vivid color by Blanche Greer, Howard Chandler Christy, B. J. Rosenmeyer and James Moore Preston. The frontispiece is an illustration by Paul Meylan, for "Sarolta" and the cover design is a pretty girl in various shades of green. In "Conversazione," Erman J. Ridgway pleads for the understanding and happiness of little children. The fiction marks the beginning of "Sarolta," a new serial by Agnes and Egerton Castle. The scene of the opening installment is London, and the hero falls in love at first sight. The heroine's ambition to become an opera singer promises some interesting complications. There is a rollicking story of a proposal by Emery Pottle, and a sweet Christmas story by Miriam Cruikshank which tells of the subtle knitting of the bond of friendship between the descendants of the Puritans and the Hebrews who have come among us. The fourth story is by Mary Heaton Vorse, and a new series of "Letters From a Worldly Godmother" is begun.

In the current issue of Harper's Weekly Edward J. Lowry writes upon "The New Deal in Congress." To the same number Charles Johnston contributes an article upon "The Third Conference of Governors." Other articles are: "Keeping Down Tire Expenses," by Herbert L. Towle; "Rummaging in a Royal Attic," by James F. J. Archibald—an interesting account of the discovery of historical relics at Castle Frohsdorf; "Cigars and the Women," by Carl Werner. William Inglis contributes a reminiscent account of the historic fight in which Corbett defeated Sullivan, and John Kendrick Bangs continues his amusing "Table d'Hote Talks." William Winter and Lawrence Gilman appear with their dramatic and musical reviews. This issue contains the usual editorial and humor pages.

Holiday Art Publications.

Raphael Tuck & Sons' art publications for the holiday season have made their appearance and, as usual, stand at the head of their class. The firm's output for this year in calendars, Christmas and New Year's cards and Christmas post cards, as well as toy books and various art novelties, presents a superb collection. In Christmas and New Year cards the novelties are legion. They are spread over a range of no less than 4,500 entirely new and distinct designs, all replete with character and beauty. The famous "autograph Christmas stationery" has upwards of 300 different styles. The popularity of the calendars will be greater than ever, judging from specimens received by The Herald. The designs painted for the purpose are from originals by gifted artists, while it is evident that the quotations have been selected with infinite care and judgment. A new edition of "Alice in Wonderland," by Lewis Carroll, is most characteristically and charmingly illustrated by Mabel Lucie Ottwell, and is an exceptionally attractive juvenile gift book.

THE KITCHEN

Pigs' Tails.

Simmer the tils in stock broth, together with carrots, onions in which a few cloves have been inserted, chives, parsley, bay leaves, thyme, etc., salt and pepper until done. Then let them become cold and cover them with melted butter and breadcrumbs and afterwards with the yolks of eggs beaten up and more breadcrumbs. Brown them in an oven or under a hot cover and serve with a good thick sauce.

Cocoa Nectar.

Dissolve two tablespoons of cocoa in one breakfast cup of good hot coffee. Add one-half pound of sugar and three cups of water. Strain. When cold, flavor with vanilla and when ready to serve pour into glasses in each of which there should be one tablespoon of ice cream, or whipped cream if the other is not available.

A Good Breakfast Dish.

Fry in the frying-pan some bacon and then ift on a dish to keep hot. Beat thoroughly one or two eggs and allow to each egg, one small tablespoon of flour, three tablespoonfuls of milk and a little pepper and salt. Mix well and fry in bacon and serve very hot. Done in this way two eggs will go as far as six and the dish is a nice change.

Apple Bread.

Those clever women who make bread at home may like to try this recipe for a change. Allow one pound of apples to every two pounds of flour. Peel, core, and stew the apples till tender; mash them and stir them into the flour. Stir an ounce of yeast with a little sugar until it is lquid; add a very little water and mix with the flour. The juice of the apples makes nearly enough liquid, but tepid water must be used to form a stiff dough. Let this rise in the usual way and for the usual time; make into small tin (pan) loaves and bake in a moderate oven for about three-quarters of an hour.

Calves' Foot Jelly.

Clean two calves' feet and put them into three quarts of water. Boil for three hours, skimming often. Pour liquid through a fine sieve, and leave till quite hard, then take away all fat. Now put half a pound of finest sugar, the juice of two lemons, the grated rind of one lemon, the well-beaten whites of two eggs, one and a half pints of water into a bowl, adding jelly last. Stir over fire till boiling, strain through jelly bag; put into mold. Serve with bananas, pears or any fresh fruit preferred.

To Turn a Jelly Out Whole.

Fill a mold with cold water, empty it, and put in the jelly immediately. The next day put the mold upside down on a glass dish. Wring a thick cloth out of water as hot as possible, wrap around the mold, double on the top—do this twice—and the jelly will slip out whole.

Frank's Christmas in a Balloon.

THE Smith family sat about the breakfast table, Mr. Smith reading aloud a letter from his brother. After he had finished the epistle he turned to his wife, remarking:

"Well, John always was a venturesome chap. But I don't quite like his new fad. Balloons are never to be trusted. They fly wildly here and there, alighting in any old place, preferably in some deep body of water or in a marsh. No, I wish John would put his talents and energy to some better cause than that of aviation."

"Why, Papa, I think Uncle John the bravest man I know. He's not afraid to try things. If all people sat back and feared to risk new inventions, we'd never make any advancement in the world. We'd all be riding Shank's mare, so to speak. There'd be no ships or steam cars, or—or—flying machines. I believe in all sorts of improvement." So spoke Frank Smith, 15 years old.

"That's all right, my boy," smiled Mr. Smith. "And the day is near at hand when people will be crossing the country in airships at the rate of a hundred miles an hour. But I'm speaking of the old-fashioned, unmanageable balloon. No one is foolish enough to have hopes for the success of the balloon. And all that my brother John is doing is flying about over a park in the city giving exhibitions of his foolhardiness. I'm always afraid that some serious accident will happen to him. You know when he was a boy he suffered from severe headaches, and often the attack would be so serious that he would fall into a fainting spell. Now, suppose something like that should overcome him when in his balloon? Well, I shudder to think of the consequences."

"But he always has some one in the basket with him," observed Mrs. Smith. "And I suppose his companion knows enough about the machinery of the balloon to manage it in case anything should happen to John. So don't cross the bridge till you come to it, Papa, dear."

"No, if Uncle John will persist in risking his life giving balloon ascensions he alone should have to worry over the result," remarked Katie Smith. "Papa has quite enough on his shoulders to carry without burdening himself with Uncle John's foolhardiness."

"Nevertheless, daughter," said Mr. Smith, "John is my younger brother, and I am always deeply interested in his welfare."

"Then let him behave and go into some safe and serious business," said Katie in an emphatic voice.

"Well, well, children," said Mr. Smith, "we have our individual opinions regarding the matter, so controversy will not change our minds in the least, and our opinions do not effect your uncle at all. He has his own ideas and—shall I say it?—his ideals, and flying through the air is his hobby, or fad, or whatever you may call it. But, let's discuss tomorrow. It's Christmas eve, and either Frank or I must go to the city to lay in things for our Christmas festivity."

"I'll go, Dad, if you'll allow me to," spoke up Frank, eagerly. "I want to go very much."

"Certainly, Frank, I'll be glad to get out of going," said Mr. Smith. "And, you'd best run up to the city tonight and do your buying tomorrow. That will give you a night in the city, and you can go to see some good play. You have been so closely tied to your school that the little change and bit of excitement will do you a world of good. So prepare to start on the 5 o'clock local. That will put you into Union Station at precisely half-past 6. You will get your dinner at the Pioneer Hotel, engage a room for the night and then stroll about Main street till time to go to the theater."

"I wish I were a boy," pouted Katie, "so that I might run into the city and stop over night and attend the theater."

"You may go very soon, dearie," promised Mrs. Smith. "I'll take you up New Year week. You know, Katie, you could not go alone—as Brother can. Our little girlies have to be taken very tender care of. Boys are more independent, and are quite capable of going out without Papa or Mamma at times."

Katie was all happiness over the plan of going to the city during New Year week, and was in a good humor at once. And that afternoon she packed her brother's traveling bag preparatory to his starting to the city by the 5 o'clock train.

Frank was off in due time and arrived in the city in a very happy frame of mind. While he had not said a word about a certain intention he had, he meant fully to run over to the City Park, where his uncle was giving balloon ascensions, and pay that brave kinsman his respects, and, if possible, to see him make an ascension.

After he had eaten his dinner at the hotel, engaged his room for the night, Frank took a street car for the City Park. But he found the gate leading to the ball grounds (where the balloon exhibitions were given) closed. But on inquiry he found that his uncle would make an ascension at 3 o'clock the following day. Having his uncle's home address he went there to call and passed a very enjoyable evening in the company of his uncle and aunt, and their pretty two-year-old baby. On bidding them good-night, Frank promised his uncle that he would be on hand at the park before the hour for the balloon ascension. And he was true to his word, for, before the city was awake, he was out on the streets, visiting the shops which were yet unopened for business.

"Gee, but city folks are lazy," ejaculated Frank. "At home every store is open and people are at their day's work." But as soon as the shops were opened Frank got through with his purchases as quickly as possible, put his bundles and boxes in his room at the hotel and wandered about seeing the sights, till time to go to the park. The day was a fine one, a soft southern sun shining and the air just keen enough to give one vigor. Frank soon reached his uncle's side. Mr. John was preparing for his ascension, and stopped in his work to shake hands with Frank. "Hello, sonny," he said, "I'm having troubles of my own. My partner, who always ascends with me, has just sent me word that he is ill and cannot attend me today. Of course, I don't need him, but somehow, I always feel safer when I have company."

A flush spread over Frank's face and he was so overcome by the emotion of hope that he could hardly say: "Uncle, take me; I'm crazy to go."

"But your daddy?" asked Uncle John, pausing in his work.

"Oh, daddy doesn't like balloons. But—as he says—we all have opinions of our own. And I have my opinion that I should be allowed to accompany you in the balloon today. And papa would approve of it—under the circumstances."

"All right, Frankie," said Uncle John Then, before he was really aware of all that was passing, Frank found himself seated in the balloon basket beside his uncle, and heard his uncle give his assistants the order to undo their anchor. Then up, up, up they went, so calmly, so softly, that Frank hardly realized they were moving .

Pretty soon Frank's uncle spoke to him, and when Frank turned to reply he was struck by his uncle's paleness. He had not noticed his apparent illness before that day. "Why, uncle, are you ill?" asked Frank in frightened tones.

"No, not ill, but a bit of nervous headache. It's the first I have suffered in 10 years; but it will pass off in all this fresh air. I felt it coming on early this morning, but I would not speak of it to your aunt. She's so worried over my making these ascensions. And between you and me, and the proverbial gatepost, I am rather tired of this sort of thing myself. But the money is an inducement. The Balloon Club pays me half the gate receipts, which is a pretty neat sum for these hard times. But—I'm going to give it up pretty soon—as soon as I have ten thousand to go into a ground business on. The air business is telling——"

But Mr. John ceased speaking, and quickly put his hand to his head. He was whiter than a cloth, and his eyes closed involuntarily. Once, twice, he gasped, then his hands, which had been busily engaged in throwing out ballast, dropped limply to his sides and he fell forward, his head resting against Frank's shoulder.

It would be impossible for one who has never experienced a similar shock to understand Frank's feelings at the moment when his uncle fell forward in a faint. In vain did he call to him, shake him, rub his face with some water they had in a bottle, and chafe his hands. Would the man never regain consciousness? Oh, how foolhardy he had been to come up in the balloon. There were nine chances of a fatal landing to one of a safe landing. And his poor uncle—Oh, how more than foolhardy he had been to make these ascensions! For the first time, Frank began to realize the calm, keen, good judgment of his father. "Daddy is right in most matters," he declared, as he rubbed his uncle's face and endeavored to revive him. But the fainting spell lasted quite a long time, and Frank had much to think about and much to blame himself for before he saw signs of returning consciousness in his uncle. During the fainting spell, Frank had not thought to look below him, and after his uncle had come to his full senses, he asked in a weak voice what had happened. When told that he had fainted he looked frightened and tried to sit up. "How long since I fell over?" he asked hurriedly.

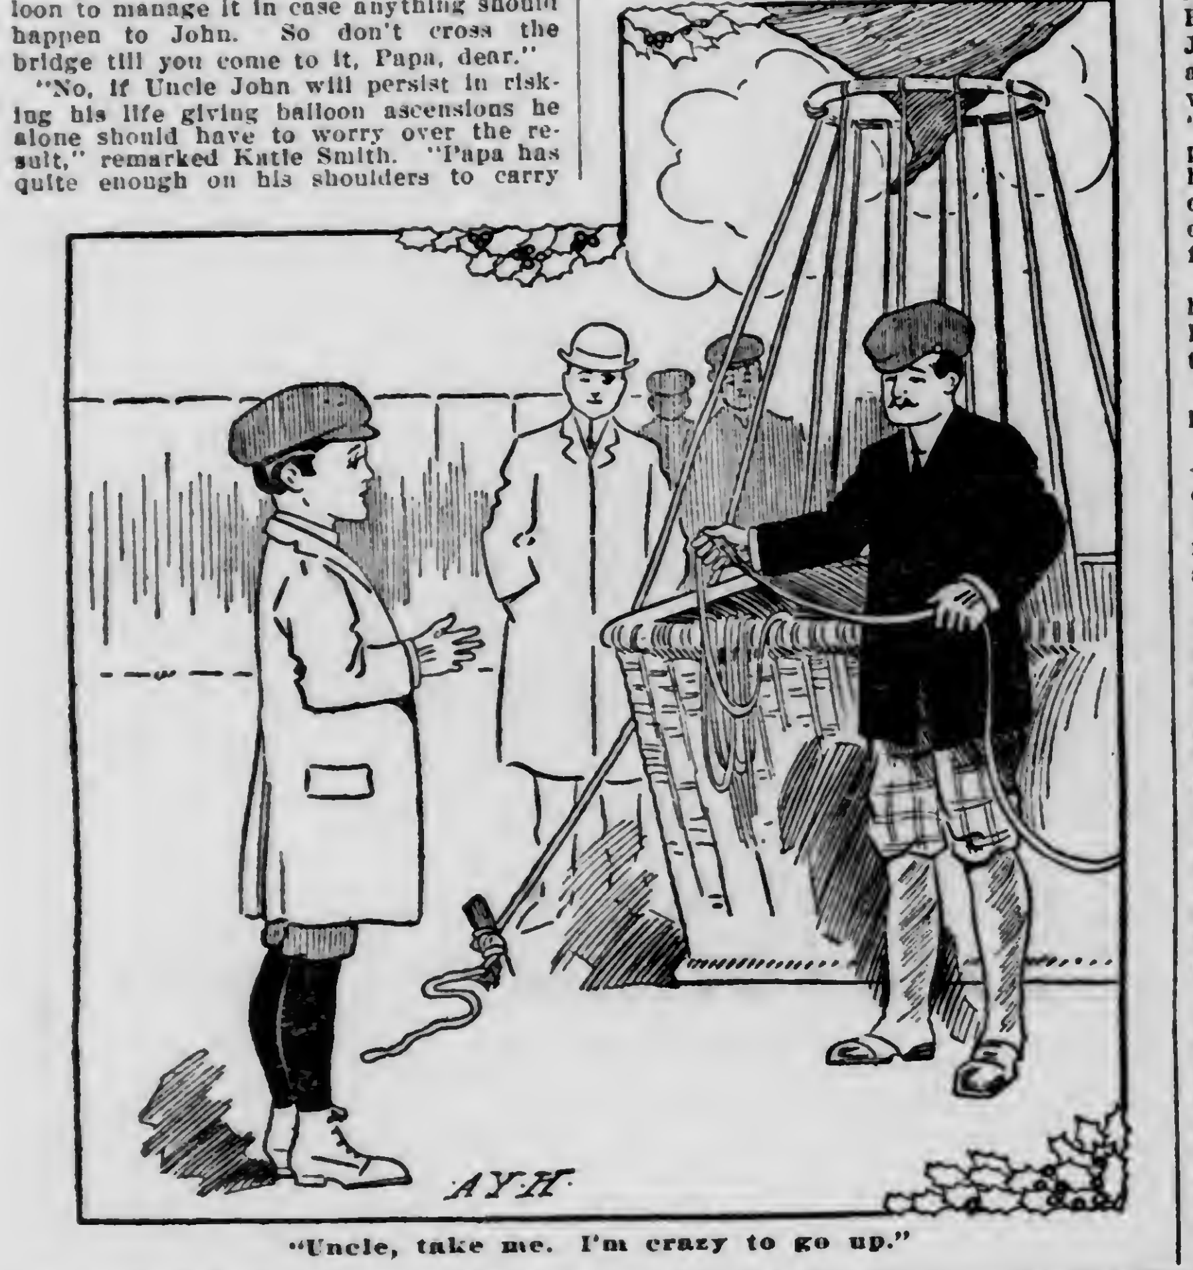
"Oh, some time," said Frank. "It seems hours, but of course, it has only been minutes."

"Look down quickly, and tell me what is beneath us," cried Mr. John. Frank did as told and said: "Why, uncle, we're sailing over water." His uncle sank back helplessly in the basket. "That's what I feared. We've reached the bay and the wind is carrying us out to sea. Oh, God forgive me for having allowed you to come with me. What will brother say when he learns of this?" And the suffering man groaned aloud in his agony of spirit and physical pain. "Listen, Frank, if we get out of this scrape alive, never, never shall I make another balloon ascension. An airship—well, that's a different proposition, for you can guide your boat. But this—" And the agonized man shook his head.

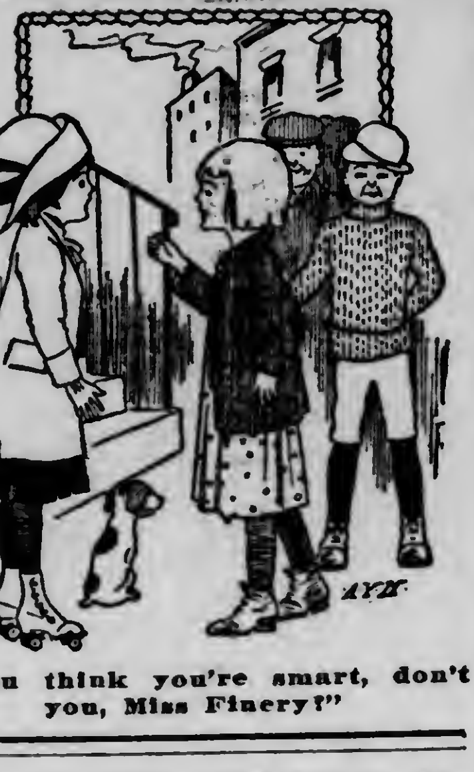
Frank felt himself growing cold and colder, and feared he too would lose consciousness. On and on they went, and darkness settled down on them. "What will become of us?" once ventured Frank. After that, silence reigned. For hours they sailed through cold air and moonlight. For the latter they were thankful. About 2 o'clock in the morning Mr. John gave a cry of joy. "There's Goodland Island!" he said. "Now, we'll land right in the center of it. And there is a life-saving station there. Thank God for bringing us to safety."

"Yes, uncle, God has answered my prayer, for I've been praying ever since you fainted," confessed Frank, tears rolling over his cold cheeks.

They had no difficulty in dropping to earth, and of awaking the keeper of the life station. He invited them in and had their story. "Waal, fellers," he drawled, "you've had a fine Christmas in the air, ain't you? Will I have my men take you to shore? Waal, I reckon I will, pards. An' when this young feller tells his folks about his ride across the bay, gee, I guess he'll feel his mammy's slipper!" "I ought to feel it, good and hard," said Frank vehemently.



"Uncle, take me. I'm crazy to go up."



"You think you're smart, don't you, Miss Finery?"

Lily's Naughty Roller Skates.

SEE, darling, grandpa has sent you a new pair of roller skates." And Mrs. Jackson held up to her little daughter Lily's view a fine pair of roller skates, such as would please the heart of any child.

"Oh, Mamma, a pair of new skates is just what I wanted most of all," cried Lily in great glee. "And now I shall roll to school every morning, for the pavements are fine all the way. Oh, how good of dear grandpa to know just what I most wanted and to send these lovely skates to me!"

Then Lily put them on to see if they fitted, which they did exactly.

"Now, dearie, you may run out and try them on the pavement in the block. But don't go too far away from the house. You know the skates will roll very rapidly, and you'll have to keep them under strict control," said Mrs. Jackson.

"All right, Mamma," promised Lily. Then she was out and flying—or rolling, rather—over the pavement down the street. Oh, how perfectly lovely the skates did roll! They carried her as though she were sailing on wings.

After Lily had been skating for half an hour a little dog came running after her. He was a bright-eyed, jolly fellow, and seemed anxious for a frolic with Lily. Lily loved dogs, particularly lively, friendly little ones like the one now endeavoring to make her acquaintance, so she right merrily agreed with Doggie to race down the street with him. So away they went, and Doggie barked loudly, showing his enjoyment of the sport, and Lily laughed so gaily that passersby stopped to look after the racing pair and to smile. Lily was so excited that she did not notice the direction in which Doggie led her, for he was no sooner in one street than he turned a corner into another and went on wildly, barking in high glee.

"Well, I'm tired Doggie," laughed Lily, stopping to get breath. Then she whistled to Doggie, who came back reluctantly. He loved racing, evidently. Then Lily sat on some steps leading to a small shop, Doggie close beside her. She noticed the street thronged with dirty, ragged children, and began wondering where she was. "Why, Doggie, I don't recognize my surroundings," she said. Just then an impudent boy came sauntering towards her, grinning. "Hello, Miss," he smirked. "Where did youse git them skates? They belongs to me, if I ain't badly off my trolley. Come, git out of 'em and hand 'em to their rightful owner."

Lily trembled and stood up, looking about her, hoping to find some friendly face. But a group of dirty children had surrounded her by this time, and the boy continued: "Come, me purty miss, git your tootsies out of them skates. They're mine. I put 'em on the pavement a bit ago till I went into me uncle's shop yonder, and when I comes out agin, believe me, there they air on your tootsies. Git out of 'em, and that mighty suddent."

"But they're my skates, my grandfather sent them to me," said Lily, beginning to cry. "Please let me go home. I live in Chester avenue, and I have come too far away. My mamma will be at home and looking for me."

"Youse can go when youse hev tooked off me skates," said the boy, now beginning to bully Lily by frowning at her and shaking a hard, dirty fist in her face.

"Yes, you take off Handy's skates an' give 'em to him," screamed one of the ragged, uncombed girls. "You think you're smart, don't you Miss Finery?"

"No, all I want is to go home and to keep my new skates," cried Lily. Just then the boy rudely caught hold of her arm, but as he did so the little dog snarled and snapped fiercely at him. The boy kicked at the animal viciously, but the dog was too quick for the clumsy foot. Just what might have happened then no one can tell, had not a big policeman come round the corner. When the group of dirty children saw the officer they gave each other the sign and scampered off in various directions. Lily and Doggie were left on the shop steps, Lily in tears and Doggie looking at her sympathetically. The big policeman came to Lily and asked what was the cause of trouble. Lily told him all and gave the number of her house in Chester avenue. "Ah, then you are about 10 blocks from home, little one," explained the officer. "Come, [illegible] take you to the street that will lead you directly into your own avenue, and about three doors from your own home."

Once within a few blocks of her home, Lily thanked the officer for the service he had rendered her and said she could go on alone now, as she was in familiar surroundings. So, with Doggie at her side, and the skates over her arm (she had removed them before setting out for home) she went on in a happy frame of mind, for she was very grateful to have escaped that terrible boy. "But you, you naughty skates," she said, shaking the skates emphatically, "you behaved very badly towards me for you carried me into a very wicked place. Ah, I shall never trust you off my own home pavement again. But——" and she turned to Doggie, "I have found a new friend, and unless some one comes to claim you I shall give you a good home with us." And then she ran into her mother's arms and told of her very terrible experience.

Bonnie's Christmas - Story of a Little Sparrow.

IT was a stern Christmas Eve, the snow flying and the thermometer registering far below zero. From the pavement of the town's streets one might look through windows into lighted, warm and happy homes, occasionally getting a peep of an evergreen Christmas tree in the parlor surrounded by laughing people whose hands were busy decorating the tree's branches preparatory for the festivity which was to be enjoyed a few hours later. It was only 6 o'clock, and all the town was in its gala Christmas Eve attire.

But there beat one heavy little heart in the great out-of-doors, where the chill blasts of wind swept so cruelly round street corners and down long, narrow alleys. And the heart that ached from cold and loneliness was in the breast of tiny Bonnie, a sparrow without a home. Poor Bonnie sat perched and shivering on the bare branch of a slender tree that stood bending in the wind just outside the gate of a very cozy home. In the home dwelt the Greysons, a family consisting of father, mother, two sons and one daughter. The children's names were Harry, Jack and May. Harry was 14 years old, Jack was 11 and May 8. May was always called the baby of the family, and her two "big" brothers were forever doing nice things for her. "She's the only sister we've got," they would say, laughingly. "So, we must behave mighty nicely toward her." And so they did.

But that's another story. Let us to the dilemma of poor little Bonnie, as he sat shivering near to his death on the bare limb of the slender tree that waved and tossed in the wind near to the front gate of the Greysons' home. "I'll surely freeze to death," said Bonnie to himself as the shadows of night gathered rapidly about him. "And I am so hungry; oh, so hungry! If I might find a crumb—just a crumb—I would be grateful for it. How can I ever pass through this night?"

Then the warm, yellow light coming from the parlor windows of the Greyson house attracted Bonnie's attention, and he stopped his melancholy soliloquy to hop to a limb nearer to the house that he might get a closer peep into the bright, warm place. Then, seeing that the ledge of the parlor window afforded a better view, he hopped there, though his feet were so benumbed from cold that he could scarcely bestir them. And his wings were quite stiff and his whole body shivering.

Once on the window ledge Bonnie could look into the room very easily, for only a lace curtain hung between, and the glass pane, of course. And when he pressed his body against the pane he could feel some warmth, for on the other side a bright fire was glowing in the grate and the comfortable atmosphere of the room spread all about even to the windows. As Bonnie looked he saw three children come into the room, and the eldest, who was Harry, turned up the gas, which had been burning but dimly. Then the children began hanging pretty things on a tall evergreen tree that stood in one corner of the room. As they worked the little girl took from her pocket a sweet cake and began to munch from it. But she was so absorbed in her work of hanging a box (which contained a pretty gift for one of her brothers) that she put the cake on a table near by and forgot it. As Bonnie's eyes rested on the bit of sweet cake his tiny stomach gnawed afresh at sight of food. "Ah, I wish the clear thing which covers this opening were not so hard, and that I might enter that beautiful place and take a few bites from that good cake!" he whispered to himself. But his attention was still held by the children who put ever so many pretty boxes and parcels on the tree. Then, their work accomplished, the oldest boy drew a curtain, which had been hung temporarily, across in front of the tree and they ran out of the room. While Bonnie was wondering why they had gone from such a pleasant place, the door opened and in walked Mrs. Greyson, her arms laden with presents which she proceeded to hang to the limbs of the tree.

After Mrs. Greyson had finished arranging her gifts on the tree she turned out the gas, leaving the room lighted dimly by the glow from the grate. And then, sniffing the air, she said aloud, so that Bonnie overheard her: "The room is too warm and needs fresh air. There will be about 12 persons in here tonight and the parlor must not be stuffy. I'll open one of the windows." So saying, she went to the window that was directly beside the one on whose ledge perched freezing Bonnie, and opened the lower sash some ten inches, leaving the curtain drawn aside so that the fresh air might come in freely. Then the good lady left the room, calling out in the hall: "Come, children, dinner is waiting. And we must hurry a bit, for our company will arrive precisely at 8, and Santa Claus must not be kept out in the cold, you know."

Then Bonnie heard a scurrying of children's feet along the hall, mingled with glad voices. Then a door opened and closed and the sounds of feet and voices ceased. The Greyson family were gathered round the table in the dining-room in the rear of the parlor.

Bonnie peeped cautiously at the open window, hopped near to it and peeped again. "Ah, ah," he said. "I can go in that way. How kind the lady was to open it for me." And he went into the parlor, flying directly to the small table on which May had left the bit of sweet cake. It didn't take Bonnie long to enjoy a good dinner, for he ate of the cake till his breast began to protrude most noticeably. Then, feeling much better, he flapped his warming wings and looked at the topmost branch of the evergreen tree which lifted itself above the curtain.

"The very place for me," said Bonnie, and he flew to the spot. Ah, it was snug up there! The room was warm and dusky and Bonnie felt very drowsy. Soon he was fast asleep, all crouched into a tiny feathery ball on the limb, half hidden behind the green foliage and the numerous hanging gifts.

At a few minutes before eight the parlor door opened and Mrs. Greyson came into the room. She lighted the gas jets, stirred the fire in the grate and closed the window. Then she took a peep behind the curtain which she had left closed over the tree.

"All is in readiness," she said aloud. Then Mr. Greyson came in, saying in a cheery voice: "Ah, Mamma, this is a severe night. I hope there are no poor souls without shelter this Christmas Eve. But—where are the kiddies?"

"They will come down in a minute, papa," said Mrs. Greyson. "May wanted to tidy up a bit after dinner and the boys are putting a finishing touch to their toilet for the evening. You know they wouldn't put on their best coats till after dinner, for Jack said it would just be his luck to pass his sleeve across some butter and soil it. He declared that an ounce of prevention was worth a pound of cure."

"Our boy Jack is a great fellow," smiled Mr. Greyson. "Well, let's have a peep at the tree, Mamma. All have had a hand at the fixing except myself. And I've some small trinkets to hang on a limb."

"If there's a limb left," laughed Mrs. Greyson. And she drew the curtain aside so that her husband might look at the tree. While he was examining it, he slipped from his pocket several small boxes which he tied to one of the less-burdened limbs. "Well, it's a beauty, Mamma," he said, speaking of the tree.

Then the children joined their parents in the parlor, and pretty soon the young guests arrived. Then all was merry-making and fun.

And after the curtain was drawn from in front of the tree, the light shone full upon frightened little Bonnie. He sat in the full view of all present. A queer-looking, red-cheeked individual, whom the children all called "Santa," was there, making loads of fun as he lifted the gifts from the tree. But Bonnie could not enter into the spirit of the occasion, for he felt that every minute would be his last. So he sat cowering and shivering on the limb, too much afraid of what might happen to him should he fly away from it.

And pretty soon a pair of bright eyes rested on him. They were Santa's eyes, and he thought Bonnie a stuffed or toy bird. "Ah, ha!" said Santa Claus, grinning from ear to ear, "we have here a dear little bird——"

But just as he was about to lay hands on Bonnie the poor fellow took heart to fly, and went across the room, landing on the top of a picture. "Why, it's a real live bird!" cried Santa Claus. Then everyone became excited, and Mr. Greyson had to quiet them by saying: "Be very still, for the little thing is frightened within an inch of his life. He doubtless got in while the window was open, and found what he was looking for, shelter from the terrible night. Ah, you dear, little sparrow," he said, addressing Bonnie, "I'll make a house in the tree beside the gate for you tomorrow. Till then, you shall remain in here."

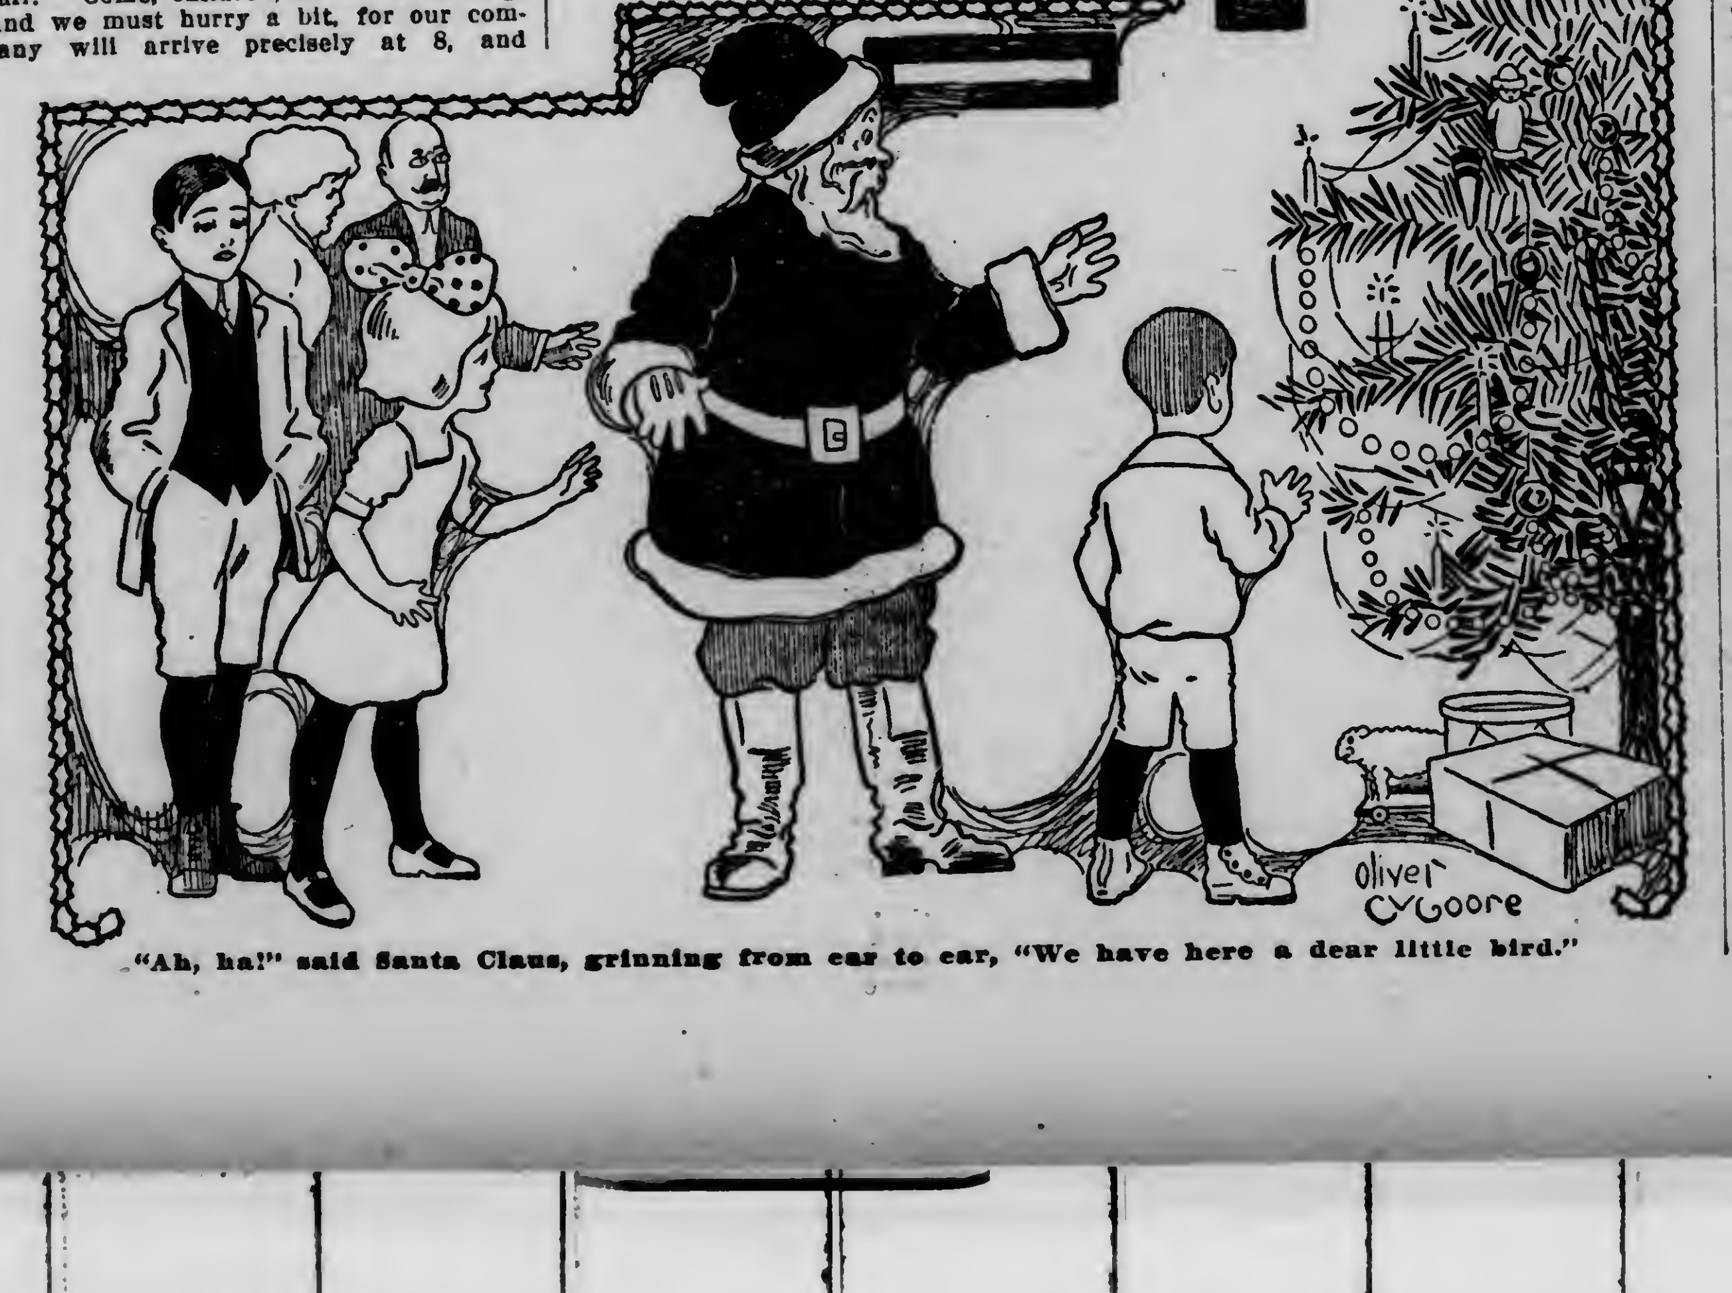
And, sure enough, on the morrow, Mr. Greyson, with the assistance of Harry, Jack and May, built a snug little house and fastened it securely in a fork of the tree where winds could not blow it loose. And inside the little house May placed soft cotton and straw for Birdie to sleep in, and under the tree on top the gate-posts crumbs were put in plenty for Bonnie. And a deep bowl of pure water was also placed on one of the gate-posts every day, so that Bonnie might drink and bathe whenever he desired to do so.

It was not for several hours on Christmas Day that Bonnie could be persuaded to enter his new and comfortable house in the tree, for he was still frightened at the big people who were about him. As soon as the house had been completed and fixed in the tree, Mrs. Greyson had opened the windows in the parlor and allowed Bonnie to make his escape. Once in the big, free world outside, however, Bonnie partly recovered himself, and felt that no harm could come to him now if he just kept his distance from the people. So he waited on top of a barn in the rear of a neighbor's house till the family had gone indoors, then he slyly flew to the Greyson's front gate and ate some of the crumbs from the gate-post. Then he sought the tree beside the gate and, on exploring the bare branches, hunting no doubt for a warm place, for the weather was still bitterly cold, he found the house with the open door. Into it he first put his head, and, seeing that the place contained no enemy, into it he stepped. And, finding it so cosy, he decided to remain, which he did.

And all that winter did Bonnie stay in the little house in the tree, and it was May Greyson who named him Bonnie, for she declared he was "the bonniest birdie she had ever seen," and all the family agreed with her. And not one day or night did Bonnie feel the cold, and when other sparrows chanced to pay him a visit—which was quite frequent—he had a delightful parlor in which to entertain them. And seeing these little visitors coming there caused Mr. Greyson and his sons to build several more sparrow houses in the tree beside the gate, and there were plenty of sparrows to take possession as soon as the tree-apartments were ready for them.

"I wonder if Bonnie ever tells his friends of his Christmas Eve?" asked May one morning, as she and Jack were feeding the birds.

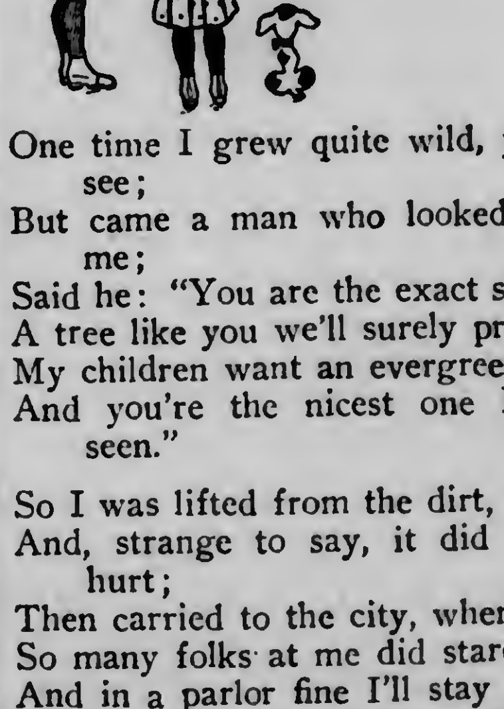
"Sure he does," declared Jack. "And his story is interesting, too."



"Ah, ha!" said Santa Claus, grinning from ear to ear, "We have here a dear little bird."

Christmas Tree Chat.

I AM a little Christmas Tree,
And one day soon you will see me
In gala finery, boughs all hung
With gifts so nice, and candy strung
From limb to limb, with ribbons gay!
Yes, some day soon I'll look that way.



One time I grew quite wild, you see;
But came a man who looked at me;
Said he: "You are the exact size.
A tree like you we'll surely prize.
My children want an evergreen,
And you're the nicest one I've seen."

So I was lifted from the dirt,
And, strange to say, it did not hurt;
Then carried to the city, where
So many folks at me did stare.
And in a parlor fine I'll stay
Till one week after Christmas Day.

THE COMING WEEK IN THE THEATERS

ORPHEUM—Vaudeville.

EMPRESS—Vaudeville.

ODEUM and LYRIC—Motion pictures.

"It is a wise manager," says The Billboard in its Christmas number, "who knows his own booking agent these days.

"The shake-up in the booking field that occurred the latter part of last season and which has extended into this season in an even more aggravated form, has managers of theaters and attractions in different sections of the country guessing as to what attractions they are going to get.

"At times, they do not even know whether they are going to get any. The traveling manager for his part does not know from one town to another in several sections of the country whether he is going to play one house or another until he gets into the city where the engagement is to be filled. Wrangling often occurs. Sometimes the traveling manager will find that if he plays according to contract, he will see-saw back and forth between Klaw & Erlanger's and the Shuberts' theaters indefinitely. This is the result of a subsequent change in the circuits that occurred after he had made his contract with one or the other.

"A little chain of theaters here, that yesterday belonged to the big Klaw & Erlanger circuit, is today being booked by the Shuberts, and over there another chain of theaters that were being booked by the Shuberts is being booked by the Klaw & Erlanger offices today. Sometimes the manager of a traveling attraction will insist on playing the theaters according to his original contract, then a wrangle takes place, and bad feeling ensues.

"The latest development is the consummation of a sort of protocol between the antagonistic factions, which it is believed will result in a final arrangement by which the attractions of both big booking agencies will be reciprocally booked into the houses one of the other. If this condition is brought about, it will be the nearest approach to the ideal that we have made in this country. It is difficult to anticipate just what the effect of an amicable arrangement of this kind would be. One contingency is almost assured; a good many houses would be eliminated, for whereas there were too many attractions and not enough houses before the Messrs. Shubert broke away from the syndicate, so many houses have been built and opened since that time that there are now too many first-class houses for the attractions that are available. It is more than probable that a great many of these houses wil go over to vaudeville."

AT THE LYCEUM

The rapid rise of Consuelo Bailey and George Probert has caused the watchers to look into the past doings of these very talented players who are engaged in creating much laughter by their artistic performances in Margaret Mayo's farce "Baby Mine," which is to be seen at the Lyceum on Thursday next for four nights and two matinees.

It was under the careful training of T. Daniel Frawley, the famous manager of stock companies, that Miss Bailey got much of her training. Entering the company for ingenue roles, before the end of her stay with Mr. Frawley's company Miss Bailey was playing the leading roles in a company that was typical of the Frawley organizations that have been synonymous with quality. Going Eastward, Miss Bailey was engaged by Charles Frohman for the principal role in Austin Strong's "The Toymaker of Nuremberg," in which cast W. J. Ferguson, the noted character comedian played the title role. Later she was transferred to Maude Adams' company, and with Mathilde Cottrelly, Edwin Holt, E. W. Morrison and many other sterling players appeared in "The Jesters," which was a part of Bernhardts repertoire under the name "Les Buffons." Miss Bailey was seen as Solange, the girl to whom Miss Adams, garbed as a boy, made love. Miss Bailey had a prominent role in Roy M. Cardell's short-lived "The Gay Life" and later joined Clara Lipman's company to play the daughter in "The Marriage of a Star."

The career of Mr. Probert has been just as meteoric, and it was in "The Wolf," the Eugene Walter Canadian melodrama that Mr. Probert first attracted the attention of the metropolitan reviewers to himself. His most conspicuous success before joining "Baby Mine" was his enactment of the role of the boy lover in Margaret Anglin's presentation of "The Awakening of Helena Richie." William Gillette was anxious to have Mr. Probert this season, but the call he received from "Baby Mine" caused him to decide to stay with the Brady forces.

The attraction on Monday, Dec. 19 at the Lyceum theater will be Miss Maxine Elliott, who will appear in her smart comedy, "The Inferior Sex," in which she played successfully at both Daly's and Maxine Elliott's theaters in New York.

The comedy was written for Miss Elliott by Frank Stayton and is the first work of this noted English author to be produced in this country. It has to do with a misogynist, a beautiful woman and a mutinous crew on board a yacht at sea, all mixed up in various comedy complications. The three acts are all laid on board the palatial yach, "Firefly," the first two showing the luxuriously appointed cabin and the last act the deck and superstructure of the craft, with a background of dancing waves and cloud line. Miss Elliott, who is the only woman in the cast, is supported by practically the same company which surrounded her during her New York engagements, which includes Frederic Kerr and O. B. Clarence, comedians favorably known in London and T. Tamamoto, a Japanese actor of eminence. The production was staged by Felix Edwardes, the well known English director.

After "Seven Days" has been running at the Astor theater in New York for nearly eight months—it had been there nearly two years now—"Bud" Fisher of the New York American took his girl to see it. Mr. Fisher is the famous humorist who signs himself "A Mutt." "Seven Days" made such a hit with this "Mutt' that he went down to his office and wrote about it. Here is what he wrote:

"Can you beat it? 'Seven Days' has been at the Astor theater for thirty weeks and I never saw it till last night. No, sir; I didn't get wise till last night.

"And believe me, it's some show. You've heard about a show being a scream, a knock-out and a riot. Well, this one goes them all one better. It's more than a riot; it's a massacre! (Regular critics please copy.) I got more laughts out of 'Seven Days' than I usually get out of seven months, and let me say right here that little Bubble is a tough audience. I'm one of those boys who grab a front seat and lie back with one of those, 'I dare you to make me laugh' expressions. Well, I dared them last night, and they called me. They copped the decision with the first punch.

"Can you imagine getting a laugh a minute for seven days in one night? Grab the price in one hand and your wife in the other and go and take a peep for yourself."

Opportunity to follow "Mr. Mutt's" advice to take a peep will be offered at the Lyceum on Christmas day, when the Wagenhals & Kemper company will present "Seven Days."

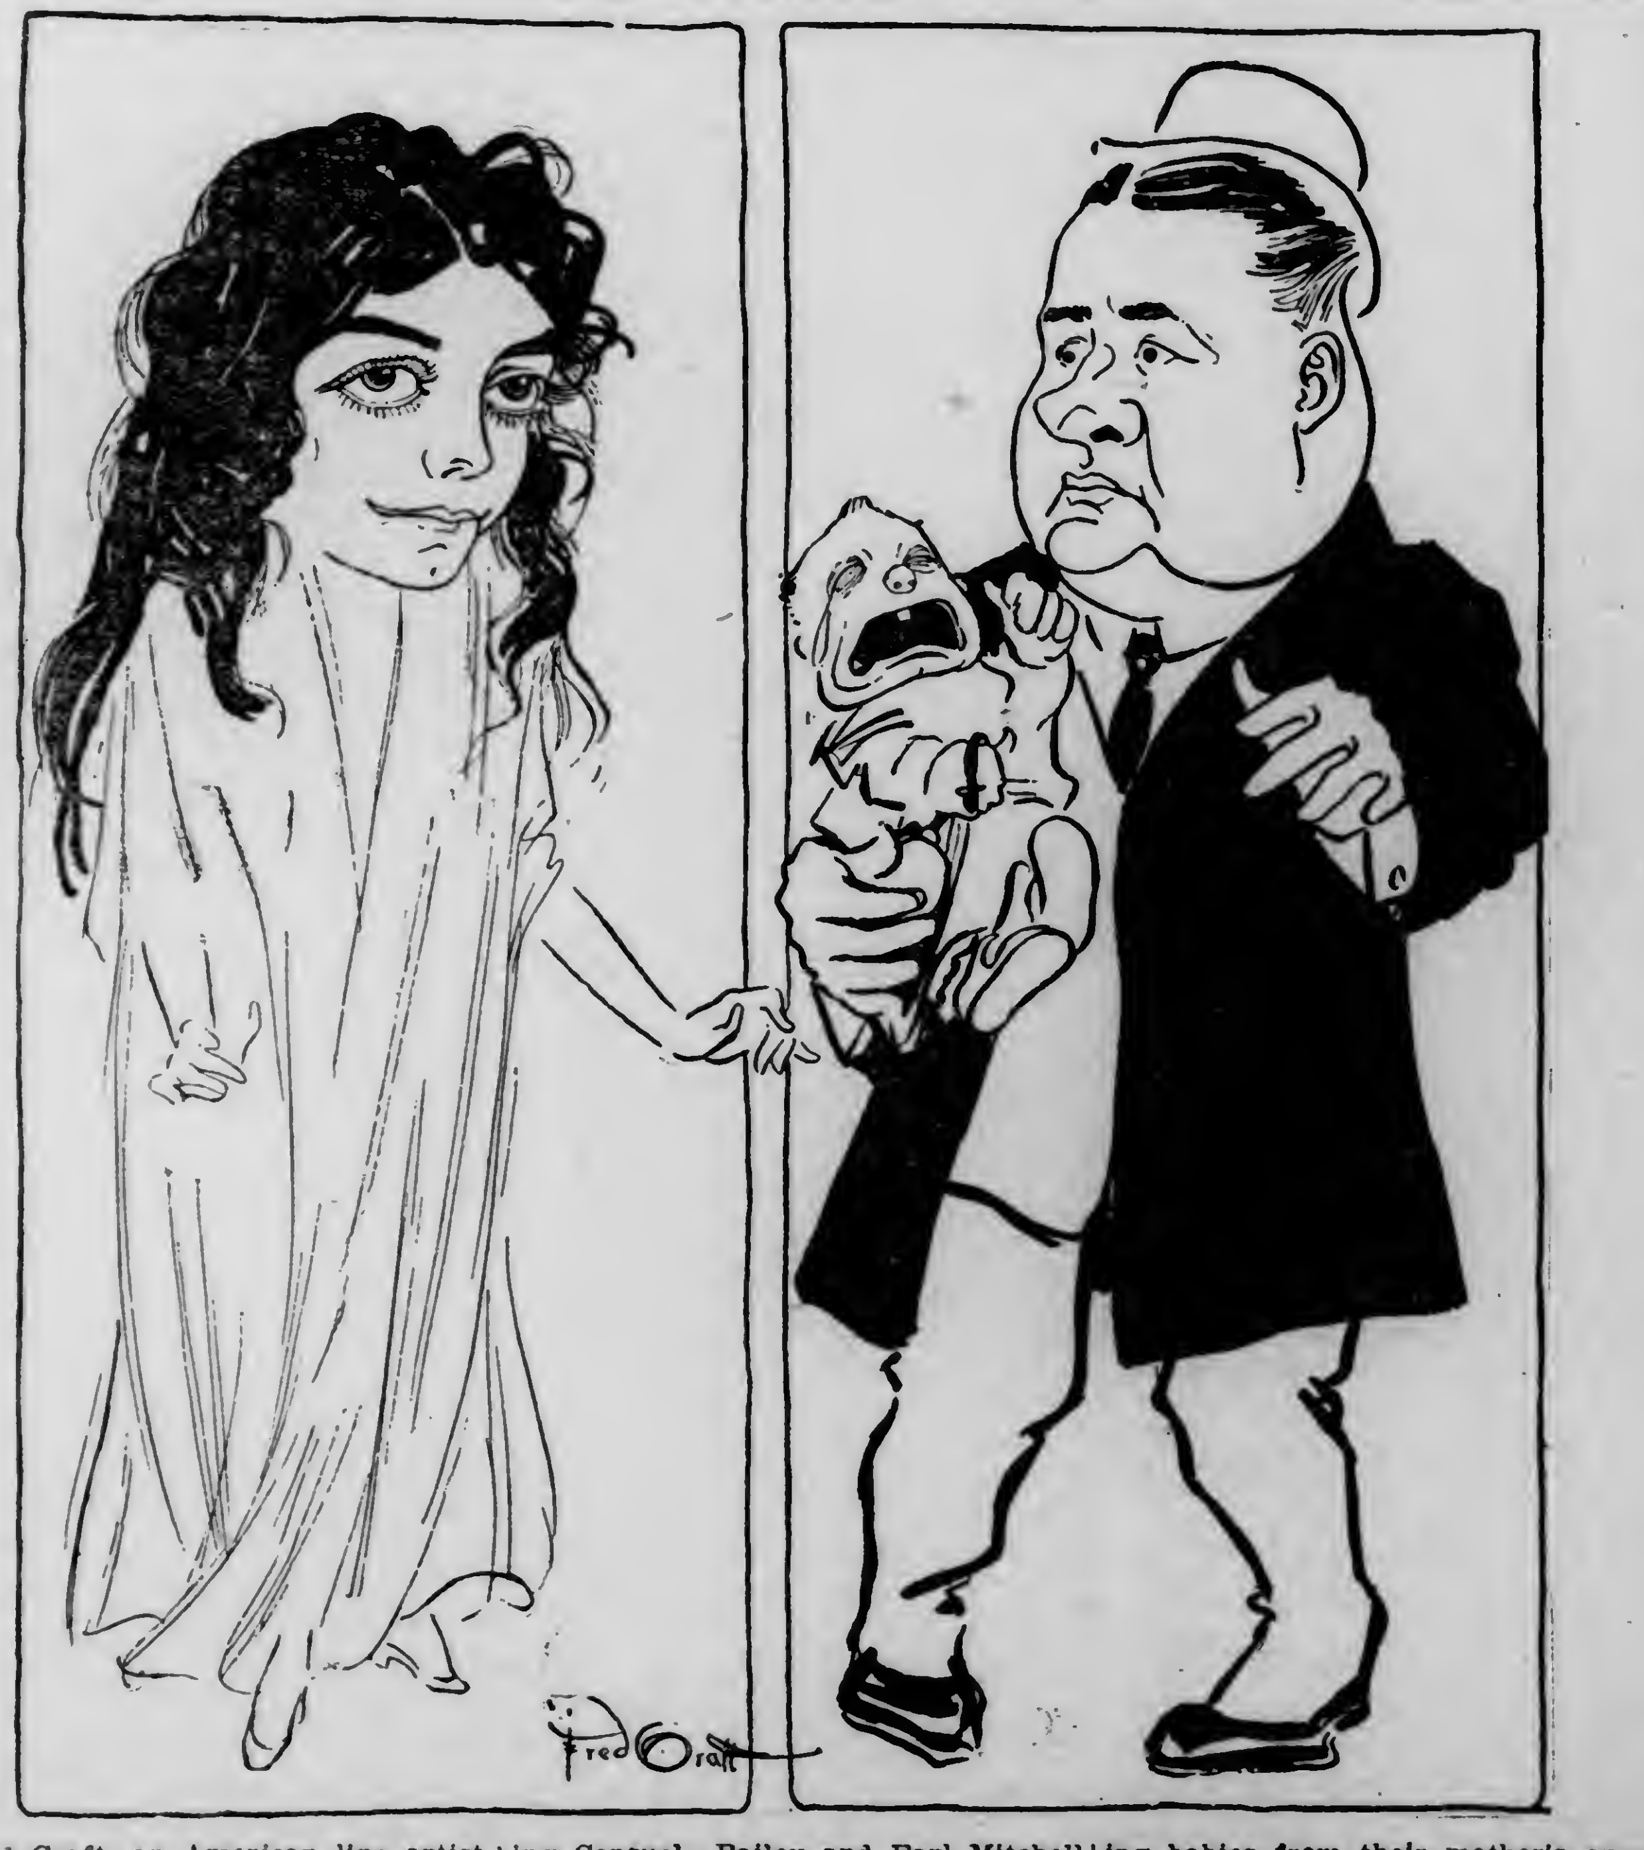
Tomororw afternoon and evening and Monday evening, Lyman H. Howe will present his wonderful moving pictures of travel, world events, and humorous incidents at the Lyceum. The engagement is at popular prices.

There are twenty new subjects in the program with the reproduction of the funeral of King Edward as the leading feature. There are official records of the event, photographed through the courtesy of the British government. Mr. Howe presents a complete idea of the Obsequies, the cameras being placed at all the important points along the procession in both London and Windsor and at St. George's Chapel where the services were held. The scenes follow the gun carriage giving very close views of the rulers of the world attending the funeral. These include the emperor of Germany, King Alphonse of Spain, and the lately deposed Manuel of Portugal. Col. Roosevelt is also easily recognized in the procession. All the realism of sound, the firing of minute guns, the tolling of bells, the whistles of the boatswain's mates and official music is reproduced by the Howe imitators.

Other scenes include the eruption of Mount Etna with its fiery mouth and rivers of lava; life on a training ship and other phases of life in Norway; Paris as viewed from the Eiffel tower; the making of the Grand Trunk Pacific railway; daring feats of Italian artillerymen; symphonies of the sea; a visit to the Antwerp zoo; and many humorous incidents.

More than two hundred kinds of mechanical apparatus are used to present the "effects" of the program. The same company of imitators that presented the show in the New York Hippodrome will be in Duluth.

SCENES FROM "BABY MINE"



Fred Craft, an American line artist, has caught the spirit of the Margaret Mayo farce "Baby Mine," which comes to the Lyceum next Thursday for four nights and two matinees, and is showing Consuelo Bailey and Earl Mitchell in telling postures. The sketch of Miss Bailey in the role of Zoie, the fibbing wife and Mr. Mitchell as the friend in need who "goes about snatching babies from their mother's arms," can be readily appreciated by one who has seen "Baby Mine." A collection of Mr. Craft's sketches is soon to be placed on exhibition in New York city.

AT THE ORPHEUM

Musical comedy will feature next week's bill at the Orpheum theater.

"The Top O' The World" wil be remembered by theatergoers as one of the first cass musical comedy attractions of a season or two ago. The famous ballet was taken from this production intact, and it forms the chorus for a musical comedietta called "Kris Kringle's Dream," which will be presented by a company of seventeen people at the Orpheum next week.

There are five principals and twelve chorus girls in the company. The famous Collie Ballet is also introduced, with the assistance of a troupe of trained Scotch collie dogs. This original ballet was one of the hits of the musical comedy.

New songs have been secured for the vaudevile act, and the ballet is the only feature of the musical comedy that is retained.

There are several big musical acts on the Orpheum circuit, but this is one of the largest and most prtentious. It is an expensive act, not only on account of the large company that is carried, but because of the extra scenery and costumes that are required. It has been warmly praised in other cities and is expected to be a notable feature for next week's bill.

"On The Great White Way," is the name of the act presented by George McKay and John Cantwell. These two men are well known in musical comedy circles, having been featured as singing and dancing comedians, and having been for several months last season, starred with the musical stock company playing at the Olympia Music hall in Chicago. There act consists of a number of impersonations, some songs and some eccentric dancing, in which they are claimed to excel.

"Sweethearts" is the name of a little dramatic sketch from Sir W. S. Gilbert, who acquired fame a quarter of a century ago as the author of the famous comic operas, "Pinafore," "The Mikado" and half a score of others. His dramatic writings are probably not as well known as his operas, but "Sweethearts" was first presented in London at the Prince of Wales theater, and ran for 130 nights consecutively. The story is a simpe little love incident, telling of the separation of a bashful young man and a rebellious young woman, and their subsequent reconciliation forty years later. It is presented by Mr. and Mrs. Erwin Connelly, who are claimed to be a bright spot on next week's bill.

The Hervey-De Vora Trio is one of the well known dancing acts in vaudeville. Miss De Vora is claimed to be a toe dancer of exceptional ability, and of great personal charm. Bert Harvey is the originator of the comedy steps used in the act, and the third member of the company, John Dough, is one of the smallest comedians on the stage, and was featured in "The Gingerbread Man." He is a dwarf in size, but is claimed to be a very funny comedian. The Yama Yama dance is one of the numbers introduced in the act.

Reed Brothers present an act which is claimed to combine comedy, novelty acrobatics, and feats of strength. One of the brothers is a tall slim comedian, who is responsible for the comedy in the act. Their act is said to contain many surprises and to be of a sensational type.

Mlle. Renee is an English musician, and the following notice from a recent issue of the London Graphic pays a very high compliment both to her personal appearance and her ability.

"A very fine musical act indeed, is that presented by Renee, 'The Goddess of Music.' It is full of art and contains much that is beautiful. May we be forgiven if we add that Renee's own appearance is the subject of much flattering comment. She certainly is charmingly pretty in her personal appearance and tasteful in her dress. Piano, posthorn, cornet, saxaphone, and perhaps the greatest of all that smallest of instruments, the ocarina, are all brought into artistic and brilliant subjection, the result being one of the prettiest and most melodious musical turns we have ever had in London."

"Savo" is a juggler, and said to be one of the youngest and strongest jugglers in vaudeville. He comes from the Wintergarten in Berlin, and is appearing for the first time on the Orpheum circuit. Not only does Savo juggle small articles, but he also handles huge weights, juggling objects that weigh 200 pounds and over, apparently with ease.

The Orpheum moving pictures and the orchestra overture will complete the bill. The first performance will be given Sunday afternoon, and the bill will continue all week with a daily matinee.

A big animal act will feature the bill of Dec. 18. Vallecita's leopards will be shown as the headliner that week, and among the other acts on the bill will be: Amy Butler and Boys, "Back to Boston," Dorothy Kenton, the Krag Trio, and Lem Put.

* * *

"Double Play" is the name of the act presented by Mabel Hite and Mike Donlin. They are on the Orpheum circuit, and will be in Duluth later in the winter.

* * *

More interest is being taken around the Orpheum theater in the approaching appearance of the Imperial Russian dancers, than there was in the engagement of Annette Kellermann. The troupe, consisting of three people with unpronounceable names, has been creating a big sensation in the coast cities, where they have been compared freely with Mordkin and Pavlowa. Their trip to the coast reveals an interesting little theatrical war. They were rushed out there ahead of Mordkin and Pavlowa, and played at Orpheum prices, of course, to be followed later by their two more famous countrymen, at Mordkin and Pavlowa prices. They will be in Duuth in January of early in February, after playing San Francisco, Los Angeles, Seattle, Portland, Oakland, Denver and all the other big Orpheum cities in the West.

AT THE EMPRESS

"A Jay Circus," the most hilarious farce of the present day vaudeville, will be the prime feature of the Empress bill next week. It will be presented by Dan Sherman and Mabel De Forest, recently of "Polly of the Circus," and a company of comedians. The travesty consists of a series of uproarious incidents habitual to the tented shows, including sensational feats and laughable antics of the aerial gymnasts, clowns, equestrians, jugglers and acrobats. The scene represents the interior of a circus tent, konwn in circusdom as the "Big Top," with the seats and bleachers crowded to capacity.

At the signal of the bandmaster the fun begins and there is one continual roar of laghter until the strains of "Home Sweet Home" are played. There are songs, dances, whirlwind comicalities, concluding with a surprise that gives the audience a keen thrill of pleasure. Dan Sherman is one of the most accomplished comedians in the realms of vaudeville and his mirth provoking creations are novel delights. Miss Mabel De Forest is said to be a beautiful woman of remarkable talents. "A Jay Circus" holds the records for business in every house it has played so far this season on the Sullivan & Considine circuit. This act was the feature attraction at the American theater in Chicago, where they run continuous vaudeville from 1 p. m. to 11 p. m. and play from fifteen to twenty acts. "A Jay Circus" was the headline feature and owing to it being such a drawing card it was held over for the second week.

Raymond and Hall will offer a novel specialty, "Pedal Poetry," which combines a series of intricate dances. As a clog and eccentric dancer, Mr. Raymond is claimed to be the equal of any in vaudeville. Miss Hall is a captivating comedienne of refreshing sweetness and presents several sprightly dances and chic little songs. Much is heard of the music of clogs but these brilliant artists are claimed to have an entire oratorio.

A mixture of patter, songs and piquant pianoism is combined in the amusing diversion which is offered by Caine and Odom, the song tailors. Miss Odom will display her remarkable technique with the piano-forte, rendering popular and classical selections and several of her own composition, which will be verbially interpreted by the dapper songster, Mr. Caine. Vaudeville cannot boast of a duo of entertainers to equal these brilliant artists in their line.

The lover of physical culture attributes and ideal specimens of modern manhood will have an opportunity to gratify this taste the ensuing week, by the appearance of the Bento Brothers. These athletes are of the modern school, marvelously developed and execute a series of equilibristic evolutions different from anything ever offered in Duluth, it is claimed. Their work has an artistic and graceful finish and many of their feats are claimed to be extremely thrilling.

The added feature of the bill will be Miss Hope Booth & Co., in "The Little Blonde Lady." Miss Booth was recently the star of "The Pawnsman," "The Goddess of Liberty," and several other productions and is so well known to the American theatergoers that an introduction seems unnecessary, but when a legitimate star of her high standing takes a flight into vaudeville, it is noteworthy.

The engagement of this brilliant star at the Empress not only marks a new epoch in vaudeville annals of the present season, but it is another evidence of the resources of the booking managers of the Sullivan & Considine circuit in their endeavors to give the Empress patrons each week $1.50 and $2 attractions. For her vaudeville premier, Miss Booth will be seen in the comedy playlet, "The Little Blonde Lady," which concerns an incident in a newspaper office. This playlet was written by George M. Cohan and is said to be one of the most artistic and highly amusing playlets in vaudeville. The art and engaging personality of the actress, and the merit of "The Little Blonde Lady," are a combination quite unusual in vaudeville. Miss Booth will be aided by several capable players.

The moving pictures will be of the usual high standard and will close one of the best bills of the season. Matinees are given daily at 2:45 and evening performances at 8 and 9:30. Seats may be reserved one week in advance by either telephone. A special school children's matinee is given every Saturday at 2:45. All scholars under 14 years of age will be admitted for 5 cents. Special attention is paid to the comforts of ladies and children at all times.

AT THE MOVING PICTURE HOUSES

New Films at Odeum and Lyric for the Coming Week.

At the Odeum theater next week an attractive moving picture bill has been arranged. "A Child's Stratagem" is a dramatic offering that is said to be replete with human interest. "Arms and the Woman" is a dramatic offering that is full of action. "Jackfoot and Slim Jim" is a humorous film. Miss Maddox will sing "My Hero."

At the Lyric theater the "Maid of Niagara" is a dramatic film of intense action, "Popular Turns" is a funny film and "Hank and Lank" is a humorous film that is said to be one of the best obtained by the Lyric in some time. "Greater Love" is a dramatic film that teems with sentiment without being sentimental. M. S. Mistachkin will sing "Lou."

GOSSIP OF THE RIALTO

Kyrle Bellew and a company of fifty will start from London on Aug. 15 for a 45,000-mile tour of the world in a chartered steamship, so Charles Frohman announced recently.

A London syndicate and Mr. Frohman will finance this ambitious theatrical innovation, which it is estimated will take two and one-half years to complete.

Accordng to the announcement, the vessel will be fitted with a theater and both drama and musical comedy will be produced, either on board or at inland points. It is proposed to visit every port where there is an English settlement, including some where a professional company has never appeared. After leaving London the first stop will be Gibraltar. In British South Africa it is proposed to leave the ship for inland tours.

After two months in South Africa, the company will again board the ship and steam up the east coast of Africa and Madagascar. Thence they will follow the coast of Arabia, Indiana, Indo China, the straits settlements, the East Indies, Australia, Tasmania, the Philippines, China and Japan, and thence to San Francisco via the South Sea islands.

The vessel will be a fast steamship of at least 3,000 tons, and to assist in defraying the expenses of the tour, she will carry cargoes and extra passengers between ports. The theatrical company will be largely American.

While Henry W. Savage's autumnal European trip was undertaken chiefly with a vacation in view, he took time while on the other side to secure a group of the most interesting of the new plays in Paris, Vienna and Berlin. "The Million," which has just scored the biggest laughing hit Paris has known in years, at the Palais Royal, and is regarded as such a prize that a half dozen other American producers bid for it, is perhaps the chief plum. That it is in no wise dependent for its fun upon suggestiveness makes it all the more attractive.

From Vienna Mr. Savage has brought the latest work of Julius Engle, author of many successful light comedies and farces that have seen the American footlights. It bears the odd title of "Weeping Josephine," and its central character is a unique variant upon the classic Cinderella — though the story proper is by no means to be confounded with that familiar tale.

"Lord Piccolo"—to be produced by Mr. Savage under the name of "Little Boy Blue"—is another Viennese capture. It is a romantic operetta by Henri Bereni, with libretto by Rudolph Schanzer and Karl Lindau, and it comes not alone with the prestige of success in the Austrian capital, but also with that gained by many triumphs throughout the continent generally.

Leo Walther Stein's light comedy, "Das Leutnantsmuendel" (The Lieutenant's Ward), and Heinrich Schrottenbach's merry "Baron Liederlich" (Baron Good-for-Nothing) are Berlin contributions, while there are several other similarly distinctive works, of which Mr. Savage is not ready to speak.

Mr. Savage also brought with him the English text of Puccini's new grand opera, "The Girl of the Golden West," which he further advanced the preparations for his re-entry into the field of grand opera in English by engaging in Europe several American singers who have made notable reputations in continental operatic circles.

The first production to be made by Mr. Savage will be "The Great Name," the delightful Viennese comedy of sentiment in which Henry Kolker is to make his stellar debut. The opening will take place on Dec. 26 out of town, and Chicago will be visited before the offering is brought to New York. Rupert Hughes' farcical comedy, "Excuse me," and Walter Browne's unique and powerful drama, "Everywoman," will be other productions in the long list.

"Excuse Me," the new American light comedy, which is to be produced shortly by Henry W. Savage, is by Rupert Hughes, a playwright who is advancing with rapid strides to a commanding position. Mrs. Leslie Carter has just produced, with what is said to be striking success, his drama entitled "Two Women," while his "The Bridge" last season won high critical praise in New York.

"Weeping Josephine" is the odd title of the new Viennese comedy secured by Henry W. Savage on his recent trip to Europe. It is the work of Julius Engle, author of a dozen other successful laughmakers, among them "Girls," the play the late Clyde Fitch adapted for the American stage with such pleasant results. The lachrymose Josephine of the title is a sort of up-to-date Cinderella, who finds something even in the brilliant sunshine to remind her of sad things in the past—until the events of the comedy bring about a revolutionary change in her views.

Reports from Paris, where "The Million" has just been produced, declare that it is the biggest laughing hit the French capital has known in many years. It is the general belief in this country that all French plays are over-frisky, but "The Million," according to the cables, is absolutely free from suggestion. Henry W. Savage has secured the play for America.

Business relations of over twenty years' duration were severed last week when Joe Buckley and Otis Skinner came to a parting of the ways. Buckley about a year ago took unto himself a wife, and her constant persuasions to give up the theatrical business has influenced him to abandon the game of crisscrossing the country and settle down to a less strenuous mode of living. His wife is estimated to be worth half a million.

After an unsuccessful attempt to establish herself on the American stage Hedwig Richer has returned to Germany and will not likely be seen in this country again.

William Brady has secured the entire scenic production, costume and properties, used by Sir H. Beerbohm in his production of "The Merchant of Venice," and will use them in a sumptuous production of that comedy, Robert Mantell as Shylock.

The rumor has it that the new play that Belasco is writing for Warfield will be founded on the theory of reincarnation.

Mr. Warfield in the first act will be seen in the familiar role of an aged gentleman of Teutonic extraction, "an old Dutchman," who is passing his days in company with a life-long friend, to whom he has become very much attached. This friend is an adept in spiritualism, a mystic who instills into Warfield the belief that when a human being dies his soul always returns to earth in human form. The two old men make a mutual vow that the one who dies first will return in whatever body he happens to be cast and visit the other living friend.

Warfield dies in the first act and comes back to earth and his friend in the second act as a reincarnated spirit. He plays the part of a reincarnated spirit during the remainder of the play.

In a few days Miss Lena Ashwell will sail for New York to appear there in "Judith Zaraine," C. M. S. McLellan's new emotional drama under the management of Liebler & Co. She has also secured H. V. Esmond's play, "The House of Usher," and expects to give that tragedy its first London staging early in the coming year. However, it is quite possible that New York may see this play before London.

The American rights of the Viennese operetta "Fair Risette," by Leo Fall, which was put on at Vienna for the first time on Nov. 26 were gobbled up by Charles Frohman by noon of the next day and will be produced here in the spring.

Few of the thousands who have seen "The Music Master" and the landlady's niece, Little Jennie, have ever dreamed that in private life Little Jennie was a widow. The fact became generally known when in the supreme court Mrs. Antoinette Walker Steward received a verdict of more than $6,000 against the Home Life Insurance company. Mrs. Steward, known professionally as Antoinette Walker, had brought an action against the insurance company on a policy of $5,000 held by her late husband. The company contested because of the alleged non-payment of one of the premiums. Miss Walker's husband, Charles H. Steward, was a play agent.

Ernest Lawford, who went to London as a member of the cast of "Decorating Clementine," is to return in January and join Miss Maude Adams' company for the first rehearsal in "Chantecler." Mr. Lawford, who is best remembered for his Capt. Hook in "Peter Pan," will play the Blackbird in "Chantecler."

Charles Frohman has secured the American rights to "I Love You," a German play which at present is being played with much success in Germany. Sydney Rosenfeld will make the English translation.

* * *

Rehearsals have begun for "The Boss," the new play by Edward Sheldon, author, of "Salvation Nell" and "The Nigger," in which Holbrook Blinn will be presented by William A. Brady.

* * *

"Daniel," the new play in which Wright Lorimer will soon be seen, is to have an elaborate stage setting. Mr. Lorimer will not discard "The Shepherd King," as he plans to alternately present the two plays.

* * *

Louis Mann will revive "The Man Who Stood Still," but will return to "The Cheater," his other success, later on.

* * *

"A Woman's Way," Grace George's successful play of last season, is in great demand this year by stock companies. Last week eight stock actresses in different parts of the United States were portraying the role of Marion Stanton.

* * *

Robert Mantell, the leading portrayer of Shakespearian roles, has a large repertoire to draw upon. During his recent engagement in Chicago he presented "Macbeth," "Hamlet," "As You Like It," "Richelieu," "Othello," "The Merchant of Venice," "Romeo and Juliet," "Richard III," "King Lear," and "Louis XI." This season already gives indications of surpassing in financial receipts the tour undertaken last year by Mr. Mantell, which proved to be the most profitable he ever experienced. Marie Booth Russell continues to receive great praise in the roles opposite to Mr. Mantell.

Henry E. Dixey is happily cast in his new play "The Naked Truth." Those who say Charles Hawtrey in the same role in London, have no hesitation in saying that Dixey easily manages to extract more quiet humor from the part. Marie Nordstrom has the principal feminine role in the American production.

Liebler & Company have engaged Harry Conor to be chief comedian in their musical comedy company shortly to appear in the new Ivan Caryll-C. M. S. McLellan musical comedy "Marriage a la Carte." Mr. Conor is a veteran of the Hoyt days. His part in "Marriage a la Carte" is that of Napoleon Pettingill, travelling showman, who has taken to this low form of life in preference to sitting at home and enduring the slings an darrows of outrageous matrimony. Accident brings him to the doors of an estate which he learns too late is the home of the wife who drove him to the woods. His efforts to escape furnish much of the fun of the play. His laughter, a wire-walker in the show, is played by Miss Emmy Wehlen, who is easy to look at, and has a style.

Miss Lulu Glaser says she would like to act "Ophelia" but, "as the Grand Jury is in session" adds the comedienne, "the public need have no fear." In "The Girl and the Kaiser," Miss Glaser, by the way, is doing her first really serious work. Her role—that of Christ'l, a forester's daughter—is primarily a comedy one, but there is one scene in which Miss Glaser causes the greater portion of her feminine audiences to reach for their handkerchiefs.

The success of "The Girl and the Kaiser," however, will keep Miss Glaser busy for some time to come and should she care to indulge in the tearful drama it will more than likely be at a matinee performance.

Frederick Truesdell has been selected by Henry B. Harris for the leading part in "Magie Pepper," the new Charles Klein play, which Rose Stahl is shortly to be seen in.

* * *

Charles Bigelow and Robert T. Haines are the latest recruits to desert the musical and dramatic stage for vaudeville. Bigelow is to labor for William Morris and Haines will do a sketch for the United Booking office, entitled "Derelicts."

* * *

Another play by Eugene Walter, or rather one on which he has collaborated with Walter Hackett, is soon to be produced. While no definite announcement is forthcoming, Broadway report has it that Charles Dillingham will be the man behind the check book. At present the play bears the title of "Homeward Bound." Originally it was known as "A Gentleman's Agreement" and later under the title of "C. O. D."

* * *

"The Family" has closed and "The Girl Behind the Counter" is slated for a like fate.

* * *

Frank Campeau, late of "The Virginian," has been engaged for vaudeville by William Morris. He will be seen in a new one-act dramatic playlet, "The Tin Horn," by John S. Carroll.

Henry W. Savage will make the first production of Walter Browne's unique drama, "Every Woman," in Boston, the New York engagement coming a few weeks later. More than 400 persons will be required in the sensational scene of Broadway's New Year's eve celebration, while the speaking parts in the drama number thirty-one.

McIntyre and Heath are making another assurance that they are about to substitute a new sketch for their ancient and honorable "Georgia Minstrels." Despite the merits of several such substitutions in the past these two comedians have always returned to their old minstrel stunt, and the reception to be given the new effort remains doubtful.

After five years in "The Virginian," one in the "The Squaw Man" and three in "Cameo Kirby," Dustin Farnum is to have a new part. Liebler & Co., his managers, agree with the principal exponent of the dashing role that the desire for a new characterization is not unreasonable. Accordingly, they have arranged with Charles Scribner's Sons, publishers of Edwin Milton Royle's "The Silent Call," to have Mr. Farnum appear in a dramatization of that stirring "best seller." While the part is a new one for Mr. Farnum, it is not of the sort to bring alarm to those who associate him with the romantic. To allay any concern which may arise from the mere announcement of a new play for Mr. Farnum, it may be well to add that in "The Silent Call" he will be costumed in the picturesqueness of the West, wearing one pair of chaps, one flannel shirt, with knotted handkerchief, one broad-brimmed slouch hat, two boots and the famous Farnum smile. Rehearsals will begin immediately.

The Shuberts have engaged Minnie Dupree to star in "The Lady From Oklahoma," a new four-act comedy to which they have obtained the rights, and which is the first play by Elizabeth Jordan ever to be presented. Miss Jordan, the author of "The Lady From Oklahoma," is the editor of Harper's Bazar, and is widely known in literary circles as the only woman who has attained the distinction of editing a leading periodical.

The story of Miss Jordan's first play concerns the struggles of a wife whose husband has "outgrown" her. He has become a United States senator and has been fascinated by a female lobbyist, working for large corporation interests. "The Lady From Oklahoma," instead of accepting the situation as inevitable, determines to win back her husband's affections, and rushes to New York in quest of beauty, refinement and knowledge to accomplish her purpose.

On Dec. 18 the Friars, the well-known theatrical organization, will tender a complimentary dinner to William Harris, father of Henry B. Harris, at the Hotel Astor. Covers will be laid for 500.

Percy Mackaye, the author of "The Scarecrow," which Henry B. Harris will produce with Edmund Breese as a star, describes his play as a fantastic romance. The period is laid in the early Colonial days in England. One of the characters shows an evolution from the materials which, when gathered together, form the semblance of external man. The progress of this evolution furnishes a stage illusion that has never before been attempted in the theater.

So important is this feature that the greatest geniuses in this line of work, both in America and Europe, have both asked to assist in perfecting this original idea. It will be the most ambitious production ever made by Henry B. Harris.

That Albert Chevalier, the English actor, may see the opening performance of his countrywoman, Miss Olga Nethersole, in "Mary Magdalene" at the New theater, Dec. 5, Mr. Chevalier's own New York premiere was put over. Instead of opening on scheduled time at the Hackett, Mr. Chevalier in his new character-comedy in three acts, "Daddy Dufard," made his bow Tuesday evening, Dec. 6.

Miss Bessie Abott and the 150 members of the Bessie Abott Opera company, left for Charleston, S. C., Friday, on the Clyde liner Apache. They are due to reach Charleston Sunday noon, after which there will be a dress rehearsal of "La Boheme," in which the company is to make its appearance Monday evening. A month's tour of the principal Southern cities has been arranged by Liebler & Co. This will bring the company back to New York early in January, when the deferred premiere of Mascagni's "Ysobel" will take place at the New theater.

Surprising has been the success which has overtaken the recent production by William A. Brady of Edward Sheldon's play "The Nigger," which was seen in Duluth with Guy Bates Post in the role he played originally with the New Theater production. Now an Eastern organization has been placed in the field and in that company Ethelbert Hales, last seen in Duluth with Wright Lorimer in "The Shepherd King," is playing the role in which J. M. Colville gave evidence of being exceptionally artistic. For the Pacific Coast company Florence Roberts has been secured to play the part in which Florence Rockwell played here and the role of the governor is being played by Thurlow Bergen. Another Sheldon play, "The Boss" is now in rehearsal in New York and in it Holbrook Blinn, lately with Mrs. Fiske in "The Pillars of Society" and "Becky Sharp" is to have the title role.

Harry Davies is the latest stage manager to become a playwright. A farce from his pen has been accepted by Joseph Hart, and will be seen in the early spring. Mr. Davies is at present stage manager of "Baby Mine," the farce which is being played en tour by the Chicago company and which is now entertaining New Yorkers at Daly's theater.

Fred Perry is now a member of Grace George's company playing "Sauce for the Goose." Mr. Perry has been succeeded in Jules Eckert Goodman's play "Mother," by Milton Sills, whose last Duluth appearance was made in company with Blanche Bates' in "The Fighting Hope."

"Over Night" is the name of the latest comedy to be secured by William A. Brady. Its author is Philip Bartholomew. The comedy's locale is the Hudson river.

Justina Wayne has left "Beverly of Graustark" and is now playing once again with Gus A. Forbes, whose ten weeks' engagement at the Lyceum last summer were so satisfactory. Mr. Forbes is directing the fortunes of the company at the Gotham theater, Brooklyn as well as the company at the Lyceum in Stamford, Conn. In the company playing in Brooklyn, Duluthians will be pleased to learn that James Kyrle McCurdy, Evelyn Watson and Kate Woods Fiske are active, while the Stamford organization is more recent, therefore its lack of Duluth favorites can be readily understood. The opening bill, by the way, at Stamford was "The Great Divide" as it was at the Lyceum last summer.

In Earle Mitchell, William A. Brady has secured a comedian whose methods resemble Maclyn Arbuckle more than any other present day player. Full of unction, Mr. Mitchell is giving a most droll performance in "Baby Mine."

"HUSTLE" FOR 150 MEMBERS

Boys' Department Y. M. C. A. Is Conducting a Unique Campaign.

To get 150 members in one day is not an easy task, but the members of the boys' department have undertaken it with a spirit that means success.

Ten committees have been organized and they have worked the territory thoroughly during the week, and will spend this afternoon and evening in bringing the applications in. The campaign will close toight at 10 o'clock, and by that time nearly every boy in Duluth will have been given an opportunity of joining the boys' department. A rally was held last night and the report showed that the boys were hustling, though to win every member of the club will have to do his part. Many parents are enrolling their boys now with the intention of giving them the membership for Christmas.

The boys' building is open every day, and provides for the leisure time of the boy with those activities that appeal to boys. A telephone message will bring a member of the committee to any home today or this evening, to explain fully what the activities of the club are.

A UNIQUE TREE STATUTE

New Jersey Protects Street Shade Trees—Newark Has Planted Over 100 Miles of Streets—Thirty Towns Have Shade Tree Commissions.

By CARL BANNWART,
Secretary of the Newark, N. J., Shade Tree Commission.

(Exclusive Service The Survey Press Bureau.)

New Jersey by her shade tree statute converted the rocky pioneer trail of the tree planter into a graded, progress-fostering roadway. For whereas without this law the advance of tree planting and protection was slow, tortuous and inadequate, the municipalities of this state now bid fair to excel in the ease with which extensive plantings may be almost automaticaly projected, completed, paid for and maintained.

The law provides for a shade tree commission of "three freeholders who shall serve without compensation, and who shall have the exclusive and absolute control and power to plant, set out, maintain, protect and care for shade trees in any of the public highways" of its municipality. A later statute gives the same commission exclusive control of the public parks.

The street trees which were nobody's particular care are now committed to the custody of three leading citizens adequately empowered, whose zeal, civic patriotism, love of trees and administrative ability are concentrated on maintaining and promoting the welfare of the trees of their home city. The advantages of this arrangement are not only obvious in prospect but have been demonstrated in Newark and elsewhere.

The status of street trees is raised for they stand forth now before all the people as the special wards of a special municipal department, specially created to protect them. The fine stately old street trees, which have come down to us from the fathers, but which have so long been strangers to considerate treatment, at last are coming into their own. Not only does a commission protect them; a public sentiment which is constantly enlarging co-operates.

The commission is not only warden of the older trees but also planter of the new. Here in Newark, where the law has been in force six years, 17,000 young trees on 102 miles of streets have been set out. Picture this! One hundred and two miles of new plantings adorning the streets, gladdening the eye, cooling and purifying the air, and enhancing the city's beauty and wealth. There they stand and grow, increasing in stature and fulfilling the promise of their sapling days. Of course this increase in growth and beauty is not the result merely of "time and the elements" for a tree commision is required to systematically mulch, trim, spray, fertilize and otherwise nurture its young.

An innovation is the authority of a shade tree commission to assess the cost of new plantings against the property in front of which they are set out. This becomes a lien. The money from this source is reinvested in other plantings. Only the actual cost of the tree, guard, stake and labor is so taxed. The average assessment last year was $2.93. This covers once for all the entire cost. If the tree dies it is replaced under the guarantee without extra charge to the property.

The commission is required to give public "Notice of Intention" to plant certain streets or portions of streets through "one or more of the newspapers of the municipality." After "a hearing to all persons who appear in relation to such contemplated improvements," the streets to be planted are finally determined. Instructions are then given to go ahead, and the season's planting is begun.

Planting pits are dug at distances of thirty-three feet. Where the sidewalk is cut, pains are to have the walk in good conditions. From each pit fifty-six cubic feet of earth is removed and replaced with good soil enriched with fertilizer. When the new soil has settled, the tree is set in place with a wire guard topped with a rubber collar and a stake to hold it steady until it has got its own firm grip on mother earth. The trees for each street are all of one specimen and of equal size. With forty clear days in both spring and fall, the two planting seasons, and setting out fifty a day, the year's "output" will be 4,000 more trees to adorn twelve more miles of streets and to begin the transforming of commonplace thoroughfares into park-like highways overarched with waving trees, uniform in species and size.

The bill shows the property owner that the cost assessed against him for the excavating, the subsoiling, the tree, the guard, the stake and the guarantee is less than what he would have to pay a nursery for the tree alone. This saving to the property owner, made possible by the wholesale nature of the operations, will explain how the commission can advertise thirty miles of streets or sixty miles of property fronts, and not find one owner opposed.

The shade tree statute does not become operative until the "governing body" of a municipality authorizes the appointment of a commission. Over thirty cities and towns of New Jersey, differing in population from 387,000 to 1,000, have elected to place their trees in the care of a commission. In all these communities the problem of the care, increase and protection of street trees is being studied by these local conservers of the city's tree assets. To appoint a commission is to set in motion a legal mechanism toward adequate municipal control.

This is the story of six years' progress in New Jersey, the pioneer years of preparatory work. It is fair to expect cumulative progress in supervising street trees and preventing every form of destructive agency during the next five years. Through Mr. J. Horace McFarland's initiative, a similar statute is operative in Pennsylvania. Buffalo and Chicago, and the country-wide exchange list of the Newark commission demonstrate how general is the interest in this method, now no longer an experiment. These sowings of tested seeds will surely mature in more general adoption of the law. All over the country communities are gradually realizing that the tree is as much a friend to men in the city as in the country. From this conviction will follow the more general provisions for their protection.

DISEASE IS CAUSED BY NERVE PRESSURE

All the Nerves of the Body are Connected With the Spine, and If the Spine Is Wrongly Adjusted, Disease Is the Result.

Perfect health follows the proper spinal adjustments.

At Dr. W. D. Riesland's large and completely equipped Chiropractic offices you may have your spine perfectly attended to without pain. Spinal adjustment is an important matter, for all disease results from wrongly adjusted spines.

The spine, as you know, is made up of twenty-four separate vertebra, which are connected with a rubber like tissue. All jerks and jars of the body bring these vertabra closer together. Since all nerves have a connection with the spine, the nerves passing through the openings, or windows, of the vertabrae get pinched.

Pinched nerves cut off the free flow of nerve force; they shrivel up, and the inevitable result from pinched nerves is disease of those organs directly connected with the pinched nerves.

Dr. Riesland's spinal readjustment will do away with pinched nerves and all aches and pains of your body will disappear and you will enjoy perfect health.

Visit the largest and most completely equipped Chiropractic offices in the world, and examine the many interesting devices which aid the skilled chiropractor in bringing you back to health.

Dr. Reisland has made the great anatomical developing and adjusting couch. This couch works on the traction method and has been used by Dr. Riesland with marked success with patients suffering from stooping shoulders, spinal curvature, nervous diseases, lumbago, rheumatism, locomotor ataxia, paralysis, insomnia, spinal and all nervous diseases.

The treatments are painless, yet the cures are lasting.

If you would learn more about this couch; or why the chiropractic method of curing disease is so successful, you are cordially invited to call on Dr. Riesland at his offices at 707-708-709-710-711-712 Palladio Building, Duluth, Minn.

DOES GENIALITY PAY?---THESE MEN'S CAREERS SAY "YES"

Does geniality pay?

It may be a fact that ultra optimism is a thing to be avoided and that the individual who is perpetually cheerful is likely to become tiresome, but it is equally certain that invincible geniality has been the basis of more than one celebrity's success. There have been famous churls, scores of them, but they remain as shadows on the record. It is the sunny exterior which means the warm heart within that has always been the winner.

Nor is the cultivated geniality akin to buffoonery, as a moralist of the middle ages once insinuated. The mere fact that it is the outcome of long and earnest effort need not stamp it with artificiality. The number of men who "may smile and be a villian still" is not large, and nowadays the smile is taken at its face value and no questions are asked. Those who have had the foresight and the ability to make it a part of themselves and their stock in trade have profited largely.

The Geniality That Victor Murdock Has Found Profitable.

Take, for example, Congressman Victor Murdock of Kansas, whose insurgent atitude in the lower house o fthe national legislature was of such a radical brand that Uncle Joe Cannon was inspired to dub its owner "the Black Beast." Incidentally, the speaker's characterization was entirely political and bore no reference whatever to Murdock's actual possession of the traditional horns and hoofs. Until he began voicing insurgent doctrines in the lower house even the speaker was under the spell of Murdock's geniality. They had been warm friends ever since the always-complacent Kansan took his seat in the house of representatives, and the optimistic Victor was regarded as a sort of protege—in a political sense—of the old laeder.

As a notable exponent of the most invulnerable optimism that walks the earth Victor Murdock is worthy to head any list of sunshine promoters. His disposition to keep his warm, reddish-brown eyes fixed continually on the bright side is not congenial, according to his own story. "I was a born pessimist, if ever there was one," he admitted recently, "but the time came when I realized that it wouldn't do; that I must rid myself of my inclination to look for trouble and make myself obnoxious to my fellows.

"My father helped me to come to that conclusion. One day when I was a kid at Burlingame, Kan., I came home to dinner as mad as a March hare. The boys at school—where I was by no means a favorite—had been making game of my hair, which was even more flamboyant in those days than it is at present. It was a point on which I was particularly sore and all the boys in town were aware of the fact, and conducted themselves accordingly. I was a cyclone of temper and vowed that when I grew up I would shoot some of my persecutors.

"My father took me on his knee and tried to cool me off a bit. 'Hold up a minute, my son,' he said. 'By the time you are old enough to use a gun shooting will be out of style in Kansas. I can tell you a better way to get square with the boys than that. The reason those boys pester you about your hair is because they are envious. There isn't another boy in the state of Kansas with a poll like yours. Why, Victor, you are positively distinguished. You don't know a good thing when you've got it.'

"'But I don't want the darned old stuff!' I blubbered.

"'Well,' my father went on very calmly, 'it's hitched on pretty tight, and you can't get rid of it altogether. But I was going to tell you a way to settle the hair business once and for all—make up your mind that you would rather have it just as it is than any other color in the world.'

"'How can I do it?' I asked, beginning to get interested in the proposition.

"'Easiest thing in the business—all you have to do is to make up your mind. That does the trick. See?'

"I didn't see, but I forgot all my troubles for the moment and then and there made up my mind to follow my father's advice. I don't exactly understand how I managed to get hold of so much resolution at my age, but I stuck to it until it worked out to a successful end. It was a lesson in self control and obliteration of self consciousness that served me admirably and in time enabled me to look on everything that couldn't be avoided as a species of pleasantry. I have so transformed myself that the time has actually come when I shrink from the personal discomfort of an absence of geniality in my intercourse with my fellow men."

The popularity of Victor Murdock in his own state of Kansas is the outcome of his never-failing geniality. It may be estimated by the fact that he had no opponent of his own party in the last primary campaign; this, too, despite the certainty that there are many voters in his district who have little sympathy with his peculiar methods of statesmanship.

Victor Murdock is a product of the district, and everybody in it knows him and his genial smile. He is a plucky fighter, but even when he is dealing an opponent a blow he lands it in a smiling and agreeable way. It has been affirmed of him that he might feel it to be his duty to kick a man down stairs, but he would be first to send some beautiful flowers after his victim reached the hospital. He is a man who can take a licking as genially as he administers one, although his optimism will not permit him to remain whipped very long.

Congressman Murdock comes of historic stock. His father, who was one of the pioneer newspaper men of Kansas, was a warm sympathizer with John Brown in his anti-slavery activity in that state. The elder Murdock was convinced that his son was born to a lofty political career and quite agreed with the precocious youngster when the latter observed to him one day with an air of superior wisdom: "In years to come your chief distinction will be in the fact that you are the father of Victor Murdoc." It was spoken semi-humorously, but it turned out to be prophetic. To carry the joke still further, during the temporary absence of the old gentleman the future congressman exchanged the sign on their office door, which bore the legend "M. M. Murdock & Son," for a newly-painted one which read, "Victor Murdock and Father."

W. Murray Crane, Champion "Mixer" in the United States Senate.

Senator W. Murray Crane has been characterized as the most remarkable "mixer" who has ever represented the old Bay State at the national capital. He is one of the most genuinely popular men in the senate, all because of this tactful and profitable ability to "mix" and make friends on all sides and without apparent effort. When he entered the senate in 1905 to fill the vacancy caused by the passing of Senator Hoar, one of his friends gave this concise description of him: "The senate is made up of fire works and firemen and several do the work and keep it going. Crane is in the firemen class and will soon be one of the bosses."

Senator Crane has the reputation of being the premier political organizer of his party, and it is his mastery of geniality that has helped greatly to put him in that position. He comes as near being the friend of every member in the United States senate as is possible in this life, and there is probably no man of influence at the national capital who is proof against his unfailing geniality. It is an open secret that when ex-President Roosevelt made up his mind that it would be best for the country for his big secretary of war to be his successor, he did not send for Cortelyou or Hitchcock or any other well-advertised political manipulator to manage the job. It was Senator Crane who was asked to call at the White House to talk the matter over, and it was the suave junior senator from Massachusetts who declined genially, but firmly, to undertake the business. That declination to accept the president's flattering offer was a most delicate business to handle, but in the hands of Senator Crane no catastrophe was precipitated.

It has been said of Senator Crane that he can discover more distinct knotholes in a political fence than any other man in the business, and that his genial manner enables him to pass through any or all of them at will. His way is to rest his hand on the other fellow's shoulder and buzz musically in his ear, something after the soothing fashion of the bumblebee, but without the sting. And while he is buzzing softly the genial senator never ceases smiling, a little thin-lipped smile, but unmistakably genuine. The upshot of the matter always is that the other fellow promises to do what is asked of him or gives the senator the information he craves.

All this sounds a trifle Mephistophelian, but it isn't. Crane actually possesses the genial disposition he seems to have. No one can accuse him of feigning a friendship in order to accomplish a desired end. He is always ready and even anxious to do a good turn, and is genuinely sorry when he cannot. It is the impeccable quality of his geniality that makes him one of the most capable and successful men in the senate.

He is a man who "gets things done" without friction, without apparent effort. During his three campaigns for the governorship of Massachusetts he did not make a political speech or write a political document. His first inaugural address was the shortest ever penned in Massachusetts and was painfully devoid of rhetoric or any attempt at literary quality. No greater testimony to his power to achieve results could be cited than the fact that every recommendation in that message found a place on the statute book.

Mr. Crane is probably the most modest and retiring man in the senate. A visitor in the gallery of the senate chamber would have to scan the members very closely before he could locate the junior senator from Massachusetts. When he did find him he would be surprised at his apparent lack of personal distinction—just a rather slender, neatly-dressed individual, with a small bald head, sitting at a desk methodically opening letters or examining papers. His precise business manner would impress the visitor even if his personal appearance failed to do so. The senator always opens a letter with a paper knife in precisely the same way, unfolds it with the samo motion, crinkles it between his fingers and then holds it up to the light before reading it. In this he unconsciously exhibits the sign of his craft. He is a paper manufacturer, and he instinctively seeks the watermark on every sheet of paper that comes into his hands. It is the habit of a lifetime and possibly a freak of heredity, since he is the third of his name to carry on, at Dalton, Mass., a business that has made the watermark "Crane" familiar throughout the country for generations.

VICTOR MURDOCK, A CELEBRATED SUN-SHINE PROMOTER

ROBERT J. BURDETTE.

HENRY CASSON, SERGEANT-AT-ARMS, HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

WILLIAM G. MCADOO, WHOSE GENIALITY AND AUDACITY MADE HIM AN INTERURBAN TUNNEL BUILDER.

Samuel Baldwin Marks Young, Genial Warrior.

Lieut.-Gen. S. B. M. Young, retired Jan. 9, 1904, by the age-limit law, and now in charge of the National Soldiers' Home at Washington, has had an opportunity to test the virtue of geniality in the most exhaustive manner, and that it has been a profitable asset in his case has been demonstrated by his long and successful career as a soldier, a period covering forty-three years and a climb up the ladder beginning at private and ending at lieutenant general of the United States army. During all this long experience as a fighting man Gen. Young has never imperilled his reputation of being one of the most typically genial individuals who ever chose war for a profession.

There is no European army in which a private soldier would be permitted to outstrip the officers of the line or staff and attain the supreme rank. Gen. Young achieved that distinction in the American army, and he earned every step of his promtion by vigorous service or hard fighting. Enlisting in the Twelfth Pennsylvania infantry at the age of 20, he rose to the command of a regiment in three years, and before the close of the Civil war was brevatted brigadier general, being mentioned no less than four times for distinguished gallantry.

At the close of the war the best he could do was to accept a second lieutenancy in an infantry regiment in the regular army, but his ability as a horseman was so pronounced that he was soon transferred to the cavalry, and in that arm there has been no abler or more energetic officer in the army, despite his girth and stature—he weighs 235 pounds and is over six feet in height. In the Spanish war he was colonel of the Third cavalry, but after the battle of Guasimas was taken down with fever and remained in the hospital until the close of the campaign. In the Philippines, however, Gen. Young had his opportunity to come to the front, and he proved conclusively that age had not dulled his wit or taken the edge off his valor.

And throughout his extended term of service Gen. Young has never put aside the irresistible geniality that has been his passport in many a trying situation. Even as an Indian fighter he made it evident that his smile was a mighty adjunct to prevent the reservation savages from leaving their allotted bounds, always a difficult and detested assignment. Young had carte blanche to perform the service in any way he deemed most efficient, and his predecessors had embloyed force with scant success. Gen. Young resolved to keep his sword in its scabbard and trust to his smile.

One day he discovered that a band of Cheyennes, under the leadership of the wily Gray Bird, had left their reservation and were engaged in illegal trading with the Mexican smugglers on the border. Without showing any sign that he was wise to the chief's lawlessness, Young invited the redskin to visit him at his headquarters. Gray Bird jumped instantly to the conclusion that his rascality had been unmasked, but he did not dare refuse the invitation, and put in an appearance at the appointed time. Instead of a reprimand, he found a feast awaiting him, and his host gave him the glad hand and urged him to make himself comfortable. Relieved of his apprehension, Gray Bird accepted the situation as gracefully as he could and in a short time fell a victim to his host's effusive geniality. When they separated, the Indian loaded with gifts of articles which he had coveted and showed no hesitancy in soliciting, Young knew the battle had been won. Thereafter the band of Cheyennes remained on its reservation, at least until Gen. Young was transferred to another command.

When Gen. Young was chief of staff—he was the first man to hold that rank in the American army—he was sent to Germany to be present at the German army maneuvers, and it was understood that he was to be the guest of the kaiser. Before he reached Berlin the general met Mrs. White, wife of the American ambassador to France, and was invited by her to join her party at the Dresden opera. Without realizing the shocking breach of court etiquette involved, the general accepted. While he was deep in the mysteries of the Wagnerian opera, it occurred suddenly to his hotess that she had made a sad mistake in intercepting a royal guest and that it would be expedient to keep it from the ears of the kaiser. Gen. Young promised to say nothing of the Dresden episode and in time went on to Berlin.

When he entered the royal presence the kaiser greted him civilly and then so the story runs—asked brusquely:

"Is this the first place you have visited since your arrival in Germany?"

"O, no, your majesty," replied the officer.

"So—what others?"

"St. Louis and Milwaukee," replied Gen. Young, his genial countenance wreathed in respectful smiles.

The kaiser's sense of humor triumphed, he laughed heartily, and afterward repeated the joke to the kaiserin.

GEN. S. B. M. YOUNG, WHO TAMED RED SKINS WITH HIS GENIALITY

The Geniality That Helped Build the Hudson Tunnels.

A calm, smiling man of lofty ideals and never-tiring energy, full of hope and courage that no manner of disappointment can overcome, a dreamer of amazing dreams that have come true—such is William G. McAdoo, the genius who solved the problem of uniting Manhattan sland with the mainland by means of a group of tunnels under the Hudson river.

Two qualities in Mr. McAdoo's makeup overshadow all other things—persistence and his altruistic geniality. I fit is the privilege of genius to indulge in moods and to have immunity from the conditions which are imposed on the ordinary plodder, it may be said of Mr. McAdoo that he has not made any use of his right. While the digging of the tunnels was under way Mr. McAdoo was in and about the excavations at all hours of the day and night. Whenever the job was especially dangerous or difficult he was at the danger point, his face equipped with the genial expression which gave inspiration to all those who worked toward the attainment of his ideals.

James Wilson, the hardy old Scotchman who has been the dictator at the agricultural department during three administrations and has succeeded in convincing the most skeptical tiller of the soil in the country that he is "on to the job," is a firm believer in the smile that "won't wear off."

Another conspicuous example of the magic wrought by the smile is to be found in the interesting personality of Armond H. Griffith, director of the Detroit art museum, whose "sunshine" method of meeting lire and its problems is more than half the secret of his advance from the obscurity of a salesman in a Cincinnati art shop to his present position as curator of one of the most complete art collections in the country, and an authority in matters of art relied on by J. Pierpont Morgan and other American collectors of that class.

The old time funny man, Robert J. Burdette, now pastor emeritus of the Temple Baptist church at Los Angeles, Cal., is a striking example of the geniality that leads to success. In his early days his optimistic nature and his keen appreciation of his ability to produce spontaneous mirth led him to adopt the profession of a humorist. He admits that he found the calling very much to his liking and that his own sense of humor was so responsive and so acute that whatever he wrote seemed far more amusing to him than to any other person. It seems but yesterday that Burdette was working his fun-making plant at Burlington, Iowa, with all the energy he could summon, varying the process now and then by going out with James Whitcomb Riley to win more or less comfortably-filled purses from rural lyceums and lecture courses.

Albert J. Beveridge, who was defeated for the Indiana senatorship in the recent election, is a brilliant example of a genial loser in the political game. His personality is of the radiant order, a fair-weather disposition that makes him welcome everywhere.

Henry Casson, for many years sergeant-at-arms of the United States house of representatives, is a man of similar equipment. He has succeeded in making himself indispensable to the members, and no man about the national capitol is more popular. One of his duties is to pay the salaries of the congressmen, and he conducts this delicate business in such an agreeable fashion that it has become a part of the pleasure of being paid to receive the money from Casson's hands.

One of Andrew Carnegie's greatest personal assets when he was in active business was his smile; he himself has confessed that it helped him materially to make his millions. Perhaps Charles M. Schwab would not hesitate to make the same confession; his geniality among his friends and business associates is noted. Then there is Samuel McRoberts, a vice president of the country's largest bank, and former treasurer for the Armours, who, on his way up to financial fame and fortune, has undoubtedly found his gift of geniality a great help.

It was his wonderful geniality that made McKinley so loved. The same was true in even larger measures of Lincoln. Garfield numbered among his endearing qualities that of surpassing geniality. In the best sense of the term, he was one of the "best fellows" ever elevated to the presidency. The present head of the nation is world-famous for his genial smile, which he has found to be of great benefit in every one of the responsible political positions that he has held since he left the bench to set affairs at rights in the Philippines.

BOOTLEGGING NOT TO BE TOLERATED

Party Who Shipped Whisky Consigned to "A. Bum" Being Sought.

Bemidji, Minn., Dec. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—At Grand Rapids Thursday night Agent Brents confiscated three barrels of beer which had been smuggled in quart bottles being packed in flour barrels. The name of the consignee had not been given and it was consigned to "A Bum." Neither "A Bum" or any other bum will get it while Mr. Brents has taken charge and is collecting evidence to prosecute the man who shipped it and the railroad company for accepting it and any one else who has violated the federal law which provides a penitentiary sentence for such violations.

"You can say," said Mr. Brents, "that there is not going to be any bootlegging or blindpigs. The government intends to supply enough men to work in harmony with the local authorities and enforce the law justly and impartially. I do not think the action in Washington of cutting down the appropriation for this work will in any way interfere with the enforcement of the provisions of the treaty."

Mr. Brents will come back to Bemidji to assist in checking up on the closed saloons and will be here several days before giving over command to Mr. Coggeshall who will succeed him.

Marshall A. Spooner of this city, who first was employed by the liquor dealers here to test the real power of the treaty and who decided upon the temporary injunction as the best way to obtain a quick decision left last night with E. E. McDonald, who prepared the injunction here with Mr. Brents, for St. Paul to attend a conference with federal officials in St. Paul today. Ex-Judge Spooner spent last week in St. Paul. He was formerly on the district bench here and is regarded as one of the keenest lawyers in the state. Mr. McDonald has a like reputation and for this reason the treaty will be "shot full of holes," say the liquor men if legal talent can do it.

The saloon men here taking out injunctions were:

John Dalton, John Larson, H. Gonsalus, F. E. Brinkman, A. E. Marshik, J. E. Maloy, E. Fay, J. H. Sullivan, Edwin Geralds, E. E Geralds, Frank Lycan and L. J. Kramer.
